Hazards of Farm Life

Mr. Morrison went on to describe in simple language that painted a homely little pen picture of farm life for his hearers the experiences of himself and his companions during war time, when Professor McGill and his confreres represented the government in an endeavor to obtain opinions as to the price of foodstuffs. The millers and grain dealers were able to give the commission an adequate idea of the cost of their processes in the handling of grain, but Mr. Morrison, as spokesman of the farmers, related some of the difficulties in arriving at a proper estimate of the cost of raising a bushel of wheat. Varying conditions and varying weather entered into a consideration of this sort on the part of the farmer. FIREMEN HAVE HOUSE CLEANED

Fire Hall is Re-decorated and Made Spic and Span.

During the past two weeks the firemen have been busy at the job of house-cleaning and the appearance of the Hall at the present time is very striking. A general cleaning has been under way in the interior of the building and on the outside the paint and white-wash brushes have been very busy indeed. The masonry below the brick of the structure is white with black lines in the cracks of the stone presenting a pleasing appearance to the front of the Fire Hall.

Twelve boxes of beautiful flowers are to be placed on the windows. Chief Gimblett told The Examiner this morning that every year these are supplied by three florists in the city namely: Jordan Bros., Peterborough Floral, and Blade florists.

The doors of the Hall have all been grained and varnished and the woodwork near the roof is painted brown.

With the two Union Jacks standing out in front of such a background as the local Fire Hall presents, the Department is ready to welcome the Governor-General on Monday.

The most puzzling problem of the London street names committee is what to do with the great number of streets of the same name. For instance, there are dozens of George streets, Victoria streets and Church streets, which confuse the postmen.

How Scotland Yard got its name is a mystery. Many guesses have been made, one being that the kings of Scotland and their ambassadors occasionally lodged there.

A well-known physician suggests that saying grace before meals is good for the digestion. The brief interval of calm during which grace is spoken has the effect of soothing the mind, he says.

At a convention of scientists in Washington recently a plant was shown growing within a hermetically sealed bulb, proving that plants do not need fresh air. It uses the same water and air over and over again and requires no attention.

Hazards of Farm Life

Mr. Morrison went on to describe in simple language that painted a homely little pen picture of farm life for his hearers ,the experience of himself and his companions during war time, when Professor McGill and his confreres represented the government in an endeavor to obtain opinions as to the prices of foodstuffs. The millers and grain dealers were able to give the commission an adequate idea of the cost of their processes in the handling of grain, but Mr. Morrison, as spokesman of the farmers, retailed some of the difficulties in arriving at a proper estimate of the cost of raising a bushel of wheat. Varying conditions and varying weather entered into a consideration of this sort on the part of the farmer. The favorable growth of a field of wheat to maturity, with later possibilities of black rust, of rains and consequent sprouting, even the delays consequent on lack of labor and of threshing-machine parts were all items in the story.

"And yet we have a wonderful industry, because it is the greatest of all industries, and the farmer on his farm is different from any other individual in the world. Some think us slow, because we lack a knowledge of the viciousness of life, but I tell you that we control the moral stamina of the world. If it was not for the farmers, I don't know what would happen, but they are getting fewer and fewer every day, and the situation is getting dangerous.

"In the City of Toronto, "The Good," I saw today on my way down town several armored cars containing men with drawn pistols, ready, if necessary, to repel bandit attacks as they were taking bank money from one place to another. It is an appalling situation when such precautions are needed. But I have more respect for the man who would rob one of these cars than I have for the other type of thief who will rob the public treasury and then bribe some official not to squeal on him. Have you been reading the reports of the Customs investigation and the reports of breweries that have not paid taxes for years?"

Speaking of the four great basic industries of mining, fishing, lumbering and agriculture, Mr. Morrison said that agriculture alone did not tend to an exploitation industry. He felt that the operations of mining, fishing and lumbering were exploiting industries that took from mother earth; while with agriculture, "The more you work it, the more you get out of it and the better it gets if you are a proper farmer.

"A kind Providence gave you fruits and vegetables and grains. You developed and perfected them, making them better than they were. No other industry does that. You are partners of the Creator. He did His part, and you do yours, and together you produce You have made a wonderful success of it, but you lack in business instinct. When you have produced, you allow someone else to exploit your industry.

"Capital and Labor have left the land. No financier invests money in land to make money out of it. He knows better. He takes your product and makes money out of that, but he does not invest money in the land and work it.

"We must organize. The packers are organizing so that they will be in better position to exploit your industry, and I don't blame them for it. I blame the farmers who do not do likewise and meet organization with organization. Every profession and industry, from the preacher to the bootblack, is organized except agriculture, and the farmer thinks he can get along in the same old way.

Help Yourself Idea.

"The idea in organization is not to ask: "What are you going to do for us?" but 'What are we going to do for ourselves "—through organization. The same idea will work today that used to work in the logging and barn-raising bees, when we worked co-operatively, because it was necessary to do so, in order to achieve what we wanted.

"Lower races from Asia and Southern Europe will crowd in on us and work the land. You know that as well as I do. Where are the boys and girls of today? In our meetings you will find only older men coming together in organized industry. The end is not far away."

Speaking of his own homestead, where no funeral had been held since the death of his grandfather, in 1861, Mr. Morrison referred to only one son out of four being on the land, and that son discontented with his lot. "And I don't blame him. But that old home will pass into the hands of others. They say we do not care, but every spot on those old places is hallowed by association. Those who say, 'We do not care,' are those who have never known the love of the land.

"We have the most perfect type of organization in the world, because it represents father, mother and children. The U.F.O., the U.F.W.O. and the U.F.Y.P.O are all financed from the one treasury And it is a very democratic organization But you can make it or break it It was created for you

"In your county here, you are behind in membership. The County of Northumberland is behind by one hundred and two members under last year's total, and the County of Durham is behind by one hundred and fifty-two members. But the membership of the whole province is ahead. Several other counties are behind, but many are very much ahead. I hope you will get together here and remedy this. We have no hesitation in saying that conditions are bad. But they are worse than you think. They are so bad in some places that I hate to think about them."

Mr. Morrison referred here to a farm of three hundred acres, situated about twenty-five miles north of the city of Guelph in the County of Wellington, a level, rockless farm, a corner lot near a thriving village, with a stone house and a stone road, one good bank barn 70 by 80 feet and another barn 30 by 50 feet in dimensions, for which a price of $8,500 could not be obtained and it is idle this year in consequence. The property, to be settled in an estate wind-up, has a mortgage of $3,100 against it.

Mr. Morrison concluded with a reference to his return to the farm in 1900, after several years' absence in the city, and his firm conviction then that experience in handling men as a factory foreman in the city would help him to success on the land, with a consequent disillusionment that sent him, after three years' trial of farm work, to the labors of organization which he has been following ever since. He said:

"Our forefathers came into this country and transformed it in the space of one generation. But they are lying now in neglected cemeteries on the back concessions. It is not the Lindberghs of the world who do the worth-while things. People go crazy over that kind of thing. What I want to say to you today is: Get busy and do it now."

BOYS' CAMP IS WELL PLANNED

More Than 500 Boys Have Received Particulars of Holiday.

GO BY BUS.

Into the hands of over 500 boys in the city copies of the folder describing the Peterborough and District Rotary-Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp have been placed. These folders will in many instances prove an eye-opener to boys and parents alike who have no clear idea as to the equipment installed by the Rotary Club of recent years on their camp site on Clear Lake. The picture of the new power boat shown on the back page of The Examiner on Saturday last evidences the co-operation of the Rotary-Annes in this great community enterprise.

The committee of the camp have all but completed the plans of the entire summer. Mrs. McKinstry, who had charge of the most important item in last year's camp—the preparation of food—will be on the job this season again. This is the first season in the history of Camp Rotary that the season has opened with an old hand in the kitchen. The Boys' Secretary of the "Y" will be in command at the camp for the month of July to be followed by the Physical Director. Associated with these men will be a fully qualified assistant director and a corps of volunteer leaders for the groups. It is anticipated that there will be groups from several surrounding places during the summer, each accompanied by a leader.

A new feature this season will be the transportation to and from camp. In former years the camp was dependent on the loan of cars from different persons in the city. This did not work out to the best advantage and has been superseded by direct bus communication to Kawartha Park. Parties will leave for camp every Monday morning though if a parent desires to bring his boy to the camp during the week no objection will be raised.

Just to get into the spirit of camping and to renew old times the first reunion of the ROTARY-Y.M.C.A. Campers will be held on Saturday down the river using the new camp power boat. This is open to every boy who was in the camp last year provided he registers at the Y.M.C.A. in good time to ensure a place being reserved for him.

ZION LEAGUE SERVICE

Citizenship Department Have Charge of Programme During Regular Service.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, June 17.—The League service was held at Zion on Tuesday evening of this week in charge of the citizenship department. The devotional programme was taken by the president, Fred Barnum and consisted of hymns and scripture appropriate for the patriotic nature of the programme. The topic in the observance of the Sabbath day was taken by Lindsay Anderson. A patriotic reading was given by Frank Nash and a talk on the history of Confederation and since by Earl Fairman.

Over fifty were in attendance with the groups evenly represented. Only one present had failed to attend service the previous Sabbath.

The contest figures to date are: Whites 729 points, Khaki 697, Reds 608, Blues 528. The contest runs until September so that changes may take place yet.

The softball game between the Blues and the Red-White teams was a very heavy hitting affair and a shortage of fielders for part of the game did not help the situation any. The final score, 24-24, was satisfactory to both sides and each team will get a point. Next week's game: Khaki vs. Blue.

The line-up:

Red-White— Thomas Fry, 3b.; G. Meiklejohn ,p.; Allan Simpson, 1b.; Roy Fry, c.; G. Barnum, 2b.; Alf. Simpson, r.f.; F. Nash, l.f.; E. Mumby, s.s.

Umpires—L. Anderson and M. McKenzie.

Score-keeper Grant Kerr was the busiest man of the evening.

ORANGE CORNER NEWS

The W. A. of St. John's Church met on Wednesday afternoon, and held their annual birthday party on the lawn at the home of Mr. F. Fowler. They entertained several ladies from the sister churches, in all about forty. It was a pleasure to have Rev. and Mrs. Weir, and a very great pleasure also to have Rev. and Mrs. I. G. Craw, of Victoria Harbour, who have been visiting in this vicinity. A very pleasant time was spent, three quilts being quilted, which was profitable as well as social. A rain shower came just as tea was finished, and rather marred the pleasure of the evening.

Obituary.

The community regrets the death of one of its neighbours, Mr. S. Bailey. Rev. E. W. Rowland, of Omemee, conducted the funeral service, and a very large gathering of sympathizers, neighbours and friends attended to pay their last tribute of respect. Mrs. Bailey and family have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Personals.

Mrs. G. McCague, of Port Hope, spent the week-end with friends and attended Mr. S. Bailey's funeral.

The many friends of Mr. T. McBride are sorry to hear of his illness, and hope for a speedy recovery.

Work on the road is the order of the day, and the stone crusher is quite busy.

BEAUTIFYING THE CITY.

The action of property-owners on Rubidge street between Charlotte and Sherbrooke streets in beautifying the boulevards on both sides of the street is a very material contribution toward the ideal of "The City Beautiful" that many people have cherished and worked for, often without much thanks from the rest of the community.

The planting of flowers along the boulevards, as has been done by these public-spirited Rubidge street residents, is an improvement that might well be copied by other neighborhoods.

It will add greatly to the appearance of that section of the city, and the people generally should encourage and support such efforts by doing everything possible to see that the boulevards so beautified are protected.

Public spirit, as demonstrated by these citizens, often means the difference between a mere city and a community that makes visitors say, "This must be a delightful place in which to live."

What has been done on Rubidge street can and should be done elsewhere.

THOSE WHO DON'T STOP.

Any citizen who keeps his eyes open in regard to the operation of the stop street system in Peterborough knows that the regulations in regard to coming to a full stop before entering through streets is being more honoured in the breach than in the observance, so far as a large number of motorists is concerned.

This is Safety Week and a splendid time for those who have been neglecting the stop rule to decide that henceforth they will conscientiously obey the law.

For those who will not make that resolve voluntarily there should be other means adopted of teaching them the meaning of the "Stop" signs.

So long as both pedestrians and the drivers on through streets have to be on their guard continually against motorists who refuse to stop the regulation is far from achieving its full value as a safety plan.

At two consecutive corners yesterday an accident was only just averted, and failure on the part of drivers entering George street from side streets to stop their cars was responsible for the mix-up.

Motorists who ignore the signs should be given something to read that they cannot ignore.

THE JUBILEE PARADE.

The Toronto committee has decided that the Diamond Jubilee parade shall not be used in any way for publicity purposes, and accordingly any displays that could be regarded as advertising mediums are not to be made.

This is a policy that should be generally followed.

The jubilee parade is no place for advertising, and any attempt to utilize it for that purpose would cheapen the whole demonstration and very markedly detract from the effect of the procession.

The whole idea behind the jubilee parade should be to set forth the history of Canada and to glorify the advancement that has been made during the Confederation period, and consequently the floats and displays should be prepared with that aims in view.

There should be no room in any jubilee procession for anything that is purely commercial; the fact that circus elephants carry advertisements does not justify a patriotic demonstration being used in a similar manner.

Here in Peterborough, and everywhere else, the jubilee parade should be dignified, colourful and patriotic in character.

MR. COOK IS RIGHT.

Hon. J. R. Cook, speaking at the annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association of the county of Peterborough at Lakefield on Wednesday, very wisely made his address a patriotic and effective Diamond Jubilee message, instead of using his time to deliver the usual partisan political propaganda.

The occasion, of course, would normally call for a Cabinet Minister to talk party politics, but this is an unusual year, the completion of sixty years of progress under Confederation, and Mr. Cook had vision enough to realize that it is the duty of men in public life in this year of jubilee to put party to one side and discuss the broader question of Canada, her history and her future.

Politicians generally, it is to be hoped, will take a leaf out of Mr. Cook's book and add to the completeness of Canada's celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation.

Nineteen twenty-seven should be remembered as a year in which Canadians placed the welfare of their country before every other interest.

Mr. Cook is right; it is not a time to be talking partisan politics, for discussion of such topics merely serves to produce a feeling that is decidedly out of place at a time of national celebration.

SAVING INFANT LIFE.

Up in Toronto a campaign has been launched for the reduction of infant mortality (infant deaths under one year of age). It is a crusade meriting support. For, despite its healthful climate, its freedom from great industrial centres, and its wide-open spaces, Canada's record in the matter of infant mortality is far from being creditable. We come after the United States, after the British Isles, after the British Dominions. As a matter of fact, Canada's infant mortality rate is the highest of any English-speaking nation. It is double that of New Zealand, almost double that of Australia; and it is far greater than that of countries like the Netherlands, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland.

Ottawa, it must be said, contributes heavily to this bad eminence. Thus while the infant mortality rate per thousand births (outside of Quebec) stands at 78.9, Ottawa's rate is 131.3. This is not as high as Montreal, which has an infant death rate of 157 per thousand births, or as high as Quebec City, which has a rate of 177, but it is higher than the rate of any other Canadian city, except Halifax. Toronto's rate is but 76; Winnipeg's, 80; Vancouver's, 64; Hamilton's, 78; London's, 74; and Calgary's, 90.

The rate of infantile mortality to living births has been greatly reduced in all civilized countries in recent years. The low record is held at the present time by New Zealand, where in 1924 the rate of infantile mortality was only 40.2 per thousand births as compared with 68 in 1905. Illustrative of the improvement in the last decade or two is the case of England, where the rate of infantile mortality has been reduced from 126 per thousand births in 1905 to 75 in 1924; while the rate in Germany has declined from 196 in 1904 to 108 in 1924. In the Netherlands, too, the rate has declined from 131 per one thousand living births in 1905 to 51 in 1924.

It is quite clear, therefore, that a great deal can be done in Canada to reduce the death rate of infants. And no more important work could possibly engage both individuals and the state.—Ottawa Journal.

NEWS AND NEWSPAPERS.

Those who profess to believe that newspapers of choice spend their money and their largest type on stories of crime and scandal must have been somewhat disconcerted by the case of Colonel (late Captain) Lindbergh. No story since the war has been given so much space in all the newspapers of the world, and there are few imaginable scandals and crimes which would create an international demand to justify an equal amount of attention by editors. And it is important to bear in mind that the Lindbergh story has attracted unprecedented interest because of its adventurous wholesomeness.

Those who write and publish newspapers are quite convinced from their experience that a criminal or salacious motif is not an essential to a great news story. They prefer to print the news of decent people, but in an imperfect world it is not possible to ignore the other side. Frank E. Tripp, a newspaper publisher, put the case rather well to the Rochester (N. Y.) Ad Club in an address the other day. "The man," he said, "who complains of unwholesome news in the press invariably impresses me that he is apologizing for his own appetites. . . . To suppress entirely all unwholesome news would be a violation of the newspaper's duty to its readers. . . . By long odds the news of mankind in the main is wholesome news and good newspapers so recognize it and feature it."

That is sound journalistic doctrine, and there is much truth also in what Mr. Tripp had to say about the general place of a newspaper in its community.

"I never heard of a citizen phoning the bill posters to hurry into his neighborhood with a bill board. I never heard of anybody seeking the removal of a postman because he failed to leave mail advertising literature. I never heard of any committee of indignant citizens complaining to the city council that a licensed handbill peddler had missed him. I never heard of a street car company losing passengers because they had no ads in their cars.

"But let one newsboy miss a customer. From the most remote corner of the city comes a call, 'I didn't get my paper,' and out shoots a trouble boy on a motorcycle, delivering the most animate and perishable of all manufactured products, more valuable to peace and public safety than the police department, more necessary to business than the Chamber of Commerce, the poor man's university, the stabilized of civilization, the guardian of public health—that abused, accused and damned necessity—the daily newspaper."

"All I know," Will Rogers used to say, "is what I see in the papers." As a matter of fact the man who knows what is going on in the world of his day has a very good start towards a liberal education.—Ottawa Journal.

ONTARIO AND QUEBEC AS NEIGHBORS.

Besides giving their best thought to the affairs of their own respective jurisdictions, the present Premiers of Ontario and Quebec are solicitous to promote mutual regard and cordial feeling between the two Provinces. One of the necessary elements in the character of statesmen in this Dominion of self-governing Provinces is a good human nature, one that is more occupied with goodwill towards neighbors than with antipathies or suspicions. Ontario and Quebec ought to be fast friends, showing the fullest confidence in each other, and concerning themselves about the problems they have in common and the policies they should be together supporting for the benefit, not simply of themselves, but of all Canada. Sixty years ago they formed the only country that went by the name of Canada, and the men who were entrusted with the conduct of their affairs worked together to bring about Confederation and establish this great Dominion. Had not Macdonald and Cartier been sincere friends and co-operators, that great work of nation-building could not have been carried out. Undoubtedly the leaders of the Province of Canada sixty years ago were men of exceptional ability, courage and resourcefulness, but what enabled them to rise to the high duty and opportunity of their day was the inspiration of a great idea. It is the want of an elevating idea that keeps many public men in a mediocre career. If the leaders in Ontario and Quebec get really possessed of the extreme importance of these two Provinces working together they can do wonders in the shaping of the future of this country. Ontario and Quebec should be moving together arm in arm for all Canada's welfare. Mr. Taschereau is very loyal to Confederation and to British connection. So is Mr. Ferguson. Mr. Taschereau is a true spokesman of his Province's sentiments, and Mr. Bourassa is a false one. "We, in Quebec," says Mr. Taschereau, "will stick to the British connection as long as the British Empire endures." Sir E. P. Tache, who was Premier of the Province of Canada at the time of his death on the eve of Confederation, expressed himself similarly more than sixty years ago in the statement that the last gun fired for British connection on this continent will be fired by a French-Canadian. A little more about loyalty to British connection might well be heard from all parts of Canada, and a little less about independence of the Mother Country. Britain is still the trustee for the rights of minorities in Canada. British connection is still a vital thing for the Canadian people.—The Mail and Empire.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It might be pointed out that those signs at certain street corners marked "S-T-O-P" mean "Stop."

Apparently The New York American League team is also out after the non-stop record.

More orders for Canadian woollen manufacturers mean more work for Peterborough employees of these industries.

Traffic on the Canadian canals in May was the heaviest in history. But wait until the Trent begins to hit its stride!

Now that the careful drivers are organizing themselves into a club it ought to be easy to round up the other kind.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, Que., June 17 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain continued extremely dull on the Montreal market yesterday, but the impression of some in the trade was that exporters would be in the market for further supplies in the near future on account of the steady decrease in the quantities on passage the past two or three weeks and the fact that the prospects of the crops in the United Kingdom were not altogether encouraging owing to the cool, dry weather that has prevailed.

Owing to the further strength in the Chicago corn future market, local prices were again marked up two cents per bushel. The demand was quiet. American sample corn was quoted at $1.08 and Argentine corn at $1.07 per bushel, ex-store. Canadian Western oats were also advanced one cent per bushel.

The undertone to the flour market was firm, but the demand for spring and winter wheat grades was of a very limited character.

On account of the increasing scarcity of good milling oats in the West and the further advance in prices, the tone of the local market for rolled oats was stronger again yesterday, and values were marked up another ten cents per bag. The trade was fair.

A moderate amount of business was worked in most lines of millfeed and prices were steady.

The egg market was fairly active and the undertone continued firm. The receipts were 2,468 cases.

The trade in potatoes was quiet, and the feeling was easier. Car lots of Quebec white B grade were quoted at $2.15 to $2.25 per bag, and reds at $1.80 to $1.90 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The butter market was stronger, and values were marked up ¼c per pound. The trade was quiet, but the receipts were small. The receipts were 1,586 packages.

Owing to the more encouraging cable advices coming forward, the increased demand and the limited supplies available on spot, a stronger feeling prevailed in the cheese market yesterday, and values scored a fractional advance. The receipts were 5,737 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 17 (Canadian Press). — Big trading and sharply higher prices in the corn market yesterday accompanied persistent cool, wet weather that put an additional serious crimp in the corn crop. Closquotations for corn were strong 2¼ to 2¾ cents net higher, with wheat firm at ⅝ to 1⅞ cent gain, oats ½ to ⅝ cent up, and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 30 cents.

Wheat values bulged after an early dip. The late upturn was based on corn strength and on fears of a wet harvest for wheat in the south-west. Unlooked-for weakness of wheat quotations at Liverpool counted as a bearish factor early, and so, too, did almost perfect conditions for domestic spring wheat north-west.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

BOOST! BOOST! BOOST!

To The Examiner,

Sir,—Within the last week it has, in no uncertain way, been brought to my notice the number of people in our city who do not know that a pageant is being put on at the Exhibition Grounds on the 1st and 2nd of July as Peterborough's part in commemorating the sixty years' Jubilee of Confederation.

I have been talking it up and have been surprised at the number who have asked, what pageant? And others have kept silent, not wishing, I presume, to show they were ignorant of the fact that a pageant is being presented in Peterborough.

I am very much surprised that more publicity has not been given this great coming event. Surely we are anxious to keep our people in the city for those two days and to attract others from the surrounding communities to come and join in the demonstrations.

If we do not boost by all means at our disposal, this great pageant, and do it quickly, we shall find our citizens making preparations to spend the two days out of town. The support of the public is absolutely necessary to make the event a success.

A circus coming to town can draw the crowds from far and near by their system of advertising, large posters, etc. Surely similar means are at our disposal. So it is up to Peterborough to wake up during the remaining few days and get busy if we want the 1st and 2nd of July to be the gigantic success it deserves, and not have people asking, what pageant?

Yours truly,

INTERESTED ONE.

A Thought For To-day

DON'T QUIT.

When things go wrong, as they sometimes will,
When the road you're trudging seems all up hill,
When the funds are low and the debts are high,
And you want to smile, but you have a sigh,
When care is pressing you down a bit,
Rest, if you must—but don't you quit.

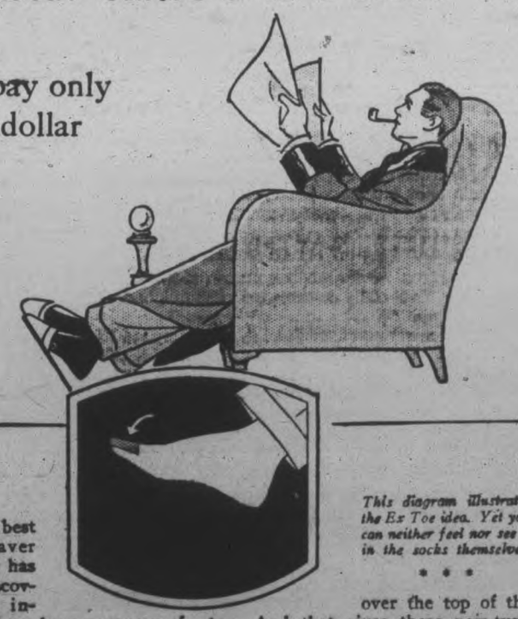
We say these new-type socks outwear others 3 to 4 times

You pay only one dollar



This diagram illustrates the Ex Toe idea. Yet you can neither feel nor see it in the socks themselves.

THE world's best known weaver of men's socks has made a new discovery. Wear is increased 3 to 4 times by a new way of knitting.

Now in a different way a special wear-resisting thread is woven at the tip and over the top of the toe. And that gives these new-type socks 3 to 4 times longer wear.

Ex Toe comes in light and heavier silks. Smart and trim fitting. See the new colors that have become so popular. Silks $1 and $1.25. Other materials as well. Be sure to ask for Ex Toe. At leading stores.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R, Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE BONFIRE.

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

"Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" shouted Boppy, the little wooden man, in the bungleump one morning. "Oh, something dreadful has happened!"

"Has Um fallen down stairs?" asked the rabbit gentleman, who, for a time, was living with Boppy, Um and the Wogglejigs in their bungleump home, near the bunny's hollow stump bungalow.

"Oh, no, I didn't fall down stairs," answered Um for herself, as she came bouncing up and down to the door of the room where Mr. Longears slept. Boppy and Um had to bounce up and down, for they had no legs on which to walk. "It wouldn't have hurt me even if I had fallen down stairs," went on the cute little wooden woman. "But I didn't."

"Then what happened?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Bumple is lost!" cried Boppy. "Our dear, little, green Wogglejig boy is lost! Oh, dear me!" and Boppy cried wooden tears which fell with a clatter like hail on the floor.

"Ha!" he cried, "There is Bumple!"

"Is all of Bumple lost, or only part of him?" asked Mr. Longears. For the Wogglejigs, as you know, had a funny way of lending each other their tails, heads or legs. Bumple might have done that.

"He is all lost—every bit of our green Wogglejig boy is lost?" sighed Boppy. "Um and I have looked all over for him, but we can't find him."

"Perhaps he has been kept in after school," suggested Mr. Longears.

"No," answered Um. "Bumple left school with Gazie, Dumple and his other sisters and Wumple. But they said he ran off in the woods, to have an adventure. They waited for him to come out, but he didn't! Bumple is lost!"

"Then I shall go find him!" offered Uncle Wiggily. "I came to visit you, Boppy and Um, to have adventures and help you unscramble the Wogglejigs. Also when they are lost I must help find them. I'll go look at once for Bumple!"

Uncle Wiggily hopped through the woods near the bungleump, looking on every side for Bumple. Scattered through the forest were the other Wogglejig children, Gazie, Mazie, Dazie, Dumple and Wumple.

"Sort of," admitted Mr. Longears. "It will be bedtime and dark soon. We must find your green brother before that happens."

After a time the rabbit gentleman was alone in one part of the woods, looking for the lost Bumple. The other Wogglejigs had scattered here and there. All of a sudden Mr. Songears saw something green beneath a bush.

'Her!' he cried. 'There is Bumple. But it was only a new green leaf growing out to greet the summer, which would soon come. Much disappointed, Uncle Wiggily hopped on and all of a sudden he saw a little ant lady building a bonfire.

"Why are you building the fire, Mrs. Ant?" asked the rabbit.

"Because," she answered, "I am still cold and wet from having tried to cross the brook yesterday in my leaf boat. I lost my oars and would have been swept over the waterfall only a little Wogglejig girl jumped in, pushed my boat to shore and saved me."

"Oh, so you are that ant lady!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I thought I knew you. Well, Dazie is the name of the little Wogglejig girl who saved you, and I am looking for her lost brother Bumple. Have you seen poor, lost Bumple?"

"No, I think not," answered the ant lady. She picked up a stick to put on her bonfire and, all of a sudden, Uncle Wiggily saw that the stick was painted green.

"Wait! Hold on! Stop!" cried the rabbit. "That may be part of lost Bumple—a leg or a tail!" Hopping closer to the ant's bonfire Uncle Wiggily saw, indeed, that the stick was Bumple's green tail. "Where did you find this?" asked Mr. Longears of Mrs. Ant.

"Under the bush," she answered, pointing with one leg. And there, curled up and fast asleep, was the lost Bumple. His green tail stuck out and the ant lady had pulled it off to put on her bonfire, not knowing twha it was.

"But it's a good thing you stopped me in time, Uncle Wiggily," said Mrs Ant as she found more wood for her blaze. "I wouldn't want to burn Bumple's tail!" Then with his tail stuck back on him, Bumple was awakened, and hurried to the bungleump with Uncle Wiggily. So all was well.

The Apex Electrophonic

—interprets the very soul of music

THAT which others are now attempting has been already accomplished in the APEX ELECTROPHONIC. It brings out in every instance all that is in the record—all the individualism of the vocalist or the instrumentalist—all the true tonal qualities without exaggeration, distortion or blatancy. Every note—half note—even the most subtle tone inflection is reproduced with absolute fidelity.

The Apex Electrophonic is new. There is nothing with which to compare it except the performance of the artists themselves.

CEASE FIRING.

LONDON, June 17.—(United Press.)—According to the Shanghai correspondent of the London Daily Express, Doctor Wu Nanking, Minister of Foreign Affairs, issued a proclamation yesterday ordering the immediate return of all property "borrowed" from foreigners who evacuated Nationalist territory "in order to avoid the calamities of the war."

The order further states that hereafter no consuls, churches, foreign residences, schools, hospitals, warehouses nor any movable articles shall be occupied or borrowed on any pretext.

Foreign buildings previously borrowed or occupied must be returned immediately.

Chiang Kai-Shek issued a similar statement instructing troops to cease firing on foreign warships, also ordering protection for life and property.

Special instructions were issued simultaneously to all officials throughout Nationalist territory to protect Germans who "were peaceful traders and citizens friendly to our country."

IN POLICE COURT.

A lengthy list of cases confronted Magistrate O. A. Langley in the Police Court yesterday, the sitting being protracted well into the afternoon.

A suspect arrested in connection with the numerous cases of housebreaking of the past week in and around Gilmour Street, and said by the police to have been identified by several women as the man seen entering some of the burgled houses, was remanded on the charge of housebreaking and entering with intent to commit an indictable offence.

The determination of the police to enforce obedience to the "Stop" signs at the approaches to the through streets of the city was brought out forcibly by the appearance of a batch of motorists charged with breach of the by-law. Fines of $5 were imposed in each case.

Two motorists paid similar sums for the privilege of riding after sunset without lights.

A young driver who had "let her rip" when he thought he was unobserved regretted his indiscretion when he found himself mulcted in $10 and costs as the price of his indulgence.

King George of England is credited with a wonderful shooting feat—he took four pheasants with successive shots, the fourth bird being hit before the first had reached the ground.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CHARACTER OF A GOOD CITIZEN

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 19: The Character of a Good Citizen—I Peter 2:11-17—4:1-5.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.

Text: I Peter 2:11-17; 4:1-5

Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts, which war against the soul;

Having your conversation honest among the Gentiles: that whereas they speak against you as evil doers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation.

Submit yourselves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake: whether it be to the king, as supreme;

Or unto governors, as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well.

For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men:

As free, and not using your liberty for a cloke of maliciousness, but as the servants of God.

Honour all men. Love the brotherhood. Fear God. Honour the king.

Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin;

That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.

For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings and abominable idolatries:

Where in they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of riot, speaking evil of you:

Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead.

A Christian is a citizen of two kingdoms. By the fact of being a Christian he has accepted his place in the Kingdom of God, in which kingdom allegiance to Christ is the supreme thing.

This must be for the Christian the place of his primary obligation, and if earthly laws or rulers demand of him anything out of harmony with his duty to God, there can be for him only one course, the course that Peter himself followed when his preaching in the early church brought upon him the persecution of the authorities. When he was accused of disobeying the laws of men he replied, "We ought to obey God rather than men."

Earthly Duties Important.

But the Christian is likewise a citizen of an earthly society in which orderly government, no matter how far it may be from ideal government, usually marks a great stage in the progress of man from barbarism. It is the function of government to establish just and fair relations between man and man in society, and it is the duty of every good citizen to strengthen the forces of government, to obey all reasonable and just laws, and to do everything in his power to make society as nearly as possible like the Kingdom of Heaven itself.

Hence the New Testament always represents the entire moral and spiritual obligations of life as related to earthly tasks, relationships and duties. Though the Christian is free and is under a law of conscience, he must not use his freedom as a cloak of offense against his fellow men. His Christian insight and his conscientious scruples must make him all the more careful to do everything possible for the betterment of the life of the community.

It is doubtful whether there can be any good sound citizenship upon any less substantial a foundation. If citizenship is merely a formal relationship in which men regard law and government merely as a convenience or as a power for protecting their own property and their personal rights, society will very soon lapse into a condition of injustice which is in itself menacing. Where there is not as much emphasis upon duties as there is upon rights, law and government must inevitably be weak and ineffectual, or exercised for the benefit of some to the disregard of the rights and privileges of others.

It is only as a good citizen sees his fellow men with the vision of brotherhood that he becomes in the highest sense a good citizen. In civil life, as in the life of the moral world, love is the fulfilling of the law.

Limits to Loyalty.

Of course this principle of civil obligation as resting upon the Christian should not be perverted to the defense of evil laws and the injustice of tyrannical governments. It should be remembered that Jesus called his own king "that fox," and that Paul came to think of the Christian spirit as against principalities and powers which were working not for righteousness but for injustice and wrong.

The famous Junius said in his letters: "The subject who is truly loyal to the Chief Magistrate will neither advise nor submit to arbitrary measures." In the foundations of our own government this fact is expressly recognized and the principles and institutions of democracy, under which we live in America, were themselves forged out of a revolutionary era which could not have taken place if the men who achieved it, many of them earnest Christian men, had understood the teaching of the New Testament as commandin obedience to unjust laws and rulers.

But the New Testament does make clear that it is the duty of the Christian to obey the laws and authorities of the country and community in which he lives except where he cannot do so because of a higher allegiance to Christ. How many laws in modern America would any man feel compelled to disobey because of such allegiance to Christ? Can we think of a single one?

The purpose of laws in a democracy, even though they press severely upon individual habits and customs, is to secure the welfare of the whole people as against the privileges of the few. The Christian who is deeply imbued with the spirit of love and brotherhood will obey and uphold the law in every practical way because of that great purpose.

SPEAKERS DISCUSS PROBLEM OF CHILD

Many Addresses Given at Hope Religious Education Conference.

WELCOME, June 17. — The annual convention of the Hope, Township Branch of the Ontario Religious Education Association was held at Morish Church on Monday, June 13th.

There was a splendid attendance of delegates from all the Sunday Schools of the township but one.

Rev. J. F. Lane, of Canton, president, occupied the chair. After the devotional exercises in the afternoon, reports were heard from the superintendents of the different departments: Cradle roll, home, missionary, temperance, children's young people's and adult.

Two demonstration lessons were given. Mrs. Carrol, of Canton, presided at a primary lesson and Mrs. Gray of Garden Hill taught a Bible class. A round table conference on some of the problems that had arisen from the reports was conducted by Rev. D. R. Clare.

Rev. Llewellyn Smith, of Toronto, representative of the O.R.E.A., spoke of the value of teacher training. He said the chief problem of Sunday School work was to make it interesting enough. A teacher should make a study of the pupil more emphatic than a study of the lesson assigned. Bring the problems that affect the child's life into the teaching of the lesson. He mentioned one book, "Right Living," as being very helpful to the Sunday School teacher of boys and girls.

At the close of the afternoon service a very bountiful repast was served by the ladies of Morish Church to the delegates.

Rev. D. R. Clare, pastor of the church, led the devotional exercises for the evening service, and conducted the installation services for the new officers, who are as follows:

President—Rev. J. F. Lane.
Vice-president—Mr. R. C. Symons.
Secretary-treasurer—Mrs. Elliott.
Supt. of Adult Department—Harvey Dickenson.
Supt. of Young People's Department—Mr. W. E. Honey.
Supt. of Teen Age Boys' Department—Mr. Bannister.
Supt. of Teen Age Girls' Department—Mrs. Bristo.
Supt. of Children's Department — Mrs. Carrol.
Missionary Supt.—Mrs. D. Bebee.
Temperance Supt.—Mrs. B. McCulloch.

Sunday School Problems.

Rev. Mr. Crisall, of Perrytown, gave an interesting address on the "Problems of the Sunday School." He said the Sunday School was one of the problems of the Protestant Church. The Catholic Church has not the same problem, because they have the child in the church. It is time we planned for the child. The responsibility rests with the parent. Early impressions make foundations. Godly parents usually produce Godly children. When the parents are ungodly, the Sabbath School has to graft the good work into the little life. Too often the Sunday School is left to do the work of the parent. Parents are interested in the secular education of the child. They ought to be in the religious training. The Sunday School teacher has the biggest job in the world to-day, because the child of to-day is the man of to-morrow, therefore the Sunday School helps train the future nation. Some of the duties of the teacher are to know the lesson, arouse interest, know the pupils, visit the homes. Be an example at worship and be a strong personality. Be strong in the grace of God and remember God's commission.

Mr L. Smith was the next speaker. He said this was one of a hundred and eighty-five like conventions.

Aims of Sunday School.

He asked what was the aim of the Sunday School, and gave some answers:

1—A place for the child to go so parents could have a nap.
2—To keep the child out of jail.
3—To teach him the things he should know.
4—To teach the Bible.
5—To endeavour to train Christian character.

Some of the agencies:

1—A place beautiful and worshipful; an atmosphere of reverence.
2—Minimum amount of interruption from late-comers, secretaries, etc.
3—Weaving in suitable hymns.
4—Suitable Scripture.
5—Suitable phrases in prayer.
6—Graded lessons.
7—By living what you teach.

"What you are speaks so loudly, I don't know what you say."

The child likes to do what the elders do. Christian workers have a great task and God's challenge comes to all, "Feed my lambs."

Welcome W.M.S.

The June meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. R. C. Seymour, twenty-five members present.

As a recognition of the Confederation celebration, several patriotic hymns were sung, followed by prayer by the president.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

The corresponding secretary read a letter from the Dominion board, which gave appreciation of the past year and urged co-operation and systematic giving for the future work.

Discussion of ways of providing for the needs of the Supply committee followed. It was decided to ask 50 cents extra from each home.

Literature secretary gave an interesting reading.

She announced that Group C had chosen Miss Margaret McKeeler of India as their missionary. A brief review of her life was read.

Mrs. A. Runnals read the Scripture lesson, Math. 14:25-36.

The devotional leaflet "Faith and its obstacles," was given by Miss Helen Bosnell.

GEORGE VAN VOLKENBURG IS NEWLY-ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NORTHUMBERLAND TORIES

Conservative Association Convention Held at Warkworth Sees Need For Activity.

OTHER OFFICERS.

President-elect Voted Against Government Control, He Tells Audience.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 17.—The annual meeting of the Northumberland Conservative Association was held at Warkworth yesterday afternoon, with Retiring President F. D. Boggs, K.C., presiding. In his opening remarks, Mr. Boggs urged upon the electors the necessity of being up and doing, and thereby making their association a live institution. It was the duty, said the speaker, of everyone to work, particularly those who hold office. He assured the convention that when proper leaders were elected the Conservative party would come into its own.

There being no "reports of committees" nor "general business," the election of a chairman was proceeded with. Sam. Nesbitt being elected, Col. Boggs vacated the seat for the newly elected chairman, Mr. Nesbitt said there was no reason why Northumberland should be lost to the Conservative ranks. Explaining that the convention had much business before it, he proceeded at once to the election of officers.

President Elected.

George Van Volkenburgh was the unanimous choice for the presidency of the association. He reminded the convention that he had voted against the Conservative Government in the last Provincial election, and further stated that he did not agree with the Government on Government control, but now that it was law he is solidly behind it. "If I am of any use," said the President-elect, "I will help the Government to carry out Government control. I have no regrets, but I am now solidly behind Government control."

The election of the other officers proceeded without interruption, with the exception of Miss Clara Field, who when nominated as 2nd Vice-President, said that she was not a dyed-in-the-wool Conservative.

The following are the officers elected:

President—George Van Volkenburg.
Vice-President—O. F. Allison.
2nd Vice-President—Miss Clara Field.
3rd Vice-President—Miss Mulholland.
Secretary-Treasurer—A. R. Willmott.
Township Vice-Presidents—Hamilton Township, Robert Earl Drope; Haldimand Township, S. Leach; South Haldimand, Frank Wolfraim, Haldimand Centre, H. Bellcock; Alnwick Township, Charles Cregg; Cramahe Township, George Brown; Percy Township, Dr. Allen; Brighton Township, Walter Ames; Murray Township, N. R. Hart; Seymour West, W. A. Wynn; Seymour East, Robert Lynn; South Monaghan, Alex. Anderson; Brighton Village, W. W. Porte; Cobourg, Arnold Hall; Campbellford, Robert Lowry; Coleman, Dr. J. R. Hancock; Hastings, Dr. Hess; Roseneath, Wm. Murphy.

Delegates Appointed.

The next order of business was the nomination of delegates to the Winnipeg convention in October. Six delegates were to be elected and six alternates named. When fourteen had been nominated, Harry Phillips asked to have his name taken off in order to get a larger representation from the country. Most of the farmers nominated stated that it would be impossible for them to leave the farm during October. It was suggested by a nominee that a committee select the delegates from those nominated. This was strongly objected to by Miss Field, who demanded that a ballot be taken. Mr. Dundas then moved the election by ballot, and when put to the convention, carried by a large majority. The result of the ballot was as follows: Col. F. B. Boggs, K.C., Mrs. Boggs, James Grieve, W. S. Grills, Miss Clara Field. The alternates are: Harry B. Phillips, Frank Field, K.C., Alfred Eggleston, Sam. Nesbitt, Mrs. Sam. Nesbitt, and Mrs. Maybee.

Need of Policy.

M. E. Maybee, M.P., congratulated the president upon his appointment, and expressed pleasure at meeting once again the Conservative stalwarts of Northumberland. "On the face of the last campaign," said Mr. Maybee, "it looks like a set back." Continuing he said that the time was not far distant when the Conservatives would come into their own. The development he said was due to the National Policy of Sir John A. MacDonald. The present administration point out a trade balance but it is only so with Great Britain. Our raw material is going to the U.S.A. The administration at Ottawa, said Mr. Maybee, has no definite plan to pay off the National debt. The principal move into the customs inquiry, he said, was made by the Conservatives, and the inquiry has saved Canada millions of dollars.

Regarding the Winnipeg convention Mr. Maybee said: The National Convention is one of the greatest events. In justice to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, he wanted to say that Mr. Guthrie had certainly made good. He had put his best efforts into the work, and when a critical situation arose he was equal to the occasion.

F. J. McArthur.

"The last time I had the honour of appearing in Warkworth I was elected as your standard-bearer. No matter who the candidate may be at the next election, we will win. You cannot keep the Conservative Party out of this riding," declared Mr. McArthur. "No one need apologize—we welcome all who were misguided back again. Has anyone seen strong drink flowing and gushing down the streets of Warkworth as our opponents told us it would do? We have a leader who is a leader indeed—a politician and a gentleman. Col. Price has none to equal him—not even Mr. Raney. Charles McCrea is the prince of the northland. Dr. Monteith is reducing taxation as he promised he would do. Mr. Henry is not one of those smooth, hand-shaking politicians; he is a road builder. Dr. Godfrey is not enjoying good health."

Mr. MacArthur advised the chairmen of all the different wards to have constantly in mind the great Conservative Party. Concluding, Mr. MacArthur said: "The first thing Cabinet Ministers say is, 'How are things down in Northumberland; they are deeply interested in Northumberland.'"

T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P.

After expressing pleasure at being present at the convention, Mr. Stinson said that the association was to be congratulated on such a fine turnout on such a nice June day. 'I am going to disabuse you rminds at the very outset regarding any long speech," said the speaker. There is no election in sight, therefore, no long speech is required. I was pleased to come down with my room-mate, Mr. Maybee. Mr. Maybee's strong point is in making friends. He knows how to make friends and he knows how to keep them. If I were selecting a candidate I would not select the man who always want to talk on the floor of the House. A man can do the greatest good in the friendship he makes and the influence he exerts in the caucus. He is the most useful representative. We have a few men who take a great deal of time on the floor, but they are not the men who carry weight in caucus.

The Conservatives were elected with 116 members, said the speaker, they laid bare the maladministration of the government and go to the people. They come back with reduced numbers—wonder if the voters want a business administration? It sometimes makes a person question if the people are really thinking. Is there anything wrong in the Conservative party? There can't be anything wrong in the principle of protection. I am deeply interested in the Winnipeg convention, continued Mr. Stinson, and I am pleased to see that this convention is manifesting such great interest. We have diversity of opinion; there are a great many out to get the leadership. Leadership is a great asset. Hon. Hugh Guthrie has led the party well. He has united the party. There was not one controversial question last year.

Georgian Bay Fight.

The fight on the Georgian Bay canal ,continued the speaker, was continued by Conservatives, and the credit for killing the bill should go to the Conservatives. To the credit of the Conservative party is Confederation, the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the conduct of the Great War. Hundreds of millions spent in connection with the war and not a dollar questioned.

Concluding, Mr. Stinson said: "If Canada can keep her judiciary pure, and her politics clean, we are bound to be the greatest nation on earth."

The convention was brought to a close with the singing of the National Anthem.

American watches have a tendency to slow up in London. The fault is blamed on the change of atmosphere.

The bagpipe did not originate in Scotland. It can be traced to ancient Persia, and, by inference, was played in Chaldea, Egypt and ancient Greece.

No army, no taxation, no motor cars and no roads—that is the record of Andorra, the strange little republic in the Pyrenees between France and Spain.

PHOTOGRAPH IS ONLY ADDRESS

Here is a letter on which a photograph was the only address. Canadian postal authorities got it to its proper destination. J. Loxton Rawbon, who is an authority on the restoration of fine oil paintings, received it. Herbert P. Heming had seen one of his newspaper articles in Victoria, B. C., and having a picture that needed attention, he wrote to Mr. Rawbon. Instead of addressing the letter by hand he clipped the newspaper picture as shown above, and with very little delay it was delivered in Toronto, Ont. So far as the post office knows this is the first envelope to cross a continent pictorially addressed.

COMMUNISTS MEET IN TORONTO TO-DAY

Three Day Convention Will Consider Questions of Policy and Activity.

TORONTO, June 17 (Canadian Press).—About 75 members of the Communist Party of Canada, representing all sections of the Dominion, met here today for the first session of a three-day convention. Leading matters for discussion are the raid on Soviet House in London, England, and subsequent development; the building up of the "Left wing" movement in Canadian Labor; the proposed increase in propaganda, and the proposed effort to strengthen the Communist movement among women and children.

ART TREASURES OF LITTLE VALUE

Many People Think Old Paintings Must Be of Great Price.

TORONTO, Ont., June 17 (Canadian Press).—"Art treasures," with neither artistic nor commercial value, are a ever present problem to curators of art galleries throughout Canada.

According to E. R. Greig, curator of the Toronto Gallery of Art, hundreds of persons, living for the most part in the rural districts, labor under the delusion that any picture which has been a family possession for half a century or longer is a collector's piece worthy of gallery prominence.

Many a farmer believes that the crude copy of a famous painting which has decorated his home and that of his father before him is the handiwork of the Old Master himself. And, by letter and in person, they beseige the art galleries, seeking valuations upon atrocities in oil and water; in steel engravings and in cheap color prints.

"We feel that it is our duty to instruct the public in the true values of pictorial art," remarked the curator; "but naturally we cannot disseminate technical knowledge very widely among totally untrained laymen. I give every attention possible to the letters which pour in here following every exhibition, but I cannot put a price upon the majority of the pictures that are sent to me—simply because they have no value whatever, save that which sentiment may attach to them.

"Of course we may some day stumble upon a real 'find' among the flotsam and jetsam which comes to us from back parlors and dusty garrets. That possibility is always before us, but up to now it has not materilized."

Frequently a letter unfolds a pathetic tale of misfortune, which has driven the writer to seek a market for a revered family heirloom.' The most touching item in this category which recent months have brought to the Toronto gallery accompanied a faded framed valentine of mid-Victorian vintage. The smirking visage of a young buck of that period is surrounded by a wreath of once gaudily painted flowers. Below, runs this inscription:

"My Valentine re'er shall have cause to regret
The ardent wish true love enforces;
No pains and no penalties ever shall threat
And nothing but death shall divorce us.
All titles and honors I'd gladly resign
To be my dear charmer's approved Valentine."

The owner of this tribute of love believed that it must possess value if only by reason of its age. It was sent to her when she was a baby and kept by her mother, to be treasured later by herself. Now she is old and feeble, but despite her years is working to support a blind husband.

Steel engravings are a still more fruitful source of delusion, according to Mr. Greig. Most of these are of churches or buildings of historic interest in England. Occasionally one is disposed of for a dollar or two to a buyer who has a personal interest in the locality depicted; but the great majority can be only returned to the astonished senders with tactful letters of explanation.

NEW PASTOR IS INDUCTED

Rev. J. R. Kennedy Becomes Minister of Omemee and Lakevale Congregations.

PRESBYTERIAN

OMEMEE, June 17. — A very impressive and pleasing service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Wednesday afternoon, when the Rev. J. R. Kennedy was inducted as pastor to Omemee and Lakevale congregations.

Beautiful floral decorations were artistically arranged on the communion table and the pulpit.

Following the Scripture lesson and prayer the choir rendered a pretty number, entitled "Sweeter as the years go by."

A letter of regret from Rev. Wm. Cross of Toronto, expressing his inability to be present, and extending his best wishes for future success and happiness, was read by the Moderator. Other regrets were received from Rev. Mr Currie of Lindsay and Rev. D. A. Thompson of Hastings.

Rev. George Aiken of Norwood, upon whose lot it fell to deliver the sermon he having been the most recent minister inducted in this Presbytery, delighted the congregation with his message. He chose for his text the words found in St. John 3: 16, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth on Him should not perish but have everlasting life." In part Mr. Aiken said: "In the material world we are accustomed to measure things at a certain standard. For each particular thing we always resort to some type of measurement; for instance if it is cubic feet we use the cubic measure, or if liquid we use the liquid measure of pints, quarts, etc., and everyone understands the application. But we do not apply these in any other way. We do not speak of charity being so long, good-will so deep, or love so broad, and yet we can use dimensions in speaking of the love of God. When we consider the text we see the breadth in the first part, "For God so loved the world." God loved the world, not only one race but His love extended to all men. The unfortunate thing is that all people have not received it. They have rejected it. God's love is streaming down upon us as the streamers from the sun. God loves the people in far-away lands whose customs and conditions are not ours. We are inclined to turn away when we see something that is ugly, but it is not so with God. He loves everyone, and it is our own fault if we do not receive it. It is not God who takes it from us; it is we who thrust it away. Then the length—God might take away all wickedness out of the world and there would be no need to strive to be good—"He gave His only begotten son." It was not easy and must have caused a great deal of suffering. We have a fine illustration of mother love, when we consider what sacrifices she makes in order to give her children the luxuries she was denied. The love of God is much greater The length of God's love was this in order that our sins might be forgiven. It was the death of one for another. He died as a friend for a friend. We think of the depth in the last clause—His giving up His royal estate in heaven in order that He might dwell with men and that we might be saved. He went off into the wilderness to pray away from the busy world. Jesus Christ became tired at times. He knew what temptation was, and He knows what we endure. The depth of God's love is—that God comes into Christ to live in order that we might be like Him and attain this height, not in a haphazard way, but that man might undergo a training in life. Our earthly life is only a transition from here to the hereafter. It is here we develop life. Will it be worth turning over to God? It is not our's. It is returnable, and let us ask ourselves the question—What kind of a life shall I return to God? Will it be in perfect order as He expects our lives to be, so that at the end of our earthly days we shall live on for evermore. Life here is one of a certain amount of happiness and love. Life hereafter is one of everlasting activities and everlasting love. The height is that we shall have everlasting life so that we shall find a place in that home hereafter, that where He is we may be also.

The choir again rendered a selection "March on." This was followed by the Induction service conducted by the Moderator after which the right hand of fellowship was extended to the newly-inducted pastor by the elders of Lakevale and Omemee congregations.

Address to the Minister.

The address to the minister was then given by Rev. J. Riddell, who took for his subject, "Lovest Thou Me?" Love is the essence of life, the reality of life. Jesus asked this question of Peter, and it comes to us all. "Thou," it is personal, as it comes to each and everyone. What are we to think of Jesus when He said, "Lovest thou Me?" It was the person whom Jesus knew that He asked this question of. It is our duty to declare unto humanity this Jesus—He who lived among us and was raised as a spirit. It is a very hard problem to declare Jesus in the face of conditions of to-day. Jesus came among men in meek humility, as a carpenter. Was it a natural thing for people to accept Him? Would it be to-day? When we understand the humility of Jesus it seems to make it difficult to accept Him as a great person, but it was in this humility that He came. There is the narrow gate and the straight way and the wide gate and the broad way. It is through this narrow gate that the minister desires to lead his congregation.

In closing, Mr. Riddell said, "As you move among the people, whom you are ministering to, mingling with their joys and with their sorrows, may you proclaim unto them the Man of Sorrows and acquainted with grief."

Obligations of the Congregations.

"The Obligations of the congregation to the Minister," was ably presented by Rev. Victor Walker of Janetville. He congratulated the congregation on keeping together for the space of over two years without a resident pastor and also expressed the thought that they are now rewarded in their choice of the Rev. J. R. Kenendy, as pastor. His brief talk was summed up in these four words: "Be of Active Service" in the work of the Master.

Supper was served in the Sunday school room to the large congregation present and a social time enjoyed, the tables being decorated with lily of the valley, tulips and lilacs. The sister congregation of Lakevale was well represented, as well as visitors from Lindsay, and elsewhere.

After all had been served at the sumptuous repast the newly-inducted pastor addressed the gathering briefly to the delight of all.

I. T. LILLICO. J. K. HUGHES

ONE OF THE TWELVE WORST OFFENDERS OF THE PRINCIPLE OF "SAFETY FIRST" IS THE MAN WHO DRIVES A CAR WITH POOR BRAKES.

Also, there is no excuse for this really criminal neglect. The city and country are full of competent garage men, who gladly test your brakes free, and either adjust them or reline them as required at a fraction of the cost of repairs following an accident.

MUST HAVE TWO GOOD BRAKES.

"Under the Motor Act, every automobile is required to have at least two good and efficient brakes," says Inspector Hood. "If this regulation is properly carried out many accidents could be prevented, which otherwise could not be avoided, though, of course, good judgment and a clear head are also needed. The police have authority to prevent an automobile being driven which is known to have defective brakes.

"Should an automobile driver run a person down and kill him, the police must immediately arrest that driver and lay a charge of manslaughter against him. His car is immediately examined, and special attention paid to the condition of the braking system. If the brakes are defective, the case against the driver is so much worse. Every automobile driver should have the brakes on his car regularly tested," he added.

There is no excuse for the man who tries to pass off his responsibility for an automobile accident with the stock phrase: "My brakes wouldn't hold." He is a twin brother to the man who "didn't know it was loaded." Brakes very rarely suddenly fail to hold, unless a brake rod snaps, which is not very often. The brake bands gradually wear down, and therefore need attention and adjustment from time to time.

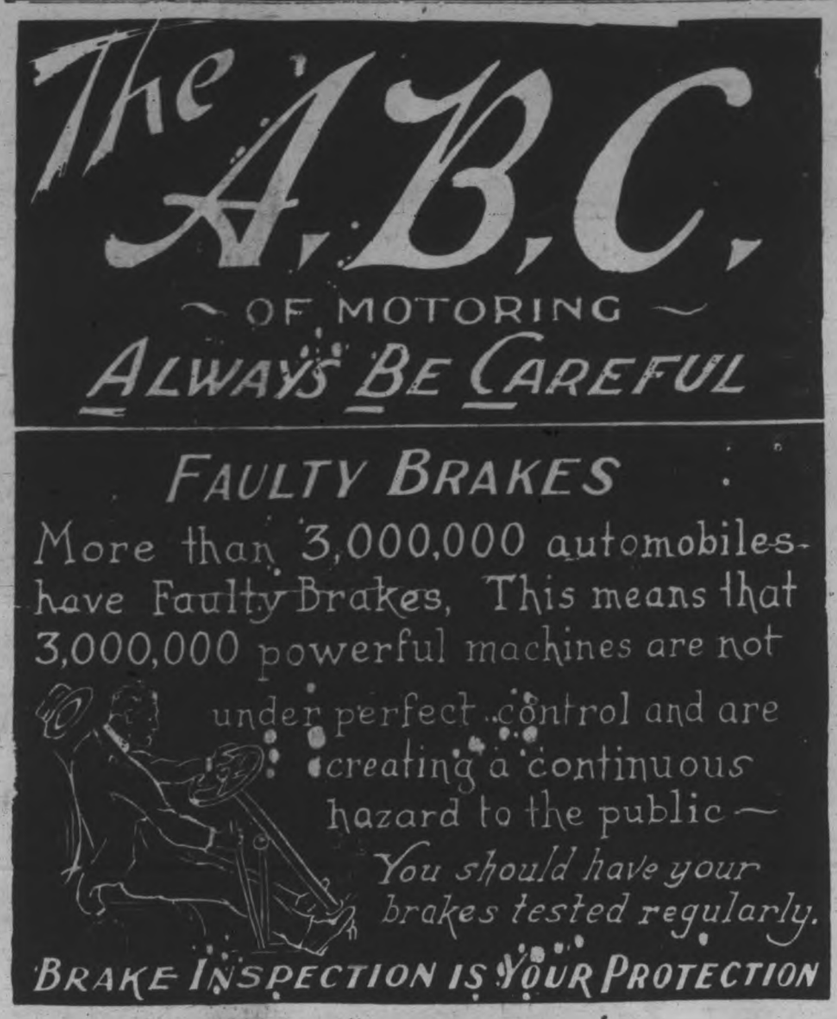
HAVE BRAKES ADJUSTED IN TIME.

Some automobile drivers continue driving their cars without any attention being given to the braking system. They carry on, not realizing the danger they are to themselves and to others, until a serious accident brings a rude awakening. Poor brakes on an automobile give their warning a thousand times a day, especially in city traffic. Then is the time to have them adjusted, and, if necessary, relined. The cost is small when compared with damage claims, hospital and doctor bills. A few dollars will pay for the best of brake-lining and adjustment. Many garages in this city are giving free brake inspection service. The wise driver will take advantage of this service, and have his automobile brakes often inspected and tested.

It does not take long to have new brake bands put on a car with modern electrical equipment, such as many of the Peterborough garages have installed.

Safety weeks have been carried out successfully in many Canadian and United States cities during the past year. Good results have been reported in practically every case, especially in the reduction in the number of automobile accidents.

Moral: "See to your brakes."



GOOD TIRES

Avoid accidents. Don't take a chance. A blow-out might cause you to loose control of the steering wheel and wreck the car. Practise SAFETY FIRST.

The TIRES we sell are well built, dependable, will give long mileage, the heavy non-skid treads will hold your car on the slippery roads, and they cost no more than inferior makes.

ART ASSOCIATION REPORTS

It is my privilege and pleasure to submit the following as the annual report of the activities of the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Women's Art Association for the year 1926-27.

Under the leadership of our enthusiastic President, Mrs. Blackwell, the year has been one of exceptional interest, and great progress has been made in every way. In October a bond of $100.00 was purchased, and at the May meeting the treasurer's report showed a balance of $179.74.

The officers for the year were as follows:

Hon. President—Mrs. Mercer, of Toronto.

President—Mrs. Wm. Blackwell.

2nd Vice President—Mrs. F. C. Neal.

3rd Vice President—Mrs. G. N. Gordon.

4th Vice President—Mrs. V. Eastwood.

Recording Secretary—Mrs. F. C. Webber.

Corresponding Secretary — Miss Grace Reinhardt.

Treasurer—Mrs. Morphet.

Assistant Treasurer—Madame Masson.

Archivist—Miss C. Edwards.

These with the convenor of the Art Study Club, Mrs. B. S. Barnes, and the members' representatives, namely: Mesdames Seels, Vernor, Hodgson, Bown, Connolly, Foster, Craig, Sangster, Gliddon, Sutton, Seaton, Allan, Porter, and Miss M. Rush formed the executive. During the year eight executive meetings were held with an average attendance of eleven.

The Art Study Club with Mrs. S. B. Barnes as convenor, and the Guild of Arts and Crafts under the leadership of Mrs. J. E. R. Munro have been two very important branches of the Association and have proved of great benefit and pleasure to their members.

In December a "Christmas Gift Bridge" was held, this was quite successful, both socially and financially, the proceeds amounting to $42.00.

An inventory of the possessions of the W.A.A. was taken by Mrs. Gliddon, to be copies in the minute book, showing the local club to have some very beautiful and valuable articles.

At the January meeting, a very delightful surprise was given the executive when a gift of four beautiful cake plates was presented to the meeting by Mrs. J. Forbes Allan on behalf of the Musical Club.

In February a delightful "English Tea" was held at the beautiful new home of Mrs. Sutton, by the Art Study Club were entertained by Mrs. Carmichael at her cottage at Chemong. A very delightful afternoon was spent.

The programme committee consisting of Mrs. G. N. Gordon and Miss Annie Wood with Mrs. Gliddon as the very capable convenor succeeded in arranging one of the best year's programmes ever presented. Mrs. Gliddon who has been a most enthusiastic worker in the Association since shortly after its inauguration, has been the convenor of this committee for over twenty years and deserves the heartfelt gratitude of its members.

During the season twelve studio functions were held, all of which were well attended and included exhibitions, talks, illustrated lectures and a pageant, with delightful musical numbers and contributing in no small way towards the success of the year were: Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, Mrs. Douglas Fletcher, Mrs. Widdess, Misses H. Lytle, D. Davidson, M. Widdess, M. Masson, May Hartstone, D. Murray, G. LeBarr, Olga Fowler, Messrs. D. Carlisle, B. Widdess, Roy Rome, M. Park and A. Spencer.

Possibly the outstanding feature of studio afternoon was the Pageant of Shawls which was wonderfully staged and presented by Mrs. B. L. Barnes and Mrs. J. E. R. Munro on January 29th. Many beautiful shawls representing various countries and ages were loaned by members and friends of the Association.

On October 30th at the opening meeting Mrs. W. R. Morris gave an interesting and instructive talk on her "Impressions of European Galleries" alluding to the beautiful and celebrated picture "Mona Lisa", and the beauty of the "Winged Victory of Samothrace" with particular emphasis.

We were very fortunate to have with us on November 13 Lady Frances Hoogenboudk-Telleken, whose mother, Mrs. Dingman, was the foundress of the National Women's Art Association—Lady Telleken spoke in a charming manner of Holland and its people—of her impressions of them and their impression of her when she went there as a bride some years ago.

The second November meeting took the form of an exhibition and sale of the members of the Guild of Arts and Crafts, many beautiful pieces of work were contributed and showed a wide range of talent.

The December meeting was given over to things pertaining to Christmas. Rev. D. Wren, the speaker, chose as his subject, "The Spirit of Christmas and Our World Problem." This was followed by an enjoyable musical program.

On January 15th Mrs. J. Forbes Allan in her ilnimitable manner, gave a talk on "The Mother and Child in Literature and Art", which was thoroughly enjoyed by those privileged to hear her.

On Feb. 12th Miss J. Bertram of Toronto gave an address and exhibition of Batik work, while on Feb. 26th there was an exhibition of the Portrait Studies of Miss Minns Keene of Oakville, and paper prepared by Mrs. Keene was read by Miss Mayme Montgomery. It was greatly regretted that illness prevented Mrs. Keene from being present herself.

An exhibition of Prints and Engravings loaned by local members proved very interesting on March 12th when Mrs. J. E. R. Munro explained the methods used in making etchings and engravings.

The last three studio meetings of the year took the form of illustrated lectures, the first on Marcn 26th by Mrs. Dunnington-Grubb, President of the Canadian Women's Art Association, on "The Canadian Garden," followed on April 9th by Mr. John Lyle of Toronto who spoke on "Architecture."

An exhibition of Pictures and an illustrated lecture on "Bird Life" in the Conservatory Hall on April 29th by Mr. Wallace Havelock Rob brought to a close a delightful year's program.

Signor Marconi, according to a recent biographer, could never have given his genius full scope nor perfected his wonderful discovery of wireless without the help and protection of his mother. Signora Marconi understood and appreciated her son's genius, and while his father broke up the electrical experiments over which he considered his son was wasting time and money, his mother, on the contrary, arranged a safe hiding that could only be entered through her bedroom. In this sanctuary the future lord of wireless patiently labored day after day to make his theory an accomplished fact.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Faith Lane's religion was a simple trust in Something vast and good, and yet not too vast to be concerned with a motherless girl who was trembling with mingled fear and ecstasy before the door that would swing open in a few minutes, admitting her into a strange new life. There was no slightest doubt in her heart that she loved Bob Hathaway, wanted to be his wife, wanted to walk by his side for the rest of her life. But it was a sudden overwhelming conviction of her own unworthiness, a nerve-shaking realization of her ignorance of the essential truths about her own body, and about a man's needs that her mother should have told her and hadn't, that forced her to her knees beside her bed.

She felt like a frightened child, far younger than her twenty-one years, as she cried out, with spoken words, to that Something which she had trusted blindly all her life, to which she had turned in every crisis, because she was not big enough to stand alone:

"Dear God, help me to be a good wife, help me to love him enough and yet not to shackle him with my love. Help me to be wise and calm and good; help me to understand all that I am ignorant of now. Teach me to be tolerant and just. Help me to throttle jealousy and meanness, to walk serene ly over hard roads—" She was crying then, her hands stretching out to the beneficent Something upon which she called. "And oh, God, please make it possible for me to give him such joy, in every way—physically, spiritually and mentally—that he will not tire of me, not look elsewhere for the things in which I fail him. Please, God! Oh, I feel so helpless and ignorant, so small! Help me, God! Help me, Mother!"

When the girl entered the living room where the family was awkwardly trying to entertain Bob Hathaway during the embarrassing moments of waiting, the man she was to marry started up from his chair, his blue eyes suddenly charged with such an intensity of love that Faith trembled before him.

"You are so beautiful!" Bob whispered, as he raised her hand to his lips, regardless of the eyes upon them both, greedy eyes, eyes a little envious or a little bitter or a little disillusioned.

Faith's face was so luminous with joy when she turned to her family to tell them good bye that not even Joy tried to kiss her, or to tease her.

"We'll be back before we go to the new house," Faith told them, her voice trembling a little under the rich burden of love for them that it carried.

When they had gone, Faith and Bob, walking very close together down the flag-stone path to where Bob's car was parked, the family began to talk, to laugh a little to relieve the strain. Aunt Hattie, Jim Lane's acidulous-tongued, dried-up little old maid sister who doted on Faith, and therefore scolded her rather more than the rest of her brother's children, was there, as she always was when a crisis of any kind demanded her help in the Lane household. She had brought a suitcase, prepared to stay the three days of Faith's pathetic little honeymoon, holding the family firmly together with her claw-like, capable little old hands.

They drove the four blocks to the parsonage of the little neighborhood church in silence. Faith was grateful to Bob for that little breathing spell of silence, for she felt that she would have burst into tears if he had talked casually. She wanted to hold tight to that sense of peace, the feeling that she had been blessed as she knelt beside her bed, crying out to God and to her mother.

The preacher, the Rev. Mr. Kinney, a gaunt old man peering at them through thick glasses and smiled with real kindliness, met them at the door and ushered them, with little flurries of cheerful conversation, into the shabby parsonage parlor. There his wife, a little round dumpling of a woman, was waiting for them. Their granddaughter, a plain girl with thin, nervous hands and hungry, envious eyes, was the other witness.

Bob talked easily. Dear Bob! How tall and splendid he was, how charged with life in this room that seemed peopled with shadows. Behind his kindliness and his professional cheerfulness, the old preacher looked utterly tired, defeated, through with life. Faith wondered if he still loved his little old wife. Could love last that long? Would Bob always look at her with gladness and passion leaping in his eyes?

"Dearly beloved—"

She was standing beside Bob, the preacher was reading from his worn prayer-book, his voice intoning the service which he had read over so many, many couples—

"Robert, do you take this woman to be your lawful wedded wife, to love and to cherish until death do you part?"

Bob's voice rang out confidently: "I do!"

"Faith, do you take this man to be your lawful wedded husband, to love, honor and obey, to cling to in sickness and in health, for better or for worse?"

She tried to speak as Bob had spoken, gladly, confidently, but the words stuck in her throat. She felt Bob's fingers close over her cold right hand, as if to give her courage. "I do." The words were little more than a whisper.

Bob was putting the platinum wedding ring on her finger. His hand felt cold and moist as it fumbled the shining loop along her trembling finger. Why, Bob was nervous, too! she realized suddenly, and she looked up at him, a tremulous smile playing over her face, her eyes wide with love and tender amusement.

When it was over and their union had been blessed by a quavering prayer, they lingered a while, saying the usual things in strained, queer voices. The plain granddaughter, with the thin, tiptoe, suddenly, and kissed Bob on the lips, as if she were impelled by something stronger than herself. The preacher's salute still felt damp on Faith's cheek. She had wanted to remember only Bob's kiss, given her at the conclusion of the ceremony. She wanted to realize that this man who tional things was her husband—her husband! She repeated the word. It seemed to have no meaning. What an odd word it was—husband!

"Yes, my wife and I are going to our new home in Enfield," Bob was saying to old Mr. Kinney.

"Ready, dear? The family will be expecting us," Bob turned to her.

"Yes, I'm ready," she whispered. But she wasn't ready. She was afraid, afraid—

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Here is a smart green linen frock trimmed with hemstitching and French knots, with interesting pockets, and a long row of buttons.

The working girl now goes dressed in silks and satins, velvets, chiffons and brocades. The girl of so-called leisure wears the cottons and the linens, swiss, gingham, pique or organdie. The millionaire business man sees silk-clad stenographers, typists and clerks in his office though he may go home to find his wife and daughters dressed in calico.

This does not always indicate a spirit of wanton extravagance on the part of the poor working girl. She can buy her little silk or georgette frocks for a small price, and she has found from experience that they demand less in upkeep than frocks of the possibly less expensive cotton or linen.

So it has come about that cotton frocks have acquired a new sort of distinction. Taking advantage of this the dressmakers have turned their talents to making cotton and linen frocks of real distinction. Manufacturers of these materials have also done their share in producing fabrics of peculiar beauty and good quality.

Why shouldn't the girl who works follow the example of her leisurely sister or cousin and wear smart cotton or linen frocks to work? True they require frequent laundering or cleaning, but the very fact that they do gives them an eminently desirable tone. Jacket costumes of plain or printed linen or of the heavier sorts of cotton are really as appropriate for office as country club. There are interesting combinations of cretonne and plain cotton materials that might be selected. For warmer weather there are frocks of printed dimity or voile that possess the air of freshness and coolness that can hardly be claimed for any frock of silk georgette or crepe de chine.

As a reaction against the pastel tones that have been so obvious a fashion of spring, some of the leading dressmakers are using linens of rather vivid shade for midsummer sports wear. Chanel of Paris sponsors linen in lacquer red. Greens, yellows and violets too clear in tone to be called "pastel" are also to be found among these linen frocks.

How to make a Bovril Sandwich

Just spread a little Bovril between two thin slices of bread and butter—it's the easiest and tastiest sandwich you can make.

Excellent for afternoon teas, parties, or for any occasion where time is lacking for the preparation of a heavier meal. Bovril Sandwiches are particularly admirable when something more sustaining than "just the ordinary sandwich" is needed.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1927

Early today the planetary aspects are favorable, according to astrology, but later they are decidedly adverse.

The sway today is fortunate for merchants and manufacturers. All the signs appear to indicate unparalleled prosperity in most lines of trade.

Changes in the modes are to benefit certain trades, it is foretold, and expenditures for dress will be large.

Artistic ideas are to be strongly evident in clothing which will reveal foreign influences in ornamentation, but will be most popular where domestic production is concerned.

Agriculture now comes under a direction of the stars most beneficial to farmers, who are to realize surprising profits.

Land values will increase greatly in certain parts of the country this summer, it is foretold.

This should be a day of benefits to the ages who are subject to cheering and stimulating planetary influences.

Much praise and added fame are forecast for educators here in America, honors for university heads and their faculties will be numerous.

There is a sway most auspicious for travel where knowledge is the aim and Europe will beckon under the most favorable circumstances.

Nervousness and irritability may be prevalent as the day advances, for a sinister aspect gains power.

It is well to beware of entrance to a quarrel, for the rule is unfavorable to domestic accord.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of favors from important persons in the coming year, which should be successful.

Children born on this day probably will be inclined toward a pursuit of one of the arts, but they should be trained for more practical vocations.

The School Corner Cop

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

We pray for the safety of our children, and we are sad with those whose little folk suffer accidents, yet every day I see grown-ups grimly dragging children by the hand and taking deliberate chances in traffic. They blandly ignore the policeman or the semaphore, and hurry the child along. Traffic signals come often enough that it seems the minute gained disobeying the signal isn't worth the risk of having the child do the same thing when he's alone, and possibly losing out on the gamble. Why not stand on the curb and use the extra minute to teach the child? Say to him, "Now, you tell me when it's safe to go." The child will not only be proud of the confidence you place in him, but will learn to respect traffic signals which are put there to be obeyed for safety sake!

Going to and from school I must cross a big street
Where the trucks and the autos are dashing and fleet
But there on my corner at nine and at three
A big blue policeman is waiting for me.

He has buttons of gold on a coat that is blue,
That's how when I look I am sure it is he,
And of course that's the way that he always knows me.

I wave and he smiles while I stand on the curb
Where the trucks and the auto carts never disturb.
He tells all the cars where to go to be right,
And he waves when the semaphore ought to change light.

Then when I'm to croth he just holds up his hand
And all of the cars must quit running and stand
In rows like a fence, while I walk down the lane,
And wait till I'm safe on the sidewalk again!

CHURCH ORGANIZATIONS ARE THRIVING IN EVERY BRANCH

Choir Makes Great Strides Under Able Direction of Mr. Mann.

W.F.M.S. ACTIVE

Anglican Young People's Association is Affiliated With Diocesan Branch.

Like choirs in other places the choir of St. John's church has had its ups and downs. It has been found impossible to gain anything like an adequate account of the good it wrought in the early days. What little we do know is embodied in reports of concerts given for parochial purposes, which appeared from time to time in the newspapers. But the names of some of those who worked in its interests have come down to us. Mention has already been made of Miss Forbes (afterwards Mrs. James Wallis) who was a most faithful worker. Under her care the capabilities of the choir were brought out to the fullest extent. Another splendid worker was Miss Langton, who acted as organist for some years. But the palm for long service must be given to Mr. R. J. Devey, who was appointed in January 1906, and acted as organist and choirmaster till May 1923, a period of seventeen and a half years. During Mr. Devey's tenure of office the monthly Choral Communion Service was instituted and the Choral Evensong (weekly) came into regular use. The devotional service on Good Friday, sung by the choir, was commenced and still continues. When the chimes were installed Mr. Devey was appointed chimes master by the wardens. In this connection it should be mentioned that he performed a highly patriotic service in never missing a day during the last drive in the Great War in chiming patriotic airs at noon, from March 21st, to November 11th 1918.

On his retirement from the position of choirmaster and organist, Mr. Frederick G. Mann, a native of Norwich, England, who had considerable experience before coming to Peterborough, took the position. Mr. Mann began his musical career at Beeston St. Andrew's, in Norfolk. He went from there to the United States and officiated for a time as organist and choirmaster at Grace Episcopal church, Ridgway, Pennsylvania. From there he went successively to St. James' church, Carleton Place and to St. John's church at Ottawa. In the year 1923 he came to Peterborough to assume the duties of organist and choirmaster at St. John's church. Since his arrival in this city his energy and devotion have borne good fruit in the work achieved by the choir. At the present time the membership has a total of forty-nine, fifteen boys, twenty-one ladies and thirteen men.

Memorial anthems have been sung on two occasions since Mr. Mann's appointment. One, in memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Staunton entitled, "What Are These?" by Stainer, and another, entitled "Nazareth" by Gounod, in memory of the late George Browne, for many years a member of the choir. "Now Is Christ Risen" by Allen, has also been rendered.

In connection with the Centenary celebrations Mr. Mann has composed an anthem entitled, "I Will Give Thanks" which he has dedicated to the Vicar, Dr. Blagrave, the choir and the congregation of St. John's church. The music has been published by Novello.

The choir library is a valuable one and consists of anthems, services, cantatas and oratorios and is worth a considerable sum of money. The choir officers are the following:—

Hon. President, Mr. H. W. Morphet; President, Mr. W. W. Gray; Secy.-Treasurer, Miss Ruby Quartermaine. Sick Committee: Miss K. Edgar, Mrs. D. J. Eldred, Mrs. H. Burrows. Social Committee: Mrs. J. J. Howden, Mrs. G. Evans, Miss M. Long. Choir Mother: Mrs. J. J. Howden. Librarian: Mr. A. J. Hayter.

It has been impossible to obtain a full list of the organists who have officiated at St. John's. Two have been already mentioned in the persons of Mrs. Wallis and Miss Langton, the names of others who followed are given below.

Before the restoration of the church William Kennedy, Prof. Heathfield, Prof. Hallam; during the restoration of the church: Fred. E. Bell; after the restoration of the church: Fred. E. Bell, Prof. Ewing, Prof. Hampshire, George Schneider, Dr. Davies, Prof. Seward, Fred. Clark, Percy Owens, Prof. Rodgers, Miss Cochrane and Miss Stephens. R. J. Devey and F. G. Mann, the present holder of the position (during the period that Miss Cochrane and Miss Stephens acted as organists, Mr. Rupert Gliddon assumed the duties of leader of the choir. The late Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot also took charge of this work for a short time.)

There is a boy's cricket club in connection with the choir which excites a good deal of interest amongst all the church boys.

Dr. E. A. Hammond has been a constant friend to the cricket club and for many years has helped the boys most generously in every way—He is patron of the club.

* * *

St. John's church has had many active organizations engaged in promoting its interests and extending its sphere of influence. One of the earliest of these was the Church of England Women's Foreign Missionary Society, the first meeting of which was held in St. John's church on Monday, July 4th, 1881. The following ladies were present at that meeting:—

Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Wallis, Mrs. Hatton, Mrs. Peck, Mrs. Wrighton, Mrs. C. Sheffield, Mrs. Barlee, Mrs. Clementi, Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. A. White, Mrs. George Burnham, Miss Veals, Miss Kirkpatrick, Miss Wallis, Mrs. Chamberlain, Miss Burritt, Miss Grundy, Miss Jackson, Miss Wrighton, Miss Beck and Miss Jenkins. President, Mrs. Wallis; Vice-President, Mrs. Hatton; Secretary, Miss Kirkpatrick; Treasurer, Miss Wallis. Missionary hymn, From Greenland's Icy Mountains; Chapter, St. John IV; The Woman of Samaria.

In the year 1887 the W.F.M.S. was merged into the Women's Auxiliary. The present officers are:—

Hon. President, Mrs. R. C. Blagrave; President, Mrs. A. W. Turner; 1st Vice-President, Mrs. H. A. Morrow; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. Amys; Secretary, Miss Evans; Treasurer, Mrs. W. T. Holloway; Extra cent-a-day Treasurer, Mrs. Knight; United Thank-Offering, Mrs. McBrien; Little Helpers' Secretary, Mrs. Rigden; Superintendent of Juniors, Mrs. Deyman; Living Message Secretary, Mrs. Ross; Literature Secretary, Mrs. G. S. Cameron.

The Women's Auxiliary is the auxiliary to the Board of Missions of the Church of England in Canada, and as such occupies itself chiefly in mission work amongst the Indians, Esquimaux and foreigners in Canada. It also does extensive work in the foreign field. St. John's branch at the present time has a membership of seventy-four. The Evening branch of the W.A. has the following officers:

President, Mrs. George Wesley; Secretary, Mrs. C. H. Crowe; Treasurer, Miss Corcoran.

This branch was started as a girl's branch of the W.A. in November, 1906, with a membership of thirty-four. Miss Marion Rush (Mrs. Sawers) was the first president, Miss Madelon Wilson Secretary and Miss Grace Crowe, Treasurer. The first work that this branch accomplished was the providing of clothes for an Indian girl at the All Hallows school, Yale, B.C.

Mrs. W. E. Conway was president of the branch for eight years, from 1911-1949. In January 1922, the name was changed from the Girl's branch to the Evening branch of the W.A. It meets once a week. The second Monday of each month is a devotional and business meeting. On the other evenings the time is devoted to sewing garments, making quilts, etc. The branch is working now towards the clothing of an Indian girl in Glei chen, Alberta. The membership at present is fourteen.

The Junior W. A. has the following officers:

Superintendent, Mrs. L. H. Deyman; President, Ruth Budd; Secretary, Mabel Bacon.

The Teen Age Girls of St. John's branch of the W.A. was organized February, 1925. The first officers of the branch were:

President, Hilda Evans; Vice-president, Isabel Thirnbeck; Secretary, Mabel Bacon; Treasurer, Mary Evans; Superintendent, Mrs. J. Cridland; Assistant, Mrs. C. Staunton.

Present officers: President, Ruth Budd; Vice-President, Florence Snelling; Secretary, Mabel Bacon; Treasurer, Lilian Groombridge; E. C. D. Secretary, Mrs. W. H. McWilliams; Assistants, Mrs. Robert Ross, Mrs. Geo. R. Melton.

Business and devotional meetings are held on the second Monday of each month. The other meetings are devoted to sewing and social work. The work of the branch consists of sewing and making scrap-books. These are sent to Toronto for distribution.

The membership at the present time is about sixteen and all the girls take a lively interest in the work.

Church Women's Association.

This helpful organization was formed on November 22, 1912, in order to provide interest and work for parishioners who were not especially identified with any other church organizations. The primary object was to make it a means of social help and friendliness. The fee was placed at ten cents and the association started with a list of thirty-six members. The first president was Mrs. Morphet and she was succeeded in office by the following ladies: Mrs. A. W. Turner, Mrs. R. P. Boucher, Mrs. Seels, Mrs. Brewer, Mrs. Mulholland, Mrs. H. A. Mann, Mrs. Coulthard and the present President, Mrs. A. H. Stratton.

During the years that the association has been in existence it has accomplished a vast amount of good, for not-only has it kept to the fore the principle on which it was founded, but it has, in its various parochial undertakings raised the large sum of $9,945. Its finest effort was the paying off of the debt on the rectory mortgage, which with interest and principal amounted to the sum of $4,766. Besides this outlay it has expended various sums on parochial objects.

In 1913, for surplices, $50.00; 1914, redecorating school house, $156.00; 1915, Sunday school improvements, $85.00; 1916, installing lights in church, $100.00; 1917, installing lights in church, $100.00, hymnals, $23.70, Halifax relief fund, $64.00. During the war a large sum of money was spent in providing comforts for the soldiers overseas. In 1918 a bazaar was held and also several very successful congregational parties. In this year the association bought most of the S. S. Christmas prizes. In 1920 and 1921, for Armenian relief, $20.00; 1921, guest room of rectory was refurnished; cassocks also were paid for, with the assistance of the choir, who provided $100, $205.84.

Donations during the years mentioned included gifts to Miss English's Infant class; to Miss Plummer for St. Faith's Home; for field comforts for the soldiers overseas and also the presentation of a watch to Canon Davidson on the eve of his departure for the war zone. The association has just finished refurnishing and beautifying the Parish House at a cost of over $700, and has a substantial balance in hand for the year 1927.

The present officers are: Hon. President, Mrs. R. C. Blagrave; President, Mrs. A. H. Stratton; Secretary, Mrs. E. W. Borbridge; Treasurer, Mrs. H. W. Morphet.

Anglican Young People's Association.

This Association was formed in the year 1918. Rev. Canon Davidson was elected its patron and the first president was Mr. A. Pitchford. Meetings are held every Wednesday at 8 p.m. On the third Sunday of each month the members attend corporate communion.

In February 1921, Rev. Dr. Blagrave, who had been appointed patron on the retirement of Ven. Archdeacon Davidson, outlined the principles and aims of the A.Y.P.A. and advocated the necessity of affiliation with the diocesan branches of the association. This was done and two delegates are sent each year to the Dominion conference. The association is doing excellent work, and is keenly alive to the importance of living up to the principles on which it is founded.

The present officers are: President, Mr. A. Hayter; Secretary, Mrs. J. Collis; Treasurer, Miss Grace Nicholls.

Men's Bible Class.

There was one feature which formerly was a very marked factor in the life of St. John's and that was the Men's Bible class. This was started by Mr. R. M. Dennistown (now Judge Dennistown, of Winnipeg) in 1897. It was composed of the following: Harold Byers, Gilbert Harris, George Hetherington, Archie Seymour, Walter Hagel, Crawford Sawers, Eric Owen and Harry Roberts. Shortly afterwards the class was taken over by Mr. Harold Cluxton and soon it showed a roll of twenty-five. It continued in existence for several years. Mr. Dennistoun gave up the charge of the Bible class to take the superintendency of the Sunday school and under his care it became a very strong and well co-ordinated branch of the church. Mrs. R. M. Dennistoun also took a very active part in church work and at the time of her departure from Peterborough was president of the Women's Auxiliary. Mr. Dennistoun remained superintendent of the Sunday school until his departure for Winnipeg in 1907.

Women's Friendly Bible Class.

The W.F.B.C. was organized in February 1913, with the following officers: Teacher, Mrs. May; President, Mrs. J. Bacon; Vice-president, Miss E. Smith; Secretary, Miss Tinworth; Treasurer, Mrs. C. Barton.

Classes are held on Sunday afternoons for Bible study. One evening in the week is set aside for business and sewing. When the Men's Bible class was in existence the women generally joined with the men in getting up social entertainments. On the outbreak of war the work of the Women's Bible class was carried on through many channels. The two classes put on several large patriotic concerts to raise money for relief in the city. Help was given to really needy cases, irrespective of creed or colour. Hospital supplies were also sent overseas. The Bible class also adopted a prisoner of war and sent monthly boxes of comforts to church members serving at the front.

The members busy themselves in visiting the sick and needy. They supply their own literature and do good in many ways. The class is composed of women devoted to the interests of the church and their efforts have been crowned with success in everything they have undertaken.

The officers of the Bible class at the present time are the following: Teacher, Mrs. F. M. DelaFosse; President, Mrs. J. F. Collis; Vice-President, Mrs. J. Vollans; Secretary, Mrs. W. S. Hake; Treasurer, Mrs. M. L. Budd. The class hymn is No. 293: "Jesus, Master, Whom I Serve." The motto of the class is: "By love serve one another."

Brotherhood of St. Andrew.

This organization, as is generally known, had its origin in Chicago, where it was formed on St. Andrew's day, 1883, under the leadership of Mr. James L. Houghteling. Its sole object then, as now, has been the spread of Christ's kingdom among men, especially young men. Its membership has now spread over the greater part of the world. In Canada the first meeting was held in June, 1890, when twelve chapters were formed, St. John's, Peterborough, being chapter No. 6. The director at the time of its formation was the Rev. C. B. Kenrick. The late Mr. E. B. Loucks acted as secretary and the Brotherhood work started with a list of fourteen members. The number increased to about thirty-five and large meetings were held in a hall at 415 George street, in 1912 the charter of the chapter lapsed, for some unknown reason, but was revived again in 1920 under the leadership of Mr. A. C. Roberts with the late Mr. Frank Linton acting as secretary. The work is now being carried on by a small and earnest band of workers, one of whom, Mr. W. J. Howden, is a charter member of 1890. The present officers are: Director, R. N. Stuart; Vice-Director, W. E. Massey-Cooke; Secretary, Harold Lang.

Canon Chapter.

The Chancel chapter has always done good work. Its present officers are Miss Margaret English, Director, (who, in addition to this work has for many years had the supervision of the infant class in the Sunday school); Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, Secretary; Mrs. A. Gibson, Treasurer.

The working committees of the church are as follows:

Vicar, St. John's

REV. R. C. BLAGRAVE, B.A., D.D.

The work that has been carried on in the church since Dr. Blagrave's arrival speaks for itself. There has never been a time in its history when the outlook was more promising. He brought with him from his other charges a record of a career which had been consistently successful, and the work that he has already accomplished at St. John's testifies to its truth and provides a happy augury for the future. During the six years of his work as vicar he has infused new life into the parish. Such a statement must not be taken as derogatory of the labours of those who went before him, for such an interpretation would be invidious and senseless. It simply means that a very wise choice was made in the appointment of a successor, and that the spiritual challenge laid down by his forerunners has been taken up in all earnestness by the present incumbent. We may be sure that in his hands the torch of progress will not be allowed to flicker or burn out.

Dr. Blagrave graduated from McGill University in the year 1902 and from the Montreal Theological College in 1903. He was ordained on Trinity Sunday in the same year by the Right Reverend W. Lennox Mills, Bishop of Ontario, in St. George's Cathedral, Kingston. His first charge was the mission of Coe Hill, North Hastings, where he stayed for one year, when he was appointed to the parish of Rawdon, north of the village of Stirling. There he remained until 1905 when he was called to the Rectorship of Christ Church, Belleville. He received the degree of B.D. in course in the year 1907, and that of D.D. in course in the year 1915 from the Board of the Ecclesiastical Province of Canada, and Trinity College, Toronto. In the year 1916, during his stay at Belleville, he was appointed Rural Dean of Hastings, and in the following year Chaplain to the Bishop of Ontario. In the year 1912 he was married in London, England, to Eleanor, elder daughter of Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., of Belleville. The parish has found in Mrs. Blagrave a lady who is always keenly alive to its needs and active in promoting its interests.

In 1918, Dr. Blagrave was offered the rectorship of St. Mark's Church, Parkdale, where he remained until January, 1921, when he resigned to become Vicar of St. John's Church, Peterborough. Dr. Blagrave has been very active in matters relating to his own parish and diocese. He is a member of the executive committee of the diocese, as well as of diocesan committees of the Provincial Synod of Ontario and of the General Synod. In addition, he is a member of the General Board of Religious Education, and of the Council for Social Service of the General Synod. He is also a member of the Corporation of Bishop Strachan School and of Trinity College, Toronto.

A recital of the following facts will show how much has been done during Dr. Blagrave's Vicariate. It makes luminous reading. In 1920 the interior of the rectory was painted. In 1921 the ugly, time-worn fences that used to front on Brock street were taken away and several dead pines which were in too close proximity to the chancel and rectory, were cut down. The grounds were levelled and sodded, the stone fence on Hunter street was repaired, the cement steps leading up to the front door were built, and pillars with lights on each side of the steps were erected to the memory of the Denham family. A tiled floor was also laid in the porch, the church was pointed on the outside, and the interior was repainted, redecorated and the ceiling stained. A new furnace was also installed and a stone chimney built. In 1923 the rectory was painted on the outside. In 1924 a garage was built for the use of the vicarage. In 1925 a mortgage of $4,000 on the rectory was paid off by the Church Women's Association, and the vicar was able to announce that the church was absolutely free of debt. In 1926 fresh liabilities were incurred on improvements in the parish house. The old building was painted and repaired, new electric wiring and plumbing were put in, a new steam furnace and chimney built, and an extension of 21 feet towards Brock street was added to the building.

The architect who had charge of the work was Mr. Walter Blackwell, a member of the congregation. The addition and improvements are a credit to the church and to the skill of the gentleman who undertook them.

Two daggers, said to have been used by Col. Blood and his companion, Parrot, when in 1671 they attempted to steal the crown jewels from the Tower of London, have just been deposited on loan in the armory of the Tower by the Royal Literary Fund.

HAZARDS MET BY EARLY WORKERS

Roads Well Nigh Impassable in Spring and Early Summer.

The settlement known as Scott's Plains had grown amazingly fast in the first few years of its existence and would have grown faster had it not been for the abominable state of the roads. The only time when travel was good was in the winter and even then it was sometimes hazardous enough. In the spring and early summer the roads were well-nigh impassable. It is not surprising, therefore, to learn from the pages of "Early Days in Upper Canada" that as far back as 1826 and 1827 the possibilities of the Kawartha lakes as a commercial highway were being seriously considered. Mr. Stewart, a resident of Douro, who was a member of the legislative assembly of Upper Canada, had brought the matter to the notice of the House in the year 1827 and a committee of the lower House of the legislature had reported that it "was exceedingly desirable and important that those waters which constitute the chain of lakes and rivers which run in a south-easterly direction from the vicinity of Lake Simcoe and which empty into the Bay of Quinte by the river Trent should be examined and surveyed by competent persons, with a view to ascertain how far they might be rendered navigable, and the probable expense attending the same." Nothing appears to have been done before the year 1833, when a short canal with a wooden lock was commenced at Bobcaygeon. The length of the canal was 973 feet and the lock was 119½ feet long by 28 feet broad, with 4¾ feet of water on the sills at low water and 7¼ feet at high water. This was completed in 1835 and enabled vessels from Chemong, Pigeon and Buckhorn lakes to ascend into Sturgeon lake and thence up the Scugog river as far as Lindsay.

In the year 1833 Mr. N. H. Baird, C.E., who had been appointed to make a survey of the route, presented a report on the section from the mouth of the Trent to Rice Lake, estimating the cost at £233,447 6s 11½d, and in 1835 presented a second report estimating the cost from Rice Lake to Lake Simcoe at £262,067 13s 4d, being a total of £495,515 and some pence. Soon afterwards work was started both above and below Peterborough. The Mackenzie rebellion, however, followed by the agitation for the union of the provinces, caused almost a total stoppage of the work for a considerable length of time. Nothing much was heard of it till the year 1880, when Mr. T. D. Belcher, the superintendent engineer, in his annual report to the Minister of Railways and Canals, mentioned that extensive progress had been made at various points and optimistically concluded by saying, "there now seems to be life and activity along the entire route of the extensive navigation, which is nearly 200 miles in length." Little could it have entered into the minds of its projectors that it would take almost a century to bring the plan to fruition.

The roads were so poor that we can picture Mr. Armour carrying out his itinerary over sandy wastes, rock strewn declivities and corduroyed swamps, or rowing along the broad reaches of the Otonabee, which, splendid waterway as it is today, was at that time almost impassable in many places owing to shoals. When one reads of the self-sacrificing lives of our missionary clergy the feeling that comes uppermost is of admiration for the cheerfulness and courage with which they faced their many difficulties. Anyone who is at all conversant with the life of the backwoods settler knows that it is exacting enough, but the lot of the backwoods clergyman is in most cases considerably harder owing to the fact that he and his family are usually unfitted, through lack of experience, to withstand the rigours of frontier life. In good or bad weather he has to respond to the call of duty on the line of action once so pithily expressed by the late Bishop Sullivan. Addressing a clergyman, a newcomer to one of his Algoma parishes, he said, "Always get to your objective. If you cannot drive, you can ride—if you cannot ride—you can foot it."

Missionaries found little in life to compensate them for the atmosphere of refinement in which most of them had been brought up. The salaries offered were meagre and although their parishioners were willing enough to bring them loads of hay or straw and other produce from the farm these did not take the place of the much needed coin of the realm.

There was hardly any money in the country at the beginning of the last century, and what there was certainly did not reach the hands of the toiling settlers. Wages were mostly paid in kind and when it came to a question of obtaining commodities in the markets "trading" was resorted to, a system which did not conduce to honesty. But, in comparison with the clergyman, the settler was far better equipped to overcome his difficulties. He was able to clear the land, to plough with his cattle over the stump-strewn fields and, in time, to garner his scanty harvest. The clergyman usually had no knowledge of this sort and however willing he might have been to engage in husbandry was compelled by sheer force of circumstances to attend to his own specific duties in the parish. That parish was never bounded by well-defined limits. Sometimes it covered a radius of thirty or more miles, with mission stations scattered at long intervals within that area. Such modes of conveyance as he possessed had to conform to the condition of the roads. Often, owing to stress of weather or the utter impossibility of riding or driving he was forced to act the part of a peripatetic, and we may be sure, that as he made his way through the woods, wading through bogs, or performing the acrobatic feat of crossing gullies by means of trees felled to take the place of bridges, he found ample opportunity to develop his powers as a philosopher. Naturally, he hailed the winter with gladness, for when the rivers and lakes were frozen over and the landscape was covered with snow he was assured, except at odd times, of roads that would vie with the best in the land. Of course, at those odd intervals referred to, he was occasionally forced to drive in a temperature ranging from twenty to forty degrees below zero, when the horse was enveloped in a curtain of frosty mist and icicles formed on its mouth and nostrils. At such times the driver himself was compelled to cover his mouth with a comforter to prevent the cold air penetrating to his lungs. There were times also when he was confronted by a howling blizzard and, as likely as not, found his horse plunging into drifts that almost hid the quadruped and cutter from view. Even these were minor evils compared with the dangers of treacherous water-holes, of falling snags, and of encounters with wild animals. Happily, in Ontario, perils of the last mentioned description were few, but nevertheless, they exist and have always existed in our frontier settlements. There were dangers also by water, when it was hazardous for an unskilled paddler or oarsman to attempt to make his way over the turbulent waves.

It is really wonderful that with all the difficulties and dangers they had to face, more missionaries have not proved unequal to the tasks they have undertaken. A considerable amount of providential immunity from the major troubles of missionary life seems to have been granted to the pioneer clergy of St. John's church. Work they had in plenty, and crises also, when weighty problems had to be solved, but there is nothing to show that there was ever a time when they were not provided with means to preside over its destiny in a dignified and worthy manner.

Mr. Armour did not confine his labours to the white settlers. His interests were catholic, as is proved by the following record left by Mrs. Stewart. Writing in January 1826, she mentions a service at which thirty-five Indians, men, women and children, were present in the little log schoolhouse which was used by Mr. Armour as a church. "The Indians," she says, "behaved very well during the service, they were very attentive and anxious to understand. After the service was over they came forward with their primers and cards of letters, requesting the ladies and gentlemen to instruct them, seeming really very desirous to be taught. They had been converted to Christianity in the summer before by a converted Indian who had been taught by an English missionary and though they had been continually drunk, since their conversion have become quite sober and well-behaved"—One wonders, on reading the above, why, with such a nucleus to work on, the Christianizing of our Indian brethren should have been so completely abandoned to the missionary efforts of other denominations.

ST. JOHN'S HAS BIG PROGRAM

Public Service on Friday Opens an Intensive Week-end.

The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers, Rector of St. Matthew's church, Toronto, an old Peterborough boy. Anthem, "The Souls of the Righteous." On Sunday the Rt. Rev. Dr. C. A. Seager, Bishop of Ontario, will preach at both services. A Few Suggestions for Old Home Week

TRINITY CHOIR ANNUAL OUTING

ENJOYABLE DAY.

Members and friends of the Trinity church choir motored to South Beach yesterday afternoon as the guests of the Church Board. This picnic is an annual event and is looked forward to by the members as something really worth while, and the one yesterday, aided by the beautiful day, fulfilled the anticipations of the members that "a good time would be held by all."

A chicken dinner was served at the South Beach Hotel, which was, in the choir members' estimation, perfect. M. Park, G. Nicholls and R. F. Downey, were in charge of the sports and the humorous 'presentations" to Rev. D. Wren, R. J. Kidd, W. G. Morrow, and W. D. Campbell, church members present.

W. G Morrow, chairman of the Music Committee ,thanked the choir for their splendid services so willingly given throughout the past year, and assured the members of very hearty support and co-operation from the committee in all their undertakings.

Mr. Downey, in a few well chosen words, thanked the Board for the outing which the choir enjoyed every year.

Guests who accompanied the choir were: Mr. and Mrs. Kidd, Mr. and Mrs. Cummer, Mr. and Mrs. Morrow, Rev. D. and Mrs. Wren, Mr. Campbell and Mrs. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Fife, Mrs. Wolstenholm, Mrs. Downey and Mrs. Black.

Races were also run, and these were entered with great enthusiasm by both the men and women.

DRAGOONS ENJOY SUMMER CAMPING

One Hundred and Nine Men and 74 Horses Form Camp.

The Third Prince of Wales Dragoons, under Lieutenant-Colonel T. D. Johnston, went into camp yesterday at the Exhibition Grounds with men and horses numbering one hundred and nine and 74 respectively.

Tents have been raised and the whole scene will bring back once more the memories of the years of 1914-18 when men of such stamp as these fought and laid down their lives for their country and countrymen.

The camp has its daily routine, consisting of signals, foot and rifle drills under competent instructors, musketry exercises, and the daily parades by all the mounted troops. Notices concerning dress, conduct, etc. are posted up in the sergeants' mess for the benefit of the recruits, and a daily schedule also hung in this tent instructs the men as to their duties throughout the day.

Inspections are made in the mornings by the officers, of the horses and all leather must be cleaned up by the recruits before going on parade.

Sports of various games are also provided by the officers for the men and very good softball games are played on the diamond adjoining the camp every evening after supper. The young men of the city and country both are gaining much from a camp such as this for the Peterborough camp is recognized as one from which good training and splendid discipline is given to every individual or recruit that enters the camp.

OLD FOLK MADE HAPPY.

Caledonian Choir Entertains at House of Refuge, Lakefield.

A pleasant evening was spent on Wednesday at the House of Refuge, Lakefield, when the Caledonian Choir entertained the inmates there. Many old-time favorites were sung and greatly appreciated. The caretaker and matron, Mr. and Mrs. Maise, expressed the hope that the choir would soon return as entertainers seldom appeared there.

Before leaving, the members of the choir were served with a dainty lunch and the singing of "A Perfect Day" brought a pleasant evening to a close.

WOOLLEN FIRMS HAVE WITNESSES

Counsel of Agriculture Protests Failure of Manufacturers To Give Prices.

OTTAWA, June 17 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Council of Agriculture raised protests before the Tariff Board today against the failure of the woollen goods manufacturers to produce certain promised prices.

F. H. Phippen, representing the manufacturers, said no promise had been made. A. E. Darby, representing the Council of Agriculture, said a promise had been "implied."

R. J. Deachman, for the Consumers' League, demanded information as to an alleged prosperity in the industry up to 1898 and a decline since then. Mr. Phippen assured the board that all promised material would be produced. He then proceeded to examine witnesses in support of the application for an increased tariff.

F. H. Pattison, of George Pattison and Co., Preston, manufacturers of heavy woollens and tweeds, said their cost for the past year in his mill was 41.16 per cent. including wages, office shipping and selling. Mr. Pattison stated that he would be glad to have the Board inspect his mill, where he would show an analysis of cost figures. He would warmly extend an invitation to rival firms.

SPITFIRE'S FIGHT AT JUTLAND TOLD

LONDON, June 17 (By Canadian Press).—The full details of an epic of the sea have been drawn from a reluctant naval commander. The story of the gallant little destroyer Spitfire was never brought out fully until a representive of the Daily News the other day wrung from Lieut.-Commander C. W. E. Trelawny, the Spitfire's commander, a modest account of the way in which the Spitfire with one of her torpedoes sank a big German cruiser and engaged with her 4-in. guns three German dreadnoughts, each of which was 20 times her own size, blinding them by shooting their searchlights out and inflicting more than 50 casualties.

The Spitfire was ordered out from Scapa Flow with the 4th Destroyer Flotilla to escort the Grand Fleet out into the North Sea on May 30, the day before the great sea fight. They expected to be in action late the next day. The Spitfire was returning, the flotilla being about five miles astern of the Grand Fleet, when German battleships took them by surprise.

Captain Trelawney, after hours of prompting, told the story. Two torpedoes had been fired when the torpedo crew and gear was wrecked by shell fire, leaving only three four-inch guns. Seeing two German battleships coming up, the Spitfire's commander turned his ship and collided with one. The big German ship fired a broadside as they collided. "After the blast of those heavy guns, I recovered consciousness to find myself hanging over the side, half-way along the deck. A signalman had his head blown off, a seaman's body was cut clean in two," Commander Trelawney said, "another was dead and the others badly hurt."

"We had had 30 to 40 of those great shells aboard and we were lucky to be afloat. One of our sides was torn right away, and our bows were all smashed in, and the ship was taking water. Our bridge was gone, and we had to steer from the stern; we also had two fires aboard to extinguish." The Spitfire however, was getting ready to go into action again. With her little four-inch guns, she battled the dreadnoughts, inflicting heavy damages and 50 casualties. The next thing known is that 48 hours later the Spitfire crept painfully up the Tyne, her flag still flying.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

CONFEDERATION—SIXTY YEARS AFTER

(By Alfred Fitzpatrick, Principal, Frontier College.)

Canada needs the lesson of the Labrador award to arouse her and cause her to take possession of her northern heritage. Explorers, and especially Stefflanson and Bernier, have frequently warned us of the danger of other countries claiming portions of it and also of the continual loss in revenue to the Dominion from pilfered fish and furs. We should be devoutly thankful that the award was not of necessity made to a foreign flag, but to another member of the large group of self-governing nations comprising the British Empire. The Main boundary award and "54-40 or fight" are proof enough of this statement. It is a matter for the deepest gratitude that since the unfortunate war of 1812 our almost criminal indifference to our vast hinterland has not resulted in strife with foreign peoples.

After sixty years of Confederation there are still two tremendous problems now squarely before the Canadian people: namely, the satisfying of the Maritime Provinces, and also the bringing of Newfoundland into the Dominion. Premier King and his Cabinet are to be congratulated on their decision to accept, in the main, the findings of the Duncan Report. This attitude of the government should go a long way toward a solution of the first problem. It should allay unrest, improve trade and business generally, and substitute an optimistic outlook for one of pessimism. Newfoundland has, also, now been treated fairly and this is the first step toward bringing her into the union, either singly or as forming one province with the Maritimes. Would the festivities recommended by many writers for the Dominion's Diamond Jubilee not be infinitely more joyful if the way were fully paved so that the Maritimes would desire closer relations amongst themselves and with the rest of Canada, and Newfoundland voluntarily seek entrance into Confederation? Both these objects so "devoutly to be wished" may be effected only by the exercise of justice.

The provisions of the Duncan Report do not fully atone for our discrimination against the Maritime Provinces in the last fifty years in the matter of territory. To supplement the report, convince the people of the Maritimes that the hearts of their fellow Canadians beat in unison with theirs, and to revive their national soul, let the Dominion Government "go the whole hog" and make up to them the loss not only in money, but in lands. The unreflecting reader may ask, why should not the Duncan Report fully satisfy the "Bluenoses"? The reason is, that while it is generous in the matter of a money grant and in other respects, it still leaves them, whether regarded singly or combined, very much smaller than any one of the other provinces and with no prospect of enlargement.

At various times great stretches of territory were added to the central and western provinces, while not a single square mile was given the Maritimes. Meanwhile it has become apparent that the vast hinterland purchased originally from the Hudson's Bay Company in 1870 was the common heritage of the whole Dominion, and as such, a dowry in which all the provinces should have shared. It has been apportioned at a direct loss to the Maritimes. In 1884, by an award of the Privy Council the Province of Ontario was considerably expanded from this public domain, and by 1912 its boundaries were still farther extended until at the present time it includes an area of 400,000 square miles. In the same year the whole of Ungava, a huge region comprising at one time no inconsiderable part of the original land under the control of the Hudson's Bay Company, passed in its entirety to Quebec. She had then an extent of 700,000 square miles, and has still, since the award, 600,000 or is three times the size of France. At that time, too, even the "Postage Stamp Province" of Manitoba, from the same common dower, was enlarged to 250,000 square miles. This province, therefore, is now approximately the same size as each of her sister provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

As mentioned before, by the acceptance of the Duncan Report, progress is being made with regard to reconciling the Maritime Provinces. The next step toward their complete pacification will be giving these provinces what unquestionably belongs to them—an extended hinterland. Let us give the Maritimes a chance to look and act objectively as well as subjectively. There has been all too much cause for their introspection. Why not memorialize this year of jubilee by placing a good healthy boy on their doorstep? What would Ontario be without its Cobalt, Hollinger, and Clay Belts; Manitoba without its mining areas and its picturesque dog teams laden with the richest furs; Saskatchewan without its thousands of Barr Settlements yet to be; Alberta without the Peace River District; Vancouver Island without the great timber stretches of its northern mainland; and Quebec without its hundreds of Lake St. John Districts and its many Rouyns actual and potential?

The recent Labrador award offers the occasion for approaching our sister Dominion not only as to joining Confederation, but as to selling part of the land awarded. It would be bad advice to her to suggest that she sell the whole of the award, notwithstanding the fact that it is for the benefit of her good neighbors, the Maritimes. Even a part of the land purchased from Newfoundland could be used as the belated portion to the Maritimes of the gift from the Dominion Government to all the provinces. Developing her great resources by a commission in the interest of her people would require capital. The Island Dominion, therefore, needs money, and to sell a part would leave her a share in the awarded territory and yet give her ready cash for the purpose.

These eastern provinces, even at this late day, must be encouraged to unite as one and be given their share of territory, in order that some time they may have a representation in the Dominion Parliament, approximately equal to that of the other provinces. They can never otherwise have the same interest, prestige, and influence in the councils of Canada that their history, initiative, and industry alike demand. This suggestion of union among the three is not unreasonable, as combined with a three-quarter interest of the territory awarded Newfoundland, they would make a province of only 133,000 square miles. It would still be by far the smallest province in the Dominion.

At first sight it would appear that, owing to the contiguity of Ungava with Quebec, it could not properly belong to any other province. A second glance at the map will show that the whole littoral of Ungava and a third of the mainland are nearer by water to the commercial centres of Halifax, Louisburg, St. John, and St. Johns than they are to those of Quebec and Montreal. Besides, these two great seaports of Quebec, it must be remembered, are closed to navigation in the winter season. It is roughly one thousand miles by land from Montreal to the northern coast of Ungava. Extending the existing railways from her principal cities to serve the whole of the northern part of the province would, therefore, be a tremendous drain on her finances and with Quebec working alone it would require more than half a century. It can be developed more quickly by co-operation—Quebec operating from the South, and the Maritimes and Newfoundland building short railways inland from the North and West.

Owing to Quebec's relation to the disputed territory the Dominion Government would be greatly influenced by any position this province might take in the matter. Would Quebec, under the circumstances, use its good offices by urging the authorities at Ottawa to offer to buy three-quarters of the land awarded Newfoundland, and to hold this area for the Maritimes on the condition that they unite themselves as one province? One cannot but feel the greatest sympathy with Quebec at the present time, and yet the fact remains that her area is even now the greatest of all the provinces in the Dominion, and is five times the size of the British Isles, and as before pointed out, three times that of France. It may be, indeed, that Mr. Taschereau and his Cabinet would wish to celebrate the Diamond Jubilee in real seignoria fashion, and that Quebec, herself, would sell or give outright to Canada for the Maritime Provinces a slice of Northern Ungava equal to that awarded Newfoundland. Even after a magnanimous act such as this Quebec would still be larger than any other province of Canada by the size of Italy. There is nothing that this great province could do that would more effectively ensure the loyalty of the other provinces to the task of observing and maintaining her constitutional rights than winning the co-operation of the Maritime Provinces and Newfound.

Recently in asking the member for L'Islet to withdraw his motion Premier Taschereau and his colleagues accepted graciously the decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. His fine sportsmanship in this matter and constant attitude of loyalty to Canada and Britain rank the Quebec Premier beside Canada's former statesmen, Cartier and Macdonald. Premier Taschereau is a big man—not only a big French-Canadian, but a big Canadian—and a man of whom the whole Empire is proud. He will undoubtedly look at the Maritimes' grievances from the point of view of Canada as a whole. Is it not probable that he "has come to the Kingdom for such a time as this"? Were he to give his splendid energies to the bringing of Newfoundland into the union, and the satisfying of the Maritime Provinces, the rest of Canada would be under lasting obligation to him. To attempt a solution of the two problems mentioned by sacrificing a piece of her hinterland would be a permanent glory to French Canada. It would not be the first time that Quebec has rendered conspicuous service for the unity of the Dominion and the Empire.

ALL ABOUT THE CENSUS.

The population census is perhaps the best single yard-stick with which to measure the all-round progress of a nation. Canada boasts of having taken the earliest census of modern times (in 1666 under the French regime), but the present census, at regular ten-year intervals, dates only from 1851, the first for the new Dominion as a whole having been taken in 1871. It showed a total of 3,689,257 souls, including estimates from the West. By a calculation based on this and the 1861 figures for the separate colonies, the population for the actual year of Confederation (1867) may be set down at 3,327,000.

Growth was fairly rapid during the first decade after Confederation, for though the later seventies saw dull times, this was offset by buoyant conditions in the earlier years. Between the 1871 and 1881 censuses the gain in population was 635,553, or 17.2 per cent. This was on a lower scale than current progress in the United States, but may still be counted good. In the eighties and nineties, however, the advance was notably slower, the increase being 508,429 and 538,076, respectively, or less than 12 per cent in each decade. The 1901 census showed a total population for Canada of 5,371,315, which was undeniably lower than had been set as the goal for the end of the century. Nevertheless, the West had been added to the national domain; the C. P. R. had been built; and a fairly broad industrial system established; so that at least the foundation for the future growth had been well and truly laid. The realization of this preparatory development was not long delayed. It is in the twentieth century and especially in the first twelve years, that the most marked expansion in Canada has taken place, these being the years of the opening of the "last best West" and the immense railway, municipal and industrial "boom" which accompanied it. We grew between 1901 and 1911 to the extent of 35 per cent, which was the fastest of any country in the world, exceeding the contemporary rate of the United States, and paralleling the rate of expansion which that country had set during the first half of the nineteenth century, till then the world's record. Nearly three billions of capital flowed into Canada during those eventful years. So likewise in the decade 1911-1921 withstanding the war (for which we raised nearly 600,000 men and over two billion of money), Canada again forged ahead by approximately 22 per cent which was again the fastest rate of progress in any country of the world, with the single exception of Australia and that only by a fraction of one per cent. In both agriculture and industry advances were stupendous in this decade. Since 1921 we have weathered the severe post-war depression, common throughout the world and particularly hard on agricultural interests, and the western provinces have shown a growth of 11,600 or 5 per cent in the five-year period according to the 1926 census. Beginning with 1925, moreover, a marked reaction from the depression has been observed, the favorable tendency mounting steadily throughout 1926 and continuing to the present. We may safely assert that on Dominion Day, 1927, we will be a nation of well over nine and one-half millions, or between two and one-half and three times what we were sixty years ago.

THE STORY OF RADIO.

Canada's first use of radio was the establishment of radiotelegraph communication between stations at Belle Isle and Chateau Bay on the mainland on the north side of the Belle Isle Straits, as a substitute for a submarine cable which was continually being interrupted by icebergs.

The stations were built by the Marconi Company. Power for the transmitter was obtained from dry batteries, and the receiving sets were of the most primitive type, using Marconi's coherer of metal filings in a glass tube as the detector.

Since 1901, when 50 miles was a long range for a station, progress in radio has been steady. In 1902, Sir Wilfrid Laurier invited Mr. Marconi to Ottawa, and as a result a transatlantic radiotelegraph service between Canada and Great Britain was established. This service was inaugurated in 1907, and has been maintained ever since that date. The apparatus of the Glace Bay transatlantic station was, of course, materially altered and improved from time to time, and last year this station was discontinued and the service transferred to a Beam Station, the latest development in radio, located at Drummondville, P. Q.

At the time of Confederation, a trip across the Atlantic was still an adventure, taking from two to three weeks. To-day the liners run with a regularity approaching that of a railroad service, and a passenger, six days before the ship is due to arrive at Montreal, by means of long distance radio, is able to reserve a room with bath for a certain hour on a certain day, as a matter of routine. As the ship approaches within 500 miles of the Canadian coast, she comes within the range of the chain of "aid to navigation" radio stations; if she is in a fog she verifies her position by means of the Direction Finders; if she desires to check her chronometer, she does so by means of the radio time signals. Every twelve hours the navigator is provided with complete weather forecasts for the area in which the ship is steaming; and he is advised of the exact location of any ice which may be in his track.

The Great Lakes and East Coast "ship to shore" radio system consists of an intercommunicating chain of 26 stations and six beacons, extending from Port Arthur at the head of the Great Lakes to the Atlantic, and on the Pacific Coast a chain of 14 stations extending from Victoria to Alaska.

The Dominion, a country of vast areas and sparse population, lends itself to the fullest utilization of broadcasting, and there are to-day some 400,000 receiving sets in operation.

Canada has to-day some 81 broadcasting stations, practically all of which are operated by private or commercial interests for indirect advertising or publicity in one form or other.

The Province of Manitoba has established a provincial service, and it is understood that other provinces are considering the adoption of a similar policy. The Federal Administration is fully appreciative of the utility of broadcasting to this Dominion and will see that it develops along the lines which will give the best possible result to our listening public.

Cooper and Armour Tied For U.S. Golf Title

HONORS TIED IN PLAY FOR U.S. GOLF OPEN

Armour and Former Hamilton Caddy Finish With Same Score.

OTHERS ARE CLOSE

Bobby Jones, International Champion, Tied for Eleventh Place.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 17 (Canadian Press).—A former caddie on the links of Hamilton, Ont., showed the way to the international amateur champion and the famous field of United States open golf championship yesterday. He was 23-year-old Harry Cooper, a native Briton. But after Cooper playing consistently throughout the four rounds, 74, 76, 74, 77, had come off with the neat total of 301 and almost had the championship within his grasp, Tommy Armour, the Scottish star, now pro. of Rockville, Maryland, holed out a twelve foot putt on the last green for a birdie three and tied the redoubtable Los Angeles professional. Armour's rounds were 78, 71, 76, 76.

They will play off today an 18-hole round over Oakmont's pitted terrain for the title and the rich financial rewards it carries, possibly as high as $75,000 for the coming year's earning powers.

It was a battle to the finish among the professional stars of Britain and America as the amateur phalanx was broken. Not only Bobby Jones, international amateur champion, failed at any time to menace the leaders or strike his championship stride, but he finished well down the list, tied for eleventh place in the final standing with a score of 309.

Toss Away Chances

Other famous stars, such as Gene Sarazen, Emmett French, Walter Hagen Bill Mehlhorn and Archie Compston, foremost of the British threats, tossed away their chances, faltering at critical stages of the contest.

Armour's chances, too, seemed blasted when he started the final nine holes in 6, 3, 7, three over par, but it was at this critical turn that the former Scotch amateur, who rose from the ranks of a private to a major in the British Tank Corps during the war, reached his greatest heights and staged as dramatic a finish as any tournament seen.

Armour knew he had to finish the last six holes in one better than par to tie Cooper and his shots were as straight as a string as he rolled off this trapped and troublesome stretch, the Waterloo of most of other championship hopes, in the astonishing figures of 3, 4, 4, 3, 4, 3. Even with par, straw-hatted Tommy shot his tee shot straight down the middle of the last fairway lined by a surging mob of thousands tense with expectancy. Cooly he measured his iron shot then sent the ball high and on a line to the pin 200 yards away. It hit the green, rolled a yard and stopped 12 yards from the pin but in good position. Six and seven deep the spectators stood on tip-toe around the velvety surface as Armour examined his line and a mighty roar went up as he struck the ball firmly on a journey that ended with a click in the bottom of the cup.

Cooper's Course

There was less thril but just as much workmanship to the performance of "Light Horse" Harry Cooper, whose meteoric flights of scoring have been confined to the West heretofore. He took the lead by two strokes at the end of the third round with 254 and would have clinched the championship but for a few lapses with his irons and putter on the final turn of the course.

Three sixes showed on Cooper's card for the last 18 holes, each due to excursions into sand traps, but it was on the 17th green that he made his last and as it turned out, most damaging mistake. His chip shot trickled just off the green, his next approach to the hole was short and he missed the putt that would have given him a par four, finally holing in five.

Other title hopes were strewn over this final span of traps and rolling green. Gene Sarazen, the stocky Italian professional and 1922 champion, who finished third with 302, really lost his chance to tie or win when he took an erratic 80 on the third round.

PIRATES WIN FROM BRAVES

Strengthen Hold on League Lead by 6-0 Victory.

ATHLETICS LOSE OUT

NEW YORK, June 17 (Canadian Press).—The league leading Pirates kept a step ahead of the onrushing Chicago Cubs by defeating Boston, 6 to 0, at Pittsburgh yesterday. Lee Meadows held the Braves to six scattered hits and chalked up his ninth victory of the season against one defeat. Kent Greenfield, traded by New York recently, made his initial appearance on the mound for Boston and was batted hard. He gave way to a pinch hitter in the seventh and Mills finished. Paul Waner, Pirate outfielder, ran his consecutive hitting streak to 19 games.

Chicago ran its winning streak to 12 games yesterday by defeating Philadelphia at Chicago, 7 to 2. Herb Pruett, who started for the visitors, blew up in the third inning when the Cubs scored four runs on three walks, an error and two hits. Jack Scott halted the rally, but was touched for a home run by Hartnett with a man on base for two more runs, while Stephenson's triple netted the final run. Hal Carlson, who faced his former mates, allowed three hits in the first frame which netted two runs but pitched invincible ball thereafter.

Break Losing Streak

The losing streak of the New York Giants which had extended through six games was stopped at St. Louis, when New York took the second game of the series by 10 to 5. Rogers Hornsby had a perfect day at bat with four hits in four chances, including a home run, his eleventh this year. Terry was also an important factor in the victory with a four bagger triple and a single. McGraw Keen and H. Bell of the Cards were banged for 18 hits. Virgil Barnes weakened in the ninth and his success, Fitzsimmons, had to pitch only to one batter to retire the side.

Collecting 13 hits off the combined efforts of three Brooklyn hurlers, the Reds defeated the Robins at Cincinnati by 10 to 1. Adolfo Luque was on the mound for Cincinnati, and he kept seven hits well scattered. Luque contributed a triple with two aboard the sacks in the second and then scored on a wild peg by Partridge. A double by Carey brought in Meusel with the lone Brooklyn run in the eighth.

TAKE FIRST GAME FROM THE BROWNS

Yanks Bunch Hits in First To Win Eight To One Victory.

NEW YORK, June 17.—(Canadian Press).—The Yankees bunched their entire nine hits in the first three innings yesterday and won the first game of their series with the St. Louis Browns by 8 to 1. Zachary, St. Louis southpaw, lasted only an inning. Ruth hit him for his twenty-second home run of the season with Combs on base. Gehrig followed a moment later with his fifteenth. Loose fielding by the Browns helped New York to several hits in the third when five runs crossed the plate. Schultze hit a homer for the single St. Louis score. Hoyt pitched well for New York, registering his ninth score of the year.

The Chicago White Sox made it two straight over the Athletics at Philadelphia, winning by a score of 4 to 0. The White Sox scored all their runs during Howard Ehmke's term in the box. Hunnefield hit a homer in the first inning and in the third Bill Barrett hit for the circuit following a double by Hunnefield. A single by Falk, Clancy's double and a sacrifice fly gave Chicago its last run of the game in the fourth inning.

Rallies in the eight and ninth innings combined with Stoner's air-tight pitching gave the Tigers a six to one victory in the first of a four-game series at Washington. Stoner was effective throughout, Washington's only run coming on a fielder's choice after Reeves had tripled in the eighth. The Tigers found Thurston for eight safeties.

In a free hitting game Boston yesterday defeated Cleveland 11 to 10, opening a series at Boston. The winners used five pitchers and the losers three. Jamieson led the attack for Cleveland with a triple and three singles. Flagstead returned to centre field for the Red Sox and played a sterling game.

LEAFS LOSE FOUR STRAIGHT

Come From Behind and Score Three in the Ninth.

BEARS WIN 8-7

NEW YORK, June 17.—(Canadian Press).—The Bears made it four in a row at Newark when they defeated the Toronto Leafs by the score of 8 to 7. Lefty Faulkner was hit hard and taken out in the sixth frame, being relieved by Gordinier, who held the Bears safe. Bentley pitched good ball until the ninth when he was taken out after Styles hit a two bagger with the bases full. Cheeves took Bentley's place and retired the side without any more runs. Scoring two runs in the tenth inning, Rochester won at Reading, 6-4, to take the final game of the series. Gilhooley and Maranville produced the hits in the extra inning that scored the winning runs.

Buffalo took both games of a doubleheader at Jersey City, shutting out the Black Cats by 9 to 0 in the first game and trimming them again, 6 to 3 in the second. The Bisons romped off with the opener, collecting no less than 15 hits off Coffmen and Allen, while Sterling Stryker was having little trouble scattering seven Jersey City hits. Buffalo took the second game with a four run rally in the eighth inning, driving Ellis off the mound and continuing the assault on Parks.

The Syracuse club evened the Baltimore series at 2-all yesterday by trouncing the Orioles, 7 to 3. The scoring started in the fourth, the Orioles tallying two against the visitors one. In the fifth a flurry of hitting featured by Benson's circuit slash with one on, netted the Stars five and put them out of the reach of the Dunnmen.

MARMORA DEFEAT DELORO TEAM 13-12

Sunnyside Girls' Softball Club Lose First Game of Season.

MARMORA, June 17. — Deloro Sunnyside Girls softball team played their first game of the season on Monday being at home to a Marmora team. The homesters were a trifle slow in getting down to the game with the result that at the end of the third innings, Marmora led by 11 to 1. From the next innings onwards, the Sunnysides made a great rally. The game ended in Marmora winning by the score of 13-12, and was featured with a home run by Ada Archer of Marmora and a spectacular catch by Elinor Reynolds of the other team. Madeline Gaffney as pitcher with Nora Foster as catcher composed the Sunnyside battery. Marmora used two pitchers, Gladys Williams and Jean Thompson, while Eileen Meehan was at the receiving end. A good crowd witnessed the game. W. Kerr of Deloro was at plate and W. Shannon of Marmora on bases. Score by innings:

STRONG TEAM FOR THE PETES

GAME AT 3 P.M

Raybestos, with several players from other teams in the East Peterborough ball loop will have a redhot lineup as opposition for the Petes at James Stevenson Park tomorrow afternoon. President Bill Kay's circuit sports a number of high-class performers, who are capable both at bat and in the field.

The Petes will face pitching from "Casey" Masterson, a good right-hander, "Scotty" Maudsley, an effective portsider, and probably "Bun" Frost may do a turn. The backstopping will be well looked after by Rogers and Kenneally.

Jimmie Johnston, and Doug. Moore of Lew LeBarr's Junior O.B.A.A. champions will work at first, and second, respectively, Jack Baird at short, and Harold Nicholls at third. "Biffer" Ranger, second baseman of the Crescents, and Johnny Wilson, shortstopper for Cognawagas will also perform in the infield, during the game.

Out in the garden will be seen in action, Oscar Nicholls, Joe Jones and Harry Corrin, all of whom are outfielders with few peers. While Nicholls and Corrin are former infielders, Jones has always been a flytrapper, and, given half a chance tomorrow afternoon, will show the fans plenty of action on the defence and on the runways, where he is fast and tricky.

Looking over the talent, the fans should be reasonably assured of a tidy battle. The contest will start at three o'clock.

C.G.E. DEFEAT 4TH BATTERY

Calladine, Frost and Hilliard Supply Fielding Features for Both Teams.

BLOW-UP IN SIXTH

Scoring six runs in the sixth inning and four in the eighth the C.G.E. defeated the 4th Battery 10 runs to 0. The game was well played and with the exception of these two innings the 4th Battery outplayed the Electricians. Errors paved the way for the C.G.E. runs, the Batterymen falling down at the crucial moment, and spoiling a good exhibition of pitching by "Babe" Anthony, who twirled a good game.

The C.G.E. backed their pitcher with air-tight support, and although hit hard his teammates were behind him all the way. Hilliard, Calladine and Frost were the fielding stars, each contributing nice plays.

The teams lined up as follows:

C.G.E.—Jones, cf; Frost, 3b; Dyer, c; Maudsley, 1b; Ross, 2b; Grant, lf; Corbett, rf; Wilson, ss. ....., p.

Umpires—Calladine and Scates.

EXAMINER MEET DE LAVAL TONIGHT.

The Examiner and De Laval will meet tonight at Central Park at 6.15 in what should be the best game of Section B. A win for either of these teams means the right to play off with the C.G.E. for the championship of Section B. The team that loses tonight is out of the running, so a great battle is assured. With so much at stake both teams can be depended upon to trot out their best lineup.

Dormer will likely twirl them in for the Newsboys while Murray will do mound duty for the Separator crew. This game should draw a large crowd of fans.

GOOD STARCH COMBINATIONS

In my last article I explained how to use good protein combinations, and told you that protein food should not be used at the same meal with starches.

When you do use starches, only one should be used at each meal and this starch should be combined only with the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables. No fruits of any kind, not even tomatoes, should be used with this meal.

The reason for this is that starch digestion begins in the mouth as mastication mixes the saliva with the starch. If acids are used at the same time, the saliva is spoiled and cannot properly convert the starch into sugar.

If starch is used with tomatoes and meat, as this mixture passes into the stomach, both the meat and tomatoes will stimulate the flow of the gastric juice, which has no digestive element in it that can in any way convert the starch. On the other hand, an excess of gastric juice only sours the starch and makes it unfit for digestion in the intestines where the principal change in starch takes place.

In order to digest starchy food, when mixed with protein, it would be necessary to have a separate passage through which the starch would pass into the intestines without going through the stomach. There would be no harm if the meat would then regain the starch in the intestines, but when these two are forced to pass through the stomach at the same time the mixture becomes so acid as to render the bread, potatoes or other starchy food sour and unfit to be acted upon by the intestinal juices.

Some foods, such as Navy beans, are such a bad mixture of starch and protein in themselves that excess fermentation always sets up in the stomach when they are eaten.

Those with strong digestive power will be able to understand the effects of such a mixture for a number of years, but it is bound to react upon them in time and finally produce serious consequences. The simple way then to use starch is to use only one starchy food at a time and to use it in combinations with the different non-starchy vegetables, both in the cooked and raw form.

The following specimen meals will give some idea in which starch may be used in propercombinations with other food:

1. Whole wheat muffins, cooked carrots and string beans.
2. Baked potato, cooked cucumbers, salad of grated carrots and lettuce.
3. Broiled whole rice, cooked asparagus and carrots, raw spinach.

MENIE TEAM LOSE LEAGUE GAME 5-3

Defeated By Mount Pleasant in the Best Game of Season.

BURNBRAE, June 17.—Wednesday night's softball game between Mt. Pleasant and Menie on the local grounds was the best of the season and although the home team lost the game was thoroughly enjoyed by the large crowd present. Menie were without Shillinglaw and Petherick and though the re-arranged lineup played well in the field a weakness at bat was apparent. However against Pierce's sensational pitching the best batters looked ordinary and even Frank Little and Alex Linn failed to reach first. J. Rannie, S. Little and Walker scored for Menie. Eagleson lacked the control that usually feafures his pitching and walked several batters, but usually his fielders saved the situation.

For Mt. Pleasant all played well with the battery and Coggins at first being the stars. The fielders all gave Pierce good support when the Menie batters did happen to connect. W. Jeffs caught in splendid style several going out by the foul tip route. In the fifth Menie threatened with the bases full and two out. Jeffs caught a foul tip off Eagleson's bat to end the danger.

Drop Game.

On Monday night Menie dropped a game to Glen Ross at the latter place by a score of 8 to 7. After being 6 to 0 in the lead at the fifth inning Menie weakened to let the Glen boys pull ahead.

Lead League.

Mt. Pleasant now lead the league with three wins and two defeats. Menie are second with three and three. Glen Ross and Hoards are third and fourth with a tie game between them.

Line up:

Menie—Eagleson, p; S. Little, c; F. Little, 1b; L. Little, 2b; J. Rannie, 3b; Whitton, lf; A. Linn, ss; Hobbs, cf; Walker, rf.

Mt. Pleasant—Pierce, p; W. Jeffs, c; Coggins, 1b; Montgomery, 2b; McConnell, 3b; F. Jeffs, ss; Weave, lf; Reid, cf; Johnson, rf; Dunkley, sub.

By innings:

Menie	1000002—3
Mt. Pleasant	1000022—5

Umpires—Williams and Johnson.

BASEBALL NEWS

Masterson will start for Raybestos against Crescents at the Exhibition Park this evening and will be opposed by Billingsley. The rivalry between the two teams is intense and neither is asking nor giving any quarter.

Raybestos and Deloro will play an exhibition game at Marmora on Dominion Day, when the Confederation Jubilee will be celebrated.

Bethany is planning a big night for Tuesday, June 21, when Raybestos play a league game there. The game will be followed by a dance in the town hall, and President Bruce Raby extends an invitation to all.

Belleville is leading the Bay of Quinte loop by a small margin but it's a long way to the championship, all the teams being strong, with Deloro the club most feared.

The fans should see some smart infielding in the All-Stars-Petes game at James Stevenson park to-morrow. "Biffer" Ranger, the Crescents' middle sacker and Wilson, who does the shortfield work for Cognawagas, will alternate with Moore and Baird. All four players are going wood this season. The Stars would like to use first baseman Rooke of the Cogs., but he is unable to leave his work. However, as it is proposed to stage other games, all three teams in the E. P. League will be given a crack at the Seniors.

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"THE FLAMING FOREST."

An interesting feature picture, the presentation of the local Legion Convention of recent date, and a good comedy, make an entertaining programme at the Capitol Theatre for this week-end. Last evening, an addition to the programme that was greeted with much applause was the music and dancing of the Savanah Stompers, an aggregation of nine colored musicians who gave a series of jazz orchestra selections and demonstrated the proper method of doing the blackbottom dance.

One of Oliver Curwood's popular stories is screened in "The Flaming Forest," the feature picture of this programme. Antonio Moreno is the hero, Sergeant Carrigan, and Renee Adoree is the charming heroine, Jeanne Marie. The picture is set in Canada's North-West in the early 70's, in a country of 300,000 square miles, without law, courts or sheriff. Here the half-breed, Jules LeGarre, dreams of empire ownership for his people. Andre Audemard writes a letter to Sir John A. Macdonald, begging him to save the country from the half-breed outlaws, but the courier is killed, and later, Audemard and his wife also meet death at the hands of the rebels.

On June 6th, 1874, recruits come to Toronto from all parts of the country, to form the North-West Mounted Police, and at Dufferin, Manitoba, one hundred and sixty miles beyond the railroad's end, the N.W.M.P., three hundred strong, commence the longest march in history for troops carrying their own provisions, a thousand-mile trek into the northern land where trouble is brewing.

The conflict between the Indians, the Police and the rebels which follows is told in the graphic style of Curwood, and filmed in thrilling episodes. Jeanne Marie falls into the hands of the outlaws, but is rescued by Carrigan, and later, he and LeGarre fight for the girl in traditional manner, the picture ending in conventionally happy fashion.

RACE TRACK SCENES THAT REALLY THRILL

Come on, Jackie! That's the cry that reverberated through the Regent Theatre last night where the youngest star of the movies is appearing in his latest production, "Johnny Get Your Hair Cut," a race track story by the late Gerald Beaumont.

Children and grown-ups alike were out of their seats as Jackie, astride "Thunderbolt," came charging down the home stretch—each calling for their favorite to win. Then some thing dreadful happened, and Jackie faltered—but that's the big surprise in the picture, and it would detract from the entertainment were you to be told everything in this column—suffice to say that never has there been such a race track scene in any other film.

Whoever was responsible for selecting this vehicle for Jackie's first film, sans the Dutch bob, is to be congratulated. Much depended on the story which was to introduce a new Jackie Coogan to the American public. We are frank to admit that we like the Jackie with the regular boy hair cut, just a tiny bit better than the baby Coogan who has blessed the screen these five years past. The young genius may have lost some superfluous hirsute, but those big brown eyes seem to have grown in size since last he appeared in a picture.

GAME TO-MORROW.

One of the best games of the Juvenile series is to be played at the Exhibition Grounds to-morrow afternoon at three o'clock between All Saints and Kiwanis. This is expected to be a fast game, and a large crowd is expected. The Kiwanis' line-up is to be somewhat changed to-morrow and Jack Dennard expects to surprise the crowd with a new twirler and receiver.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE SNEAKERS

There are many sorts of sinners,
Driving many kinds of cars,
But it's not the new beginners
I would put behind the bars.
For the new man motors slowly,
And he drives with thought and care,
But, by all that is unholy,
How the sneakers make me swear!

At a crossing you will find them,
When the signal's glowing red.
There is nothing much behind them,
There is not a thing ahead.
But they keep their autos moving,
Forward inch by inch they crawl,
To the whole creation proving
They are sneakers, after all.

When a timid woman crosses,
Or a gray and feeble man,
Then these highway hogs an Losses
Try to scare them all they can.
Oh, the folks who sneak the inches
Are as bad as those who speed—
And I hope some copper pinches
All the whole infernal breed!

KIWANIS BANTAMS DEFEAT CANUCKS

Youngsters Give Fine Exhibition of Baseball and Win City Championship.

The youngsters showed a brand of ball which surpasses that played by many of the teams in higher series. Jones, who pitched for the winners, had 15 strike-outs and had the Canucks runless until the sixth, when they scored the only tally.

Adamson for the Canucks had a break in the fifth when four hits and an error gave the Kiwanis four runs. In this inning O'Brien made a spectacular catch of Folly's line drive. In the same inning Cuthbertson made a splendid catch of Huard's fly.

Whatley in several cases failed to hold Jones and on the third strike let the batter get to first base, but for the most part he had the Canucks hitting at everything, as they usually hit at the ball when he said.

The win last night gave the Kiwanis Bantams four straight victories over the Canucks and after the game the Canucks gave the Kiwanis the city league Bantam championship, as they decided not to play the next three games.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called VILAK has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, who are on horseback, and finally he and his companions come upon the child, unharmed and being cared for by a gang of railroad laborers in the charge of one CARLOS D'ALBENTARA.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nunnally that evening save an Indian from cruel torture at the hands of two ruffians. Vilak is stabbed in the wrist. He decides to close his barber shop and stick to the character of Attorney Davis. As he is closing up, an excited native approaches, bearing news.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XIX.

The old man, glad to receive another auditor, thrust out his skinny hands. "He have escaped," he mumbled excitedly.

"Who has escaped?" Vilak's glance was puzzled.

"The Engleesh. The Engleesh."

Vilak grunted in surprise. "You mean Limy-Potts, the Englishman who was put in jail for killing Tony?"

"Yess. Yess. Leemey. Leemey."

"When did he get out?"

"Last night, the gendarme have tell me. Or thees morning early maybe. They do not know. Bad man, Leemey. He kill other man soon, too. You see, maybe. Nice Englishman, nice; bad Englishman, bad, worse more than bad Brazilian, bad Italian, bad anything. Kill somebody, you see maybe. You go see self, you don't believe me he escape, you go."

"Think I will go take a look." Vilak responded, and assuring the old man that his news always surpassed that of any other inhabitant of Porto Verde, hurried off. A short walk brought him to the jail where Limey had been confined to await trial before the judge who would come to Porto Verde in a month.

It was a small red brick structure consisting of two cells and a tiny room to house the gendarmes who stood before it. Both cells had windows opening onto the street, protected by heavy iron bars. A glance showed Vilak which cell the Englishman had occupied: two of the thick bars at the rear had been cut with a file and bent widely to the side, affording a fairly comfortable passage even for one of as ample a build as the brawny Englishman.

Vilak turned to the huge blue and red garbed negro, who, rifle at his side, stood looking gloomily up at the twisted metal.

"Do they trail the prisoner now, amigos?" he inquired politely.

The gendarme's gloom deepened. "Si, senhor, they trail him," he muttered. "But what will they find?" With his thick hand he pointed off the jungle. "The cascavel, the boa, and the crocodile with the hungry mouth. It is not good to chase in the jungle, senhor." He grumbled a curse. "May the fiery Satan catch this Engleesh and make him suffer. Hear, senhor. Hear and pity. Next month they were to make me a corporal. A corporal with the beautiful stripes upon the arm. And now, because this night-crawler has escaped, what will they do? Will they make me a corporal? Assuredly not. Will they give me gold stripes upon my arm? Assuredly not, senhor. Better will they give me red stripes upon my back."

"He must have made some noise filing. Didn't you hear anything?"

The gendarme's huge mouth opened wider in protest. "I am but a man, senhor. I am not the snake who creeps upon the ground and can hear a frog breathe in the pool half a mile away, so have I heard men say. My ears are sharp. But his filing was soft as the brook which flows in summer. I have heard nothing. Once during the night I have heard voices outside his window. But what are voices? Many pass here during the night. If I waked each time I hear a voice I should have no sleep and grow thin and die. No, it was the devil who has helped him, for he is the son, the father of the devil, even more, the father of the devil's father."

The other shrugged his huge shoulders. "I have not looked, senhor. Of what use, even should I find it? A file is . . . but a file. Is it not so?"

With an appearance of being quite casual, Vilak began kicking about the leaves to see what he could discover, finding nothing here, in the course of conversation he gained the other's permission to visit the inside. In a dark corner of the cell, something metallic glinted. He walked over to it.

It was a file, tossed there with slight attempt at concealment after the escape had been made ready. Vilak picked it up. It was shining with the bits of metal it had cut from the bars. He glanced at the name of the maker cut into the triangular shaft, then at a small mark hammered into the metal a quarter of an inch from the name.

"Humph," he murmured to himself. "This comes from Elise's fazenda." The file had been manufactured by the American factory from which she bought all tools of this description, and at the side of the maker's name bore hammered into the metal the swastika which was cut or painted upon all material immediately on its arrival at the fazenda. Slipping it unobtrusively into his pocket, he walked outside again, wished the gendarme the least of punishments, and hurried back to his shop.

He spent only a moment here, and, taking his personal possessions, locked the door and walked off in the direction of Avilos. He rode only a few miles through the tangled woods, however, and turned from the main road to take a short cut which led him back unobserved to his house behind the mango trees.

Here for what he expected would be the last time, he took off the gray suit he wore as the barber, and put it inside a trunk. Then in the fashionably cut dress of the immaculate Attorney Davis he rode up to the fazenda. There he met Elise and the old man, who at her urgent request had given up his room at the hotel and established himself in the comfortable chamber he had occupied on his first night in her house.

In the afternoon it began to rain, but notwithstanding, the two men went to visit the manganese deposits which had been discovered on a wide, rocky plateau which rose a few hundred feet from the general level of Elise's Porto Verde properties.

"I have never seen so many tiny . . . er . . . lakes," the old man said, as he stood on an abrupt red cliff and looked at the watery surfaces dotting the black vista unfolded before him. "Judging by the . . . er . . . strata . . . I should say this had all been one huge volcanic lake not many . . . er . . . geological ages ago."

"I don't know, but I do know that as Elise said it makes it awfully dangerous here in the flood seasons, particularly when the rain comes down as hard as it is coming now." He looked at the huge drops falling with such force that their splash against the hard surfaces of the leaves sometimes attained two inches. "If this keeps up, we will have a bad one."

The chemist took a few samples of the deposits for analysis later. The two men returned to the house in a downpour that showed no signs of abating. The remainder of the afternoon and evening passed without incident.

"I could really imagine that I was up in our old summer house in New Hampshire," Elise remarked as she put down the cards after a game of double Canfield, in which Vilak as usual won. "The jungle is so quiet in the rain, and nothing has happened to upset us in the slightest. Outside of the flood threat, which is always with us, and which I am accustomed to, it's really the quietest day I've known in Porto Verde for a long time. Perhaps things are through happening for a while. Perhaps I won't have to take Tinky away after all. What do you think, Vilak?"

Her cousin flicked some cards in his long fingers, then extracting the queen of spades with a few deft strokes of the pencil changed the outlines of the crowned head, and sketched in a few figures behind it. He gave the card to Elise.

"What does it mean?" she asked wonderingly. "Is that a hearse you've drawn around the queen?"

"Exactly. And the figures behind are mourners, the family of my cherished cousin. Which is merely my quiet way of telling you what will undoubtedly happen if you stay here. Your memory is very short, my dear. One day of quiet or at least what you think is quiet — and are sure all danger is over. While the truth is much more likely that the quiet is occasioned because the greatest danger is being prepared.

"However, I'm not worried about your leaving. I feel quite certain now that when the time comes for your boat the day after tomorrow even you will be only too glad to go. If even tomorrow will be one-tenth as tranquil as you apparently think today was, I'll . . . let's see, what will I wager? A new Paris frock? No, that's not enough. A pearl necklace? No, that's not enough, either. Let's see." He laughed. "I know. I'll marry you before nightfall. And knowing my feelings on that subject, and how much that would annoy me, you can guess how secure I feel in my opinion."

"What glorious conceit!" she flashed.

"Seriously," he went on, "don't get over confident. It's one of your few faults. Keep close watch over Tinky and over yourself. Have that pistol always with you. There are forces working here which are going to reach a climax of terrific violence. That climax is coming quickly. Too quickly. I only wish that boat left tonight."

He bade her good night, played cards a few moments with the old man, then both retired. The torrential rain continued throughout the night. The three were at breakfast when the kinky-haired little negress who was serving them came out from the kitchen and approached Elise timidly.

"What is it, Maria?" Elise asked.

"There is sometheeng who weesh to see you. A man. He have just come on a horse. From Meester Wilson at Villapa. He say he must see you queeck."

PEACE LABORS OF RED CROSS ARE EXPLAINED

Dr. Routley, of Ontario Branch, Addresses the Kiwanis Club.

NEW VALUES

Much Work Still Being Done Among Great War Victims.

The somewhat meagre knowledge of the average man concerning the peace time activities of the Red Cross was supplemented in illuminating fashion by the address to-day at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club of Dr. Fred Routley, medical director of the Ontario Red Cross.

Fifty years ago, said Dr. Routley, medicine was an art rather than a science. Not until Pasteur made his epoch-making discoveries did medicine become a fundamental science.

Due to the progress of science, diseases like typhoid, smallpox, tuberculosis, and diphtheria, which were formerly dreaded as scourges of mankind were now regarded as troubles that could be effectually prevented if the proper measures were taken at the right time.

Describing a visit to Europe under the auspices of the League of Red Cross Societies, an international body founded after the war, Dr. Routley said he had two recollections which wonderfully impressed him. He saw in Dusseldorf, in Germany, a vast exhibition promoted by the German Government devoted entirely to the affairs of the health of the people. This, he thought, marked the rise of a new conception on the part of the German people, which laid it down that the real foes of Germany were not beyond its borders, but were the diseases that were eating out the life of the nation. He considered this to be an evidence of a new idea of values on the part of Germany, a realization of the value of the life of the individual.

Similar reflections were aroused by the sight of the modest edifice commemorating the immortal Pasteur, which was situated not far from the tomb of the great Napoleon. Within that building, Frenchmen were working for next to nothing labouring in the battle against disease and death. He regarded it as a sign of the change in modern thought that last year for the first time the school children of France, in a questionnaire, placed Pasteur at the head of the list of great Frenchmen.

Explaining the work of the Red Cross among the many victims still with us of the Great War, Dr. Routley said that his organization had spent over half a million dollars since 1920 in caring for the broken men, whose numbers, he declared, would continue to be recruited from cases arising from war service, until the generation that fought the Great War would pass out of existence.

One of the visitors of the day was District Governor Bill Cockburn, who was called upon to speak a few words to the members.

Several selections on the "fiddle" from two talented local musicians, Messrs. Galvin and Kelly, were enthusiastically applauded by the members.

Kiwanian Rev. J. Douglas Paterson, in thanking the musicians and the speakers, eulogized the work of the Red Cross Society, which was, he considered, an expression of the growing Christian consciousness of the nations.

J. John, the booster of the day, was unavoidably absent. Prize-winners were Harry Dicken, Percy Bond, and Carl McLean.

BENCH AND BAR VOICE WELCOME

Royal Commission Visits Quebec and Amenities Are Exchanged.

QUEBEC, June 17 (Canadian Press).—The Bench and Bar of the Province of Quebec united today in welcoming the judges and counsel of the Royal Commission. The welcome on behalf of the Bench was voiced by Chief Justice Francois Lemieux of the Quebec Superior Court. That on behalf of the Bar was spoken by Elzear Baillargeon, Batonnier General of the Quebec Bar. Sir Francois welcomed the Commissioners to the city 'which I am glad to recall was the cradle of civilization in North America.'

Mr. Baillargeon found inspiration in the fact that judges from Saskatchewan, Ontario and Quebec were seated together on the Bench in the Ancient Capital on the eve of the celebration of the Confederation Jubilee. This was an omen of unity of race and of creed in Canada.

Chief Justice Brown, head of the Commission, referred, in reply, to the fact that Sir Francois Lemieux had been the first chairman of the Customs Commission. It had been a disappointment to him, said Judge Brown, not to be associated with Sir Francois in the work of the Commission.

GERMAN REPRESENTATIVE

the foreign army—hence the belief that Franco-German relations were more delicate than the Russo-Polish.

The French, he charged, were raising questions about the actual legal fulfillment of minor treaty points such as the conversion of military barracks and the demilitarization of the Prussian police. Germany would sell or convert the barracks as soon as possible, he asserted, and a bill concerning the police was now before the Reichstag.

As for the dismantled military works on the Polish frontier, the spokesman said it had been suggested that an American officer be selected to verify the dismantling. The French, however, had refused this suggestion and the Germans, acting in the spirit of Locarno, would accept a French officer.

Under these circumstances, the spokesman went on, it would be time to raise the question of using German soil for the passage of French troops to Russia in the event of possible, though unlikely, Russo-Polish hostilities because it would mean that Germany, being overrun by French troops would occupy the same position as did Belgium during the European war.

WATER SPORTS ATTRACT MANY

George Street Wharf Looks Like Old Times Once Again.

AQUAPLANING.

The George Street Wharf last night looked like old days when the citizens gathered there to watch the water sports. Hundreds of people crowded the banks of Little Lake to see three outboard motor boats aquaplaning. The aqua plane was tied about 100 feet behind the boat and then a person would ride the plane. The boat would draw the plane swiftly through the water, going in circles and cuting the water, going in circles and cutting

What amused the spectators most was to see the young riders being thrown into the water. Some were able to stay on during the ride, but the great majority were given one or two dumps. One boy went out with his clothes on, and although, to the astonishment of the crowd he rode the plane without being thrown off, as he came to land, the boat stopped and the plane naturally sank, giving him a real ducking after all. Girls as well as boys tried the stunt.

Jury Finds Both Parties in Automobile Smash Negligable.

The jury yesterday afternoon, in the case of Gould vs. McNamara, allowed the plaintiff $53.95 without costs. They found that both defendant and plaintiff were equally negligible and thus the amount of damages asked by the plaintiff, Gould, was divided.

OBITUARY

GEORGE E. PATTERSON.

ST. CATHARINES, June 17 (Canadian Press).—George E. Patterson, builder of the first electric street car operated in the world, died in Pasadena, California, according to word received in this city. In 1874 he established a carriage building business in St. Catharines, and later constructed street cars, the firm being known as Patterson & Corbon. It was one of his first street cars converted into an electric car that was operated in 1887 between St. Catharines and Thorold. An upright motor was installed on the front platform of an ordinary horse car, the wheels of which were operated by a chain. Two overhead wires with four wheels travelling upon them conveyed electric energy to the motor.

Mr. Patterson continued the manufacture of street cars here until 30 years ago, going to Philadelphia, where he manufactured electric equipment. Five years ago, in his eighty-third year, he retired from active business, and had since made his home in Pasadena, Cal.

He is survived by two sons, Alfred of Pasadena and Edward G., former general manager of the General Electric Company at Peterboro; one daughter, Mrs. Mildred Richards of New York, and one sister, Mrs. W. H. White of St. Catharines.

AROUND THE CITY

At 12.10 this morning an alarm was sent in to the Fire Department from Box 39 at the corner of Charlotte and George streets. When the brigade reached the scene it found that someone had pulled the box for merely a little amusement. Chief Gimblett wishes to warn the public from doing an act of this kind for it endangers the lives of the firemen, all the brigade having to turn out when a box is pulled.

'A heavy penalty will be imposed on the person caught doing such a foolish act'" remarked the chief.

The Kiwanis Bantams will practice to-morrow afternoon at the King Edward School Grounds at 1.30 sharp.

LIFE FOR A SONG.

NEW YORK, June 17.—Seated on a curb at 2 o'clock in the morning, Gus Dreyfus raised his voice in plaintive song, accompanied by expert strumming on a banjo. "An' I ask you kinda confidentially, ain't she sweet?" A policeman, lured by the nocturnal entertainment, drew near, arrested Gus. Investigation brought out that the banjo had been stolen, that Gus had been convicted seven times before, that now, under the Baumes law, he faced a life sentence for his song.

EXPEDITION WILL ATTEMPT ROCKIES' UNCLIMBED PEAKS

Party To Explore and Survey Region of Columbia Ice-Field.

ON CANADIAN SIDE.

Last Untrodden Heights May Be Conquered During This Summer.

JASPER, Alta., June 17 (Canadian Press).—An expedition into the last unexplored ice region of the Canadian Rockies will take the trail here on June 23. Three months will be spent in exploration, survey and mountain climbing in this remote hinterland of the Dominion.

Alfred J. Ostheimer, Jr., prominent geographer and alpinist, of Philadelphia, Pa., will head the party. Mr. Ostheimer has had considerable experience in exploration work in the Rockies. He will be assisted by John de Laittre, of Minneapolis, and W. R. MacLaurin, of Boston, Mass. Hans Fuhrer, Swiss guide; Adam Joachim and Kenneth Saladana, packers; and Dan Hoover, cook—all of Jasper, Alta., will accompany the expedition. Twenty horses will be required for the party. Donald Phillips, one of the outstanding guides of the Canadian Northwest, is arranging for the outfit.

The expedition will have as its main object a complete topographical and geological survey of the region directly north of the vast Columbia icefield, the geographical apex of the North American continent. From this expanse of 10 square miles of ice flow the Columbia river to the Pacific, the North Saskatchewan river, which eventually reaches the Atlantic, and the Athabaska river to the Arctic Ocean—a tri-oceanic divide.

The expedition will ascend the Athabaska to its sources, then cross from Alberta into British Columbia and from a forty-day camp will thoroughly cover the Clemenceau icefield, still very little known. Then the route will turn north over the Athabaska Pass, which in most atlases is flanked by Mounts Brown and Hooker, the legendary 16,000 feet giants of the continent. The pass formed a route for the early fur traders and travellers as far back as 1811. The Iroquois, Assiniboine, and Piegan Indians had used it for the east-west traverse earlier. It constituted the chief route for the Northwest Company and the Hudson Bay trans-continental trade.

The region has been entered by several other expeditions and some mountaineering attempts made successfully. But scientific data is incomplete. The Alberta-British Columbia Boundary Survey covered a small strip along the continental divide, 1917-1921. Henry S. Hall, Jr., of Boston, and H. B. deV. Schwab, of New York, spent part of two summers in the area. Dr. J. Monroe Thorington, Philadelphia, with Dr. M. M. Strumia and Mr. Ostheimer made some climbs (among them the first ascent of Mt. Hooker) in 1924.

Mr. Oestheimer's expedition will study the geology of the region and map it as well as possible; observe the effects, means, and type of glaciation; watch the fauna and flora of the section—in short, attempt a thorough report on this large area of Jasper Park.

The other main object of the party will be to ascend as many as are available of the peaks of the district. Fuhrer and Oestheimer will cover this at times supported by the others. The region contains about twenty-five unclimbed, many of them unnamed peaks over 10,200 feet high, the average of the range. Six days will be spent in an attempt on the Tsar. The present prize of the Rockies, a difficult and nearly inaccessible peak well over 11,000 feet at the south end of the Clemenceau field. This southern region is unmapped. It is possible that ascents will be made of the four 12,000 feet peaks of the range, a feat as yet unaccomplished by any one in the history of Canadian mountaineering.

The results of the expedition will be used by Harvard University, the Canadian Government, and scientific societies. But the technical work will not be all ;life on the trail in new country has charms, romance, adventure ;mountaineering is a sport yearly increasing its number of devotees. The expedition should prove most profitable and interesting in its results.

Individual Movements Mark Stock Exchange

TORONTO, June 17 (Canadian Press).—With no definite trend activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning resolved into a series of individual movements. International Nickel, the leader, weakened ⅜ at 68, and other prominent issues were easier. Brazilian lost 1⅜ at 165½, Massey Harris a half at 38, Winnipeg 1¼ at 75¼, and Davies A ⅜ at 45¼. On the other side of the scale, Seagrams firmed ⅜ at 24⅜, and Bakeries was slightly higher at 27½. British American Oil at 23⅞ and Walkers at 52½ were steady. Gooderham and Worts eased slightly at 57.

Active General Buying Follows Weather Report

CHICAGO, June 17 (Canadian Press).—Active general buying and much higher prices developed early in the corn market today. Prolonged cold wet weather and unfavorable crop news were responsible. Opening unchanged to ⅜c cent up, corn hesitated a little but then climbed all around. With rains in the harvest regions southwest, wheat started at ¼ cent off to ⅜ cent advance, and subsequently displayed at times considerable strength. Oats were firm. Provisions also tended upward. Wheat, July 146⅝, Sept. 1.44; Corn, July 102¼, Sept. 107½; oats, July 49¼, Sept. 48⅞.

Neglected Groups Climb On Wall Street To-day

NEW YORK, June 17 (Canadian Press).—Resumption of the upward movement in today's stock market was featured by the development of strength in such recently neglected groups as the baking, merchandising, tobacco, public utilities, rubber and motor shares. With the exception of the establishment of new high records by General Motors and National Tea, the so-called "rich men's stocks" were quiet but steady.

Credit conditions continued easy, the renewal rate of four per cent for call money being the lowest in weeks. Strength of General Motors has been based on predictions of another special extra cash or stock distribution.

Amulet and Noranda Are Features At Toronto

TORONTO, June 17. — Movements in Amulet and Noranda were the feature of this morning's quiet session of the Standard mining exchange. Amulet, which accounted for one-quarter of the whole session's turnover, climbed 14 to 234 at the noon close. Noranda in comparatively light dealings slumped 80c at 12.45. Price movements were conflicting. Kirkland Lake firmed one at 134; Ribago 3 at 25, and Area ½ at 43½. Laval Quebec eased slightly at 23½. Teck Hughes lost 5 at 775 and Argonaut lost fractionally at 31⅜.

CAINE KNOCKS IMPURE DRAMA

Criticizes Modern Trend and Sympathizes With Audiences.

LONDON, June 17 (Canadian Press).—Sir Hall Caine, the well-known novelist and dramatist, delivered a strong criticism of the modern drama in a letter read before the Theatrical Managers' Association.

"I go to the theatre very little in these days," wrote Sir Hall Caine, "but I am compelled to read about the current drama in the newspapers, and I am not surprised to note that the provincial manager suffers heavily, both in purse and in prestige, from the utterly insincere, impure thing that now too frequently goes by the name of drama. I am sure the great public in the provinces does not want this kind of muck-raking, and I should have rejoiced in an opportunity to join you in protest against the dramatic fare you are compelled to offer to your patrons."

Wife Protests Against Hubby Drinking Too Much Soda Pop

BUFFALO, N.Y., June 18. Canadian Press. — A man may not take several glasses of soda pop in Buffalo if his wife protests.

May Frank Schwab, Friday, told in the case of Paul Olah, owner of a saft drinkery, charged with selling drinks to an addict in the face of his wife's expressed wishes Olah claimed he could sell all he wanted.

"No," said the Mayor, "he can not—I won't stand for it!"

"If a wife asks a soft drink proprietor to quit selling drinks to her husband he must stop at once, or I will have his license torn from his wall. The wishes of women must be respected."

Olah was placed on 20 days probation.

NO VISITORS AT GATHERING OF NEW DAIL

Fear of Trouble at Opening Bars All But Members.

BREEN DEFEATED.

De Valera Says Election Showed People Opposed To Oath.

BELFAST, June 18 (Canadian Press)—Dublin despatches state that in view of the possibility of trouble at the opening of the new Dail Eireann next Thursday through Republicans attempting to force an entrance, the Speaker, Prof. Michael Hayes, has decided not to issue tickets to visitors.

Dublin despatches on Wednesday said the Republican deputies of Eamon de Valera's Fianna Dail party were expected to go for the first time to Parliament House and claim their seats in the Dail, where it assembled They would, however, refuse to take the oath of allegiance to the King. The oath is taken in a private office and it was said that the De Valera members would present themselves there for the purpose of specifically refusing to take it. Until the Clerk of the House certifies that they have been bound by the oath, the deputies cannot, under the Free State Constitution legally take their seats.

Fight Against Oath.

Mr. De Valera, however, has declared the belief that the results of the recent elections, in which the Fianna Fail party made a large gain, would aid the movement for abolition of the oath. He was quoted as saying:

"The people will not tolerate their (the Republican) deputies being barred by the imposition of this penal oath." The oath reads: "I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State, as by law established, and that I will be faithful to His Majesty, King Geoge V., his heirs and successors by law in virture of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British commonwealth of nations."

One of the Republicans elected to the Dail, Samuel E. Holt, representing the Leitrim Division of Sligo, was quoted as saying in a speech yesterday: "If we are admitted with the oath removed, we are prepared to help the Free State Government function in every way possible and work for the people of this old nation."

He expressed the hope that an arrangement would be made for some sort of government when the Dail met next Thursday and that the Fianna Fail would be a part of that government.

There was one defection from the Republican boycott of the Dail at the last session, Dan Breen, who did much active fighting in the Irish struggle, taking his seat as deputy from Tipperary. He expressed belief that the fight against the oath should be waged inside the Dail. Breen was defeated in last week's election.

Veal was 20 cents a pound and little chicks in the basket section were 15 cents each. Butter sold from 35 to 38 cents a pound, eggs from 30 to 32 cents a dozen, and chicken from 30 to 35 cents a pound.

FREE TRADE POLICY GROWS

Many English Politicians Agree With German Chancellor's Ideas.

ON TARIFF QUESTION.

LONDON, June 18. — (United Press). — The drive for a return to the Free Trade conditions in Great Britain promoted by Lloyd George in the Liberal party continues to grow intensively. Sir Max Muspratt, President of the Federation of British Industries says: "I fully agree with Stressemann, we desire that trade should flow through all legitimate channels. If the nations could only get together and hammer out a policy along the lines which Stressmann suggests the problems of the world would be simplified."

W. L. Hichens, head of Cammell Lairds says, "A reduction in the tariffs of many countries is needed. Stressemann's proposals would end the senseless economic warfare now being waged between the nations of Europe."

W. E. Thompson, President of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce says: "There is not a member or a representative of this organization who would not join Stressemann's declaration, that the supreme interests of trade lies in moving right away from tariffs."

EVERY RIDING HAS FIVE VOTES AT CONVENTION

Hon. Hugh Guthrie Gives More Particulars of Big Meeting.

NEED WESTERN AID.

Says Change in Date Would Lower the Fare Rate.

OTTAWA, June 18. — Hon. Hugh Guthrie denies making the statement that the Conservative convention had been changed from October 11 to September 27.

Mr. Guthrie says: "In discussing the national convention at the annual meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Association for Grenville-Dundas at Morrisburg, I referred to a proposal to change the date of convention from October 11 to September 27 to secure cheaper transportation rates. This question, I said, would be considered by the national executive committee which meets at Ottawa July 4.

"I made no announcement that the date of convention was changed, nor has the date been changed. It is still fixed for October 11.' If there is any change it will be made by the national committee."

Single Fare.

SPENCERVILLE, Ont., June 18. — The national Conservative convention will open in Winnipeg on September 27, instead of October 11, so that the delegates will only have to pay single fare to September 30, instead of fare and a half, which is charged after that date, Hon. Hugh Guthrie announced at the annual meeting of the Grenville-Dundas Liberal-Conservative Association here. Mr. Guthrie said that setting back the date of the meeting would save $60,000 in railway fares. Every riding would be allowed five votes, but as many representatives as they wanted. He urged that every riding be fully represented, as the convention would be a great event in the history of the party.

Woo the West.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie repeated his previous assertion that the Conservative party should woo the west, as experience of the past proved that too much time had been devoted to eastern parts of Canada, with no return.

The cry against the Conservative party in Western Canada was on high protection, but it was unfair. The Conservative party, he said, can best help the people of the west by lowering the freight rates and thus overcome the geographical handicap.

VERDICT FOR $400 DAMAGES IS RETURNED FOR PLAINTIFF

Driver of Transportation Truck Found To Blame For Accident.

ANDREWS VS. LAW.

The jury last night brought in a verdict against Roy M. Andrews when they found that the driver of his truck was entirely to blame for the accident that occurred on the Kingston Highway last 24th of December, when the truck and a car driven by W. J. Law collided.

The jury in their verdict allowed Mr. Law $400 damages, without costs, but the trial judge told them that the costs were left with the Court, which, in this case, were levied against the defendant.

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for Mr. Law, and W. J. Thompson, of Toronto, was for Mr. Andrews.

Roy M. Andrews, the defendant in this case, is manager of the transportation service which does business between Peterborough and Toronto. One of his trucks on December 24th, 1926, collided with a new Chevrolet, driven by W. J. Law, the plaintiff, who was coming from Detroit to Peterborough. The Chevrolet car was badly damaged and Mr. Law severely hurt in the chest.

The accident occurred eight miles west of Port Hope on the Kingston Highway. During that time of year the highway was very icy and cut up into deep ruts. Defendant claimed he was in two ruts in the centre of the road and plaintiff was in the same two.

Off Work Five Weeks.

The plaintiff, W. J. Law, of Detroit, was the first witness called by Mr. Gordon. Plaintiff told of buying a new Chevrolet on the 17th of December last in Detroit, and later on in the week he started for Peterborough, where he used to live. About ten miles west of Port Hope on the afternoon of the 24th he collided with one of the transportation trucks of R. M. Andrews, of Toronto.

Mr. Law had just come around a curve and the Andrews truck, driven by Edwin Carley, was climbing the grade towards the curve.

The plaintiff said his car was damaged considerably, costing about $166 to repair. He was also off work for five weeks losing $250. Mr. Law said he was hurt in the chest and his lower lip was cut, which has resulted in a permanent injury. Mr. Law, in his evidence, said he was going 25 miles an hour, and saw the truck coming 200 yards back of the scene of the accident. The road was cut up with bad ruts and the truck was travelling in a pair of ruts on the wrong side of the road, claimed Mr.

The invitation, forwarded to-day congratulated the flier on his trans-atlantic flight and stressed, the point that the Canadian people were very anxious to have an opportunity of honoring him. The exhibition, they urged was the logical place for his reception in Canada.

Plans for the accommodation of the crowds expected at Exhibition Park during the Diamond Jubille celebration of July 1 and 2, and the announcements of some arrangements already completed for the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition took up the attention of the Exhibition Board held last night in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce. Alderman R. Denne, chairman of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board, occupied the chair. L. Fred Holmes, secretary of the Board was present and a large number of members were in attendance.

The members of the Board were asked to organize as a deputation to wait on th County Council on Wednesday of next week to ask a grant towards the cost of erecting new cattle barns on the Exhibition Grounds.

It was intimated from the chair that Chris. Graham had already secured twenty high jumping horses to take part in the equestrian exercises at the Exhibition.

It was stated by Mr. Denne that the Board had undertaken the responsibility of manning the grounds, and selling and taking in tickets. Provision has been made for the entering of the parade through the Old Park Street gate, on account of the fact that the size of some of the floats prevents their entry through the main gates.

Information Wanted

On the motion of Reg. Turner, seconded by A. Ball, the secretary was instructed to communicate with Dr. J. J. Craig, chairman of the Jubilee Parade Committe, asking him to furnish all necessary information as to the number of floats in the parade, and the amount of parking space they would require.

Tom Brown was asked to take charge of the parking arrangements and was empowered to choose his own committee.

Mr. Denne estimated that it would take the parade one hour and a half to cover the distance from Central Park to the grounds.

Fred Holmes was asked to take charge of the gates as he had done in former years.

Jack Gillespie informed the meeting that a large consignment of materials for the pageant arrived last night and was stored in the buildings of Exhibition Park.

The following members of the Board were appointed to take in tickets at the gates: Messrs. Illico, Paxmon, Hancock, Hanbridge, Bertram, Seymour, Routley and Westlake on Friday, June 1; Messrs. Shields, Bertram, Steinkrauss Middleton, Ball, Moore, Milburn, Williams, Jackson, Savigny, and Webber on Saturday, June 2.

Members of the Board express the opinion that in the large crowds expected, a fine opportunity was afforded for some of the ladies' organizations to raise funds in providing meals for the crowds.

Prices of admission, it was announced, had been fixed at 35 cents; 15 cents of juveniles, and 25 cents admission to the grand stand.

On the motion of R. Turner, seconded by J. Gillespie, it was decided to send a message to Harry Lottridge expressing the appreciation of the Board as to the high quality and clean entertainment provided by the Lottridge Shows recently at the grounds.

At the close of the meeting, Mr. Denne called the attention of the members to the fact that the district representative of the Department of Agriculture, J. Nelson, was now located in Peterborough. Mr. Denne urged the farmers to make themselves acquainted with Mr. Nelson and to welcome him to the community.

Byrd Still Delayed By Atlantic Gales

NEW YORK, June 18 (United Press).—Two storms in mid-Atlantic yetserday made it virtually certain that the Byrd non-stop flight from New York to Europe could not start before Sunday or Monday.

The storms were between Newfoundland and Ireland, and weather observers predicted they would not clear up for at least 48 hours.

Commander Richard E. Byrd was prepared to start in his trimotored Fokker monoplane as soon as weather conditions permitted.

Tremayne Garstang, director of art at Hart House Theatre, one of Canada's best known scenery experts, has arrived here, and occupies part of the premises of Selkirk and Elliott, for the purpose of imparting expert guidance in the designing of floats, and in the arrangements of decorations. Mr. Garstang is said to be able to secure absolutely the best effects at a minimum of cost.

The committee appeals to all who are able and willing, especially those who are expert in the use of hammer and saw, to come forward and lend a hand in the preparations for the parade.

Arrangements have been made which will ensure the presence of some Western cowboys, mounted on horses recently shipped to the Beatty farm on the Norwood road from the Alberta ranch. It is also hoped to include in the parade a "travois" showing the Indian's mode of travelling on horseback with brave squaw and family accommodated on one horse.

As an incentive to greater effort, three local men have presented cups to be awarded for excellence of display in the parade. T. H. Gillespie, District Manager of the Confederation Life Association has come forward with a trophy for the best float in the parade depicting Canadian progress since Confederation; the award of I. P. McNabb, Manager for Life Assurance Co., will be handed over to those responsible for the best historical float in the parade; and John I. Allen superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Co., will present a trophy for the best school float.

Plans are also under way for the inclusion in the procession of vehicles which will carry as many as possible of Peterboroughs' citizens of Confederation times.

CONFEDERATION CELEBRATION IN PETERBOROUGH PROMISES TO BE A PARAMOUNT AFFAIR

Biggest and Best Effort Ever Put Forth By United Citizens.

MONSTER CROWD.

Preparations Made To Care For Thousands of Visitors to City.

The committees appointed at a public meeting called by the City Council and presided over by His Worship Mayor Holloway have arrangements so far completed that they can now guarantee to the people of the city and district a jubilee celebration on Friday, July 1st, Saturday, July 2nd, and Sunday, July 3rd, that will eclipse anything ever attempted in this section of the Province before.

Preparation is being made for feeding an enormous crowd of district friends, and parking space and police supervision of cars is being looked after.

The Program.

The celebration will be officially opened on the Market Square on Friday, July 1st, at 9.30 o'clock, when there will be a fifteen-minute opening service by Mayor Holloway and clergy of the city. At ten o'clock from the C.P.R. bridge down the river to the Little Lake and in front of the Government wharf there will be a program of water sports, in charge of Claude Rogers, Chairman of the Water Sports Committee, that will be a revelation to those who witness this program as being unique in these parts.

The Afternoon.

July 1st afternoon will be ushered in with the parade at 1.30 o'clock, in charge of Dr. J. J. Craig, Chairman of the Parade Committee. The parade will enter the Exhibition Grounds, march around the track for the benefit of those who have been long-sighted and have already secured seats in the grandstand.

It can safely be said that no previous parade (and in years gone by there have been some good ones) will be able in any way to compare with this. Historically, it will predominate, with a scattering of comedy to relieve.

At the Exhibition Grounds Webber Turner has arranged for a grandstand program that will be in keeping with the other high quality events, such as first-class vaudeville, Capt. Ayres in his aeroplane stunts, a big midway, and barrels of fun.

Friday Evening.

On Friday evening there will be community singing, led by the Jubilee Chorus of 300 voices, at the Exhibition Grounds, some vaudeville, and the most spectacular event of all the jubilee attractions, that of the historical pageant, under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, of Toronto. The committee in charge of the pageant is from all the women's clubs of the city and its Chairman is Mrs. Arthur Stevenson. There will also be another aeroplane flight by Capt. Ayres, a grand musical tatoo and display of fireworks, completing the first day's celebration, the latter in charge of Tom Donaldson's committee.

On Saturday at the Exhibition Grounds there will be a fine bill of horse racing with purses amounting to $900.00. Three classes, 2.14, 2.20 and 2.30 class. With a good vaudeville bill in addition.

On Saturday evening the Friday night's program will be repeated at the Exhibition Grounds for those who care to see it again and those who may not have seen it.

Sunday's Proceedings.

Regular services in all churches. On Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, will take place at Nicholls Oval the unveiling of the Memorial Gates by the City Council in honour and memory of the late Charlotte Nicholls to whom this city owes so much. At three o'clock in Victoria Park there will be a special children's service at which thousands will attend, and at 8.15 p.m. a special sacred concert at which the 57th Rangers Band and the Salvation Army Band, together with the Jubilee Chorus of 300 voices, will take part.

The Decorations.

Mr. Paul Manning, in charge of the Decorations Committee, stated at the last meeting of the General Committee that the Decorations Committee would have a display that in appearance would be quite spectacular and appropriate.

Clubs, residences, business men and factories were co-operating with the committee in a very handsome manner.

In conclusion it must be told that the whole demonstration is going to be put over in a manner that will be in keeping with the occasion and as well as worthy of the citizens of this city, and no three more satisfactory days will have been spent in this district in the memory of those whose privilege it will be to participate in this jubilee.

Ald. Denne, main director, is greatly pleased with the spirit of co-operation that pervades the committees.

Ald. Greene, Chairman of the music, has the complete musical program well under way. Nine bands have been engaged, and the Jubilee Chorus is getting its work in hand in fine shape.

BRITISH PLANE AGAIN FORCED TO COME DOWN

TRIP OF 5,000 MILES.

Lieut. Carr Had Just Returned After Falling in Persian Gulf.

MARTLESHAM, Suffolk, England —June 18. —(Canadian Press). —The British long distance fliers, Lieuts Carr and Macworth were forced down at the aerodrome here this afternoon after making a start from Cranwell for a flight to India.

CRAMWELL, Lincolnshire, England— June 18. —(Canadian Press). —Lieuts. C. R. Carr and P. H. Macworth hopped off at 12.41 o'clock this afternoon in a British bombing plane for India in an attempt to break the non-stop distance record held by Clarence Chamberlin in his New York to Germany flight.

The fliers expressed the hope of covering 5,000 miles. No definite destination was set, but they were to head for Karachi, a distance of 4,1000 miles.

Lieut. Carr in a previous attempt last month, was forced down in the Persian Gulf. He was then accompanied by Lieut. Gillman.

Crowds at the field stood silent until the plane which ran 800 yards before rising, cleared, the fence at the end and slowly mounted into the air. The machine was so heavily loaded that it had attained a height of only 20 feet when it crossed the boundary of the field.

Minor Defects.

The aviators were forced to descend because of a minor defect and despite the great load which their bombing plane carried for its long trip, landed successfully. Martlesham is a bout 100 miles from Cranwell.

SHAW BOASTS HE IS RELIC

Victorian Age Ideas of Women Dies Hard, Novelist Finds.

BUT PADDING GOES.

LONDON, June 17. Canadian Press—George Bernard Shaw proclaimed himself a relic of the Victorian age when he appeared on a platform recently to assist in an appeal for providing hostels for homeless women. At the outset after some by-play with Chairman Sir Gerald du Maurier, Mr. Shaw promised that if the audience would subscribe £2000, he would make it into guineas. The £2000 was quickly forthcoming and as quickly was converted into guineas, a difference of about $500.

Mr. Shaw told about the shock he had received as a child of five, when accustomed to seeing women wearing crinolines and looking like mountains surmounted by pinched figures, he saw one for the first time wearing a skirt without a crinoline. "It gave the impression," he said, "that she had legs." The men of that day did not admire the appearance of men, but they were determined to regard women as being of another race. Women were to be angels. They were to wear clothes that concealed their shape. They were not dressed, they were upholstered, and if they were not studded with buttons like upholstered furniture they had lots of little trimmings that conveyed the same effect.

"The last woman I remember seeing who appeared to be upholstered," said Mr. Shaw, "was Miss Marie Corelli. I look round this audience, and I see no woman now who has that appearance.

"But while fashions have changed the Victorian idea that woman is a separate creation still exists My secret as a dramatic author, the secret of that extraordinary knowledge of woman which enchants the whole world, is that I have always assumed that woman is a human being very much like myself. It is due very largely to the Victorian idea that we have the extraordinary state of society which neglects to provide for women what is provided for men as a matter of course"

FRASERVILLE NEWS

The Young People's League of Fraserville visited the Baillebgro Society last week and spent a most enjoyable outing and social evening.

Lieut Colonel Dr. George Clingan and Mrs. Clingan of Verden, Man., were callers for a day last week on his sister, Mrs. H. W. Foley at the parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Finlay of Kansas City will arrive this week to attend the golden jubilee services of Fraserville church next Sunday and Monday, June 19 and 20. While messages are arriving with best wishes for a glorious jubilee celebration from many who cannot get home for the occasion, a goodly number of former neighbors will celebrate with us including five or six former ministers of the church. The Rev. Dr. Thomas Manning, who was minister forty-five years ago, will preach one of the sermons on Sunday.

Congratulations to Frank Foley on his success in heading his class in geology and mineiology at the recent second year examinations at Toronto University. He is spending the summer with a geological survey party in Rainy River district.

CANADIANS WIN IN NEW ZEALAND

All-Canadian Soccer Team Shuts Out Canterbury Before 8,000 Spectators.

CHRIST CHURCH, New Zealand, June 18.— (Canadian Press.)— The All-Canadian soccer team defeated Canterbury to-day, six to nothing. Archibald scored three, Paynter, Gibson and Davidson added one each. Eight thousand spectators watched the fast game, the New Zealanders being delighted with the Canadian team's combination and mastery over the sphere. The game was followed by a brief civic and public reception and greetings from visiting Scotsmen.

A GREAT PUZZLE TO CAREFUL PARENTS

One of the greatest puzzles to the careful parent is to know just what medicine to give the little ones. When the child falls ill with griping pains; is seized with cold or fever, refuses food or vomits what he has taken, when he cries a great deal and cannot get the sleep so necessary to the growing child, the parent is in a quandary. What is to be done on such occasions? As often as not there is not a suitable medicine in the house. The puzzle is what to give him to set him right quickly.

It is to meet such emergencies that Baby's Own Tablets were designed. These pleasant little Tablets quickly reduce fever, break up colds, relieve constipation and indigestion and allay teething pains. They quiet the nerves and promote restful health-restoring sleep. They are guaranteed absolutely harmless and safe for even the youngest and most delicate baby.

Queen Elizabeth wore a gown of velvet embroidered in a pattern of eyes and ears, indicating that she saw and heard everything.

ROLLER SKATING RAPPED BY COACH

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 18.—Roller skating has become tremendously popular at the University of Michigan. President Little says skates have given students much-needed exercise. But Coach Farrell has requested members of the track team "to leave this molly-coddle craze for children." "It will shorten your stride and stiffen your muscles," he says. "There is not one thing to be said in favor of it. Roller skating is about the worst form of exercise a track man can take part in."

Continues Search For French Fliers

REV. W. ALLAN HAS NEW INVITATION

New Jersey Church Makes Effort To Secure Peterborough Pastor.

Rev. W. Allan, minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, who came here from New York, has an invitation to a large Reformed Church in New Jersey. This is the second time this church has approached him with a view to the pastorate. Several years ago an attempt was made to get him, which he refused. Bergenfield, where the church is situated, is practically within the metropolitan area of New York City, and when the new bridge is completed over the Hudson river its importance will be greatly enhanced.

It is known that several weeks ago Mr. Allan refused to give any encouragement to the pulpit committee of the Gaston Presbyterian Church, in Philadelphia, despite the fact that he would have had a greatly increased salary.

Mr. Allan was out of the city at the time this article was written, and it was impossible to obtain his views on the call.

REDS EXECUTE POLISH SPIES

Had Been Commissioned To Assassinate Three Ukranian Officials.

LEADER ESCAPES.

MOSCOW, June 18 (Canadian Press)—Two alleged Polish spies, Andrew Knipinski and Tadeush Vorzbovitch, said to have been commissioned by the Polish military intelligence service to assassinate three of the highest Ukrainian officials, have been executed at Kharkov.

The men were arrested by the state political police and were taken before the Kharkov Supreme Court, where they were sentenced to death.

A third alleged spy, whose name was Melnik, also was arrested, but escaped. Melnik was said to have been the leader of the group.

Reports Denied

(On June 10 it was officially announced that twenty persons had been executed at Moscow because of anti-Soviet activities and as a reply to alleged terroristic activities from abroad by enemies of the Moscow government. Tass, the official Soviet news agency, yesterday denied reports of mass executions at Vladivostok, Chelyiabinsk, Tiflis, Kharkov and other cities. This statement said that normal conditions of life were undisturbed in Soviet Russia and that a state of war in Moscow and Leningrad had not been declared as was reported.)

SEATTLE, Wash., June 18 (Canadian Press).—Finger prints believed to have been left by the slayer of Mrs. Florence F. Monk here, last Thanksgiving eve, yesterday were sent to the Winnipeg police for comparison with those of Virgil Wilson, held in that western city as the "strangler."

Jewellery valued at $10,000 was taken from the Monk's home at the time the elderly widow was strangled to death.

LINDY INVITED TO CELEBRATION

United States' President Asked To Send Message With Aviator.

ON SECOND DAY.

OTTAWA, June 18.—O. D. Skelton, department for external affairs, has forwarded to Hon. Vincent Massey to present to President Coolidge the invitation to have Colonel Lindbergh convey a message from him to Premier King on July 2, the second day of the Diamond Jubilee celebration.

The possibility of the aviator visiting Canada was mentioned in his address to the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America, which tendered him a dinner at New York.

"After a few days in St. Louis and two weeks, I hope, in Canada or some place like that, I'm coming back to New York, when I hope to have a chance to go around the city and to meet some of my old friends," he said.

ESTIMATE LOSS AMOUNT $2,000

Truck Which Broke Through the Bridge Near Norham is Released.

NORHAM, June 18.—The truck and trailer loaded with butter from Campbellford and bound for Toronto, which broke through a bridge over Salt Creek, a mile south of here, on Wednesday night, was released last night. The nine-ton truck, with some minor repairs, was able to proceed under its own power. The trailer was badly smashed and had to be partly loaded into the truck as only one set of wheels could operate. About fifty boxes out of the three hundred of butter carried, were damaged. Counting the cost of extricating, the injury to the trailer and truck and the time lost, the damage will, it is estimated, amount to about $2,000. A new concrete bridge will be constructed further down the creek immediately.

COUNCIL MEETS IN CONVENTION

Ontario Religious Education Council of Seymour and Campbellford Meets.

IN BETHEL CHURCH.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 18. — The Seymour and Campbellford convention of the Ontario Religious Education Council, was held in Bethel Church, Seymour West yesterday.

Both afternoon and evening sessions were well attended and the able addresses by the special speakers and the heads of the different departments, in the presentation of reports were received with much applause. The reports showed a marked progressiveness in the many branches of the work and pointed to still greater results for the new year upon which the council has entered.

The following departments of the work were reported on by their respective convenors: Children's, Miss Kate Gould; Girls', Miss Evelyn Weston; Boys', Hilton Beattie; Young People's, Rev. Charles D. Daniel; Adult Rev. D. A MacKenzie, B.A.; Home, Mrs. G. A. Kingston; Teacher Training, Mrs. R. W. Scott; Missionary, Mrs. David Stillman; Temperance, George VanVolkenburg, and the report of the secretary-treasurer Rev. Charles D. Daniel.

The devotional exercises at the evening session were assigned to the Rev. Clarke Wallace, rector of Christ Church, Campbellford. The report of the O.R.E.C. convention, at Peterborough was ably presented by Mrs. R. W. Scott. The Rev. Manson Doyle delivered an interesting address on "the Main Points," concluding with a round table conference.

A fuller report of the proceedings of this convention will be published in Monday's Examiner.

BRIAND RETURNS.

PARIS, June 18 (United Press).—Aristide Briand, French Foreign Minister, returned from Geneva on Thursday night, his head wrapped in wool bandages covered with a black muffler.

Briand explained that zona, an acute skin disease, had affected the left side of his face. It was causing him great pain, but was not serious.

SHOPLIFTERS NOW WEAR BUT LITTLE.

(By Nea Service.)

CLEVELAND, O., June 13. —There is always a new wrinkle or two in the gentle art of shop-lifting, but a system uncovered here by the police has department store detectives guessing as to how to spoil the game. Two women, arrested when a small fortune in clothing was found in their apartment, told of their operations. Their customary street costumes were an overcoat, step-ins, hat, hose, and shoes. Entering a shop it was easy to pick up a dress and go to a dressing-room to "try it on"—then walk out in it. Anyone who protested could search the suspects and would find they had no extra dresses.

Walkerville Woman Defies Hold-up Men

DETROIT, June 18—When two negroes attempted to hold up Miss Irene Kamin, 20 years old, of Walkerville, as she was walking down Joseph Campeau Street late last night to catch a ferryboat for home, the young woman replied to their order to hold up her hands with the remark: "Do you think I'm crazy?" Then she took to her heels, while the negroes ran in the opposite direction.

BRITAIN EAGER TO CO-OPERATE FOR NAVAL CUT

Delegation To President Coolidge's Conference Leaves For Geneva.

MAKE CONCESSIONS.

Cruiser Fleet Must Be Able To Guard British Empire.

LONDON, June 8. — Principals of Great Britain's delegation to President Coolidge's naval limitations conference at Geneva, departed today, headed by W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty. Bridgeman was accompanied by Vice-Admiral F. L. Field, and each had a retinue of secretaries.

Dame Caroline Bridgeman accompanied her husband, who can speak for the British Cabinet and the British Navy, and speak with authority.

Well-founded information indicated that the British delegation would be prepared at Geneva to make almost any concessions regarding reduction of battleship and submarine strength to aid the discussions toward useful results. But Britain was believed to be ready to resist strenuously any effort to disturb the 5-5-3 ratio or to bring about a re-allotment of naval strength, except on a basis of tonnage by classification, That scheme of rating naval power differs from the one desired by France, whereby each country would be alloted a fixed tonnage with permission to employ it at will, using all for submarines or for any other type of craft.

Cruiser Strength.

Britain also was expected to be ready on Monday to submit to further reduction in the size and armaments of cruisers, but she would resist any cut in the numerical strength of her cruiser fleet beyond the Admiralty's estimate of the number of cruisers essential to keep open British Empire trade routes, and to combat the submarine threat of the neighbouring Continental nations.

It was presumed that the United States delegation, led by Hugh Gibson, Ambassador to Belgium, would understand British insistence that there be no reduction in her numerical cruiser strength so long as there was a concerted effort by France and Italy, partly supported by Japan, to scrap the limitation of naval strength by classification and to substitute the total tonnage basis of limitation. That would make possible large scale submarine construction, and Britain fears submarines, which are judged to be the greatest menace to her trade routes.

The war taught Britain how dangerous submarines could be and also that cruisers were the best weapon with which to oppose submarines. Britain is not likely to forget the one nor to surrender the other so long as the menace exists potentially or otherwise.

FORGOT HIS NAME. .....

TOPEKA, Kan., June 18. — "Dear sir: Will you please look up my birth record. I have lost my name and age. I was born in 1905 or 1906 and my name is Clarence George Cox or George Clarence Cox." That is the letter that reached the secretary of vital statistics recently. But Kansas did not register births until 1911, so Cox may never learn his name and age.

OLD MASTERS

A sweet disorder in the dress
Kindles in clothes a wantonness:
A lawn about the shoulders thrown
Into a fine distraction:
An erring lace, which here and there
Enthrals the crimson stomacher:
A cuff neglectful, and thereby
Ribbon to flow confusedly:
A winning wave, deserving note,
In the tempestuous petticoat:
A careless shoestring, in whose tie
I see a wild civility:
Do more bewitch me than when art
Is too precise in every part.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Dear Mac:

Anybody who ever served on the Somme knows Thiepval. Who could forget that road, lined by heavies—guns and howitzers? We used to stand behind the "Hows" here and watch the shells as they left the muzzles. Some sport! And then, when Heinie decided to smother the guns, just as we were passing, of course, how we used to cuss the gunners for picking that particular road for their sport! Thinking it over now, of course, we can see that probably they didn't enjoy it any more than we did.

I'm going to get away from the feats of the Canadians in this letter, because Thiepval was not ours by right of conquest, and yet it deserves more than passing mention because of our after-interest in it.

Of the country below Thiepval, Sir Philip Gibbs said, in a dispatch written in July, 1916: "It is historic ground. A hundred years hence men of our blood will come here with reverence as to sacred soil."

If the presence of such superlative courage and sacrifice such as was shown by the men who attacked Beaumont Hamel and Thiepval, a correspondent might have been forgiven extravagant phrases, but here, in these words of Philip Gibbs, is no extravagance.

Now, eleven years after the battle, you will find on any day that the majority of visitors to the Somme battlefields have concentrated themselves at Beaumont Hamel and Thiepval, and they come as pilgrims. Three, or even four, hundred visitors is no uncommon toll on a fine day.

When the soldiers' side of the war comes in for an adequate amount of attention, when, about the records of courage and daring and resourceful tactics, the thrilling story of battle is woven, Thiepval will figure largely. And it may well be that, a hundred years hence, Britons will still come here to meditate upon deeds of valour and of matchless self-sacrifice.

As if in anticipation of those days, there has been erected upon the high ground at Thiepval a magnificent tower of stone, from the top of which can be gained a view of the battlefields such as will hold the interest of any soldier for an hour or more.

The tower was erected by the people of Ulster, and, in its memorial chamber, are inscribed the appropriate lines of Tennyson:

"Son's love built me, and I hold Ulster's love in lettered gold."

In all its hard fighting, the 36th (Ulster) Division wrote no more glorious chapter of history than it did here, at Thiepval. On the opening day of the Somme battle, the Ulster battalions hurled themselves upon Thiepval's underground fortress with such determination that all its wire and all its machine guns, manned by a German regiment which had held the point for two years and boasted that it was impregnable, could not check their onward rush.

On they went, for two miles into the enemy system, and though, ultimately, in danger of being cut off, they retired, they brought back with them over five hundred prisoners.

Three months elapsed before the attacking troops traversed the ground again.

THIEPVAL, STILL A WRECK. NO PERMANENT REBUILDING HAS BEEN ATTEMPTED, AND UNEXPLODED SHELLS ARE GATHERED BY HUNDREDS. THIS IS A FAMILIAR SIGHT TO SOLDIERS—BUT IT WAS TAKEN IN 1927, ELEVEN YEARS AFTER WE FOUGHT OVER THIEPVAL RIDGE!

and the great tower which now throws a long shadow across the Schwaben Redoubt is a fitting symbol of the steadfastness and strength of Ulster's men.

With Thiepval in our hands in the early days of the battle, how much easier would have been the task of the troops operating to the south of the Bapaume road! High Wood, which London's men won yard by yard, and Delville Wood, which the South African Brigade conquered with such valour and with such magnificent disregard of cost, might have succumbed more readily. The enemy knew that, and knowing it, he manned Thiepval with picked troops whose pride in their fighting traditions was equalled only by their industry in maintaining the earthworks of the fortress in an extraordinarily efficient condition, despite the destruction wrought by daily bombardment.

It is well, therefore, that this should be one of the few places on the battlefield where the trenches are preserved intact.

At the Ulster Tower you may find an able expositor of the war as it was waged about Thiepval. He is the warden of the tower, William MacMaster, a former sergeant-major in the Ulster Division, and a survivor of its great exploit hereabouts.

The tower contains living quarters in which Mr. MacMaster resides with his wife and two daughters. MacMaster is a tall, wiry man, dour of expression but kindly of heart. When I spoke to him he had not seen his native Belfast for two years, but he seemed thoroughly at home in this Somme fastness.

When he takes the visitor to his trenches (and he has conducted thousands) he does not talk the conventional "patter" of the professional guide. When he speaks of the attack, his eyes light up, and he talks with a fervour that shows clearly that he is living over again those hours of hell in the old Redoubt.

Here, as in Newfoundland Park, the trenches are well-preserved, with many dug-outs and bomb stores. The litter of war lies about the parapet. Close to where I saw a party of Lancashire women plucking wild flowers, lay a German mess tin which, from its appearance, might well have been there since those fateful days of 1916.

As I stood chatting to one of these ladies who was telling me that this was her second pilgrimage from Manchester in search of her brother's grave, there was a slight rustling of the long grass on the parapet, and a little brown bird darted out, disclosing to us the hiding place of four tiny eggs.

Bird's nests in the parapet at Thiepval! There were times when it seemed that no self-respecting bird would ever again grace Thiepval with its song

Indeed, so completely devastated is Thiepval that no permanent rebuilding has been attempted in its ruins. No bright new farm-houses or tilled fields are to be seen here, nothing but uneven earth, rank grass and weeds. Here and there, seeking carefully, you may find a brick or two denoting the original building line of the main street of the village, but these are the only bricks to be seen. Such structures as exist are wooden shanties, and old army huts. While Beaumont Hamel rises from its ruins, and Poizieres prospers abundantly, Thiepval remains a series of grass-covered mounds. It may never be rebuilt.

From the road that leads to the Poizieres Ridge, you pass a considerable cavity in the ground. That hole was once Mouquet Farm. For many weeks, this was our only foothold on the Thiepval Ridge, and the enemy spared no effort to drive us from it. The bricks that made Mouquet Farm were blown to powder long before the battle line moved on, and even those from the cellars were dislodged to make a semblance of a road where once a pleasant country lane wound its way down to the village.

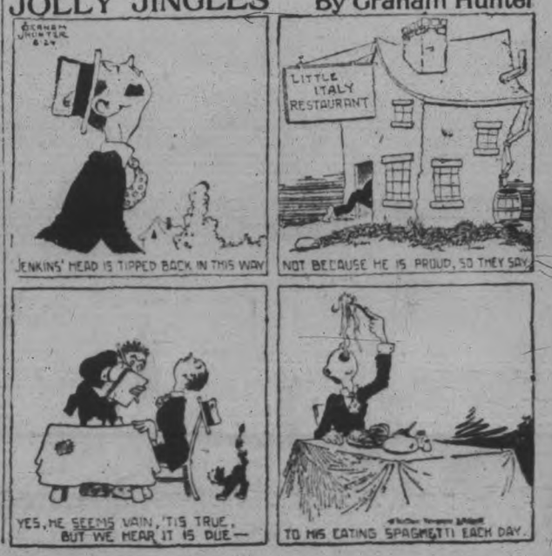
There were many places on the battlefield which suffered elimination as complete as did Thiepval, but there was none that had a longer or more sustained bombardment. To the right, the tide of battle moved slowly on, but Thiepval, with its tunnels and commodious dug-outs, defied, from the beginning of July to the end of September, the worst that our guns could do. The number of shells fired into this section of the enemy line must be almost beyond compute, and it is a wonder that, when, ultimately, troops of the Essex and Middlesex regiments, with the dogged determination, bombed its last defenders from the vaults, there was anything that could be called a trench line or a road.

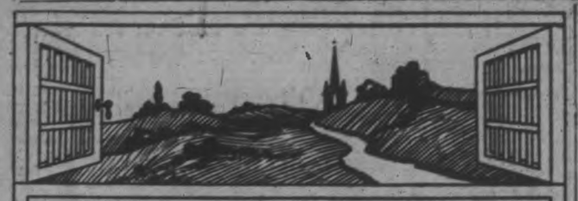
No ground on the Somme was cheaply gained in 1916, but Thiepval must rank among the points for which we paid the heaviest price.

Driving away, one, instinctively, looks back over this hallowed ground. As the top of the Ulster Tower disappears from view, with its wireless mast alert to convey the news from 2 L.O. to the exiled McMaster, one feels that Thiepval has an invisible link with the hearts of British people, for nowhere did the qualities of our race endure a greater test or emerge more triumphantly from it.

PAUL ADAMS.

JOLLY JINGLES By Graham Hunter





MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

SAM JONES was born in Chambers County, Alabama, October 16, 1847. He came from a church family and from a family of preachers, four of his uncles having been clergymen. His mother was intensely religious. His father was a brilliant lawyer. What he owed to his saintly mother, who planted the seeds of religious conviction in his heart, was reflected in the veneration for her which crops out in most of his sermons. Studying law with his father, he began his law practice with brilliant prospects, but a life of dissipation drew him away from his work and well nigh eclipsed his talents. A solemn exhortation from his father on his death-bed produced a marked change in his life and led eventually to his becoming a Methodist preacher and revivalist.

A REVIVALIST.

As a revivalist, Sam Jones met with extraordinary success. Attracting the attention of Dr. Talmage of the Brooklyn Tabernacle, who was then at the height of his world-wide fame as a preacher, he was invited to conduct special services in his great church. Here a growing interest in the preacher and his message led to a genuine revival and did much to bring the revivalist before the churches of the United States.

A CATHOLIC EDITOR.

Without detracting from anything Dr. Talmage did to bring Sam Jones before the public perhaps no single man did so much along this line than Mr. J. B. McCullough, editor of The St. Louis Globe. Mr. McCullough was a Roman Catholic and not supposed to be specially interested in promoting the work of a Protestant preacher, least of all a Protestant revivalist. Mr. McCullough had his sermons reported verbatim, sometimes filling six columns of The Globe.

PLAIN LANGUAGE.

Sam Jones used plain language. He used the every-day language of the street. Ministers, who bored their congregations with dull, dry-as-dust preaching, called it slang. But the common people and others who heard him gladly found no fault with the revivalist on this score. There was never any doubt left in anyone's mind as to his meaning when he had spoken. To him a spade was a spade! He might have called it an agricultural implement and been described as a cultured preacher. But he was not out for the plaudits of the supposedly superior—his time, his strength and his talents were consecrated to the work of bringing sinners to repentance and God. And when judged by that old test, "By their works shall ye know them," he passes with flying colors.

SENSATIONALISTS.

He was said to be sensational! The same charge could be laid against Saul of Tarsus after his conversion to Christianity. It could be laid against many others. Peter the Hermit, John B. Gough, Henry Ward Beecher, Wendell Phillips and Spurgeon could all be, and often were called sensational. Why that should be considered a fault is more than I am able to understand. The charge is usually laid by those who are sticklers for dignity and think that to be dignified we should be dull. Judged by the orchard test, give me the so-called sensationalist every time. He produces an intense interest and always reaps an immense harvest of converts. This was specially true of Sam Jones.

ADVICE TO PREACHERS.

A friend once asked the revivalist how he could preach such long sermons, night after night, without notes when such great men as John Hall, Prof. Swing, Storrs and Cuyler always read their sermons.

"It's easy enough," said Sam, "easy enough if you go to work in the right way. Now," he continued, "if I was to tell my servant girl to go to the shop and get some sugar and bluing, some coffee and starch, some cakes, some soap, and some almonds, some candles and spice, some nuts and tea, some potash and butter, she would say:

"'Oh dear, sir, I never can think of all that.'

"But suppose I should say: 'Look here, Betty, you know tomorrow your mistress is going to have a large wash, and she will want some bluing and soap, candles and potash; the next day she will have company, and will want some tea and coffee, sugar, spice, nuts, cakes, butter and almonds.'

"'Thank you, sir,' says Betty, 'now I can think of them all.'

"So it is in preaching. You want a logical, but simple arrangement."

SAVING MONEY.

As a lecturer Sam Jones made a great deal of money; still, those who knew him best said he had very little love for money. On being asked if he was saving his money, he exclaimed: "Saving my money! What for? Why a man who saves money is a miser. Christ didn't have a bank account. Josh Billings says the old miser that has accumulated his millions and then sits down with his millions at last, without any capacity for enjoying it, reminds him of a fly that has fallen into a half-barrel of molasses. There you've got the picture just as complete as Josh Billings ever drew a picture."

MORE OF THE SAME.

"No, sir, I never had much money—never will I reckon. I saw in the papers some time ago where a man had died in North Carolina and left Sam Jones a wonderful legacy—and all that sort of thing. I was at home at the time. Several of my friends ran up with the paper, and said:

"'Sam, did you see this?'

"'Yes.'

"'What are you going to do about it?'

"'I ain't going to do anything.'

"'Well, I'd write on and tell them where you are.'

"'No, sir,' said I. 'I am getting on all right without a legacy, and God knows what I'd do if I had one. I am getting on so well without one that I don't want to fool with one.'

"'If I get wealth without religion, why, I'll be poor in the next world. Cornelius Vanderbilt was the richest man that ever bade America goodbye, and stepped into eternity. He turned to his oldest son and passed $75,000,000 into his hands; $25,000,000 additional he turned over to the rest of his heirs, and, then in his last moments, turned to his Christian wife and asked her: 'Wife, please sing,

"'Come, ye sinners, poor and needy;
Weak and wounded, sick and sore.'"

FOR THE REPORTERS.

Few, if any, men, in his time, could use stronger English, or rather, as strong Saxon. One day, when the reporters had been criticising the revivalist's Saxon language, he became indignant, and said:

"Do you want my opinion of these reporters, who abuse our meetings?"

"Yes."

"Well, in my humble opinion, I will be in heaven when these stinking, miserable little reporters who malign me are sitting on one ear in hell, trying to keep cool by fanning themselves with the other."

THE REAL STUFF.

A good old Christian lady rose one night in one of the meetings and said she had got repentance.

"Do you know what repentance is, mother?" he asked.

"Yes. It is being sorry for your meanness and feeling that you ain't going to do it any more."

"That's the best definition of repentance I ever heard in my life, mother," he said. "That is repentance. Good Lord, I am so sorry for my meanness that I don't intend to do it any more. And now, mother," said he, "do you know what true religion is?"

"Yes."

"What?"

"It's this," said the old lady: "If the Lord will just forgive me for it, I won't WANT to do it any more."

"Right, mother!" he said. "There is repentance and religion in a nutshell, so every man in the world can get hold of it."

PLAIN SPEECH.

On one occasion he was speaking about church members whose light was either under a bushel or out. He said: "Who cares about Bob Ingersoll's infidelity, or who cares about anybody else's infidelity? The difference between Ingersoll and the churchman is that the man in church believes everything, and won't do anything, while Bob Ingersoll is a sort of theoretical infidel, who gets $1,500 a night for being one, and you dead Christians here, like fools, are one for nothing and board yourselves. That's all there is about it."

DANCING AND CARDS.

I wonder what the church folks who read these musings at a manse window will think of this from Sam Jones. What would I not give to be near them, when they look at these closing words, and get an expression of their opinion:

"If I had children who would not read a book, or be interested in anything that ought to be interesting to intelligent beings, I would teach them all to play cards. The little simpletons, I would run them on that line. If I had a daughter who was such a simpleton that she had only just sense enough to behave herself, I would send her to a hook-nosed French dancing-master, and I would tell him to make her graceful, and 'if her head is a failure, I want you to make it up on the feet.' The law of compensation, of checks and balances, ought to work here, ought it not? I would say to the dancing-master: 'Bring her feet up right. She is a failure in her head.' I would teach her to dance gracefully, and marry her off to some ball-room dude, and buy them a place away off in the country, and tell them never to come and see me. When I got anxious to see them, I would take her mother, and go, and see them."

I can almost imagine that I hear some folks say:

"Shocking"

Perhaps it is! But if it is, who is responsible for it?

—Allan Fairbairn.

A Crying Need

THERE is need for more men in Parliament and on every street corner also will confess ignorance as a means toward courting and winning knowledge, who will compromise to the extent of admitting that the other fellow may be at least partly right, and who when they gaze into the well in search of truth will be able to see something there besides their own image. To Bob Burdette we are indebted for such wise words as these: "To realize your own importance put your finger in a bowl of water. Take it out and look at the hole."

A Pen Picture

POOR LITTLE ORPHAN! It seems so hard that he should be hunted for his life—yet they are evidently looking for him everywhere, the blood-thirsty enemies have found one after another of his relatives, and have put them to death. The father hid himself, but he was discovered and killed—the rest of the family fly in all directions, but the same end awaits them all, and it is impossible that the infant should escape! But hark! someone calls—"Come this way, they will never find you here" — that seems to be the burden of the message, and so the little one is stowed away hastily into a hiding place where if he keeps still for a short time he may possibly escape observation.

So the day passes on; the murderers have done their work fully, as they believe, but—wait awhile—strange things have happened before now, who knows but that little infant may yet terrify and convict those who tried to destroy him?

Greatest Success Book

I wish thousands would put aside their preconceived notions of the Bible, take a copy, and read the twenty-eight short chapters of Saint Matthew just as they would read a new book, and feel the ringing note of individual faith and the works wrought by faith as told in that small compass. We turn to books of modern success as to reservoirs of hope. But the greatest book of success ever written, or that ever will be written, is contained in those chapters of Saint Matthew.

The Fallacy of Force.

PREACHING in the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, the Right Rev. Paul Jones, former Bishop of Utah, asserted that only through co-operative efforts could the world be assured of peace in the future.

"We have reached the point in international development when the use of force through armies and navies is an anachronism. A way of co-operation instead of antagonism must be found. We need to replace the assumption that nations are possible enemies with the idea that they are potential friends. Both of them are equally true; but international policies based on the first lead to suspicion, fear and counter-preparations in other countries and consequently endanger peace and security at home.

"On the other hand, policies based on the idea that nations are potential friends tend to strengthen cordial relations, develop mutual understanding and increase the number of points at which there is co-operation between the nations concerned. As a result there will be less danger of any open break leading to war.

"We will find that we can establish a reputation, not by threat of force, but by dealing with justice toward other nations and by protecting the nations that are weaker. If we cannot arrive at our destiny without riding over the weaker nations, we might as well look for another destiny. Americans who protest against the use of the threat of war are not traitors to their country."

Falling Angels.

ONE who has traveled much in Russia, in past and recent years, according to the Rev. C. H. Dickey, tells us that before the palace of the Czars there stood a great shaft of marble, towering upwards to dizzy heights. It was surmounted with the figure of an angel. When the sun poured down upon it a flood of light, or when the moon immersed it in a mantle of soft glory, the effect was unspeakable. Russia enthroned her angel before the palace of the imperial Czars.

Came the era of the revolution when the rule of the Czars went crashing to the earth, and with it much of what that great people had held to be best. A sustained effort was made to root out the Christian religion and to dethrone the very God of the heavens from the hearts of the people.

Our traveler was there again after the Bolshevist regime had done its worst. He wondered what had happened to their angel. From the station he hurried directly to the site and was perplexed to find it still in position. He made inquiry why those who had dethroned the rulers and had attempted to dethrone God had left the angel in its place. He was told that it had been marked for destruction, but that when the destroyers came they were convinced that while it could be pulled down, its fall would destroy the destroyers. It still stands, towering over the wrecks of things that used to be.

Now, there are certain angels which we might pull down or suffer to be pulled down. But if they ever crash to earth they will destroy us.

There is the angel of intellectual honesty. To some it is one of the brightest angels we have. It represents truth, it stands for unshackled thought, it betokens fearlessness. It is chained by no customs, bound by no precedents, weighted down by no excess baggage. It might be pulled down; but if it ever falls it will destroy not only the Samson who pulls it down but the rest of us who cluster about its base.

Then there is the angel of progress. It is reared astoundingly high in this age. It has little regard for customs and practises that are obsolete. It has dispensed with the backward look. It walks only on the tops of the mountains. It habitually believes that the best is yet to be. Conceivably, that angel might come down, but in its fall it would cover us again with the ruins of another Dark Age.

There is also the angel of hope. It embodies eternal optimism. It instinctively feels that God is in His heaven. It knows that one who turns back is constitutionally unfitted for the kingdom of heaven. With it, the bird is eternally on the wing. No night is there where it sees. It towers above all the wrecks of time. It never grows old, and keeps young the millions of the earth. It is the fountain of youth. Anything that tends to dismantle this angel gives us again the Miserables of Victor Hugo. It would cover us with darkness black as the pit from pole to pole. It would cause us to hang our harps upon the willows or pine forever under the juniper trees of desolation.

Emerson said that we can not let our angels go. Bickering, strife, contention, or even revolution may overtake us; but we must never dismantle our angels.

A Religion That Costs.

IT is interesting to know what others are thinking about matters to which we ourselves give considerable thought. The Christian Guardian tells us that in a multitude of ways life looks extremely difficult these days. The way out of its perplexities and problems seems very hard to find. But it may not be amiss to remember that easy ways are not always, perhaps very seldom, satisfactory ways. To say that a thing is difficult is not of necessity to condemn it, and to suggest that it is easy is not to pronounce in its favor. Sometimes the things that cost the most are quite the most worth while, even at the cost. A religion that is cheap and easy is never worth the little we pay for it. We used to sing, "I'm Glad Salvation's Free," but the emphasis we put on that one thought caricatured our religious faith tragically and wickedly. Of all things that are not free our religion is the pre-eminent one. All the way through it has cost tremendously, and until it has cost us everything it has really not meant anything to us. And there is nothing that we can do to make our religion look more unattractive to mankind than to insist that it does not make severe demands of people. Imagine trying to coak such men as Paul and John Knox and John Wesley and David Livingstone to become Christians on the ground that it would make life easy and comfortable and safe for them! Imagine Jesus telling the young man if he would follow Him he would wear diamonds!

He Was a Good Man

BARNABAS is a type of the ordinary man who, apart from outstanding genius or conspicuous ability yet finds life a grand opportunity for the glory and service of the Lord. Having dedicated himself to His service by open avowal and the consecration of his possessions, he manifested throughout his whole career the fitness of his name—"a son of consolation." For his love to the Lord was expressed in his every relationship with others. He saw in them the grace of God, having no eye for the imperfections of character by which their work was doubtless marred. Hence, he became sponsor for Paul himself when others looked upon him with suspicion. Only a "good man" is able to manifest such generous faith in the confession of a convert whose past has been so unlikely. Hence, also, it was that he gladly undertook the small and almost secular duties which were assigned to him, and so approved himself in the discharge of them that he is subsequently chosen by the Holy Ghost Himself for the high honour of the missionary commission.

God's eye is ever upon the man whose eye is upon Him. In the service of the Kingdom every man is put to work for which his character qualifies him. A good minister must first of all be a "good man." Such goodness as marked out Barnabas, which is likewise the responsibility of each of us, can only become ours as it became his. "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith." To be spirit-filled means to be self-emptied; and to be full of faith means to be void of self-confidence. Thus is a "good man" made.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

A touching fact is related in history of a Highland chief, of the noble house of Macgregor, who fell, wounded by two balls, at the battle of Prestonpans. Seeing their chief fall, the clan wavered, and thus gave the enemy an advantage. The old chieftain, beholding the effects of his disaster, raised himself on his elbow, while the blood gushed in streams from his wounds, and cried aloud, "I am not dead, my children; I am looking to see you do your duty." These words revived the sinking courage of the brave Highlanders. There was a charm in the fact that they still fought under the eye of their chief. It roused them to put forth their mightiest energies, and they did all that human strength could do to stem and turn the tide of battle.

Let us remember that we can say, "Thou, God, seest me," for it will always be true that "the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous."

Keeping a Childs Heart

WE ought to keep our hearts warm and full of kindliness and sweet humanness, even through the harshest experiences. Many of us find life hard and full of pain. We meet misfortunes, sore trials, disappointments. We should not allow these harsh experiences to deaden our sensibilities or make us stoical or sour. Nothing but the love of God shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit can keep any of us in such gentleness and tenderness amid the stern and severe experiences of life. Yet it is possible to carry the gentle heart of a little child through all life's hardness and chill into the fullest and ripest old age.

Evolutionizing the Churches

EVERYTHING depends on leadership. Napoleon well understood this when he said he would rather have an army of asses with a lion for a leader, than an army of lions with an ass for a leader.

Get a good leader, then obey the following:

Study him and his methods.

Be absolutely loyal to both.

Have faith in him and wait.

Study what you can do for him, and then do it.

This would revolutionize half the churches in the land.

16 PER CENT. DO NOT STOP.

The check-up made by the Kiwanis Club last week in regard to the operation of the stop street plan, the results of which are given elsewhere, shows that a little over 50 per cent. of the motorists are obeying the letter of the law.

Out of 980 cars approaching stop signs in the half-hour between 5.30 and 6 o'clock only 509 were brought to a full stop, 312 other drivers slowed down and 159 disregarded the signs completely.

It is significant that many of the violations of the regulation are reported from intersections where there is most danger of accidents.

The 16 per cent. who not only failed to stop but did not slow down, should provide the Police Court with some busy sessions.

CONFEDERATION SQUARE.

It is a pity that the suggestion from Ald. J. M. Greene that the name of Central Park should be changed to Confederation Square in honour of the Diamond Jubilee should have disturbed the serenity of the City Council.

The National Committee in charge of the Diamond Jubilee is responsible for the recommendation that municipalities throughout Canada should name a square or park "Confederation," the suggestion in the first place being made by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario.

Ald. Greene's proposal is in accordance with the wishes of the National Committee, and there is no reason why it should not be carried out.

There is nothing particularly colourful about the name "Central."

As a matter of fact, it is not even accurate in a geographic sense.

On the other hand, "Confederation Square" would be a constant reminder of the coming together of the Provinces of Canada into the present Dominion, and there is surely need of such reminders.

A change to "Confederation Square" and the planting of a Confederation maple therein would be a significant feature of Peterborough's Diamond Jubilee celebration.

THE ONLY POSSIBLE COURSE.

The action of the City Council in recommending to the Police Commission that the present bus licenses in Peterborough be cancelled paves the way for an agreement with the Border City Transit Company that will ensure ample transportation facilities.

They were faced with a situation that demanded action if Peterborough was not to be left without adequate transportation service.

As representatives of the people the responsibility was their's to see that hundreds of citizens who depended upon some public means of transportation should be taken care of, and apparently only one of the companies at present in the field is in a position to supply the service that is needed.

On the basis of the greatest good to the greatest number, there was nothing for the Council to do but avail itself of the facilities promised by the Border City Transit Company, which is prepared to put nine buses in commission here, with two more in reserve, and a large coach available for special occasions and for use on out-of-town trips.

With such a fleet the company, which has given a fine service with limited facilities, will be in a position to meet Peterborough's transportation needs adequately, and the community generally will benefit as a result.

NATIONAL THANKSGIVING.

The National Committee of Canada's Diamond Jubilee has issued the order of proceedings for the service of national thanksgiving by the people of Canada on Sunday, July 3rd.

This service is to be held at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon, and, as the National Committee expresses it, "from the coasts of the Atlantic Ocean to the coasts of the Pacific Ocean the people of the Dominion of Canada are invited to assemble and participate in an expression of thanksgiving which will be nation-wide."

The order of proceedings is to be followed in all parts of the Dominion at the same hour, so that everywhere throughout Canada the people will participate in this beautiful and impressive service, which has been arranged in such a manner that everybody in attendance may take part.

At Ottawa His Excellency the Governor-General and Viscountess Willingdon, the Prime Minister and members of the Federal Cabinet, the Mayor and members of the City Council and other public personages will attend the thanksgiving service in front of the Parliament Buildings, with the Governor-General presiding.

At the Provincial capitals similar gatherings will take place in front of the respective Legislature Buildings, the Lieutenant-Governors to be responsible for the order of proceedings.

In other cities, towns and villages the municipal authorities are expected to participate in the service.

"No settlement or hamlet in the Dominion," declares a statement from the National Committee, "is too small or too remote to participate officially in the national thanksgiving."

Whatever other arrangements are being made for the Sunday programme The Examiner believes that Peterborough should be linked up with the rest of Canada in this official service of thanksgiving on Sunday afternoon.

The thought of Canadians from one end to the other of this great country joining simultaneously in this impressive offering of thanksgiving seises upon the imagination as nothing else in the jubilee programme does.

The municipal authorities and the local Jubilee Committee should see to it that the people of this community are given an opportunity to participate with the people of the whole Dominion in this beautiful Sunday afternoon service.

HE HADN'T TIME.

The funeral procession that held you up as you were driving along the street was in honor of a man who hadn't time. He was only 54, yet in that brief span of years had built a fine, substantial business. He couldn't be enticed away from his desk. One meeting followed another. One conference crowded up another. His daily correspondence was a veritable mound. He hadn't time for anything but business—until they called in the undertaker.

Most of us have the promise of a good three-score years and ten. Twenty-five of these years we spend in growing up and getting prepared to make good. Then we work madly for another twenty-five years or so, promising ourselves to sit down and enjoy the last ten or twenty years, with a big roll in the bank. But the life insurance statistics suggest that that promise is not always performed.

So, why make that promise? Why delay the fun of living until that golden moment of your dreams when you are going to take it easy? Why wait?

Life is only so long. Nobody can crowd all the good things it offers into a decade. Even though you live, age will creep on to take away the bloom from the things you planned to do. You can't motor across the Continental Divide at 60 and get the same punch out of it you would have gotten at 40. At 60 you cannot hike in the woods and brave the dangers of the outdoors as you did when young.

What does it profit a man to gain the whole world and then shuffle off? What is the sense of making a great pile of money and lose the power to enjoy it?

Horace Greeley, who died untimely at 61, promised a friend shortly before his end that he expected to quit the game soon and go fishing. But he never did. He hadn't time. Have you?—Kingston Whig-Standard.

ONE-THIRD OF OUR NAVY FOR SALE.

When somebody, a few years ago, asked Mr. Sam Jacobs, M.P., the purpose of a visit to Ottawa, that irrepressible wit replied that he had "just bought the Canadian navy." He was in fact representing a Montreal scrap iron firm that had bought the Niobe for junk.

History is now repeating itself. In an obscure paragraph in the press—much more obscure than the momentous news that bears have been chasing ladies up in Premier King's Kingsmere farm—we are told that the cruiser Aurora is for sale. She is for sale because "considered out of date."

The tale of the Aurora is a sad one. Just seven years ago—on December 20, 1920, to be exact—this cruiser, launched in 1914, and modern in every respect, was, together with the two destroyers, Patrician and Patriot, and two submarines, formally offered by the Imperial Government to the Government of Canada.

Canada was delighted. In every newspaper office from Sydney to Vancouver newspapermen wrote grateful editorials about the wonderful gift. And what a scene there was in Parliament! We remember the hush, broken intermittently by delighted cheers, as Mr. Ballantyne, our then Minister of Marine, in spacious and expansive mood, made most of the historic moment. This was to be the "effective nucleus of the naval force of the Dominion," the Minister said. It was going to "uphold the rights and privileges of our merchant marine on the high seas," and it was something that proved "the largeness of heart of the Mother Country." Altogether (to again quote Mr. Ballantyne) a red letter day in the Dominion's history.

Four years went by. Mr. Meighen was gone from office. Mr. King had replaced him. Mr. Ballantyne was back in business in Montreal. The Aurora was "upholding the rights and privileges of our merchant marine" by rusting at a Halifax dock. Came news one day that a special service squadron of the British navy under Sir Frederick Field was to visit Halifax. The news was disturbing to Ottawa. What if Sir Frederick saw the Aurora lying there at the dock, maniess, all sea-weed and rust! What would be thought of such shabby treatment of Old England's wonderful gift! Something must be done.

There were two ways of escape—both of them humiliating. The Aurora might remain at her dock and be painted on one side only so as to deceive the Admiral. Or she might be towed into Bedford Basin and hidden behind an island until after the Admiral had gone. The second alternative was taken. The Aurora was skulked away, concealed, and after Admiral Field had made speeches about "the morale and fine efficiency" that he had observed in our navy, and had gone, the cruiser was brought back into the harbor.

Now, a hulk, unpainted dismantled scrapped by persistent neglect, she is to be sold—for junk.

It is a tale for tears. But to get the full tragedy of it, or the irony, or perhaps the humor, one must read the story in conjunction with the solemn announcement, just issued from Parliament Hill, that Canada is sending two plenipotentiaries to Geneva to discuss naval reduction.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Every good citizen should be glad to be known as a careful driver. That ought to ensure a long life for the Safe Drivers' Club.

Col. Lindbergh may fly from Washington to Ottawa for the jubilee celebration, a feature that will materially help to call world-wide attention to Canada's jubilee.

It is to be hoped that any outsiders who have heard of the recent cyclone in the Gull Lake district will understand that such disturbances are not the usual thing in this part of Canada.

The Diamond Jubilee programme arranged for Peterborough on July 1, 2 and 3 indicates that this will be the biggest event in the city's history. Every citizen is expected to do his part from now on in ensuring the complete success of every part of the programme.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 18.—The market felt the pressure this week of the heavier cattle receipts, with the result that from the opening on Monday, there has been a generally easier tone to cattle prices.

Trade for the most part was slow, and handicapped with a heavy carry over and stale cattle, which were not cleaned up until the closing market.

Excepting several of the choicest offerings of fancy quality beef steers and heifers, which sold at special prices, the market declined fully a quarter dollar for the week on good choice lots of finished steers and heifers. On the rough heavy steers there was a decline of from 25c to 50c.

Fat cows, choice, suffered in the general decline, selling from 7.00 to 7.25; and fair, good cows from 6.25 to 6.75; medium, 5.25 to 5.75. Baby beef sold ready at 11 to 11½c; good, 10 to 10½c; medium, 8 to 9c; choice butchers' bulls, lightweights, sold at 6¼ to 7c; heavy bulls were lower this week, selling from 5¼ to 5¾c; rough bologna bulls, 4¾ to 5¼. The light butchers' heifers were in good demand all week at prices almost steady with the previous week.

General run of prices:

Hogs—Market settled at 25c lower selects, off cars, $10; f.o.b selects, $9.10; thick smooths, f.o.b. $8.90; fed and watered, selects, $9.70.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts, 5,695 cattle, 2,127 calves, 3,080 hogs, 1,371 sheep or lambs.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, June 18 (Canadian Press).—Extreme dullness marked the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday, there being no demand whatever from the United Kingdom or the Continent for any line of grain.

A moderate amount of business was done in cash grain in the domestic market with spot and country buyers and prices for oats were firm. The market for corn was weaker in sympathy with the decline at Chicago and prices were reduced 1½c per bushel. Car lots of American sample corn were quoted at $1.06½, and Argentine corn at $1.06½ per bushel, ex-store.

A feature of the local flour situation was the stronger feeling that developed for Winter wheat grades and prices were advanced 30c per barrel. This was attributed to the increased scarcity of supplies on spot and the very limited offerings from Ontario millers combined with an improved demand from local buyers.

Prices for Spring wheat flour were steady with a moderate amount of business passing.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good and values were unchanged. The undertone to the market for rolled oats was firm and the trade was fair.

Prices for all grades of eggs with the exception of firsts advanced 1 cent per dozen, which was attributed to the decreased supplies coming forward and the good demand. The receipts were 2,000 cases.

Owing to the more liberal supplies of new crop American potatoes coming forward and the lower prices ruling for the same, combined with the falling off in the demand from consumers for old crop Canadian potatoes, a weaker feeling developed in the market, and prices scored another decline of 10 cents per bag, car lots of Quebec White B grade were offered at $2.05 to $2.15 per bag, and Reds at $1.70 to $1.80 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track. The butter market was quiet but prices were well maintained. The receipts were 6,805 packages.

A stronger feeling developed in the cheese market owing to the steady improvement in the demand from English importers for June cheese and the somewhat limited supplies available here, and values were marked up ¼c to ⅝c per pound. The receipts were 10,582 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 18 (Canadian Press).—All grain underwent a material setback in price yesterday. Prospects of clearing and warmer weather both in the wheat harvest region southwest and throughout the corn belt had a bearish effect. Wheat closed weak, 1⅞ to 2⅛c net lower, with corn 1⅛ to 2c down; oats ½ to ⅝c off, and provisions showing 10 to 20 cents decline.

Oats gave way with other cereals. Oats crop advices were mixed, but for the most part were favorable.

Provisions followed the trend of grain.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

MILLBROOK, June 18.—The District L.O.L. met in the Orange Hall, Millbrook, on Saturday, June 11, with a fair attendance of delegates, District Master, Brother William Lynn, being in the chair.

The chief item of business to come before the meeting was to decide where the various Orange Lodges of the district would attend the annual Orange walk on July Twelfth, Bowmanville's invitation being finally accepted. Apparently the Lodges in Northumberland County will celebrate at Cobourg, and those from Durham County at Bowmanville.

The annual church parade will be on Sunday, July 10, to the Anglican Church. Rev. P. C. Howard will preach to the Order as the rector, Rev. Canon Allen, will be absent on his vacation to England and the Continent.

Miss Blanche Lee and her brother, Cairns, entertained about thirty of their friends at their home near Bethany on Friday, June 10. The evening was spent in cards and dancing, with the service of dainty refreshments.

During the evening Miss Lee was presented with a French ivory clock by her friends in honor of her birthday, which was the occasion of the happy gathering.

Music for the dancing was supplied by Miss N. Ingram, Messrs. C. Lee and A. Beggs. It was long past the midnight hour before the guests departed with many sincere expressions of appreciation of the very enjoyable time which had been spent.

Among those who attended the party were: Misses V. Ingram, Kathleen Fowler, Muriel, Marcella and Marguerite Lang, Pearl, Alvira, and Elmo Davis, A. Armstrong, L. Kinsman, Messrs. M. Kinsman, B. Byam, Maurice and Clifford Williamson, Foster Russell, Jack and Joe Thompson, R. Larmer, L. Winslow, A. Beggs, Millbrook; Misses Ingram and Moncrief, Omemee; H. Patton, Carlton Patton, Bethany; Messrs. Walter Wright and Fred Cripps, Peterboro.

Play Presented.

Cavan Community Hall was well filled on Monday evening for the entertainment in connection with the anniversary of the United Church Sunday School, the supper which preceded the concert being on the abundant and satisfying scale, which always characterizes such events when provision is made by the ladies of the church, or community.

The play, "Lena Rivers," was put on by the young people from Hallyduff, Mrs. Richardson, of Pontypool, furnishing music between the acts. Rev. J. O. Totten was chairman.

The play sparkled with plenty of clean humor throughout its four acts, the various characters filling their respective roles most creditably.

The story concerns itself chiefly with the fortunes of the orphan girl, Lena Rivers (Mrs. Percy Preston), who lives with her grandmother, Mrs. John Nichols (Mrs. J. J. Clarke), at Slocumville; Lena's mother is dead, and of her father, who deserted her mother when Lena was but a baby, no one has any knowledge.

The first act takes place at the Nichols' humble home in Slocumville, and introduces Grandmother Nichols folding her clothes for ironing when she is visited by a neighbor, Miss Nancy (Mrs. Melville Gray), who is curious for news of Granny's son, who had jilted her and married a Kentucky girl. Grown wealthy, the son (Mr. Fred S. Gray) insists now upon being called John Nichols Livingstone, and a letter from him announcing his arrival on June 13, created great excitement. Lena is quite determined she will not show proper respect to her Uncle John, "who thinks the name Nichols is not good enough for him," and creates plenty of laughter with her unsophisticated reception when the relative, with his proud daughter, Caroline (Mrs. Willis Whitesides) and his young son, John Junior (Marwood Chapman), who is "all boy" in words and actions, finally appear.

Granny's husband having died there is much heartbreak over the son's decision that she and Lena must leave the little home and go to live with him in Kentucky, though the element of humor is very evident in the desire of Mrs. Nichols to take with her some household treasures like the mop, pillows, feather beds, dishes, etc., and the act closes with the ill-matched party starting for the train leaving Joel Slocum (Melville Gray), a half-witted young man, whom Lena continually teased and to whom he was devoted, crying audibly and stretched full length upon the floor after a stumble and fall while trying to stop the girl in her headlong preparations for departure.

The other three acts are laid at John Livingstone's home, Maple Grove, Kentucky, and are concerned with the plotting of Caroline to get rid of Lena, whom she hates because of the evident devotion of Durward Belmont (Mr. Percy Preston), a wealthy young man she has determined to secure for herself. Durward's haughty mother, Mrs. Henry Graham (Mrs. W. Gaynor), has married a second time and is very jealous of her husband (Mr. J. J. Clarke), and holds Granny and Lena in the utmost contempt.

Accidentally Lena discovers she is really Henry Graham's daughter, but the man is too cowardly to openly acknowledge the relationship, and binds her to absolute secrecy. Through Caroline's unscrupulous plotting Lena is suspected of carrying on an underhand love affair with Mr. Graham, and even her grandmother apparently believes the evil told of her. Belmont also accuses her, and her uncle turns her out of his house into the street.

Fortunately Graham's manhood asserts itself and he gives Lena permission to speak when the whole situation is happily cleared up, and the play ends with Lena and her lover re-united, her father's conscience relieved of its guilty burden, and a better understanding all round established.

Uncle Billy (Mr. Wilbert Gaynor), the old family colored servant, and John, Junior, have been true to Lena no matter how dark the case looked against her, and their humorous remarks and actions make a good foil when the near-tragedy within the family circle creates some tense situations.

The booth at the rear of the hall did a good business before the entertainment, and created some confusion during the programme as the small folk insisted on spending their nickels between the acts for cones and soft drinks.

Personals.

Misses Muriel, Marcella and Marguerite Lang were guests of Miss Blanche Lee, Bethany, over the week-end.

Among those from Millbrook who motored to Cavanville on Monday evening and attended the concert in connection with the annual Sunday School entertainment were: Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ball, ex-Warden A. J. and Mrs. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Bentley, Mrs. M. Sutton, Miss Kathleen and Mr. C. B. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. J. McKnight, Mr. and Mrs. Offa Williamson, Mr. and Mrs. Austin Sutton, Messrs. J. Byam, M. McDowell and H. A. Elson.

F. W. Bowen, M.P., and Mrs. Bowen attended the supper and entertainment at Cavan Community Hall on Monday evening.

Miss Moncrief, of Omemee, and Miss N. Ingram, of Peterborough, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. Wilkinson.

Rev. F. H. Howard preached at Mark Street Church, Peterborough, on Sunday, morning and evening, in the absence of the pastor, Rev. R. T. Richards, who was at Cavan for the Sunday School anniversary; Rev. J. O. Totten had charge of the services in the local United Church both morning and evening, and was a guest at the Parsonage during his stay in town.

The Logical Choice of the Two-Car Family

THERE are many reasons for the choice of Chevrolet in the two-car home—its dependability in all weathers and under all conditions—its quick response, ease in handling, and its irresistible beauty appealing to the finer tastes. The many improvements first introduced in low-priced cars by Chevrolet and the striking beauty of design and color make it a car worthy of service to those who also own the costliest of cars. More and more the owners of big cars are now turning to Chevrolet for a second car.

The Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History with its Fisher-built Body—its Duco color—its hosts of mechanical refinements including oil filter, air cleaner and many others—is selling at new, low prices, the lowest for which Chevrolet has ever been sold in Canada.

POINT ANNE DEFEATED BY DELORO TEAM

Last Year's Intermediate Baseball Champions Win Game 10 Runs To 6.

ERRORS NUMEROUS.

Second Meeting of Teams This Year, Deloro Successful on Both Occasions.

DELORO, Ont., June 18. — At Deloro on Friday, under ideal weather conditions, and before a crowd well approaching five hundred, last year's Intermediate champions defeated Point Anne by a 10 to 6 score.

Marmora community band, under Bandmaster Ross Hunter, was in attendance and their choice selections added greatly to the pleasantness of the afternoon. The handsome new scoreboard was in use for the first time, and received many admiring glances. The brand of ball was a trifle beneath that usually seen when these old rivals engage, but if there were errors there were also redeeming features, so that the fans felt they had their money's worth, and rely on their team to repeat the sturdy games of the past as the season advances.

It was the second meeting of the two teams this season, Deloro having been successful at Point Anne on June 1st by the narrow margin of 2 to 1. The same pitchers again took the mound for the whole of the game, Ralph, Deloro's southpaw, and Bennett for the rival team. Jimmy Quinn and Soup Goyer were in their old positions, each playing their characteristic game as catcher.

The Game.

In the first innings E. Green struck out. Blakely singled to right safe on Boudreau's error. Cretney out at 1st, Blakely reaching second on play. Goyer popped to Jack, retiring side. Bond out at first. A. Quinn safe at first on Blakely's error. Weir muffed Jack's fly. Quinn at third, Boudreau doubled, scoring Jack, Boudreau out stealing third. A strike-out and two flies marked the visitors' second trip to the plate. Deloro also retired in this frame without scoring.

Bases Filled.

In the third Gaulin safe at first. Next batters, M. and E. Green, walked, filling bases. Blakely hit to Ralph, forcing Gaulin at plate. Cretney singled scoring M. Green. Goyer flied to Bond, E. Green scoring on throw-in. Blakely scored on the catcher's wild throw to third. Bennett flied to Boudreau.

In Deloro's half, Ralph walked. Bond singled, A. Quinn walked, filling the bases. Jack's single brought in Ralph. Boudreau out at first, Bond crossing plate. J. Quinn hit to short, scoring A. Quinn on Goyer's error. Jack stole home, Brown and Hughes fanned, retiring side.

In the fourth the best hit for the cement mixers was secured by Hurley in a neat triple to right. This player scored on a dropped catch of Weir's fly to right field. Gaulin doubled. Weir out at third on Bond's perfect throw. M. Green doubled, scoring Gaulin and tying the score. E. Green struck out. Blakely flied to Boureau. Deloro failed to get a man on first in their half. A fine double play in the fifth robbed the visitors of a further score, Jack making a one-handed catch of Bennett's Texas Leaguer. A. Quinn reached first on a badly bounding ball. Jack flied to M. Green. Boureau safe on Hurley's error. J. Quinn doubled, scoring A. Quinn. Boudreau out at third. Brown's double scored J. Quinn. Hughes flied out.

Neither side scored in the sixth. In the seventh Blakely singled, stole second, scoring on Goyer's single. A Quinn walked. Jack flied out. Boudreau singled. J. Quinn singled, scoring A. Quinn. Boudreau out at third. Brown beautifully tripled to right, scoring J. Quinn. Regan fanned. This ended the scoring for the game, which concluded with a double play, Jack catching Goyer's hit and throwing out Cretney at first. Teams:

Point Anne—E. Green 2b., H. Blakely s.s., W. Cretney 1b., F. Goyer c., F. Bennett p., G. Hurley r.f., A. Weir l.f., G. Gaulin 3b., M. Green c.f.

Deloro—J. Bond c.f., A. Quinn 2b., V. Jack s.s., H. Boudreau r.f., J. Quinn c., A. Brown l.f., J. Hughes 1b., W. Regan 3b., W. Ralph p.

Umpires—K. Collins at plate, W. Gerow on bases.

MANITOBA WANTS CHANGES IN ACT

Electors of Province to Vote on Proposal to Change the Liquor Act.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Agitation for changes in the Manitoba Liquor Act on the part of various interests during the past three years will crystallize into definite action on June 28 when electors of the province vote on proposals embodying principal modifications advocated.

The referendum vote will be taken in conjunction with the provincial general election on June 28 and marks the first attempt to change the law by popular vote since the advent of government control and sale of liquor in 1923.

"Do you favor extension of the present facilities for the sale of beer?" This is the question the electors must decide. If an affirmative vote is returned, the voter is offered alternative proposals of beer by the glass under government regulation in licensed premises, or sale of beer by the bottle under the cash-and-carry system. The ballot also asks the will of the people on the right of brewers to sell beer direct to permit holders.

Inauguration of sale of beer by the glass in licensed establishments would bring Manitoba into line with systems now in operation in Alberta and Quebec. The proposed cash-and-carry system would be fashioned after the Saskatchewan law.

"I believe we would be much better off without liquor in any form. But my personal view does not matter. We are living in a democratic age, however, and the will of the majority must rule. If the will of the majority be thwarted for any length of time, we will ultimately pay for it. We are saying to the electors, let us know what you want and the government will undertake to enact legislation which will give effect to their desires. We will take whatever profits are necessary to enforce that law, whatever the cost."

The temperance forces have been directing a strong campaign against any extension of the present facilities for the sale of liquor. They advance the claim that by establishing beer parlors, the public bar, in a disguised form, would virtually be reintroduced and charge that enforcement of the Liquor Act would become more costly to the province.

Proponents of the beer by the glass legislation on the other hand argue that such a system would effectively deal with the menace of bootleggers and eliminate "beer joints" or "speak easy" establishments.

BOARD MEETING PASSES QUIETLY

On motion of Trustees Roche and Scully the communications were ordered filed.

A. J. Peeling gave quotation on floor oil at 65c to 75c a gallon, or 60c a gallon in barrel lots. J. A. C. Allan quoted floor oil at 65c a gallon or 60c in barrel lots. Moved by Trustees Anderson and Scully, that Miss Lehane receive her cheque for June by Friday, June 17.

Trustee Roche reported that he had ordered a small car of coal (40 or 50 tons) for use of school.

Mr. Crowley of the Kaustine Chemical Co. of Dundas addressed the Board regarding their chemical installations, and outlined their toilets generally. The chemical requirements for school would cost $2,100.00 to $2,200.00 installed, and upkeep cost 20c or 25c per pupil per year. On motion by Trusees Scully and Roche an account from A. J. Peeling for furnace grates, etc, of $34.10, was ordered paid.

Chairman Thompson asked Trustee Fraser to enquire into cost and particulars of asphalt roofing, and Trustee Anderson to enquire into cost and particulars of wood shingles and both to report at special meeting of the Board to be held about the end of June.

VERDICT FOR

Law. Plaintiff said he was driving with the left wheels of his car in the ruts and the other wheels were up on the surface of the icy road.

Dr. Malcolm McCulloch, the second witness called, said he examined the plaintiff on the 29th, and found that he had received severe injuries to the chest.

John C. Lowe, a garageman, who operates in Port Hope, gave evidence as to the damage done to the car. He said the roads were bad, but the ruts were not that deep so as not to permit a driver to get his car out.

The Defence.

Edwin Carley was the first witness for the defence. He said he was employed by the defendant, and at the time of the accident he was driving the truck. He said he had been driving a truck for twelve years, and never had an accident. On the day of the accident he left Peterborough loaded, about 10 a.m. His truck was a three and one-half ton White truck, and was loaded to capacity.

He said he was climbing the grade where the accident occurred in low gear, with all four wheels in the ruts which were on the centre of the road, at a speed of about three miles an hour. Witness said he saw a car coming towards him in the same ruts as he was travelling, and as they approached each other he stopped.

On cross-examination by Mr. Gordon, witness was unable to account for the bumper of the Chevrolet car being found behind the front wheels of the truck, and also how if it had been a head-on collision only one side of the radiator was damaged.

Mr. Carley said that 100 feet before the place where the accident occurred the plaintiff tried to get his car out of the ruts and his wheels appeared to lock.

Gordon Miller, mechanic, told of the damage to the truck, in which one tire was ruined and other parts had to be fixed, taking him ten hours to do the work. The counter claim put in by the defendant amounted to $163.06.

Mr. Thompson, in summing up the case before the jury, said it was unfortunate that there were so many motor accidents, and these necessarily result in Court actions. He asked, "Why didn't Mr. Law stop as he said he saw the truck coming when he was 200 yards away?" He saw there was likely to be an accident, and he says in his own evidence he could have stopped in 75 feet.

Mr. Gordon said from all indications, especially as to the damage done to the radiator and the tire on the truck, the evidence of the plaintiff must be taken, as he said his car was travelling with the left wheels in the rut and damage was done to the right wheel of the truck. The truck was coming up the grade in ruth so heavily loaded that he could not get out of them, which, he claimed, was negligence in itself.

Judge McGlade, in addressing the jury, told them they would have to determine for themselves which driver had a right to be in the ruts or whether either of them had any right to be in the ruts after they first saw each other.

It Rid the System of Rheumatism

Lasting relief was obtained when the uric acid poisons were cleansed from the system by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

After all there is nothing like Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to get rid of the poisons in the system which cause pains, aches, lumbago, and rheumatism. Dr. Chase's Liniment affords relief from the pain but to get rid of the cause it is necessary to go deeper and regulate the action of kidneys, liver and bowels.

Mrs. Ada Kincade, Drayton, Ont., writes:—

"For years my husband suffered from rheumatism. He tried treatment from many doctors, but received little relief. He also tried several remedies recommended, without avail. Two years ago after he had been unable to move or turn in bed for several weeks, a neighbor came in and recommended Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I went down and purchased a box of these, which seem to have entirely relieved him, for he has never had an attack since. I take great pleasure in recommending these pills to anyone suffering from rheumatism."

Whenever I think of the beauty of courtesy and true politeness I invariably see a dark figure standing out against the sky of memory,—a silhouette of ebony, an old negro slave, Father Miller we called him.

Before the civil war this old negro and his wife, with whom he had escaped to Canada, squatted on a bit of ground overlooking Georgian Bay and the town in which we lived. It was near a small farm which my father had bought, in the hope that after the years of itinerary he might have a permanent home of his own.

On Saturday afternoons we children were free to play, and in the summer time what wonderful picnics we had on that farm with its shading trees of beech, and maple! What romps we had over the meadows to the high rocks and the spring at their base! What adventures we had exploring the caves! What fun preparing our supper and roasting potatoes or corn in the hot ashes of our stationary stove!

But, if we loitered too long we would be sure to hear the sound of a voice advancing along the road and down the lane singing the old spiritual "Swing low sweet chariot, coming to carry me home," as only a negro could sing it. At last Father Miller would stand among us, and in his deep, rich voice would say, "Good night, chillums, its time all you honeys was on the road home; your mammy will be waiting for you."

When he said that we knew that we had to go. As we passed him he would stand with uncovered head, bowing low to a group of little children, who would return the courtesy with dignity and childish charm. As we hurried along the hill path that old melody, "Swing low sweet chariot," would float down to us, and we would pause in the gully to listen to the last notes of the song. Then, having gained the hilltop on the other side we would see that dear old figure, black against the skyline, waving farewell as the sun went down.

Years afterwards, when my father's dream was realized and the same beeches and maples that shaded our playground stood guard over our dear cottage home, that old negro and his family formed part of the warp and the woof of our life. He and his family helped to look after our miniature farm. They served us faithfully and courteously; they trusted us and cared for us. They made stronger our faith in humankind, both black and white.

Father Miller was always reverently courteous to older people and he always impressed this upon us. He was the spiritual influence that held together a little group of colored people, who stood for good citizenship. He taught them to love righteousness and the teachings of Jesus Christ. Many a time I went with my father when he administered the Holy Sacrament to the members of the negro congregations and their reverence filled me with awe.

The last time I saw Father Miller he was not well, "I want to say Good-bye, Miss Em," he said.

"Why, where are you going, Father Miller?" I asked.

"Ise gwine to Paradise, Miss Em," he answered.

"Then it will be good-bye forever," I returned. "You will be so close to the throne, I will never see you again."

"No. No, Miss Em, I will be waiting at de door of Paradise till all your family come home, and I will see you, but you won't know me because I will be white. Ise asked de Lawd to make me white."

I then repeated to him William Blake's poem.

My mother bore me on the southern wild,
And I am black, but oh my soul is white,
White as an angel is the English child,
But I am black as if bereaved of light.

My mother taught me underneath a tree,
And sitting down before the heat of day,
She took me on her lap and kissed me,
And pointing to the East began to say.

Look on the rising sun there God does live,
And gives His light and gives His heat away,
And flowers and trees and beasts and men receive,
Comfort in morning joy in the noonday.

For when our souls have learned the heat to bear,
The cloud will vanish we shall hear His voice.
Saying, come out from the grove my love and care,
And round my golden tent like lambs rejoice.

Thus did my mother say and kissed me,
And thus I say to little English boy,
When I from black and he from white cloud free,
Around the tent of God like lambs.

I'll shade him from the heat till he can bear,
To lean in joy upon our Father's knee.
And be like him and he will then love me.

"That's it, Miss Em," he said, "that's it. I'm black, but oh, my soul is white."

The night he went away to the Paradise of his belief he kept repeating as he went down into the gully. "I'm black, but oh, my soul is white." I have no doubt that he found the chariot swinging low to carry him home.

Last year when going up in the elevator at the Christie street hospital a negro stood aside to let us pass out with such an air of courtesy that I turned to thank him. I started when I heard a voice like Father Miller saying, "Good-day, Miss Emma, I'm so glad to see you." It was Father Miller's soldier son still in hospital paying the price, as other brave men have, for serving his country. Again I heard, "Swing low sweet chariot, coming to carry me home," and again I saw a figure with head bent low to let a little child gaM by.

AN UNUSUAL PLAN OF UNUSUAL CONVENIENCE

By G. H. MacDonald and H. A. Magoon, Architects.

This desirable five room, square plan home is particularly suitable for the husband and wife who have children, a moderate income, and sound taste.

The front door opens into a vestibule having a coat closet and directly connected with the living room, with its brick mantel and built-in bookcase. For general purposes, however, it is probable that the side door would be more commonly used. This gives admittance to a hall from which the bedroom or den, kitchen, living room, and staircase may be reached. The rear door is of the convenient grade entrance type having steps up to the kitchen and down to the cellar, and would serve its usual purposes. The kitchen is very conveniently arranged, containing dresser, sink, refrigerator, table and rang with hot water boiler and would surely delight the most exacting housewife. Provision is made for a door between kitchen and living room, an item which would save many steps when serving food in the latter.

Upstairs are two large bedrooms each having a good clothes closet. It will be observed that the bathroom and water closet are separate, a convenience which would be well applied to every home.

The approximate cost of this home, exclusive of lot, would be $6,500.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architects direct. Address Messrs. G. H. MacDonald & H. A. Magoon, Tegler Building, Edmonton, Alberta.

THE ATLANTIC CABLE.

The successful laying of the Atlantic telegraph cable was the most important event of the Nineteenth Century. Its achievement was mainly due to the enthusiasm and energy of a resident of Canada, Frederick Newton Gisborne, who was born in England, on March 8, 1824.

In 1845 Mr. Gisborne came to Canada and practised farming for two years in Quebec. Tiring of this, he took up telegraphy. In 1849-1851, he was superintendent of Government lines at Halifax. In 1850, he proposed making telegraph connections between Halifax and Saint John's, Newfoundland.

This this submarine telegraphy was n the air. In 1843, Prof. Morse foreshadowed that a transatlantic cable would be realized in the near future. In exactly fifteen years the dream of the great inventor was to be made a reality, and its realization was due to F. N. Gisborne, but for whom telegraphic connection with Europe might have been delayed for many years.

In 1851, Mr. Gisborne visited Newfoundland and laid before the Legislature a plan for connecting Saint John's and Cape Ray by a telegraph line, with the hope of ultimately having a cable laid across the Gulf of St. Lawrence. His enthusiasm was infectious. The Legislature encouraged him and granted him £500 to enable him to do exploratory work on the proposed line. He returned to Nova Scotia and resigned his government position in order to devote all his time to the Newfoundland project. On his return he explored the route, found it feasible and proceeded to New York to obtain financial assistance. He was successful and returned to the Island to construct the line.

As a step towards the Halifax-St. John's line, in November, 1852, he laid the first submarine cable of any length in America—across the Northumberland Straits, uniting Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick. The greater part of 1853 was spent in construction work; but the New York capitalists suddenly dishonoured his bills and his operations terminated. He was arrested for debt, sacrificed all his personal possessions, but still found himself liable for about $50,000. The Government of Newfoundland assisted in paying the laborers' wages and encouraged Gisborne, who once more proceeded to New York, where he succeeded in interesting Cyrus W. Field. Mr. Field visited Newfoundland, took hold of the project as a step towards a cable between the Island and Ireland.

In 1856 a cable was laid across the Gulf of St. Lawrence. In this way the telegraph was now one thousand miles on its way to England andNew York was connected with St. John's. About this time Mr. Gisborne severed his connection with the enterprise and, although his brain had conceived the idea of a transatlantic cable, he was to have no part in carrying it to a successful conclusion. But the work went on, and, on August 5, 1858, the ends of the cable were successfully landed on the Irish and New foundland coasts.

Others reaped where Gisborne had sown. But he was not without his reward. On a visit to Newfoundland, in 1857, he was presented with a valuable silver statuette, "for the indomitable energy he had displayed in carrying out the first Canadian submarine telegraph"—the initial step in the widespread oceanic telegraphy of to-day. In 1867, the year of Confederation, Joseph Howe spoke of him, in a personal letter to Gisborne, as "the original pioneer and projector of the transatlantic cable."

In 1879, Mr. Gisborne was appointed superintendent of the Canadian Government Telegraphy and Signal Service, which position he held till the time of his death in Ottawa, August 30, 1892.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ATTITUDE OF MIND IS URGED ON WOMEN

U. S. Congress To Review Immigration Laws Within Short Time.

SOME AMENDMENTS.

Convention of Women Institutes Hears Report of Committee Libraries and Research to Assist in the Development of Desire for Continued Peace.

WOLFVILLE, N.S., June 18, (By Canadian Press).—The "League of Nations attitude of mind," for every Women's Institute member was stressed at the Women's Institutes Convention by Mrs. Ducie, of Dundurn, Sask., the national convener of this new committee, which has been added to W.I. activities.

"Modern science," she said, "has made war almost a matter of contest in destructive machinery—a brutal thing ready to wipe out non-combatants as readily as participants. Women, realizing this, must become conscious of their individual responsibility, more especially as the formation of an enlightened public opinion—a League attitude of mind. Let us bring this responsibility home to them through club work."

The Saskatchewan Homemakers, or Women's Institutes of that province, have been the most active in this work. They were represented at the annual meeting of the Committee of League of Nations in Ottawa, by Mrs. McQueen of that city. They have availed themselves of three courses of study, drafted by Mrs. W. F. Cameron of Davidson, one of their members. Other interested members wrote papers on every phase of the League's work and copies of these supplied to clubs by Miss Abbie de Lury, superintendent of Home makers' Clubs, University of Saskatchewan, Sask.

Many clubs have appointed one of their members to report from month to month on the current work of the League, while others have offered prizes for essays on it, this stimulating research among the younger people. A provincial convener, Mrs. Grace Birkin, Bateland, has been appointed. She suggests that clubs right place in schools, stories of inventors, doctors, explorers, writers, etc., whose services have benefited mankind, rather than stories and pictures, which glorify war. Women trustees might present these suggestions to the teacher when the annual additions to the school library are being made. The Homemakers organization has been a corporate member of the Dominion League of Nations almost since its inception, while many clubs and individuals have taken out membership.

A deputation is to wait upon the Saskatchewan provincial minister of education shortly, urging that the aims and objects of the League of Nations society be incorporated in the course of studies almost every country is doing this.

With the exception of Quebec, which has appointed a convener for this work, Mrs. McQuatt, the W.I.'s, of the other provinces are just beginning their study of it.

Mrs. Ducie urged all provinces to have provincial conveners appointed at once. She suggested that books dealing directly or indirectly with war, its causes and dire results be placed in school and W.I. libraries and she recommended a number. Two books, especially good for the young people, are Story of the League of Nations. How the League of Nations works. Both are published by the League.

Mrs. Ducie stated that the League attitude of mind must start at the mother's knee. The schools will then foster the international spirit. "Let us endeavor then, to hasten the day 'when the parliament of man, the Federation of the World' will be more of a reality and less of a dream," concluded Mrs. Ducie.

Originally every man carried his valuables in a bag tied to his waist. This offered an opportunity for thieves to cut the string and flee, so some seventeenth century genius thought of sewing the bag to the clothing, making a pocket.

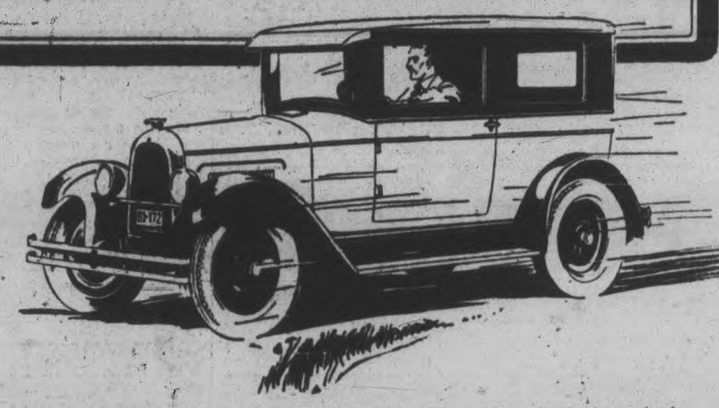
111,300 BUYERS
in its First 12 Months

The Greatest Success ever attained by a new Car in its First Year—



The Whippet has emerged from its try out period with flying colors.
IT IS NOW A PROVEN PROPOSITION

111,300 enthusiastic owners will tell you that the Whippet has lived up to every claim we have made for it.

In hundreds of gruelling tests it has broken world's records in a most impressive way. Below are listed some of the more important ones. They prove the Whippet's economy, performance and stamina beyond any shadow of doubt.

Economy—Cannonball Baker, in a Coast to Coast run, averaged 51.9 miles per gallon. 5,205 drivers in a nation-wide economy test averaged 46.3 miles per gallon. Owners' records indicate that the Whippet saves you from $75.00 to $150.00 yearly in gas, oil, tires and mechanical upkeep.

Power and performance—At Rockingham Speedway the Whippet ran 500 miles in 10 hours, 23 minutes, 14 seconds, bucking a terrific 50 mile gale. The car has smoothness and flexibility never found before in a 4-cylinder car. Acceleration 5 to 30 miles in 13 seconds. Speed 55 miles an hour.

Hill-climbing—A non-stop run to Pike's Peak in one hour and 13 minutes, without boiling.

Stamina—From Death Valley, 284 feet below sea level to the crest of White Mountain, 13,150 feet above sea level . . . . the highest spot ever reached by an automobile on the Pacific Coast.

The Whippet has established new standards of performance above and beyond anything you have learned to expect in a 4-cylinder car.

The Whippet has also established new standards of safety, roominess, comfort, beauty.

4 wheel brakes—The only car in the low priced field with this necessary factor for safety . . . the Whippet will stop in 51 feet from 40 miles an hour.

Low gravity center—5 feet 8 inches high. Built low to the ground for safety, yet with ample road clearance due to its new-type design. No skidding, no slipping, no side-sway when turning a corner.

More room—By actual measurement the Whippet has more leg, head and elbow room than any other light car—due to its unique body and dash construction.

Greater beauty—The smartest looking light car on the road today. With long, low graceful lines resembling the exclusive custom-built cars of this Continent and Europe.

These are the reasons why the Whippet has so quickly become Canada's most popular light car . . . why over 111,300 motorists have bought it in its first year.

The Whippet is a car of exactly the right size, weight and balance. Its 4-wheel brakes and other modern engineering features ensure resale value to a degree unapproached by any other light 4-cylinder car.

GOT HIS CHANCE.

BOSTON, Mass., June 18.—Twenty-two years ago, F. P. McCarthy left High School and went to work in the Stock Exchange as a messenger. When he came to work the other day he was informed that Phillip W. Wren, head of a brokerage firm, was about to transfer to him a $10,000 seat on the Boston Exchange.

OUR INDIAN WARDS.

While by the terms of Confederation the Federal parliament was given complete control of "Indians and lands reserved for Indians," it may well be contended that the proclamation issued by King George the Third on the 7th day of October, 1763, contains the Magna Charta of the Canadian aborigines. This proclamation, made public shortly after by the Hon. Sir William Johnson, Bart., then described as the Northern District of North America: Colonel of the Six United Nations, their allies and descendants, etc.," among other important matters, related that great frauds and abuses had in the past been committed in the purchasing of lands of the Indians; and, in order "that the Indians may be convinced of our justice and determined resolution to remove all reasonable cause of discontent," it was declared that no private person should in future purchase any lands from the Indians except for His Majesty and at a public meeting or assembly held for the purpose. Many decades have since rolled by but the present day method of acquiring Indian lands differs but slightly from the procedure set forth in this Royal document of 1763.

Contrary to general opinion the Canadian Indians are not decreasing in numbers. A slight increase is noticeable year by year. The Indian population as given in the 1926 Indian census is 104,894. These are located on 1,570 reserves throughout the Dominion, containing an area of almost five million acres. The administration and control rests in the Department of Indian Affairs at Ottawa, and the relationship between the Department and the Indians is that of guardian and ward. The following concise facts and figures indicate the importance of this wardship. Real and personal property is valued at $74,512,629, and the total income of the Indians for the fiscal year 1925-26 was $10,189,696. The capital of the Indian Trust Fund during the same year amounted to $12,418,460, an increase over the previous year of more than a quarter million dollars.

Due to the clearly defined policy of advancement followed by the Department, the Indian of to-day differs but little from his white neighbour. In statute and in the finance there is broad and generous provision to assist in his progress and to protect his interests, but individual liberty is almost untouched. Living conditions are improving by means of suasion and appeals to reason by the local Indian Agents, and tuberculosis and smallpox, those dreaded foes of the Redman, are being successfully combated and contributing causes removed or remedied.

Educational facilities are modern and thorough, though under the control in all cases of the various religious denominations. Throughout the Dominion there are for Indian use exclusively 74 residential educational institutions with an enrolment of 6,327 pupils, and the cost of Indian education for the year 1925-26 was close to two million dollars. Two hundred and fifty-four day schools and 16 combined schools were in operaiton during the year.

In religion the great majority of the Indians to-day are Christians, only 6,000 retaining some form of aboriginal belief. The Christian element is given as 48,671 Roman Catholics, 23,557 Anglicans, 13,930 Methodists: 2,175 Presbyterians and 1,173 Baptists.

Originally fishermen and hunters, the Indians to-day follow varied occupations and in western Canada many have by Departmental instructions and assistance developed into substantial farmers or raisers of live stock. In the three prairie provinces 2,500 are employed in agriculture and 106,007 acres of land are under cultivation. It is estimated that the Indians of these provinces own 26,000 head of cattle.

The Indian population of Ontario is the largest of any of the provinces, being 26,706. British Columbia comes second with 24,316, Quebec third with 13,191, while Manitoba has 11,673, Saskatchewan 10,271 and Alberta, 8,990. Less than 4,000 live in the Maritime provinces.

There is no class of our population more patriotic or more loyal to British institutions than our Indian wards. This is proven by the fact that during the Great War 4,000 saw active service overseas, and many to-day sleep in Flanders fields.

THE MOUNTED POLICE.

No phase of Canadian governmental activities ever captured and held the public imagination like the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The record of this famous body is renowned throughout the world, and wherever constabulary are established they are modelled largely on the example of the Canadian force.

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police, formerly the Royal North West Mounted Police, is the organization upon which the Dominion Government relies for the execution of Federal legislation. It is also available for assistance to the provinces in the preservation of law and order. When the prairies became part of the Dominion the force was established (1873) to maintain British law in the new area, and under the first Commissioner, Colonel (afterwards Major-General Sir George) French, the force three hundred strong marched, in 1874, from the Red River to the Rocky Mountains. The march has become famous in military history for its 2,000 mile push through unknown territory and among hostile tribes of Indians. From 1876 to 1881 brilliant service was rendered by the Police in controlling the Sioux Indians, who entered the North West Territories after the defeat of General Custer in the United States.

As the buffalo diminished on the prairies the Indian problem increased. The Canadian Pacific Railway was thrust across the plains in the 80's, and the construction brought armies of foreign laborers into the western country. Immigration followed. All the elements of lawlessness and frontier unrest were present. But the police, too, were there, and by strength and efficiency and incorruptible administration order was preserved. It was during these days the men in scarlet really won their spurs.

In the South African war troopers from the Force served with the Canadian contingents, and in the Great War two squadrons were raised for overseas service, one in France and one in Siberia. But the military aspect of the Mounted Police work has largely passed, and to-day there is a great variety to its duties, such as guarding against prairie fires and visiting lonely settlers during the winter, Arctic patrols, prevention of sale and smuggling of narcotics, the administration of the Naturalization Act, the Canada Temperance Act, the Quarantine Act, and all the diverse Federal laws which require police aid. In 1095 the prefix "Royal" was given to the Force after conspicuous work in the Yukon Territory during the gold-rush days.

In 1920 the Police lost its strictly Western character and became a Dominion-wide body. The headquarters, which for many years had been at Regina, Saskatchewan, moved to Ottawa. For nearly forty years the Mounted Police had been prominent in the rapid development of the prairie city of Regina, but to-day with headquarters in the capital its constables travel from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the international boundary to Ellesmere Island in the Arctic.

From the original force of 300 men the Mounted Police has grown to a strength of over 1,000. When it was formed the training was that of a British cavalry regiment, while to-day it varies from horsemanship to criminal detection and the study of the law.

The Story of the Postman.

Few Canadians realize the dramatic story behind the man in blue who drops the mail at the door or who drives through the storm on His Majesty's business in rural routes. It is the story of a great but friendly monopoly with none of the sinister implications usually associated with that word. Somehow everyone has a friendly feeling towards the postal service, but few are aware of the first-rate brains and energy that have been required to build up the great, speedy postal service of Canada.

At the time of Confederation there were 3,400 post offices in the Dominion, and mails were carried on some 2,278 miles of railway. To-day there are nearly 13,000 post offices in Canada, and 37,000 miles of railway used for the transmission of mails. On July 1, 1867, there were six post offices between the Great Lakes and the Rocky Mountains, whereas there are now more than 3,000 in the same territory.

Just prior to Confederation the prepaid letter rate in Canadian provinces was five cents per half-ounce, and letters delivered by a carrier cost two cents in addition to the postage. The rate on letters from Canada to Great Britain was 12½ cents per half-ounce, and letters for Red River (Manitoba) cost ten cents per half-ounce. All this should be remembered when it is considered that a full ounce can be sent anywhere within Canada or the United States for two cents and within the British Empire to-day for three cents.

Postal revenues in 1867 totalled a million dollars, while last year Canadians paid $37,000,000 for postal services. Fifteen thousand packages were carried in the mails in the year of Confederation, while last year forty million parcels went through the mails, totalling nearly 55,000,000 pounds. Canadians who lived through the Confederation days spent on an average 27 cents each for mail every year, while to-day the average is $4 per head each year.

Rural mail delivery was established in 1908, and to-day there are more than 3,700 delivery routes, and delivery is given through 200,000 boxes on these routes to over a million people. The postal service has expanded to meet the complexities of modern life until to-day one can insure one's parcels with convenience, send fresh eggs or live chicks through the mails, or keep a savings bank account with the nearest postmaster for a banker.

This efficiency has not been achieved without the aid of some of the best brains of the country's public life. There have been twenty-five Postmasters-General since Confederation, and the list includes many distinguished names, such as Campbell, Langevin, O'Connor, Huntingdon, Caron, Mulock, Aylesworth, Lemieux, Beland, Blondin and Murphy.

Not the least of the good offices performed by the Post Office Department has been the extensive education of the public in the right use of postal facilities.

The Post Office Department is always anticipating means of improving and extending the system to the end that the best possible service, consistent with reasonable economy, may be given to the Canadian public. This year of Jubilee finds the Department taking advantage of the very latest developments in transportation by air, and before the year is ended an air mail route will be inaugurated from the Gulf of St. Lawrence that will some day reach to the Pacific.

THE CANADIAN CLUB.

During the preparation for the celebration for the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation, the history of the advancement and development of many Canadian organizations and institutions has been reviewed. As a purely Canadian organization, having as it objects "to foster Canadian patriotism and to stimulate intelligent citizenship, and as a means to that end to encourage the formation of Canadien Clubs and to promote their success," none are more worthy of attention than the Canadian Club movement.

Throughout history it has been found that a crisis in the development of a country always produces strong sentiments which ultimately result in the settlement of the issue. Thus, in 1892, when there was general depression throughout Canada, and the question of annexation was mooted, six young men in Hamilton gathered together to discuss the future of their country, and the possibility of developing a Canadian nationality which, in its turn, would bring a Canadian patriotism into being. This was the birth of the Canadian Club Movement.

The ambitions program which the founders of this movement planned has indeed been fulfilled. They realized that little benefit or influence could result from a single club, so proposed to establish a similar club in every place of importance throughout the Dominion. Not only is this an accomplished fact to-day, but numerous small communities boast a thriving Canadian Club.

The greatest latitude was allowed the clubs in the formation of their organization, and in 1909 the second step in the advancement of the movement was taken—that of forming the Association of Canadian Clubs. An annual conference was held, and delegates from each club met and discussed questions pertaining to the welfare of the individual clubs and to the movement as a whole. This step gave impetus to the movement which continued to strengthen and expand its range until 1914. During the unsettled years of the war no annual conferences were held, but the individual clubs worked feverishly in all patriotic endeavors, and were responsible for the success of many important undertakings.

In 1919 the Association was reorganized and began to function but the movement as a whole was apathetic. The smaller clubs disintegrated and the larger clubs seemed to lose sight of the original reason for their being. However, the depression following the war and the political unrest once again brought forth "a sign of the times"—a re-awakening of Canadian opinion, and with it, a re-vitalization of the Canadian Clubs. At the annual conferences various means were discussed whereby the movement could be brought back to its position of impartial educator of Canadian opinion, and finally a part-time secretary was appointed to keep in touch with the clubs and to secure speakers who had a distinctly Canadian message.

This experiment proved so successful that last year it was felt that the time was ripe for the final step—a step which the founders had foreseen would be necessary—the establishment of a permanent National Office with permanent officials. This step is final in that the future development of the movement will come from the expansion of the National Office. And it was only made possible by the generosity of the larger clubs who have practically financed it during this first year of its existence.

Already, in the eight short months since its inception, the National Office has more than justified its existence, and the promise which it gives for the future is almost inestimable. Apart from the primary work of strengthening the active club, reviving defunct ones and organizing new ones, much has been done towards removing sectional prejudices throughout the Dominion. Whenever possible speakers have been exchanged between the provinces. Westerners have had the problems of the Maritimes presented to them by a citizen of Arcadia, and vice versa. Quebec and Ontario have exchanged speakers, and in all cases a feeling of good-will and understanding is replacing the intolerance which had its birth in ignorance.

Moreover, the celebration of Confederation this year has helped to bring before the people the reason for the existence of such an organization as the Canadian Clubs. The clubs throughout the length and breadth of the land now have a unity of purpose in creating the unity of Canada. The movement will have achieved its destiny as soon as Canadians realize they are Canadians, a fact which is already accepted by the outside world.

SEEKS "CRADLE OF MAN."

SEATTLE, Wash., June 18.—Clothing heavy enough for an Arctic expedition will be worn by Roy Chapman Andrews and two other archaeologists who soon will start into the desert of Gobi in search of the "cradle of man." The nights in the Mongolian desert are below freezing, he said, when buying his equipment here.

The "Schrippenkirche," of Berlin, is a "church of the rolls." Each Sunday morning soup and two rolls are served to the homeless and destitute, along with a sermon.

The New Glandular Treatment for Indigestion

Renzyme is a scientific combination of all enzymes and ferments necessary to the digestion of food—A natural and effective digestant.

IT is a common knowledge that by far the greatest number of ailments for which physicians are consulted may be classified as belonging to disorders of the digestive organs. This may be the result of improper diet, overeating, or to disease of the stomach or digestive organs, or may also be secondary to other diseases or illnesses such as nervousness, anaemia, debility, etc. The number of people who suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, flatulence, regurgitation of food, heartburn, loss of appetite are countless and in fact, at times every person has suffered from some such digestive upset or disorder.

The means of relief offered to the public has up to the present time been merely temporary and unsatisfactory and has in the main consisted in the administration of chemicals and drugs of various forms. In Renzyme there has been discovered the most rational and effective treatment for disordered digestion that has as yet been offered to sufferers of this complaint. The action of various animal and vegetable enzymes and ferments in digestion has long been known to scientists and for years has been utilized commercially in the preparation of various foods. We know that the food is acted upon by these enzymes and broken into simpler compounds so that these may be easily assimilated by the body and used for heat, energy and replacing the worn out tissues.

Renzyme is a scientific combination of all the enzymes and ferments necessary to the digestion of all kinds of foods. It consists of the natural animal and vegetable ferments such as are secreted during digestion by the healthy digestive glands, unadulterated by any chemical or drug. The process of digestion does not vary in different individuals as it is an exact scientific biochemical process. The digestive disturbances enumerated above are largely the result of absence or deficiency of these enzymes. The rational treatment for these disturbances, therefore, is to supply these ferments to the human organism. Renzyme supplies this deficiency and not only does it furnish these lacking ferments but it acts as a hormone stimulating the natural flow of juices in the digestive organs and thus gradually restores these organs to their proper functions.

In recent years the treatment of disease by means of glandular preparations has advanced rapidly. One need only recall the benefits that have followed the discovery of insulin. We believe that in Renzyme there is found a glandular enzyme, which will prove equally as successful in its own field.

It is recommended in all cases of overeating, faulty diet, disordered digestion or where there is a deficiency of the natural juices as is evidenced by symptoms of flatulence, heartburn, sense of fullness after meals, lack of appetite, etc. It will also prove invaluable in restoring and aiding the weakened digestive functions of invalids, convalescents and aged people.

A Bottle of Milk & a Bath"

AVIATOR CHARLES A. LINDBERGH unwittingly furnished the dairy industry with the prize slogan of the age when he uttered his first boyish request after reaching the home of Ambassador Herrick in Paris, thinks A. M. Loomis, Secretary of the American Dairy Federation.

"A bottle of milk and a bath"—what a sensible request! And every newspaper in America reported it.

Refusing all stimulants and other luxuriant preparations made with the best of intentions for his health and comfort upon the completion of his epochal flight, Colonel Lindbergh asked for that which, according to Mr. Loomis, is the best stimulant nature ever provided for the individuals of the human race—"a bottle of milk and a bath."

"This is the finest tribute to the product of the American cow which has ever been paid" says the Dairy Federation Secretary. "It is no less a tribute to the character and to the physical and moral sense of the aviator."

Here Mr. Loomis puts a question to the industry. How can this slogan be used to be of the greatest value? In appraising its value to the dairy industry he says, "This slogan which the world's greatest flying champion has presented to the dairy industry is worth more to the industry than the prize money and the fame that he has won, is worth to himself. It is estimated that his victory over distance, the elements, and hitherto insurmountable obstacles is worth one million dollars in earning capacity. This may well be. He earned it fairly and well. But the value of the slogan he has given us, 'A bottle of milk and a bath,' is worth uncounted millions to the dairy industry.

ST. JOHN'S CENTENARY

A Memorial Service for those who had lived and served in the past in St. John's church, was held last evening in connection with the Centenary celebrations now being held. The People's Chimes rang out prior to the commencement, and an impressive service, in keeping with the memorial spirit, was offered up. There was a large attendance of parishioners and members of other congregations in the city. Members of the City Council were also present.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave was in charge of the service, and the vested choir was present, with F. G. Mann at the organ. An eloquent sermon was preached by Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers, M.A., rector of St. Matthews' church, Toronto. Rev. G. J. Bousfield sang Evensong, Rev. J. W. Gordon, pastor of St. Andrew's church, and president of the Ministerial Association, read the first Lesson, and Rev. Dr. T. J. Boyle, of Cobourg, read the second Lesson. The service was closed by Rev. T. J. O'Connor-Fenton, of Norwood. Other clergymen present in the chancel were Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' church, Rev. R. T. Dwelly of Young's Point, Rev. Rural Dean C. A. G. Spence of Apsley, and Rev. G. S. Schovell, of Agincourt.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave, announcing the presence here on Sunday of the Rt. Rev C. A. Seager, Lord Bishop of Ontario, to preach at both services, also alluded to the flowers on the altar last evening, placed there in memory of the late Mrs. Dean and the late Mr. and Mrs. Layfield.

Dr. Blagrave read letters of congratulation on the completion of one hundred years of service at St. John's church, received from the Session of St. Andrew's church and the Board of George Street church, and announced the holding of a short service at the church on Monday afternoon at five o'clock, to which all the clergy of the city are invited, as well as the lay members of city congregations.

Taking his text from the fourth Epistle of St. Paul to the Ephesians, the 11th verse, "And He gave some apostles and some prophets and some evangelists and some pastors and teachers for the perfecting of the saints for the work of the ministry for the edification of the Body of Christ," Rev. Canon Sawers spoke of what the church of God stands for; firstly, for fellowship.

"We do not come into the world as individuals," said the reverend preacher, "but as members of a family. We should think of ourselves as members of a living organism and when one member suffers, the other members suffer. When one member is glorified, all the other members are glorified also. Tertullian said of the early Christians: "See how these Christians love one another" Could that be said of modern Christians, except ofttimes in the spirit of mockery?"

Secondly, the church stands for service. "It is not a selfish ownership of a great stewardship. The church looks upon her ministry not as a goblet to be drained, but as a measure to be filled. We should say, "Not what I can get, but what I can give."

"Again, the church stands for the edifying of the body of Christ. St. Paul had this thought of the church when he regarded every member as a living stone to be built up into a great structure, whose completion will be in God's good time and shall stand as a witness to His work before the world.

"In our service here to-night, we are thinking of those who have gone before us and are waiting in the great Church Expectant in Paradise, those who fought the good fight, who kept faith, and who finished their course. There are many memorials in this old church to those who have left us, but there are memorials in our hearts also to the thousands unknown who served here in the past and are now in the presence of God.

"When I think of St. John's church, I think of the words: "O worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness." The worship at this church has always been of such a dignified and beautiful nature. I know that the worship of the Creator can be carried on just as truly and well in the barest meeting house as in the grandest cathedral of our land, but still we must not forget that beautiful surroundings often held the mind to look up to God.

"And also in St. John's there has never been the spirit that is content to think only of "me and mine." The fact that the People's Chimes for this church had sixteen hundred subscribers is a proof of the good fellowship that exists between it and other members of the community. The outlook of its congregation has been something in the spirit of John Wesley's utterance, when he said: "The world is my parish.' It is not compromise for the sake of unity, but comprehension for the sake of truth. In things that are essential there is to be unity, in things non-essential there is to be liberty, but in all things there is to be charity, and that, I believe, has been the moving spirit in this congregation.

"Those who stand outside and criticize the church should come inside and seek to remedy the defects that they seem to see so easily."

Rev. Canon Sawers closed with a reference to the time when another diocese might be created in this section of the province, and to the hope that the old mother church of St. John's might be the cathedral church of that diocese. "We look back to the glorious associations of the past here, we glory in the vital faith of the present and look forward to the future with its expectation of freedom."

(By a Member of the Safety Committee.)

Nine hundred and eighty cars approached stop signs in this city during the half-hour between 5.30 and 6 o'clock last Friday afternoon: 509 of them came to a complete stop, 312 of them slowed down, and 159 disobeyed the stop signs.

This check-up of motor car drivers made this week by members of the Kiwanis Club gives an accurate survey of the actual behaviour of car drivers at all stop street intersections.

The figures are interesting in two ways. It is a matter of pride that over 50 per cent. of all drivers not only obeyed the spirit of the law, but the very letter of the law. On many corners a driver might reasonably feel that to slow down and change into low gear would be sufficient, and doubtless most police magistrates would agree, but we have evidence of the loyal observance of a civic by-law which indicates very clearly that the majority of drivers appreciate and obey the new law.

The second observation must take notice of the 159 drivers who disregarded the law. The analysis of the figures does not show that the distant and quiet corners were the places where caution was not required. The corners where most offenders were noticed were on Aylmer at Hunter and Charlotte, on Water Street at Hunter, and at George and Charlotte, all busy corners. A suspicion arises that the offenders are few in number but consistent in their disobedience to the law. Hunter Street is the place of most offences, and at the three intersections, Aylmer, George, and Water Streets, there were 43 records of absolute disregard — in all probability this is accounted for by cars going through disregarding all signs and being checked up at each of the three points.

It should be kept in mind that one accident is enough to kill. The vast majority of cars and drivers are never involved in any accident, but the one foolish driver and the one car unfit for the road may do untold harm. Therefore, let the authorities curb the activities of those who consider themselves above the laws of the city and let no car be on a public thoroughfare unless it is in such condition as to be under the perfect control of the driver.

Police Comment.

In commenting on the figures, an officer of the Police Department called attention to the fact that no officers were on duty at any of the corners during the check-up. He said that a force consisting of thirteen men divided into three shifts could not possibly bring all offenders to task in a short space of time. However, the law is being enforced. When an officer notices an act of disobedience of the law, the number is taken, the case reported, and a fine results. A number of convictions have already been secured, and eventually all motorists who disregard the law will have to face the magistrate.

If motorists heed this warning the Kiwanis Club will have done a double service: First in the interests of safety secondly to the motorists themselves in enabling them to avoid the payment of a fine.

WOMEN'S COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

The last regular monthly meeting until September of the Local Council of Women was held on Thursday afternoon in the green room of the Y.W.C.A., the president, Mrs. H. C. Edwards, in the chair.

Reports were given by Mrs. J. Wearing and Mrs. N. D. Seaton, and Mrs. A. Stevenson reported for the Pageant Committee. Mrs. A. Mowat gave the report of Mrs. Ray for those engaged on work for the sewing committee. Discussion took place regarding the pageant, and the choice of a convenor to take charge of costumes was left to the committee. Different ladies volunteered to act as chaperones for the practices.

BIG STEP FORWARD IN NEW ESSEX SUPER-SIX CARS

New Models Received By Brewer Motor Sales, Local Distributors — Many Wonderful Imjrovemetns Creating New Sales.

New Essex Super-Six cars—larger, finer and more powerful—are announced by the Hudson Motor Car Co. The first of the new cars have arrived in the city, and are on display at Brewer Motor Sales, Hudson-Essex distributor.

This unexpected announcement embodies one of the dramatic automobile stories of the year. Since Essex was introduced the first of the year, the demand for the car has been continuously ahead of the number which could be manufactured, notwithstanding the largest schedule of cars in Essex history. Most companies would have been content with such remarkable business, but the Hudson-Essex organization decided both to improve the Essex still further and to enlarge the production facilities.

To accomplish this Essex manufacturing was suspended while there were actually thousands of buyers waiting for cars—a drastic action which gave full right-of-way to the improved models. These are now being shipped at the highest rate by far in Hudson-Essex history.

"The improvements in the new Essex" said Mr. Brewer, "affect both its performing ability and its appearance. The motor is improved in detail and enlarged in displacement. This is accomplished by adding one-quarter inch to the stroke the new dimensions being 2 11-16 by 4½ inches. The crankshaft is larger and heavier, the connecting rods redesigned, and the bearings enlarged to care for the aditional power loads.

"Experimental runs in the new Essex have shown it capable both of higher speed and of improved performance throughout its entire range. Maximum speed is now well above a mile-a-minute, while the company continues its assurance that the car may be safely driven at 50 miles an hour all day long.

"When it is considered that this performance is offered in a car the Canadian list price of which begins at $845, the remarkable advances in recent automobile design are given an outstanding example. Even at its best performance, the motor operates smoothly and without apparent effort.

Wonderful Improvements.

"The Essex motor retains its essential high-grade items: Aluminum pistons, all connecting rods balanced, a crank-shaft built under Hudson Super-Six principles, roller tappets, front end drive by an adjustable silent chain highly developed splash lubrication, etc.

"Essex bodies are more attractive throughout. The rear quarters of all enclosed cars—the coupe, the coach and the sedan—are rounded in pleasing curves. All these cars, too, are painted in handsome duo-tones. The wheels are an inch smaller, setting the whole car closer to the ground. Large sized tires give the whole half of the car a remarkably trim and rugged appearance.

"Upholstery is in fabrics of richer design and material than ever before used in Essex cars—resulting in a handsome and attractive interior. All enclosed cars have dome light, door pocket, rear vision mirror, window curtains, transmission anti-theft lock, and all instruments grouped under glass and indirectly lighted.

"An interesting advancement has been made in the seating arrangement of the coach. The right front seat is mounted on a mechanism which allows it to slide forward far enough so that passengers in the rear seat may leave or enter the car without disturbing the front seat rider. The action of this new device is entirely simple and positive, and adds decidedly to the convenience of the coach-type enclosed car.

Remarkable Low Prices Maintained.

List prices of new cars and current color combinations are: Essex speedabout—2-passenger—$845, entire body and hood in Sahara Sand; moulding and wheels Emerald; striping black, edged with red.

Essex coach and coupe—each $885; finished in two tones of gray. Moulding in black, with green centre and edged with straw color. Essex coupe trimmed with leather $20 extra.

Essex sedan—5-passenger — $1010; fixnished in two tones of gray. Moulding a deep green edged with white.

Mention of the school playgrounds was made by the president, but it was decided that no action should be taken in this regard.

Mrs. A. Mowat, seconded by Mrs. A. Stevenson, moved a resolution that the public be reminded that the curfew law is still in force and that the ladies might see what the authorities would do about ringing a bell, thus reminding parents of their responsibility.

Nominations for the Dominion National Council were considered, and it was moved that all the old officers be sponsored by this Council.

Mrs. Edwards mentioned various matters that came up for consideration, at the last meeing of the National Executive.

More Canadian-Built Chryslers delivered in One Month of 1927 than in the Entire Year of 1924

IN THE last three years, Canadians have shown such an eagerness for Chrysler ownership that Chrysler growth is registered in a sharply ascending line, while older concerns of large production have steadily given way.

Every year has witnessed an important increase in the volume of Chrysler production—176 per cent increase in 1925; 93 per cent increase in 1926. In March, 1927, there were actually more Chryslers produced in Canada than during the entire year of 1924 when Chrysler upset all precedents.

This increase is so tremendous and so impressive—so clearly an expression of public choice—so directly due to the discernment of the average Canadian on finer appearance, performance and value —that there is no need to draw a moral.

In order to meet Canadian requirements even more exactly and to keep pace with this constantly increasing demand, the Chrysler Corporation of Canada took over in January, 1927, an additional plant—securing 300% increased facilities and realizing the long cherished dream of having Chryslers built largely of Canadian materials in Canadian factories by Canadian workers.

It is Chrysler's determination to continue deserving this wide-spread confidence —to apply so rigidly the Chrysler principle of Standardized Quality that each succeeding year will find Chryslers still higher and higher in the esteem of the Canadian public.

COMING COMET IS TAIL-LESS

Pons-Winnecke's Discovery Will Be Useful as Measure For Astronomers.

LONDON, Eng., June 18. Canadian Press. — On June 27 another comet will temporarily "swim into our ken." Pons-Winnecke's comet will on that date make a record close approach to the earth, rubbing shoulders with us, in terms of the celestial universe, at a distance of 3,500,000 miles. While the visit of this wanderer of the heavens will probably lack any sensational element for the layman—it is not likely it will be visible to the naked eye—it may be of great scientific importance by helping in the astronomer's herculean task of measuring the distance of the earth from the sun.

Recent observations have shown that this comet possesses an almost point-like condensation of brightness. Dr. R. L. Waterfield points out that if the central condensation of light remains point like when the comet is nearest to us it will serve a very useful purpose.

"The distance of the sun is determined by measuring the distances of the nearest planets when they are very close to us," writes Dr. Waterfield in the News. "Both Mars and Venus have in the past been employed in this way; and in recent years the minute planet Eros which comes much nearer to us than any body except the moon, has given us the most accurate of all determinations as to the sun's distance.

"Now, it has been suggested that if only the comet retains in its centre a definite point of light, by means of which its position could be accurately determined from day to day, there would be an unparalleled opportunity for measuring the distance of the sun—for the comet will come a great deal nearer even than Eros. And this is of great importance for the sun's distance is the most fundamental measurement in astronomy. It is the line with which we make all our soundings of the universe."

One eventuality may frustrate the hopes of the astronomers, leaving the gauging of the sun's distance still dependent upon the diminutive Eros. Pons-Winnecke's comet may possibly fade out altogether before June 27th. In 1913 the comet Westphal played this trick upon terrestial scientists, after its advent had been widely heralded. In a single night it suddenly sank to the border line of visibility in the largest telescope.

One reason why Pons-Winnecke will not interest the lay public is that it possesses no tail. No matter how useful a comet may be in the matter of charting the heavens, it must possess a tail to win popular applause.

HIAWATHA NEWS

HIAWATHA, June 18.—Mr. John Coward has just finished erecting a new addition to his house. The contract was let to Mr. Norman Gainor of Keene, who with Robert Nelson and John Drummond had it completed on Thursday of last week.

The former kitchen was removed and in the new part it is enlarged. Three new rooms are in the addition which includes an up-to-date bathroom.

The building is of frame construction and finished inside with Gyproc, a wallboard prepared from lime and covered over with a coat of tough paper.

When using some old boards, Mr. Coward found an ancient piece of hardware. It makes a valuable addition to his already large collection of Indian skining knives and peace pipes and arrow heads.

He found a little shingle nail which he calculates is over a hundred years old as it was from a roof board of his great grandparents' home on Kent's Creek a little north of Mr. Coward's home.

The nail is over an inch in length and has a battered head. It is well preserved being securely fastened in a pine board.

Mr. Egerton Loukes has recently finished putting in a cedar hedge on his lawn. It makes a great improvement to his home.

He also has put in place sixty yards of new fence, along the front of his lot. It is made of long cedar poles with the bark removed.

A FAMILY MEDICINE.

A Welland Lady Tells of the Value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in Her Home.

"I have many reasons for praising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. George L. Swick, R.R. No. 2, Welland, Ont. "My first experience with this medicine was in my girlhood; when, following an attack of scarlet fever, I was left in a badly run down condition, and the pills restored me to good heath. Later in my married life I had a severe attack of rheumatism. The pain in my right arm and shoulder was so bad that I could not dress myself without help. Again I resorted to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and again they proved a blessing to me, as soon the rheumatic pains and stiffness diappeared and there has been no return of the trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have also been of great benefit to my children. One of my boys was threatened with St. Vitus dance. His limbs and face would twitch and jerk. I gave him the pills, and again they did not fail, as under the treatment the trouble ceased. I have also given the pills to my little girl, who was anaemic and in this case also with the greatest benefit. Naturally when I hear anyone complaining of not feeling well I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as I know of no other medicine to equal them in building up the blood and restoring health."

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism indigestion, neuralgia and other nervous troubles. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition, and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CAPTAIN LEIGH WAS IN COMMAND

Some Reminiscences of Fenian Raid Veterans From Lakefield.

LAKEFIELD, June 18.—In the account given in a recent issue of The Examiner of the county record of the Fenian Raid volunteers in 1866, it was stated that the Lakefield Company was in command of Captain Strickland. This was an error as Capt. Edward Leigh (afterwards Major Leigh) was in command of Lakefield's contingent who were conveyed by horses and wagon, voluntarily contributed, to join the larger group in Peterborough.

The bell of the old English church sounded the tocsin calling out the volunteers and those who were driving them on the first stage of their journey. Prior to their departure, Rev. Vincent Clementi, rector of the parish, addressed the men in the bar room of Blakeley's hotel, charging them to maintain British tradition and assuring them of the prayers and support of those who remained behind.

There are four survivors of Lakefield's quota to that volunteer band who gallantly repelled the invasion of the enemy. These men whose names have a place on Lakefield's roll of honor are: John Edwards Sr., Alexander Fairbairn, Alexander Fitzgerald (now of Peterboro), and Thomas Wallace.

SAINT and SINNER

They paused before the smart, modern new house on Serenity Boulevard, in Enfield Addition, and looked at it as if they had never seen it before. It looked very large and splendid to Faith Hathaway, after the shabby, ramshackle little house in Myrtle street, where she had spent the last ten years of her life. Finished in a creamy-tan stucco, with its dark-red tile roof, in the flat, ungabled Spanish style, it looked warm and friendly and homelike, for all its newness. A deep porch, supported by big, square pillars with Doric bases, filled up the shallow L made by the jutting out of the front bedroom beyond hall and living room.

"I adore it," Faith said, with a catch in her breath. "Oh, have you a key?" she asked in a small panic. "I left mine in my old purse—"

"I have a key!" he laughed at her. "Come along, Mrs. Hathaway, and inspect your new home. I polished the living room and dining room floors this morning, and had lots of fun running the vacuum cleaner. It sings a funny, deep, growling song."

She knew he was talking at random, to hide his embarrassment. Maybe Bob was afraid, too; maybe he, too, trembled on the threshold of marriage—

She saw that his strong, lean fingers were trembling as they lifted the shiny new key into the shiny new Yale lock. She wanted to stoop and kiss his fingers, his dear, dear fingers—

"Than't heaven, the electric lights are connected," he commented in a husky voice as he switched on the hall light.

With his arm about her waist, Bob led her into the big living room, with its beamed ceiling, and its warm, tan walls. A deep fireplace took up half the west wall, the remainder of the space, on each side of the fireplace, being taken up with built-in book shelves, already well stocked with Bob's library. Beneath the great arch of the front windows was a long, deep couch, upholstered in tapestry. A long, slim-armed, aristocratic looking Cogswell chair, an enormous wing chair, three "occasional" chairs, tabourets, an upholstered bench or two, a Sheraton desk, a radio cabinet, and a baby grand piano—Bob's wedding gift to Faith—comprised the furniture of the living room.

"You haven't said yet that you love me—not since we were married," he reproached her. "You've kept me at arm's length. Don't look as if you are afraid of me. Let me see your eyes! And then say it! Say, 'Bob, I love you'." He held her so tightly that she could scarcely move sufficiently to reach up a hand to touch his crisp, chestnut hair.

"Bob," her voice quivered. "Oh, Bob, my darling, I love you!" She raised her eyes to him then, and they were heavy and misty with passion. Her body felt weak and limp, as if she would fall if he loosened his hold. But his arms strained her even more tightly to him; his head dropped suddenly to her breast, and her hands, languid with love, cupped his flushed cheeks, the tips of her fingers following the line of his strong, thick, golden-brown eyebrows.

The instinctive reserve that had made her always lift her lips from his while he was still drinking thirstily of love, melted then. As he lifted his face, his eyes burning and almost fierce in their demands, she laid her mouth against his of her own accord, heard, through the pounding of her pulses, a glad cry from her heart: "Why, I'm his wife now! It's all right! I'm his wife, his wife!"

Uncle Wiggily

By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story.

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNTY'S BLOCKS

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
(By Howard R. Garis.)

Baby Bunty, the cute little orphan rabbit child, had come to pay another visit to Uncle Wiggily in his hollow stump bungalow.

"If everybody who owed me money would pay me as quickly as Baby Bunty pays me a visit I'd be a rich rabbit!" chuckled Mr. Longears when he heard Bunty come in.

"Of course I am," answered the bunny uncle. "But she is such a little tyke—always playing tricks on me."

By this time the little rabbit girl had hopped up to Uncle Wiggily's door and she heard what he said about her.

"I'm not going to tease you now, Unkie Wig!" lisped Bunty, making some baby talk. "I brought my blocks an' I'm going to play wif 'em!"

There was the Burglar Fox!

"My! You're turning into a baby again!" laughed Uncle Wiggily.

"Bunty has been ill!" whispered Mrs. Longears to her husband. "We must humor her and not cross her—Dr. Possum said so!"

"Oh, all right!" agreed the bunny gentleman. So while he went out to look for an adventure Baby Bunty sat down on the kitchen floor to play with her blocks. Nurse Jane didn't exactly like Baby Bunty in the middle of her kitchen floor playing with blocks, but since Bunty had been ill she was allowed to do pretty nearly as she pleased.

So, though the muskrat lady stepped on one block and nearly fell down when she was carrying a pie across the kitchen, still she did not find fault. Nurse Jane just smiled at Bunty, who was making a house of her blocks.

"Nurse Jane is funny!" chuckled Bunty. "She 'mos' fell! Do it again. Here's more blocks!"

But Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy did not want to step on any more, so she jumped over the pile Bunty had made. After a while Bunty grew tired of playing with her blocks and went to lie down and take a nap. Then Mrs. Longears, going into the kitchen, stumbled over the block house and bumped her nose.

"Oh, Baby Bunty! You should not leave your blocks in the way like that!" squeaked Nurse Jane, and when the little orphan rabbit awakened and began to cry, Mrs. Longears, rubbing her nose, whispered:

"Hush! Don't cross her! Baby Bunty has been ill. When she gets well we'll take her blocks away. But not now."

So it went on all day. Baby Bunty played with her blocks first in one room and then in another. She would leave them right in the middle of the floor where some one would stumble over them.

At last night came, but before going to bed Baby Bunty made a tall tower of her blocks in the front hall.

"But if you are going to sleep," said Uncle Wiggily, who had come back to the bungalow, not having found an adventure, "if you are going to sleep, Bunty, I'll pick up your blocks."

"No! No! Wah! Wah!" fretfully cried Bunty. "Leave 'um blocks where 'um is!" and she talked worse baby talk than before.

"Don't tease her!" whispered Mrs. Longears.

Uncle Wiggily twinkled his pink nose but said nothing. So the blocks were left in the middle of the hall and everybody going upstairs had to jump over them.

"I must have a talk with Baby Bunty in the morning!" thought Mr. Longears. "It is all right to be kind to her, but there is a limit!"

It grew darker and darker in Woodland. At last it was the middle of the night. Every one in the bungalow was asleep, when, all of a sudden there was a great crashing sound in the lower hall.

"Somebody is takin' my blocks! Stop 'um! Stop 'um!" cried Baby Bunty suddenly waking up.

Uncle Wiggily took his flashlight, made of lightning bugs in a bottle, and went downstairs, thinking all sorts of things had happened. And in the middle of the floor he saw Baby Bunty's block tower all scattered about and on top of the blocks, where he had fallen and sprained his leg so he couldn't get up to run away, was the burglar Fox!

"Oh, ho!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "I see what happened. The Fox sneaked in the front room in the middle of the night. He didn't know Bunty's blocks were in the hall, and he's stumbled and fell over them. Bunty's blocks were as good as a burglar alarm!"

Then the Police Dog came and arrested the burglar Fox and everybody in the bungalow went back to bed. And the next day they let Bunty leave her blocks scattered wherever she pleased. But in a few days she was well again and didn't play with them any more.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

In the sketch some of the new pearl jewelry is shown. There is a rope of tiny seed pearls with a tassel, a choker of pink and gray pearls alternating, a necklace of small pearls with brilliants set in leaves of small pearls, terminating in brilliants, and a rope of flat pearls.

June birthdays are supposed to give a special privilege to wear pearls, but nowadays everyone wears pearls—of a sort. In fact, so far as jewelry fashions go the present decade might be called the pearl age, and some student of fashion psychology of the future may go to much pains to account for the amazing vogue for pearls that has prevailed during these post-bellum days. The fact may be that women have always liked to wear pearls, because of their peculiar quality of enhancing the beauty of the skin against which they rest, and the only reason they wear them more lavishly now is because such great advances have been made in the manufacture of artificial pearls.

The old idea was that pearls were the emblem of chastity—just as rubies were the emblem of ardent love and the sun, jade of good luck, sapphires of truth, and topaz of friendship. Because of the association of the pearl with the idea of purity it would undoubtedly have been used for engagement rings were it not for the fact that pearls are difficult to set in rings securely. They have a way of working loose—and there is something of ill-omen about the falling of the stone of the engagement ring, quite apart from the intrinsic loss involved.

Pearl rings are not so very much worn—in fact, rings are not especially important nowadays. There is something old fashioned in the appearance of fingers laden down with a number of rings. But pearl necklaces and pearl armlets and pearl earrings are in great demand.

While the vogue for pearls remains with us the fashion of setting pearls changes from season to season. Six months ago baroque pearls were much newer than regular pearls, and small pearls seemed more distinguished than the enormous pearls that had been worn. The important thing now seems to be to have your pearl jewelry of a rather intricate sort.

If you have a necklace of good large pearls you may have it restrung with a small rondelle of crystal placed between each two pearls—or rondelles of jet may be used at regular intervals. Rubies—imitation no doubt—are used to give the new note of contrast in some of the new pearl jewelry.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)
FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 19, 1927

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day in which adverse planetary influences dominate.

Women are well directed under this sway, although they may have a tendency toward independence that is irritating to men.

There is an auspicious sign for romance and love affairs in which women may be inclined to take the initiative.

This is held to be a lucky rule for marriage engagements and betrothals made while this configuration prevails are likely to be binding.

There is an aspect favorable to marriage today, which shows possibilities for success in which there may be difficulties to overcome.

Men are subject to planetary influences that accent their natural egotism, it is asserted by the seers. Husbands may be unusually trying while this sway continues.

Quarrels may be easily started today and for this reason families will do well to pass the hours out of doors and away from household worries.

Churches may suffer from lack of interest today when the stars incline the mind toward material interests.

A sceptical or questioning attitude may be apparent to preachers and teachers, who will perhaps find it difficult to obtain the right response in appeal to the spiritual side of humanity.

The Moon today is in a sign supposed to increase the tendency toward an easy going existence.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have some new connection with a government building or a public institution.

Children born on this day may have extraordinary ability and they are likely to be ahead of their time.

MONDAY, JUNE 20, 1927

Rather sinister influences prevail today, according to astrology, which interprets the planetary rule as unfavorable.

There may be forces in the business world that seems to impede progress while this rule prevails, but conditions are really most auspicious for the future, the seers declare.

Merchants may find it wise to delay important matters, especially expansion or generous buying.

Under this direction of the stars it is well to listen to the advice of women who may have wise vision about the future.

Farmers may encounter conditions that cause apprehension, but all the signs appear to presage a profitable season for them.

Prices of many staples will rise and it is to be expected that gasoline will not be cheap, if Neptune's position is rightly read.

Oil and all its by-products will be more in demand than in the past, owing to world events that increase demand.

Again the stars forbid going into debt and all the signs appear to be against financial risks of every sort.

All who desire to take advantages of the help of the stars will practice thrift, which astrologers have preached constantly.

Girls may find it more difficult than usual to make a good impression on eligible young men, for the planetary rule encourages critical judgment of brains as well as beauty.

Return to nature's unaided charms is prognosticated, and the sale of cosmetics is to be greatly affected, it is foretold.

Under this direction of the stars a new type of light fiction may develop and periodicals may introduce novel innovations.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the best possible outlook for the coming year in which the right sort of employment appears to be assured.

Children born on this day have the augury of happiness and success, but they may be rather difficult to handle.

The old palace in Berlin, not having been used as a residence since 1888, is so cluttered with brica-brac that only three rooms will be available for Hermine, ex-Kaiser's wife.

Crescents Leading in East Peterboro League

RALLY IN 7TH INNING TO GAIN 7-4 VICTORY OVER RAYBESTOS

Both Teams Show Plenty of Action Throughout the Game.

FIELDING GOOD.

Rays Garner Only Two Hits Off Crescent Hurler.

A real old-fashioned rally in the seventh by which they scored a 7 to 4 victory over Raybestos at Exhibition Park last evening, sent Crescents to the front in the East Peterborough League. It was great baseball all along the way, with plenty of action on the bases, another good pitching performance by Jack Billingsley, some sharp hitting by the Crescents and stellar fielding plays from both teams.

Masterson had three bad frames, his control being poor throughout the greater part of the contest, and, while Billingsley also wavered, he was strong in the pinches. The Rays did not get on base until the fourth and they garnered only two hits. The Rays did not get on base until the fourth and they garnered only two hits. Rogers' single in the sixth driving in two of the four runs.

Four hits, three of them in a row, by Crescents in the seventh, gave them the game.

First Innings

Crescents went out in a hurry. Masterson threw out Joe Jones, LeBarr flew to Corrin and Nicholls threw out Kenneally, a smart play.

Second Innings

Scully struck out and Ranger was dead-headed. Corbett slapped one across second, and F. Jones skied to H. Nicholls. Mein hit cleanly through second to score Ranger and Corbett. Billingsley fanned.

Raybestos went out in a row, Rogers giving Joe Jones a hard chance, which the outfielder went back after and copped.

Third Innings

Masterson fanned J. Jones and LeBarr and took Kenneally's tap. Rays were still unable to fathom Billingsley's shoots and were easily retired in order.

Fourth Innings

Crescents got another run. Scully scratched a hit off Jack Baird, who was lucky to knock it down. Ranger was passed, and Corbett singled to centre, filling the bases. Masterson was wild and he walked F. Jones to force in Scully. With the bags still loaded, Mein struck out. On Billingsley's tap to the box, Masterson got Ranger at the plate. J. Jones grounded out, Conners to Johnston.

Baird got on when Ranger threw badly to first. Conners' foul was taken by Kenneally, and O. Nicholls grounded out via Ranger. Corrin also fouled out to the catcher.

Fifth Innings

Masterson came back strong and disposed of Crescents, only four batsmen facing him, H. Nicholls doing some nice work at third.

Raybestos scored a pair of runs after two were down. Rogers was passed and H. Nicholls fanned. Johnston fouled out to Kenneally, a fine play by the catcher. Rogers going to second on the catch. Holland was hit. The runners advanced and when Ranger tossed wide to LeBarr following Masterson's grounder, Rogers scored easily, and Holland slid in as Kenneally went down and lost the ball.

Raybestos tallied and gained the lead. Baird was fossed out by Ranger. Conners was passed and O. Nicholls singled through second. Jack LeBarr went down holding Corrin's foul fly. Rogers singled into right to score Conners and Nicholls. Before the hit, Nicholls tried to get the Crescents throwing the ball in an effort to squeeze Conners in from third but Kenneally refused the bait. H. Nicholls struck out.

Seventh Innings

Crescents put over a great rally to win out in the seventh. Billingsley started in right by singling into left. J. Jones fanned, but "Bun" Frost, batting for LeBarr, drew a walk. Scully looped one into right to score Billingsley and tie the count. Frost tallied when Ranger upset H. Nicholls with a vicious drive, and Scully and Ranger went in when Corbett hit over second. The return of the ball caught Corbett between first and second and he was finally tagged by Johnston.

Scully threw out Johnston and Frost did not have to move for Holland's liner. Masterson was nit and Baird fanned to end the game.

NEWSBOYS WIN FROM DE LAVAL

AIR-TIGHT BALL.

By defeating the De Laval '5 to 5 at Central Park last night, The Examiner won for themselves a place in the post series games which are to be played at the completion of the schedule.

Last night's fixture was a great battle. For five innings the teams battled along with only one run difference The Examiner having the odd run. Then the Newspaper boys broke loose and scored thirteen runs in the last four innings.

Dormer twirled for The Examiner and turned in a wonderful performance. Four hits were all the Separator boys could collect off his delivery. He was backed by air-tight support from his infield, Bradshaw at third, Parsons at short, Baker at second, and Taylor at first going the entire game with only one error. Everyone of them turned in a great exhibition. Dugan's work behind the bat was one of the bright lights of the game. He held Dormer up in great style and his snaring of foul balls helped his battery mate considerably.

Kennedy tossed them in for the De Laval and was touched for twelve hits besides issuing five walks, Dugan getting four of them. His teammates awarded him indifferent support, falling down badly in the pinches.

Baker and Taylor collected three hits each, the former having a home run. Fowler was the heavy hitter for the Separator crew collecting two hits, one being a homer.

The teams lined up as follows:

Umpires—LeBarr and Haskill.

RALLY IN NINTH TO DEFEAT PIRATES

Boston Braves Gain Two Run Lead For 8-7 Victory.

NEW YORK, June 18. Canadian Press. — A ninth inning two run rally gave Boston an 8 to 7 victory at Pittsburgh yesterday. The Pirates rallied in their half but could push over only one run. Joe Dawson, purchased from Louisville made his first appearance in a Pittsburgh uniform, relieving Johnny Morrison in the seventh. Dawson was charged with the defeat. The Braves pounded three Pirate hurlers for 18 hits. Paul Wanar hit safely in his twentieth consecutive game.

Clarence Mitchell, star southpaw of the Phillies, let Chicago down with six hits while his team mates hammered three local twirlers hard for a 2 to 2 victory, which broke the winning streak of the Cubs, who had won 12 games in a row. The locals were able to bunch hits in only one inning. Wrightstone led the attack for the visitors with a home run, a double and a single, while Mokan collected two doubles and a single.

Bill Doak pitched Brooklyn to a 5 to 3 victory at Cincinnati yesterday giving the Robins two out of three in the present series clash. Herman tripled off Donohue with one in the sixth and then scored on a double by Feliz. Staz singled through the box to drive in another run in the seventh and the Dodgers put across two more in the ninth.

Only three games scheduled.

Inside Sportin Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, as the customers seen from the paper Mon. the Petes has been in a ball game at last, and while they didn't exactly cover themselves with glory, anyway they got the season started about a month late, and that is something. The game was something like this Government control; the boys had waited for it so long that when they got it it wasn't what they expected. If they had of only taken 1 bat along they'd have had plenty of hardwood for all they did with their clubs, but as they say in the big show, you can't hit what you can't see, and the lads couldn't see much Sat. against Oshawa. Mister Matthews, the big bozo on the hilltop for the Motors, had a pet curve working smooth, and as the Petes hadn't seen a hook in action since last year, all they could make up there at the plate was funny motions. They's other games coming, and the next time the lads hook up with Mister Matthews they say they're going to knock him loose from his sweat shirt. Some Oshawa folks at that claim that Mister Matthews ain't no pitcher, but he'll do till the Oshawa club gets 1 anyway.

The General Motors is under the management of Mister Billy Benson, who used to guess 'em on the Central Ont. staff of hi-jackers. If Mister Benson makes as many mistakes bossing a ball team as he used to empiring, they'll need a passenger elevator to get the Motors outa the cellar before the season is over.

Well, Mac, I suppose you been busy all week counting the No. of cases of Sandy Mac and Old Parr and Johnny Walker that has been passing up Geo. st. Funny, I seen 1 load going up the main stem the other day and nobody recognized it, except 1 bird with a glare-light effect to his nose, who tipped his hat respectfull like as the parade passed. They was a gleam in his eye as he read the inscription on the cases that suggested he recognized a lotta old friends. But otherwise the truck-load of hootch attracted no more attention than a Ford in Detroit, though it's been a long time since such a consignment of bottled headaches has been driven through the streets.

1 of the softball fans pulled a wise 1 the other day when he heard Mister Joe Dunkerly was issuing permits. Mister Dunkerly is the heaver of the leading Lock Works gang, and this bird said that if Joe issued permits as fast as he did passes in the last game against the Belmonts the stock in Mister Hanna's Peterborough branch wouldn't last no time. Poisnally, as my friend Governor Al. Smith would say, I think this guy is all wet. He should of said that if the permits Mister Dunkerly issued was as hard to cash in as the passes the Belmonts got the 1st week's sale could be toted home on a kiddy car.

Don't forget, Mac, this is Safety Week, so don't try to pull anything on the ball and chain about sitting up with a sick friend unless you're fixed like Mister Charlie Levine, with a aeroplane waiting to hop off to Europe with you.

Well, here's to crime.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

P. S.—Some inquisitive bird writes in to say that Mister Shiner Johnston played ball for Peterborough the 1st Dominion Day celebration here. He's wrong. They wasn't no ball game played here that day.—A. W. C.

STARKVILLE WINS.

Welcome is Defeated in a League Game 4 Runs to 3.

WELCOME, June 13.—Welcome played her third League game, when on Wednesday evening the baseball team and a goodly number of rooters journeyed to Starkville to play ball.

A great crowd of spectators had gathered to witness the game as this was the first one of the season between Welcome and Starkville teams, in the League series.

The suns' rays struck directly the gaze of those in the field, especially the man on first base, who found it extremely difficult to catch any balls sent to him.

The first inings ended with one run for Welcome and none for Starkville. But in the second Starkville made two runs. Not until the sixth and seventh did Welcome bring in runs, but she pulled in one in each of these innings. However Starkville had gained in the fourth by getting two more runs so they did not play their part of the seventh inning. The score stood 4-3 in favor of Starkville.

Welcome's pitcher, Jack Haskill, again played up to his part well by sending the ball over speedily and in the right place. In contrast with him stood Starkville's pitcher, L. Savery, who, altough he had some fine balls, walked several and hit three Welcome players.

A good time was evident after the game, when light refreshments were served by Starkville young ladies.

SEVENTH LINE WINS.

Villiers Team is Defeated 10 to 6 in Baseball Game.

MATHER'S CORNERS, June 18.—A friendly but hotly contested baseball match was played on Wednesday evening at Villiers, when the young men there endeavored to get a larger number of runs than the players from the Seventh Line who were managed by Eric Kimbal.

The score was 10-6 for the Seventn Line.

Battery for Villiers were John Woods and Harold Elmhirst and for the Seventh Line Earl Kimbal and Ernest Henderson.

Umpires were James Richardson and John Hastie.

Eldon Kimbal and Ernest Henderson both starred bringing in two runs.

WHITEHOUSE IS IN GREAT FORM

Peterborough Southpaw Has Won Six Out of Seven So Far.

Peterborough baseball fans will be glad to learn that Frankie Whitehouse, the local southpaw pitcher, is having a good season with the Clarksburg West Virginia club of the Mid-Atlantic League. Whitehouse became a free agent when the Grand Rapids M.O. team disbanded and hooked up with Clarksburg. So far this season he has hung up a record of six wins out of seven starts. He has won his last five games, one of them a thirteen innings affair. His team is in this position in the League race.

YANKEES WIN 6TH STRAIGHT

Shocker Holds Browns To Four Hits For 3 to 2 Win.

WHITE SOX LOSE 8-3.

NEW YORK, June 18.—(Canadian Press.)—The New York Yankees won their sixth straight game of the season from St. Louis yesterday by 3 to 2, the veteran spitball pitcher Urban Shocker holding the Browns to four hits. The deciding run came in the eighth when Moreheart scratched an infield single, took second on Nevers' wild throw, third on another wild peg by Rice, and scored on Durst's sacrifice fly. Ruth played only one inning, retiring because of a wrenched leg wrich he injured while swinging at a third strike Thursday.

At Philadelphia the home team upset the Chicago White Sox by 8 to 3, Rube Walberg triumphing on the mound over Charley Barnabe, a recruit southpaw, and Ted Blankenship. The Mackmen broke a string of 20 consecutive scoreless innings by registering four runs in the fourth frame. Walberg fanned seven of the pale hose and allowed only three after the third inning, one of which was a home run by Sheely in the ninth.

The Cleveland Indians celebrated Bunker Hill Day at Boston with a double victory over the Red Sox, 6 to 3, and 4 to 3. Hudlin's pitching and batting were the deciding factors in the first game, the pitcher having a share in three of the Cleveland runs. In the second game Walter Miller held the Red Sox to two hits until the eighth when they made three runs with none out. With a man on second Shaute went in and shut out the Boston team for the remainder of the game.

Take Second Game.

Lisenbee, the recruit from Memphis, pitched another good ball game at Washington and Washington took the second game of the series from Detroit, 3 to 1. Anther Washington recruit, Reeves, who came here from Georgia Tech, helped win the game with a single in the fourth which brought in two runs and put the Senators in the lead. Manager Harris announced he had sold outright to the Jersey City International League Club Dick Snelling, pitcher recently drawn from Dayton University.

LEAFS BREAK LOSING STREAK

BEARS WIN 5-1.

NEW YORK, June 18 (Canadian Press).—Bouncing on Buckalew early for four runs in the first two frames the Toronto Leafs opened their series at Jersey City yesterday with a 6 to 1 victory. Radwan and Whitman, who came to the Jerseys in a swap with Buffalo on Thursday, made their debut in the locals' uniform, and Radwan's single in the fourth helped Moore score the lone Jersey City run of the afternoon.

Mamaux's fine pitching gave the Bears their fifth consecutive victory at Newark over the Buffalo Bisons by the score of 5 to 2. After the first frame, when the Buffalo team scored two runs, the league leaders were helpless, and scored but three hits after the initial canto. Doubles by Mackin, Kingdon and Elliott's home run drive were the features of the game, the three infielders driving in all the Newark runs.

With the score tied at one-all and the bases loaded in the seventh, Catcher Lake drove the ball over Baltimore's fence, giving the Orioles a four-run winning lead over Rochester in the first game of the series, which ended 5 to 3. Groh, Horne and Head of the visitors and Brower of the locals were sent to the showers for arguments with the umpire.

Pounding Rube Parnham hard in the first two innings, Syracuse took the first of the series at Reading, 6 to 0. Each team got eight hits. Stephen Woodgie, a rookie from Mount St. Mary's College, pitched for Reading after the second and allowed only three hits in seven frames.

COOPER LOST OUT ON LAST HOLE IN U.S. OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY

Armour Wins Title By the Decisive Score of 76-79.

CLOSELY CONTESTED.

Fifty Foot Putt on Fifteenth Starts Tommy on His Triumph.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 18 (Canadian Press). — Tommy Armour, of Washington, D.C., doughty, steel-nerved son of golf's native domain, yesterday became the open champion of the United States.

In a comeback as flashing and dramatic as the finish that carried him to a tie the day before, the lean, war-scarred Scottish professional broke the heart of the dashing and sleek-haired Los Angeles professional, Harry Cooper, captured their 18-hole play-off for the title by a margin of three strokes and stepped to the throne that Bobby Jones had left in the sand traps of Oakmont's embattled terrain.

Armour triumphed by the decisive score of 76 to 79 for the final round that broke the deadlock in which they finished on Thursday in 301 strokes for the regulation 72 holes of tournament competition, and send the coveted silver trophy cup to the mantel of the fashionable Congressional Country Club, where Tommy is the pro.

Armour clinched the match yesterday on the sixteenth hole where the former Hamilton caddy fought a losing battle with Oakmont's sand, and forfeited two strokes, but it was a 55-foot putt on the hole before that put Tommy back in the fight, and a spectacular chip shot dead to the pin on the seventeenth that saved the title for the lanky, straw-hatted Scot.

The drama of Armour's triumph was enacted about these three treacherous holes, the "Waterloos" of many a previous championship hope in the three preceding days. Armour was a stroke behind Cooper going to the 475 yard fifteenth hole, a margin that the Los Angeles pro had gained by a flying start on the last nine, checked only when Armour regained one of the shots on the short thirteenth.

Both found traps going to the fifteenth green, and were on in three shots each, their balls some fifty feet from the cup. But Armour, shooting first, sent a long, curling putt straight to the hole, the longest and most spectacular of the day, and caught his rival, as "Light Horse" Harry just missed his own bid for a four.

Nip and Tuck Fight.

Until Armour staged his fighting spurt and Cooper's game momentarily collapsed on the sixteenth hole, it was a stirring nip and tuck fight for the championship, a see-saw tussle that had a gallery of more than 5,000 enthusiasts swarming over Oakmont's bunkers fighting for places of vantage and surging in rows six and seven deep around the greens. At first it was an uphill fight for Cooper, for Armour bagged a birdie four on the first hole to jump off in front and at intervals lost or regained that slight margin as "Light Horse" Harry always dangerous, kept in the battle and wound up the home-coming nine with a birdie four himself on the home green to square the match.

Here it seemed the Pacific Coast star, British-born and American schooled, was about to gallop to the title, for he was brilliantly accurate on the tenth and eleventh to gain a stroke on each, once as Armour, straying from the line, got into trouble. Tommy banged his way from one trap to another on the eleventh, but saved himself from worse disaster by remarkable recoveries each time.

Cooper began finding trouble on the short thirteenth, after they had halved the long twelfth in fives. Harry's iron shot from the tee trickled off the green and he took two putts after chipping back on, while Armour regained a stroke with a par three.

Perhaps this unexpected "break" upset Cooper, for his tee shot was wild and caught a trap off the edge of the sixteenth green and his chances slipped fast as he failed to get out on his explosion shot, finally chipped short, and required two putts for a disastrous five. Armour, too, was in a bit of trouble, the rough just off the green, but he chipped close and sank his par three to jump to a lead that seemed too great for Cooper to overcome in two holes.

Lost On Last.

The "Light Horse" of the links had one more shot up his sleeve, and it was only his opponent's greatness that prevented the Los Angeles star's final bid from making good. Going to the 302 yard seventeenth, both were fifty yards from the green with their tee shots. Cooper raised a mighty roar by firing his chip straight to the hole, the ball stopping only a foot away and assuring a birdie three. Undaunted and unperturbed, Armour, with a trap between him and the hole, shot straight for the flag, and a mightier roar went up as his ball landed two inches inside Cooper's.

It was the sort of an iron shot, though much shorter, that had given Armour his birdie three on the final green to tie Cooper on Thursday, and when it landed, Harry knew his last hopes of a national title were crushed.

Armour had met a champion's test with a champion's shot, and it was an anti-climax as this master of iron play clinched the title, adding one more stroke to his lead with a par four on the last hole to Cooper's five. But there was enough shouting anyway. Armour, his restraint gone, was grabbed by his brother, Sandy Armour, and Bobby Cruickshank, the diminutive Scottish star who started the tournament among the foremost favourites and finished it as an adviser to the victor.

Miller Huggins, manager of the New York Yankees, is a mite as to physique, but mighty as to deeds of athletic valor.

The career of Huggins as pilot of the Yankees is a most interesting as well as unusual one. In the nine years that he has managed the club he has flinshed out of the first club he has finished out of the first

Making his American League debut in 1918, the Yanks finished fourth. Third was their rating for the next two seasons. In 1921 he came through with his first pennant. He won three in a row, with a world championship in 1923.

His club dropped to second in 1924. The season of 1925 it went to pieces and Huggins was compelled to reorganize his forces. The club finished seventh.

Last year none of the experts figured New York could win and Huggins sprang his biggest surprise by winning the American League pennant. Jumping from seventh place to a pennant in one year is a record without parallel in the majors as far as I can learn.

However, Huggins will tell you that he got a greater thrill out of one particular ball game as player than he ever did out of any one happening as manager.

While it isn't generally known, Huggins holds a most unusual record as a second sacker. Playing for St. Paul against Louisville, back in the days of the American Association, on Sept. 17, 1902, to be exact, Huggins accepted 19 chances without a slip 11 putouts and eight assists.

The major league record for second sackers is 18, jointly held by Tom Hawks and Fred Dunlap. Jimmy Dykes with 17 chances, 9 putouts and 8 assists is the best American League performance.

Nearly 100 Entries For Swimming Meet

TORONTO, Ont., June 18 (Canadian Press).—Nearly one hundred actual entries have been received for the $50,000 swimming marathon, over a 21-mile triangular course, which will take place in Lake Ontario, off Toronto, on August 31, and the list includes swimmers from all parts of the globe. In addition to the entries received, hundreds of prospective contestants have written for particulars.

The victory of George Young, 17-year-old Toronto swimmer, in the Catalina Channel swim last January has apparently done much to stimulate swimming in the rural centres of Canada, and many entries have been received from the "off track" towns and villages for the Toronto event.

The United States will have a large contingent of experts representing that country, and entries from almost every state in the union are on file. The list now includes Mel Edwards of Santa Monica, Calif., and Ray Nuttall of Trenton, N.J., both well-known swimmers.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWNS

The history charts of most women patients are dotted here and there with notes about different nervous breakdowns from which they have suffered during their lives. The average woman of forty-five will claim that she has had from five to ten such breakdowns. Many men state that they have had the same trouble. Both men and women are sure that everyone of these breakdowns was caused from too much work.

There is no question but that overwork mentally may be the determining factor in producing a so-called breakdown, but very nervous patients are loath to believe that the frequent causes behind their trouble have always been bad habits of living, such as improper eating, insufficient exercise and a wrong mental attitude toward their work.

If one continues to waste their nervous energy while eating improperly, he must not be surprised to find that the functional powers of the body will be greatly impaired and a disease crisis will be produced. Indiscriminate eating will always produce depression and one must be thoroughly interested in any mental work he is doing if there is any chance to avoid a sick spell. Really successful men and women seldom complain of nervousness; it is only those who waste energy because they are not satisfied with what they are doing and are constantly disappointed with their unsuccessful lives.

When one gets into the habit of fault-finding and criticising every other member of the family, they find that the only way they can get enough sympathy to satisfy themselves is to have what they call "A complete nervous breakdown." They then get plenty of sympathy through a few of these hysterical outbreaks, but as soon as their friends realize that they are not suffering from any disease, the reaction toward them is liable to be worse than ever.

Doctors often only add to the trouble by assuring such patients that they are "Just a bundle of nerves" and that they need a good rest, a trip to the seashore, desert or mountains, or any place that they are not living at that time.

The sooner the nervous patient realizes that he or she is alone responsible for their trouble, the more quickly they will be able to find the real cause and a satisfactory cure for it.

A nervous person cannot get away from himself or his own bad habits by taking a trip to the country. If the destructive habits which are practiced twenty-four hours of the day at home are changed to good ones, the patient will soon be on the road to good health.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

BABY MISSING

I've looked upstairs, I've looked down,
Here and there all over town,
In the garden, in the yard—
My, but I've been looking hard.
Baby wissing! Help me find
One of just one certain kind,
Just the one I used to know
Not so very long ago.

Why, it seems just yesterday
Baby used to laugh and play,
Do the things that babies do,
Creep and crawl and smile and coo.
But today I climbed the stair;
Just imagine who was there?
Not a baby, not at all,
But a lady, big and tall.

There she was in baby's room.
Still the same pink roses bloom
On the paper, still the sun
Through the window peeps at once.
But the baby's gone away;
There's a lady there today,
Quite a lady, yet her name
And the baby's seem the same.

Once we had a baby, now
Something's happened here, somehow.
Now we have a lady, yes,
But the nicest one, I guess.
Well, our baby's gone away,
But our lady's come to stay.
Baby's vanished, babies do—
But we love our daughter, too.

IT'S LIKELY MONDAY.

A correspondent to The Examiner who is a good kidder, but usually knows what he is talking about, whispered to us that it was going to open on Monday, and why not call it father's day. The reader may know from this what it is that is opening up—possibly a wet spell or some warm weather.

AGREES TO TERMS FOR SHARKEY FIGHT

Dempsey Says Never Fight Tunney For 15 Per Cent of Gate.

NEW YORK, June 18 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey has agreed to terms for a match with Jack Sharkey in New York, July 21 and for the time being that's all Tex Rickard is interested in.

"When Dempsey arrives here from California—and he left yesterday morning at 9 o'clock—we'll straighten out the question of a guarantee for a match with Tunney for the title," Rickard said yesterday, in answer to the former heavyweight champion's statement in Los Angeles that he would not fight Tunney for only 15 per cent of the "gate."

Wants Better Terms

LOS ANGELES, June 18 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey will never fight Gene Tunney for 15 per cent of the gate. That was the parting word from the former champion yesterday as he departed for New York.

Dempsey, apparently in fine condition after months of work in a mountain training camp and happy as a boy, said he was willing to meet Jack Sharkey June 21 for 37½, or even 30 per cent of the receipts, but he would not take on that match if it carried the proviso that he meet the champion on a 15 per cent basis.

There was a hint that if he could not make better terms with Tex Rickard, New York promoter, he would look elsewhere.

BOATING ISN'T ALL PLEASURE

Speed Boat Causes Uncertainty To Otonabee Holiday Makers.

BOYS WITH GUNS.

Life on the rolling wave is evidently not always what it is cracked up to be. Even river citizens of the mild-looking Otonabee have their worries with regard to nautical pastimes. Those who take voyages down this winding stream, whether by canoe or launch, have something more than pleasant remarks to make at times about the fast-going motor boats which "cut the river in two," as they say.

A certain high-speed boat which has attained, in popular report, to the mythical ascendancy of "nine hundred horsepower," and appears to be a very fast goer indeed, has a reputation among the slower-moving craft on the river. This inconsiderate water vehicle is liable to appear at any moment and cause havoc to the feelings of those who are unable to keep up with its pace. On a recent occasion some well-meaning ducklings that were enjoying a siesta during a sunlit hour on the river were surprised to find themselves suddenly washed up high and dry on the land in the wake of the furious combers which followed the progress of this speed-mad boat.

Another worry of the voyageurs is the habit of small youths on the banks in firing guns of more or less powerful calibre, over the bows of passing water craft. This is calculated to add considerably to the enjoyment of the aforesaid youths, who do their best to come as near the target as possible without doing any actual harm, but does not seem to contribute overmuch to the pleasure of the passengers.

End of £60,000 racehorse; Picaroon, once regarded as a Derby "hope", but failed through illness, has been destroyed by A. R. Cox who, at the end of the colt's career as a two-year-old, refused £60,000 for him.

WHIPPET SIX SPEEDS BETTER THAN A MILE A MINUTE ON TRACK

Stock Car Covers 23 Miles in 22 Minutes in Atlantic City.

In one of the most spectacular speed trials ever staged in the east, a Whippet Six Roadster recently set a high mark when it maintained a speed of better than a mile a minute over a 23-mile course. The test was staged on the board automobile race track operated by the Atlantic City Motor Speedway.

William G. Braddon, of Audubon, N.J., piloted the Whippet Six during the thrilling 23-mile test which was made under the most adverse weather conditions. The car Braddon drove in the test was a strictly stock model, the first stock automobile ever driven on the world's longest board race track.

As the Whippet was started off on the first lap, conditions were fair, but after a few minutes a heavy mist began to fall and shortly thereafter the board track became slippery, making the going extremely hazardous, especially at the high rate of speed maintained. Because of this perilous condition of the track Braddon slackened the pace of the Whippet Six during the remainder of the test.

At the end of the 23 miles the Whippet Six glided up to the finish line, and the stop watches showed that the car travelled the 23 miles in 22 minutes. Braddon declared that had the track remained dry for the entire length of the test the speed average of the Whippet would have been much better than the mark set.

Despite the high rate of speed the Whippet Six motor at the end of the test was cool and declared to be capable of continuing indefinitely at the same speed without showing any ill effects.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"NIGHT OF LOVE."

Ronald Colman and Vilmy Banky lovers in three films, come to the Capitol Theatre on Monday in "The Night of Love," Samuel Goldwyn's presentation of George Fitzmaurice's production of a tale based on the feudal "right to the first night." Colman appears in an entirely new character for him, that of a bold gipsy bandit, a tousled-haired fellow with pointed moustaches and lengthened "side burns." Vilma plays the role of a beautiful Duchess, victim of the fearful "right to the first night."

From Lenore Coffee's scenario, George Fitzmaurice made "The Night of Love" in Hollywood, occupying six months of time and employing nearly $900,000 of money in the picturization of the romantic tale of the sixteenth century. The entire film was under the personal supervision of Samuel Goldwyn, veteran producer of "Stella Dallas," "The Winning of Barbara Worth," "The Dark Angel," and other handsome and dramatic films.

"The Night of Love" tells a glowing tale of a wronged gipsy prince. Montero, whose bride is taken from him by the lord of the domain, the cruel Duke de la Garda—and of the poetic revenge of that gipsy prince turned bandit. For when Vilma Banky, as the Princess Marie of France, is forced into marriage with the Duke de la Garda, it is Ronald Colman, as the gipsy Montero, who abducts her on another and different first night. But into the heart of Montero, even in his hour of revenge, comes love for the duke's bride.

Supporting Colman and the beautiful Vilma Banky in roles that the critics everywhere have acclaimed their best characterizations is a distinguished cast including Montagu Love, Natalie Kingston, Laska Winter, Hyman Bynunsky, Sally Rand, and the Marion Morgan dancers, who glide rhythmically about the lavish sets during the bacchanalian orgy sequence.

Highlights of the film are said to be the already famous "miracle" scene at the dramatic close of the film, with Vilma Banky saving Colman through miraculous intervention—the simple dropping of the Virgin's veil to Vilma's shoulders,—and the reproductions of the old chambers of horror, burnings at the stake, wine festivals and gypsy rites under the pagan moon. Fitzmaurice, who directed Vilma Banky in her first American film, in which she played with Colman, once again wielded the baton on the famous pair.

Particular interest seems to center in the new Colman produced by this film and the remarkable different Vilma Banky. To the sauve, well-mannered and finished actor that Colman has been, the new role adds a hero who is adept at swordplay, thrilling in his contempt of life itself, and almost harsh in his bitter revenge. And the one role that Vilma Banky wished, the one she has publicly said she most liked herself, is that of the Duchess, tortured alike by the man she hates and the man she loves. The love-making scenes of the perfect pair are filmed against a background of swaying figures, strumming guitars and rhythmically stirring mountain life.

AT THE REGENT.

HIGHLY ARTISTIC IS LOUISE DRESSER IN FINE "GIGOLO" ROLE.

Popular Screen Actress Seen As Mother of Hero in Rod La Rocque's Support.

Louise Dresser, whose splendid performance in "The Ghost Woman" and "The Blind Goddess," have elevated her to stellar heights, is seen to splendid advantage in support of Rod La Rocque in "Gigolo," his new star photoplay produced by De Mille Pictures Corporation.

In "Gigolo" Miss Dresser portrays the role of a wealthy American woman with a strong European complex, the mother of La Rocque, the star. It is a delineation which called upon the utmost of Miss Dresser's admitted dramatic ability, according to Howard, and one which should definitely establish her as one of the truly outstanding dramatic geniuses of the screen to-day.

"Gigolo," which comes to the Regent Theatre next Monday and which Garrett Fort and Marion Orth adapted from Edna Ferber's famous story of the same name, relates the experience of a wealthy American boy whose mother keeps him abroad too long for his own good. Wounded in the war the boy returns to Paris to find his mother has lost her fortune, and he becomes a "gigolo," or professional dancing man in the famous Cafe Marignys.

The arrival in Paris with her parents of his boyhood sweetheart, played by winsome Jobyna Ralston, prompts him to abandon his drab career as a gigolo, and he returns to America to work as a furnace man in the steel mill which his mother had once owned, and which is now the property of his sweetheart's father.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called VILAK has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss, but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, and recovers the child, unharmed, without finding its abductors.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He decides to close his barber shop and stick to the character of Attorney Davis. He, Elise and Nunnally are breakfasting when word is brought that a messenger has come to see her from WILSON, her overseer at VILLAPA.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XX.

Elise put down the fork with which she had been nibbling at an omelet. "Send him in at once, please."

The maid hurried out. In a moment the door into the kitchen opened again. A brawny half-breed Brazilian, clad in thick heavy blue overalls and hip boots, stamped into the room, leaving great splotches of mud on the floor at every step. He strode up to Elise and, taking off his hat, stood awkwardly before her.

"You have news for me, amigos?" she asked politely, when he did not speak for a moment.

"Yes, senhorita." He rubbed his thick fingers along his muddy trousers. "I come from your fazenda at Villapa. Meester Wilson have sent me. Tell me ride fast as can. He say tell you flood getting very bad Villapa. Say too he very seeck and can do not much, afraid much will be washed away. Wants you come quick. He not say, but he very, very seeck. I, Miguel, all others, think he die."

Elise rose from the table. "You'll have to excuse me," she said to her guests. "I'll have to go out to Villapa at once. It's been criminal of me to have left poor Wilson there ill and alone. Criminal." She called to Maria to have her horse made ready.

"Just a minute, Elise," Vilak said coolly. He gazed sharply at the mud-spattered messenger. "Are you sure this chap works on your fazenda?"

Her forehead knitted into a frown. "What do you mean? Of course he works on the fazenda?"

"You've seen him?"

She hesitated, then nodded. "I'm sure I've seen him. Several times. Anyway, even if I haven't, what difference would it make? I can't know every one of the 500 laborers at Villapa, can I, when they change so often? What on earth are you driving at?"

"Nothing, if you're sure you know your man. Only, it's faintly possible that this message may not be what it appears to be, and that you'd better let me go to Villapa in your stead."

Her black eyes flashed, her breath came quickly. "Vilak, there is one thing I won't let you do, and that is try to relieve me of what I consider my duties and responsibilities on the fazenda. I've taken orders from you in other things, but not there, that's final. My sister's husband and I used to quarrel about the same subject and merely succeeded in making matters uncomfortable for everybody. Let's don't you and I do it. I must go to Villapa. Myself."

Vilak tranquilly munched his cereal. "Very well. I won't argue with you. But in that case I insist on going with you. Perhaps it's just as well that we do go, for possibly we can get rifles there."

She shrugged her shoulders resignedly. "All right. If you must. But I don't think it's at all necessary. You make me feel like a child."

"What will you do with Tinky?"

"I'll take him with me."

Vilak shook his head. "I wouldn't. Seems to me an unnecessary risk. I think for the time being he's safer in the house. Hannah can be depended on not to let him out of her sight. I've talked to her. She's more than an ordinary servant. She can be trusted. And if anything came up requiring physical strength, she could do far more than you. I say absolutely that it's safer to leave him here than to take him along."

"All right. I don't like to. But in a matter of this sort, I'll follow your advice. Because you know. If you say it's safe, I'll do it. And besides, I'll have Schwartz come over and stay here for the five or six hours I have to be away. If I could help it, I wouldn't leave him even for a minute. But I can't let Wilson die without lifting a finger to help him."

In a few moments, Elise, Vilak and the old man were once more on their horses, the chemist, to Vilak's surprise, having doggedly insisted on accompanying them, though his weariness was manifest in his withered face. The half-breed who had brought the message rode ahead. Vilak set the pace at a quick trot.

Elise nervously touched her horse, who was lingering to chew a choice bit of grass. "I'm glad I haven't a criminologist's mind. It would drive me crazy. You suspect everything you see, a house with its window-blinds drawn, a broken match, a rusty nail lying in the road. How you could put some hidden meaning into this message from Wilson is beyond me. If I weren't your cousin, and polite, I'd call it fantastic."

He put a pellet of betel on his tongue. "I sincerely hope you're right," he said laconically.

He withdrew a bar of chocolate from his pocket and distributed it among his companions as a substitute for their uneaten breakfast. He himself took none of it, contenting himself with a second pellet of betel. Suddenly at a point where a narrow trail crossed the road, he looked down at the ground and pulled up his horse. "Humph," he murmured. "There's that unusual hoof-mark of Prentiss' horse again. And there are the prints of two other horses running along with it this time." He straightened up in his saddle once more.

They traveled on in silence. At times the chemist felt inclined to peak either to Elise or Vilak but was checked by their expressions, one nervous, impatient, worried, the other cool and grimly watchful.

Their course for a short distance became a creek which the violent rains had flooded into a small river. They plunged in and followed it with some difficulty, the water occasionally rising past their stirrups. Here and there where the red volcanic rocks of the region formed a pool of clear water they could see curious fish sporting here and there a fat ponderous turtle plodded along the bank. Once a great alligator lifted its head as they passed, menacing them with its red jaws. Vilak stopped to kill it with a well-directed bullet, for the creek was part of a fairly frequented highway and any of the gigantic lizards who strayed there were a distinct danger.

At length they left the stream and came out onto a muddy road again. The noise of their horses frightened a family of armadillos that evidently had been quietly reposing somewhere behind the thick palms, for they darted across the road in such panic that it was only by suddenly checking his horse that Vilak was able to avoid crushing them.

The road rose gradually up a low hill, fell to a ravine, then went up a short but fairly steep slope of another hill. As the riders rounded a bend, seven mounted soldiers came into view on the hilltop. They came slowly riding toward the Americans. Vilak's bushy, blond eyebrows lifted.

As the soldiers approached, he saw that they were garbed in tattered blue and red uniforms of a design much like that of the gendarmes. They were distinguished from the latter, however, by the fact that they all seemed white men, tanned by the equatorial sun. Their faces were distinctly unpleasant, the eyes of this one puffy with dissipation, the face of that one scarred with knife cuts or the ravages of some skin disease. Nevertheless, despite their unprepossessing appearance; they saluted the travelers amiably.

"Good day, senhors, senhoritz," said the leader of the troopers, a tall, sallow man, with a great bristling mustache who would have looked exactly like the typical Prussian officer had his hair been blond instead of black. "You go to Villapa?"

Vilak took out a cigaret and pretended to search in his pocket for a match in order that his hand be near his pistol. "Yes, amigos," he answered, smiling. "They say at Villapa the water is very high. Do they tell the truth?"

The officer twisted one end of his mustache around his finger.

"Yes. The water is most high at Villapa. Take your hand away from your pistol, amigos. There are five soldiers in the bushes in back of you as well as the seven of us in front."

WANT 'GO SLOW' SIGN.

King George Home and School Association Seeks Protection.

At this week's meeting of the King George Home and School Association, it was decided to ask the City Council and the Motor League to erect a "Go Slow" sign at the corner of Hunter and Rogers Street. The ladies feel that this intersection, when so much swift traffic is noticeable from the hospital and the Westclox factory, is a dangerous one for the children of the King George School, returning home at noon and in the afternoons. The only sign in the vicinity is one at the top of the hill, authorizing motorists to proceed at the rate of twenty miles an hour, if desired.

The attention of the meeting, presided over by Mrs. Ada Craig, was occupied with routine business. The banner this year was won by Mr. J. E. R. Munro's room. A report of the recent Toronto convention was given by the delegate, Mrs. R. Parnall, and it was decided to buy a map-printing machine for the school. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the business session.

TED ROY LEADS GOLF TOURNEY

$800 PRIZE MONEY.

TORONTO, June 18 (Canadian Press). — Although there was a decided threat of rain, a large number of spectators was present this morning to watch the ten players of the British Ryder Cup team and the same number of Canadian professionals, tee off at Toronto Golf Club in the thirty-six-hole medal competition for prizes aggregating $800.00. The first pair, Ted Ray, veteran captain of the British team, and Charlie Murray, of the Royal Montreal Club, were followed by a large gallery, and each subsequent pair also had large followings.

The prize money for to-day is: $250.00 for low score for the 36 holes, $100.00 for second, $75.00 for third, $50.00 for fourth, and $25.00 for fifth, and in addition, members of the Toronto Golf Club have offered prizes of $100.00 for the best scores in each of the two eighteen-hole rounds and $50.00 for the player turning in the second best score on each round. To-day's thirty-six holes will be included in the 72-hole competition for special prizes of $200.00 and $100.00 for the best scores for the two matches here to-day and in Montreal on Tuesday.

Ted Ray Leading.

Ted Ray, Captain of the British team was leading the field at the end of the first nine holes in the 36 hole medal competition between the members of the British Ryder Cup team and ten Canadian Professionals here to-day with a 35, but he was closely pursued by a number of the others. Nicol Thompson of Hamilton missed a putt at the ninth for a 35 and made the turn in second place with 36, one under par and was tied with Herbert Jolly of the Old Country team, Ernie Bannister of Winnipeg, Jimmie Johnstone of Rosedale, Andrew Kay of Lambton, Dave Black of Vancouver and Albert Murray of Montreal were closely bunched with 37's while Dave Spittall of Timberdale, Arthur Tavers and Arthur Compston had 38's.

Ray slipped on the last four holes coming in and a nasty six on the graveyard par three seventeenth along missed short putt on the home hole gave him a 43 for the last nine and a 78 for the round. Murray had a long putt for a 2 at the 14th and he then came along merrily to turn in another 38 for a 76.

NORFOLK, Va., June 18. —(Canadian Press). —It was asserted at the annual gathering of western plainsmen here that Red Horse, a Sanuee Indian, now living on the reservation near Winnipeg, Manitoba, was the redskin who killed General George Custer, famous Indian fighter in the battle of Little Big Horn.

Sam Rock, who fought with Sioux against Custer said Red Horse would never return to the United States because of the fear of "White Man in Washington."

AN UPRISING OF FREE MEN.

H. L. Mencken says that on July the first he will begin hanging up the 'phone whenever anybody's secretary or clerk calls him up by 'phone and expects him to hang around until it is convenient for the person who wants to speak to him to begin doing so. Why should he do the waiting when it is the other fellow who wants the conversation? He shouldn't and he vows he will no longer be imposed upon daily in this way. He is willing to lead a rebellion against it, and many of us are ripe to rise along with him and perish if need be in a just cause.

It is, perhaps, natural that a business man's office should think the boss the most important man in the city, but it cannot be conceded that everyone in the telephone directory must dance attendance on the man who wants to do some telephoning, piling on others the delays and inconveniences that go with it.—Toronto Star.

AROUND THE CITY

Those who have heard Prof. L. H. Marshall of McMaster University, will be glad to know that he is visiting Murray Street Baptist church again on June 26th, when he will preach both mornin gand evening.

Apparently thinking that a car belonging to T. Flannery had come to a standstill at the corner of McDonnell and Bethune streets to-day at noon, the driver of a bus belonging to the Bus Company, struck the front of the car, damaging the lights and radiator.

It seems that both drivers of the cars were undecided when the other was going to start, thus causing the mix-up. No persons were injured in either the bus or the private car.

The steamer "Stoney Lake" arrived in Peterborough this morning with two hundred people on an excursion here from Fenella, south of Rice Lake. The party will leave the city after three o'clock this afternoon.

Brazilian Is Bright Spot In Depression

TORONTO, June 18.— (Canadian Press). — Brazilian was about the only bright spot in a depressing list on the Toronto Stock Market to-day. Brazilian at its close of 164 was a ¼ point better than yesterday.

Practically all other issues lost ground slightly in light trading. International Nickel eased ⅝ at 66½; Massey Harris ⅝ at 37⅝ and Cosmos ¼ at 24. Industrial Alcohol eased slightly to 29⅞. Walker's to 52 and Gooderham and Worts to 56½. Northern BGakeries at 27¼ and British American Oil at 23⅝ were both lower. Amulet in conjunction with activity on the mining exchange, sold up 32 at 270 in heavy trading.

Wall Street Closing Firm After Speculation

NEW YORK, June 18. —(Canadian Press). —Major speculative activity in to-day's brief session of the stock market was again on the up side, although the advances were held in check by the usual week-end realizing and the uncovering of a few weak spots by bear traders.

Trading was in fairly heavy volume Merger Rails were again in the forefront of the advance, Pitsburgh and West Virginia was bid up over 5 points, with a simultaneous strength being shown in Pittsburgh and Terminal Coal.

Acute weakness of White Motors which broke several points to a new 1927 low had a depressing effect on some of the other motors which have been pointing upward recently under the leadership of General Motors. Colorado Fuel had a quick run up in the last hour. The closing was firm. Totoal sales approximated 1,00,000 shares.

WILSON TRACED BACK TO REGINA

Alleged "Strangler" Identified By Two Persons Last Night.

WINNIPEG, June 18 (Canadian Press). — Virgil Wilson alias Earle Nelson, alleged "strangler," charged with the murder of two persons here last week, was in Regina last Sunday.

Identification of Wilson as the man who stayed at the Lorne Avenue rooming house of Mrs. W. J. Rowe, in Regina, was made at police headquarters last night.

A woman who was at the rooming-house last Sunday, came to Winnipeg and made the identification.

From a group of men, standing in a line in the chief of detective office, the woman picked Wilson as the Regina visitor. Her name was not revealed by the police.

In all, fifteen persons identified Wilson yesterday, including the barber who cut his hair, noting scratches on the scalp, the day Mrs. Emily Patterson was murdered.

WAITE-MONTGOMERY BEING INCORPORATED WITHIN NEXT MONTH.

Announcement was made yesterday that N. A. Timmins, Incorporated, has completed its option payments on the Waite-Montgomery property in North western Quebec. It was stated that incorporation of a two-million-share company will take place within thirty days. There will be a considerable sum of money in the company's treasury to finance mining operations, The Waite-Montgomery discovery made in the spring of 1925 was the most spectacular yet made in the Quebec copper-gold mining field. It is estimated that the discovery ore body contains at least $11,000,000 in copper, zinc and gold. The average copper content of the ore is extremely high. The ore is so similar to that of the Horne, that Noranda Mines, Limited, is satisfied there will be no metallurgical problem.

The 81 per cent. interest held by N. A. Timmins Incorporated was purchased some weeks ago by Noranda. The remaining 19 per cent. is in the hands of the original group and the public. Not more than 10 per cent. has come on the market. The Waite-Montgomery units which were issued some time ago, each represent one-ten-thousandths interest in the property. Accordingly 200 shares will be given for each unit.

It is interesting that a small discovery of high-grade ore was made at the Waite recently. About nine inches of ore was found. Very little is being done on the property at present, but it will be brought into production as soon as Noranda officials consider the time is opportune.

PACIFIC FLIGHT CONTEMPLATED

One Aviator En Route With Plane To Honululu For Take-off.

OTHER ATTEMPTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18. — (Canadian Press). — With one aviator and his plane enroute to Honolulu by steamship to attempt a round trip flight from Hawii to the mainland and with added impetus given to the campaign to raise $50,000 for flights between San Francisco and Honolulu, Californians to-day began to feel that the aerial conquest of the Pacific really was under way.

The War Department announcements from Washington to the effect that the Army Air Corps might attempt the San Francisco—Honolulu flight last in July fanned interest. The big machine at present is headed for the west coast to complete test flights. The flier enroute to Honolulu is Richard Grace, a movie aviator from Los Angeles.

SIX MEN ARRESTED IN PAYROLL ROBBERY

$3,700 Stolen From Official of United Press Printing Company.

TORONTO, June 8. — (Canadian Press). — Six men are now under arrest in connection with the robbery of the pay-roll of the United Press Printing Compnay a week ago today when an official of the company was accosted and the payroll amounting to $3,700 stolen by three men. The six are all Toronto men and have been apprehended at various times during the past week. Three are charged with robbery with violence and the others with receiving stolen goods.

Those charged with robbery are Samuel Goldman, David Fliecher and Jake Goldhar, Those charged with receiving are John Keller, Jack Goldhar and Charles Nathan. Jake Goldhar was arrested early to-day while Jack Goldhar was arrested last Monday.

Persistent and painstaking work by Detectives Tuft, Dawn and Thompson was largely responsible for the arrests.

David Fliecher, John Keller, Charles Nathan and Jake Goldhar appeared in police court and were remanded for one week on $10,000 bail. Proceedings were exceptionally brief. This was before the final arrest was made to-day.

Govenor-General Honoured In Peterborough

Vice-Regal Party Welcomed by Many Citizens at Station

PLEASANT LUNCH TENDERED BY CITY COUNCIL ATTENDED BY PROMINENT MEN AND THEIR WIVES

Lady Willingdon Expresses Desire To See How Carpets and Canoes Are Made—Party Goes Over Lift-Lock in Good Ship "Bessie Butler."

Prompt on the stroke of eleven, the train from Ottawa carrying His Excellency Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General of Canada and Lady Willingdon arrived this forenoon, and the Vice-Regal party alighted to the strains of "O Canada," played by the Band of the Peterborough Rangers.

Their Excellencies were welcomed by His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway, E. A. Peck, M.P., and W. H. Bradburn, M.L.A. The Mayor introduced the following citizens to Their Excellencies:

Alderman C. H. Ackerman, Alderman R. Denne and Mrs. Denne; Alderman Stocker, Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D.; Alderman W. J. Hancock and Mrs. Hancock; Alderman J. O. Fife and Mrs. Fife; Alderman R. J. Cotton and Mrs. Cotton; Alderman M. M. McIntyre and Mrs. McIntyre; Alderman G. A. MacDonald and Mrs. MacDonald; S. A. Armstrong, City Clerk, and Mrs. Armstrong, and Mrs. Mowat; W. G. Morrow and Miss Morrow; E. H. D. Hall; Miss Reinhardt; A. L. Killaly, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, and Mrs. Killaly.

Accompanying Their Excellencies were Captain Price-Davies, the Governor - General's aide - de - camp; Major O'Connor, and His Excellency's private secretary, G. S. Mievelle.

"I think I ought to make you my aide-de-camp," smilingly observed His Excellency to the Mayor as the latter made the presentation.

Lady Willingdon chatted pleasantly for some time with the ladies of the welcoming party, expressing regret that the weather, which at that time was unpromising, had not behaved itself as well as it might have done.

A pleasing incident of the reception occurred when Lady Willingdon, observing a little girl staring with big eyes at the party, stooped down and patted the child as she spoke a few kindly words to her.

"We want to show Your Excellency our life-lock," said His Worship. "It is the largest in the world and it is something that we are very proud of." "Yes, I believe we are to have a sail on a boat called the Bessie Butler," responded His Excellency, who seemed thoroughly familiar with the arrangements for the day.

The Governor-General greeted specially cordially E. A. Peck, whose acquaintance he had made at Ottawa. He was heard to chaff Mr. Peck about a motor ride in which the latter had been in a car which had set up a speed not far below the limit allowed by the law.

Headed by the Band of the Peterborough Rangers, the procession of cars travelled along George Street to Hunter, via Rogers and Maria to the lock at Little Lake. The party then boarded the Bessie Butler and sailed over the Lift Lock to the Smith Street Bridge, where cars awaited them to conduct the party to luncheon at the Empress Hotel.

While there was no delirious outburst of enthusiasm along the route, the citizens testified unequivocally to their pleasure at the visit of the King's representative. Flags and bunting were displayed in great profusion along the streets traversed by the party, the display on George Street being particularly fine.

The male citizens who lined the streets, with very few exceptions, respectfully uncovered as the vice-regal car slowly moved past. Lady Willingdon waved her appreciation of the attention of the crowd and His Excellency repeatedly doffed his hat in response to the waving of flags or the salutes of citizens.

A group of portly sightseers, including a number of ex-service men, occupied the roof of the entrance to the Capitol Theatre, from which vantage ground they secured an excellent view of the distinguished visitors.

Lady Willingdon's attractive appearance was the subject of comment among many of the female onlookers on George Street.

At Luncheon

At the Empress Hotel today at noon, the Corporation of the City of Peterborough tendered a luncheon to His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Viscount Willingdon, G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E. G.B.E. Governor General of Canada, and Her Excellency the Viscountess Willingdon.

Fifty-five guests were present, which included the City Councillors

HAVELOCK HAS FLYING VISIT BY GOVERNOR

Lord Willingdon Meets Many Citizens in Railway Town.

CHILDREN SING.

Three Hundred School Pupils Complimented By His Excellency.

HAVELOCK, June 20 (By a Staff reporter).—Despite the threatening weather conditions early this morning ten o'clock saw the station platform packed with citizens of the town and district to honor Lord Willingdon, Governor General of Canada. Automobiles on both sides of the street opposite the station and flags flying from almost every store and private house showed that the citizens welcomed these personages with whole-hearted patriotism.

A trip was planned for the party on the Trent River, but owing to the wet weather, the officials of the town were forced, to their great regret, to cancel it.

A very fitting feature of the program of welcome by the town was the playing of 'God Save' the King" on chimes, a short distance from the station by J. Cunard, head of the Havelock Mission, just as the Governor-General and Lady Willingdon stepped from the train. Lord and Lady Willingdon were then introduced to Reeve T. C. Curtis; Chairman of the School Board, Dr. A. S. Thompson; Town Clerk T. P. Lancaster; representatives of the Council and School Board, and as many citizens as the short stay permitted.

Over three hundred children marched from the school to the station, led by their respective teachers. Three rousing cheers were given for Lord Willingdon and following this "O Canada" was sung by the children.

In a short address from the observation car His Excellency stated that he and Lady Willingdon were delighted in having the opoprtunity of meeting so many citizens.

In speaking of the condition of the country, he remarked that though times had not been very good lately, they were full of hope and confidence that Canada would move forward. "I am proud to be able to help in these conditions, said His Excellency, "and every outlook points to prosperity this year in the year of the celebration of Confederation.

"I am very glad to see so many children gathered here today," he continued, "and every one, I am sure, will grow up to be a real true Canadian man or woman." In a joking way the Governor stated that he though the children of Havelock were overstrained with school studies and that a holiday at the first opportunity might aid them in recovering their strength from such hard work as studying.

In closing, Lord Willingdon expressed his sincere wish that he might meet everybody once more in the near future, and wished all gathered there today the most sincere and best wishes for the coming year.

The Governor-General and party travelled by private train consisting of five cars; four special coaches and one baggage car. Special conductor J. H. Wilson, and J. Boylan, engineer, were in charge of the train from Havelock to Toronto. H. J. Main and C. H. Towle, superintendent and assistant superintendent of District No. 1 of the Canadian Pacific Railway, also accompanied the train.

$3,000 DAMAGE DONE PROPERTY SATURDAY FIRE

Low Stables, Sheds of Terrace Facing Stewart Street Destroyed.

RESCUE HORSE.

Started From Live Ashes in a Wooden Box Left at Rear of Buildings.

Starting from some live ashes in a wooden box at the rear of Low's junk yard on Saturday night, fire destroyed the Low stables and all the sheds in the rear of the terrace facing Stewart Street.

Only slightly started when the alarm was sent in, the Brigade found a roaring furnace from the dry wood when they reached the scene a few minutes later. The wind had swept through the lane, fanning the flames to such an extent that they crossed the alley to the stables of A. Low, junk dealer on Bethune Street. Hearing the neighing of a horse above the cries of the firemen, some men entered the stable and found the beast almost suffocated by the dense smoke that was already filling the mangers. After much difficulty they released the animal, not a moment too soon, as the flames, increasing every second, swept the lower floor of the barn.

Several lines of hose were laid from Hunter and Simcoe Streets, and water was played on all the surrounding roofs to keep the fire under control. Two loads of hay in the Low stable made the heat intense, and the firemen were under a great difficulty, having to fight the fire on both sides of the lane as the flames were threatening the houses adjoining the sheds on Stewart Street.

Kitchens in these terraces were flooded with water, and even the doors leading into the houses are now nothing but charred wood. Flames could be seen all over the city, and the police had difficulty holding the crowd back as there are many entrances leading to the rear of both buildings. A general alarm was sent in and firemen who were off duty, reported to the Chief at the fire, so that the men were divided into groups, each taking one side of the lane. Blocked with old iron in one part of the alleyway the firemen had to almost crawl over to reach one part of the building where the flames were eating into the dry wood of the terrace sheds.

After almost two hours of strenuous fire-fighting, the blaze was gotten under control, but not content to die, small blazes would start in the barn, so that some men were still on watch till nearly one o'clock Sunday morning.

Children Frightened.

Assistant Chief George Smith first saw the fire when going home on Charlotte Street. Leaving his small children at the Hall, he immediately went to the fire. The kiddies, thinking that it was their father who was carried in injured, ran away. About one o'clock they were found by the almost distracted parent sitting in his car, the little boy asleep, shielded from the cold by his older sister who was wide awake when found.

A small dog, in the kitchen of one of the terraces, locked in on all sides, became almost suffocated by the dense smoke that curled around him, and his barking gratitude when finally released by one of the spectators, was almost pathetic.

The loss to the buildings and stable will amount to about three thousand dollars.

TRIES TO SLAY FAMILY.

Bethany Man Attacks Wife and Tries To Kill Himself.

BETHANY, June 20. — Thomas Scott, a farmer residing two miles west of Pontypool, attacked his wife and three children this morning with an iron bar and then tried to cut his throat.

Mr. Scott struck his wife and two boys over the head with the bar and then attacked his little daughter. The little girl put her hand up to ward off the blow, and received the full force on the hand.

He then attempted to cut his own throat but failed to do the deed. Dr. Hamilton and Constable Rowland of Bethany were summoned. The doctor rendered first aid to the family, and then he, along with the constable, took Mr. Scott to Millbrook, where he was put in the custody of the law.

The phrase about the moon being made of green cheese came into use from the works of Rabelais, a Frenchman whose writings were translated into English in 1784.

T. P. Lancaster presented Lady Willingdon with a large bouquet of flowers, and a bouquet of peonies was also presented to Her Excellency by the C.P.R. Recreation Club of Havelock.

Committee Has Arrangements Well In Hand For Celebration ; Only Needs Citizens' Help

The Committee in charge of the Diamond Jubilee Celebration of Confederation in Peterborough, which was organised and made effective by the Mayor and the City Council, has the arrangements so far advanced that it can now assure the citizens of Peterborough and District that the Celebration, which is to be held on Friday, July 1st, Saturday, July 2nd, and Sunday, July 3rd, will be the biggest effort that has ever been put forward under any auspices, for any occasion in the City of Peterborough.

It only requires the loyal co-operation of the citizens of every walk of life—working man, professional man, merchant, artisan, farmer and manufacturer.

The Committee knows it will receive the co-operation of citizens generally in the matter of celebrating in Peterborough, decorating homes, places of business and manufacturing establishments, entering into the parade, and attendance at the various events to be held throughout the three days.

With everyone co-operating the affair will have a gratifying success, and after it is over the citizens will have the satisfaction that they actively participated in Peterborough's biggest event.

RUNS INTO CAR IN ANSWERING GENERAL ALARM

Robert Carr, Responding To An Alarm on Saturday Injured in Crash.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Drove Bicycle Headlong Into a Passing Automobile on Aylmer Street.

Robert Carr, a fireman, was badly injured on Saturday night when responding to the fire in the rear of Low's junk yard. Carr was at his home when the general alarm was sent in, and in an effort to make speed, he had his head down on his bicycle. On approaching the corner of Aylmer and Simcoe Streets, Carr did not see an automobile coming north on Simcoe, and with his head down ran into the right rear fender of the car.

He was thrown some distance into the air, landing on the pavement unconscious. Some men carried him to the Fire Hall, where he was laid on a couch in the office of the department and Dr. Loudon was called. When the doctor came he immediately sent for the ambulance and the injured man was rushed to Nicholls Hospital. He was unconscious all day Sunday, except for a few minutes, suffering from a bad injury of the skull. His right shoulder was also badly bruised and he was cut about the arms where he had struck the cement.

Fireman Carr has been the victim of a number of recent accidents. A short time ago it was he who so heroically drove the truck over the bridge at the corner of Aylmer and Brock Street to avoid striking two women in a small car who failed to stop at the stop sign, and drove into his path. When the Albion Sweets had its big fire, Carr was one of the men who was asphyxiated by the gas, and had to be treated in hospital.

S. Gibbs was the driver of the automobile that Carr struck.

Resting Easier.

Fireman Robert Carr, who was seriously injured on Saturday night when he ran into an automobile with his bicycle, is resting a little easier to-day, although he is still suffering terribly from concussion, and lapses into unconsciousness every little while.

COMMITTEE FAVOR BUILDING SHIPWAY

Great Lakes To Atlantic Ocean Via St. Lawrence River.

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 20. — (Associated Press).—A unanimous report favoring the construction by the United States and Canada of a shipway from the Great Lakes to the Atlantic via the St. Lawrence River was made public yesterday by a joint committee representing the business and public interests of all six of the New England States. A study of the capital costs and economic benefits anticipated was presented along with the findings on the basis of which the report rejected all alternative proposals for construction of purely United States routes from the lakes to the sea.

"The committee places itself definitely on record as favoring the early entrance of this Government into negotiations with the proper officials of the Canadian Government looking toward the prompt consummation of a treaty, the report said, which will make possible the undertaking of the enterprise, and urges upon all New England's local and national representatives the desirability of their full co-operation in every reasonable manner to bring this result about."

Charles R. Gow, of Boston, and twenty-nine representatives of New England, five from each of the states, signed the report, the result of nearly six months of investigation.

NAVAL PARLEY COMMENCES IN GENEVA TO-DAY

Great Britain, Japan and United States Go Into Conference.

DISCUSS LIMITATION.

Japanese Delegates Have Remained Silent on All Controversal Questions.

GENEVA, June 20 (Canadian Press).—Great Britain, Japan and the United States will go into conference at three o'clock this afternoon to discuss limitation of the naval powers of the nations. France and Italy will be represented by observers at the tripartite conference called by President Coolidge.

While all the delegates maintain sphinx-like silence, diplomats and correspondents are busy with speculation, the concensus of which indicates:

The British, under First Lord of the Admiralty W. C. Bridgeman, will probably propose a reduction in the size of individual cruisers which the Washington conference fixed at 10,000 tons. This is certain to be opposed by delegates from the United States.

The United States, led by Hugh G. Gibson, will probably present a detailed project suggesting maximum and minimum figures for the total tonnage of the cruisers, destroyers and submarines, allowing leeway for negotiations, but simultaneously indicating that if no agreement is reached by the conference, the United States will likely go in for heavy building of warships. The United States, it is thought, will admit immediately that she is prepared to go as far as any other nation in fixing a low limit for cruisers, destroyers and submarines.

Japanese Silent.

No indication of what the Japanese will suggest has so far been forthcoming. One of the spokesmen for Nippon said last night:

"Our plan? Oh, we may wait and listen."

The proposal of the United States is expected to afford an acid test of the naval intentions of the nations and will decide whether the great sea powers will enter upon a competitive and unlimited naval race.

Some circles think that Great Britain will propose as reduction in the tonnage of battleships. Mr. Bridgeman, receiving British correspondents, said he understood that the "conference would treat all questions concerning ths limitation of ships." He gave the impression to some that the agenda was not restricted to matters not covered by the Washington naval conference. This point of view is decidedly not shared by members of the United States Delegation. Should the British raise the question of the size of the battleships, it is presumed that the United States would point out that the Washington treaty provides for a second parley at Washington in 1931 to consider what change, if any, is necessary to meet technical and scientific developments.

Mr. Gibson will call the conference to order this afternoon and Mr. Bridgeman will nominate him as the permanent presiding officer.

The United States will present its proposals and the British will then undoubtedly submit theirs.

The conference may last six weeks if it goes smoothly, or may end quickly if the impossibility of accord is revealed.

LIGHTS UNEXPLAINED.

MONTREAL, June 20. — "Nothing was sighted in our flight over the country that would explain the mysterious lights in St. Germain Township," was the statement of J. M. Alexander, observer of the plane, which on Saturday and Sunday flew over the scene of the lights which have been seen for some time in the district of Northern Quebec, near the Peribonka River. These lights have been thought to be distress signals from Nungesser and Coli, missing French trans-atlantic fliers Mr. Alexander arrived here to-day.

May Attempt Flight Berlin to States

BERLIN, June 20 (Canadian Press).—The report of Otto Koenneckes' intended air flight from Berlin to San Francisco is echoed in the Berlin papers by the statement that preparations on the part of a number of German aeroplane firms for a trans-oceanic westward flight have progressed to a stage that with the advent of more favorable flying weather, it may be announced "overnight as it were" that a German machine took off for a flight to New York.

It is pointed out that for obvious reasons the respective aeroplane constructors are keeping these preparations secret. The most renowned of German pilots are mentioned in this connection.

Twins Out to Make New Swimming Record

ALBANY, N.Y., June 20 (Canadian Press).—Bernice and Phylis Zitenfield, 13-year-old twins of New York, yesterday started what they hope will be a record-breaking swim down the Hudson River to New York.

The girls went into the water at 11.15 o'clock yesterday morning off the Albany Yacht Club and made Castleton, eight miles away, at 3.07 o'clock yesterday afternoon. There they halted for the day with the possibility that they might enter the water again at midnight.

GIVEN HIS FREEDOM ON ORDER RECEIVED FROM DEPARTMENT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL PRICE

Arraigned at Preliminary Hearing Saturday For Shooting Jack Seney.

WITNESSES CALLED.

Understood Deputation Cavan Citizens Interceded For Accused at Toronto.

MILLBROOK June 20. — Jack Elliott of Ida, was given his liberty on Saturday afternoon following instructions received by Crown Attorney F. W. Kerr, K. C., of Cobourg, from the Attorney-General's Department of the Province of Ontario.

On Saturday afternoon in the police court here, before Magistrate Col. W. H. Floyd of Cobourg, Jack Elliott was arraigned on the charge of manslaughter in connection with the fatal shooting of Jack Seney of Ida, on the morning of June the ninth last. F. M. Field, K. C., appeared for the accused and F. W. Kerr, K.C. for the Crown.

Three witnesses for the Crown were called in the person of Mr. and Mrs. Merton Seney, the mother and father of the deceased, and provincial Constable Fewtrell.

The accused was not asked to give evidence or produce any witnesses but his lawyer stated that he was prepared to call some of the leading citizens of the community who were prepared to give character evidence for him.

The Crown's witnesses retold the story of the fatal shooting when on the morning of June the 9th little Jack Seney was shot by the accused in the home of the deceased.

Jack Elliott on that fateful morning came in from the barnyard to change his clothes in his bedroom, which was right off the kitchen, and while doing so Jack Seney commenced to play with the accused.

A shot gun was in Elliott's bedroom, and he picked it up in fun and started to push the boy away with it; in doing so he pulled the trigger which fired the fatal shot. The gun had been left loaded on the previous day by Mr. Seney who had been called by his wife to shoot some crows which were taking the chickens. Mr. Seney in his evidence said that he did not fire at the crows, and when he returned the gun to its accustomed place he forgot to take the shell out.

Offence to Point Gun.

Crown Attorney Kerr read the statement that he had made to the Coroner's jury, to the court, in which he pointed out that the pointing of a gun whether loaded or unloaded at another person in play, was a criminal offence, and if it resulted in someone being shot it was culpable homicide or manslaughter. He said that it was invariably the excuse given in these unfortunate shootings that the slayer did not know the gun was loaded.

He then read a letter which he had received from the Attorney-General's Department, which instructed him not to press the charge of manslaughter against the accused. The department felt that in accordance with the excellent character of the accused, of his age, and through the amount of publicity already given to the case, and the warning given to all those who have read the papers, that it was advisable in this instance to not press the charge.

Asked for Leniency.

It is understood that in the past week a deputation of influential citizens of Cavan visited the Attorney-General and asked him to be lenient in this case on account of the character and age of the accused.

Mr. Kerr said he was glad to concur in the stand of the Attorney-General. In prosecuting the case he was only doing his duty as Crown Attorney and he wished to impress upon the minds of the citizens of Northumberland and Durham and the Province of Ontario, that the pointing of a gun at a person was a criminal offence and that great danger lurked in the practice.

Col. Floyd in dismissing the case told Jack Elliott "it has been said that you have many friends around this country, which is a wonderful position for a boy to be in. This will be a great lesson to you, for you are charged with a very serious offence. There will be no conviction rendered at the present time on account of the instructions of the Attorney-General's department, which does not want to prosecute. Thus you are given a chance to go, and redeem an error you have made."

NATIONS MAY LIMIT NAVIES OF THE WORLD

Tri-Partite Conference Hears Outline of Proposals at Geneva.

OPENING SESSION.

Britain Would Reduce Tonnage and Armament All Along Line.

GENEVA, June 20 (Canadian Press).—The tri-partite naval conference for further limitation of naval armaments was formally opened this afternoon, with presentation of United States proposals by Hugh S. Gibson, head of that country's delegation.

There are indications that the League of Nations mandate commission which began its sessions to-day will vote a seat to Germany. If given a seat on the commission, Germany will have a voice in administration of her former colonies.

Opening the conference called by President Coolidge, Hugh Gibson, the chairman, proposed that cruisers be limited to a tonnage of 250,000 to 300,000 tons for the United States and British Empire and to 150,000 or 180,000 tons for Japan.

Destroyer total tonnage would be restricted to 200,000 or 250,000 tons for the two larger powers and to 120,000 to 150,000 for Japan.

Maximum tonnage for United States and British submarines would be 60,000 to 90,000 tons, with 36,000 to 54,000 fixed for Japan.

Mr. Gibson presented his proposal after a brief address, in which he presented an expression of gratitude to the powers from President Coolidge and declared that "the United States is prepared to accept the general programme providing for as low a total tonnage as acceptable to the other powers.

He expressed regret that France and Italy were not active participants in the conference, and urged Japan and the British Empire who, with the United States, are the powers "which now lead in naval armaments" to assume "all responsibility for initiating further naval limitation."

"If we were not prepared to limit," he said, "we could not expect others to do so."

It was said that under the Gibson proposal the United States would be obliged to scrap approximately 62,000 tons of cruisers and destroyers, mostly of the latter class, and 80,000 tons additional upon completion of cruisers now building.

Britain's Proposal.

The reduction in the size of battleships of the future from the present limit of 35,000 tons to under 30,000 tons was recommended by Right Hon. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, Great Britain's representative at the tri-partite naval conference, who thus opened matters which had been settled by the Washington conference.

Mr. Bridgeman advocated limiting the size of individual submarines to 1,600 tons, and suggested making the life of battleships 26 years instead of 20 years; also that the three powers waive their rights under the replacement tables agreed upon at Washington.

He further proposed limiting the size of all future cruisers to 7,500 tons and their armament to six-inch guns. He recommended limitation of aircraft carriers to 25,000 tons displacement instead of 27,000, a reduction of guns on aircraft carriers from eight inches to six, and a reduction of guns on battleships from 16 inches to 13.5.

Believe it or not. No maiden of the Tarahumare Indian tribe in Mexico ever looks at herself in a mirror. It is a superstition of these Indians that it is bad luck for a girl or woman to see her reflected image, even in a pool of water.

ORANGE YOUNG BRITONS HOLD RALLY MEETING

Aim To Increase Membership of Lodge in This City.

SPECIAL SPEAKERS.

Appeal To Senior Order of Orangemen For Aid in Organization.

An organization meeting of the Orange Young Britons was held in the Knights of Pythias Hall on Saturday night, with Brother C. Mitchell and Brother K. Waters, leaders of the Lodge, of Toronto, in charge, with an aim to make the Lodge of the Young Orange Britons a larger one in this city.

Mr. Mitchell, in his address, stated that it was his first official visit as Grand Master to Peterborough, and that he had fond recollections of some three years ago when he first visited this city. "I know," said Mr. Mitchell, "that the Young Britons in Peterborough have not made the progress that they should have in the past year, but we are looking forward to a bigger and better lodge here in a short time. He then appealed to the Senior Order of the Orangemen. Mr. Mitchell explained to the older members as to what the Young Orange Britons really were. He stated that they were boys from sixteen to eighteen years of age, learning the principles of the Orange Order, and just like a school, these boys would be ready to take positions as officers in the senior order shortly after joining the senior ranks.

Mr. Mitchell then went on to say that throughout Canada that the Young Britons did not receive the co-operation from the senior order that they should have had.

"The Loyal Orange Lodge," he remarked, "is really the father of the Young Britons, and they should lend a helping hand to this junior order to make it a success, not only in Peterborough, but all over Canada."

Relates History.

Brother K. Waters, in an inspiring address to the Young Britons, told them the history of the Orange Lodge from the early start at the Battle of the Boyne from which William of Orange became King, and the Bill of Rights was formed, having in it the clause that none but Protestants should sit on the English throne.

Mr. Waters also emphasized Mr. Mitchell's remarks in that the junior order should have the complete support from the senior lodge, and that they should teach the Young Britons real true Orangeism and love for their country. Mr. Waters stated that the Orangemen were a political organization in that they always took the stand of the Government that were doing the right thing in their estimation, and that the Order is in politics for principle only.

County Master Brown, in a short address, welcomed the Brothers from Toronto, and remarked that he hoped that the O.Y.B. would soon be an outstanding lodge in Peterborough.

Brother Rich, Past District Master, stated that he could not see any reason as to why the O.Y.B. should not become a growing organization, having a large membership.

Brother Luffman, W.M. of Lodge 1175, congratulated the O.Y.B. in having been able to hear such inspiring addresses from the men in Toronto. Brother W. B. Sexsmith, W.M. Lodge 2440, remarked that the junior lodge should be a great success and that they were fortunate in having such men as Brothers K. Waters and C. Mitchell to address them.

Brother R. Hoy, W.M. of O.Y.B. of Victoria Lodge No. 372, conducted the meeting.

FLIGHT POSTPONED.

Weather Conditions Unfavorable To Byrd Starting Across Atlantic.

NEW YORK, June 20.—(Canadian Press).—Unfavorable weather over North Atlantic has caused postponement of take off of Commander Richard Byrd's monoplane for Europe at least until tomorrow night.

The Commander would not state today who the fourth member of the crew would be. The plane is ready to start which is now entirely contingent on weather conditions he said.

OCEAN GALES DELAY FLIGHT

Will Not Hop Off Until Tuesday Unless Weather Conditions Improve.

STUDY PASSAGE LANE.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, New York, June 20 (Canadian Press).—Unless weather conditions over the North Atlantic improve more rapidly than is expected, the Fokker monoplane America, will not hop off on its proposed flight to Paris before Tuesday, Commander Richard E. Byrd said yesterday.

It was learned authoritatively that Lieut. Berndt Balchen, former Norwegian naval officer and close friend of Commander Byrd, will be the fourth man in the monoplane's cockpit when she takes the air for Europe. Balchen is an expert pilot and navigator. The other members of the crew are Bert Acosta pilot; and Lieut. George O. Noville, radio engineer and alternate pilot.

Commander Byrd hopes to wrest from fog banks, winds, storm area, and temperatures, on the Atlantic, secrets which will further the science of flying between the new world and the old, he said yesterday, explaining the scientific purposes of his forthcoming flight.

One of the chief purposes of the flight, he said, will be to find the fastest and the safest flying lane to Europe. Whether the fastest lane will coincide with the safest, he said, he did not know.

"One of the things we are trying to prove," he said, "is that by getting weather predictions, based on reports from ships at sea, one can tell at any time what the weather is across the Atlantic, which will be an invaluable aid to trans-Atlantic fliers. In this connection, I might say the Radio Corporation of America has already been sending us very valuable reports based on messages radioed from ships at sea.

Give Steady Reports

"When regular flights are made across the Atlantic, every ship on the sea will probably give steady reports. Then we will be absolutely certain about weather conditions; we can't be certain at present."

Commander Byrd predicted that a weather station will be established on the great Greenland ice cap. This great block of ice, he said, is believed by certain scientists to be responsible for the storms on the Atlantic which often come up suddenly and without warning. The great ice cap, he said, is a huge block of ice about 1,500 miles long, 500 miles wide and from one to two miles thick. With the establishment of a weather observatory on the ice cap, where wind and temperatures could be investigated, he said, within two or three years we ought to be able to predict with certainty these Atlantic storms.

COLLEGIATE HAS FINE MAGAZINE

History, Jokes and Literary Masterpieces Written By Scholars.

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute has achieved a very fine magazine in its Centenary number of "The Echoes." From the snappy cuts of the building itself which adorns the companion title page, to the autograph blank which closes the volume, it is an excellent example of what the Collegiate scholars can do in the way of literary work.

It contains a little of everything in editorials, historical jottings, reviews of school work and school play, social notes and bits of humor, and a section devoted to "Purple Patches," with its descriptive quotation from Horace: "Often to weighty enterprises, and such as profess great objects, one or two purple patches are sewed on to make a fine display in the distance."

Pictures of the pedagogues and of "The Echoes'" staff appear in this issues, the latter list including the following names: Editor-in-Chief, Andrew Allan; Associate editors, Myrtle Green and Gordon Porter; Board of Editors: Literary Society, Margaret Hamilton; Girls' Athletics, Arleigh McKone; Boys' Athletics, Harry Westbrook; Social, Dorothy Couper; Alumni, Vera Wagar; Humor, Keith Copping; Exchange, George Rishor; Commercial, Genevive O'Brien; Addie Wright and Charles Thomas; Art, Violet Davidson and Brian Copping. Business Staff; Business Manager, Mr. V. R. Henry; Advertising Managers, Lily Kay and Percy Hanna. Advisory Staff; Advisory Committee, Mr. F. J. A. Morris, Miss A. Howson and Gordon Richardson. Commercial Advisor, Miss E. Murphy; Art Advisory, Miss M. Montgomery. Form Reporters: Winston Merrell, Dorothy Bamforth, Arnold Spencer, Dorothy Henry, Gordon Roper, Howard Macdonald, Albert Rockwell, Keith Wightman, Gordon Braund, Frances Jennings, Oswald Price and Jean Fairweather.

The gentleman, or lady, who wrote the opening Editorial was alive to the gravity of the occasion. He, or she, says: "The person who writes an editorial is expected to say important things; profound things. He knows it, and realizes it—usually. And sometimes, in the consciousness that only the chosen few will read his words, he allows himself to be carried away; he becomes what Disraeli describes as 'a sophistical rhetorician, inebritated with the exuberance of his own verbosity'."

Follows an interesting review of the last hundred years in Peterborough, entitled "Historical Jottings," written by the Principal, H. R. H. Kenner, and then come "Purple Patches," including a resume of the life of Sir John A. Macdonald, by Alda Bartlett, poems by Alice Kidd, Andrew Allan, Margaret Walker, Eleanor Bothwell, Arleigh McKone and Margaret Fife; an article on "Canada's Progress Since Confederation," by Bertha Edmondson; several stories by G. Porter, Genevieve Fowler, Margaret Gollop and Howard Richardson, and a descriptive article by H. Dearborn.

"The Gateway of the Pacific" is an account by Reginald Storey of a portion of a trip made last year through the Panama Canal across the Pacific to New Zealand and back, and is illustrated by several cuts, and followed by "A Glimpse of New Zealand," by Francis Hewett, companion on the trip.

"Algonquin Days," is written by Mr. F. J. A. Morris.

The Literary Society, various events of the school year and the Commercial Department have their innings later, with a page of clever silhouettes of the Class of 1926—1927. Then come thletic enterprises of boys and girls; exchanges, and a section devoted to the Cadets, topped by a weary doughboy of Bairnsfather calibre.

"Ye Olde Coffee Shoppe" is a "half portion" section with morceaux of wit and wisdom in its makeup, and "C'est a Rire" forms the 'nuts" of the literary banquet afforded by glimpses into this special edition.

The "gags" of the magazine cover a wide field, from the toast to Commercial, in "Though her walls slant out and her roof caves in; She's a wonderful school for the shape she's in", to the hit at the new school, in "P.C.I. 1980—Come on, Grandpa, and I'll show you our new gymnasium." P.C.I. 1927—"Yes, yes, that must be the one I used to see plans of when I went to school."

MASONS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

Lodges From Campbellford and Stirling Worship in Burnbrae Church.

CHURCH DECORATED.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 20. — Golden Rule Lodge, No. 126, A.F. and A. M., G.R.C., accompanied by brethren of Lodge No. 69, Stirling, attended Divine Service in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Burnbrae, on Sunday morning.

The chancel of the church was artistically adorned with blossoms, reflecting much credit on those who had to do with the arrangement of the foliage.

Surrounding this old historic church, which the Masonic Order had chosen for the first time in the history of the church for their service is one of the best-kept graveyards in the Province of Ontario. Before the service large numbers paid visits to the graves, and their minds, no doubt reverted to "God's half acre" which they had so recently visited, as the congregation sang:

"Time, like an ever-rolling stream,
Bears all its sons away;
They fly forgotten, as a dream
Dies at the opening day."

The singing by both choir and congregation was spirited, and the anthem, "How Beautiful to Walk in the Steps of the Saviour," was given with much feeling by the large and carefully-trained choir.

About one hundred Masons fell in at the Schoolhouse, about an eighth of a mile south of the church, where they were photographed. On arriving at the church an arch of swords was formed and the brethren entered the edifice under the drawn swords. Dr. O. Watson was director of ceremonies.

The Rev. D. A. Mackenzie, B.A., minister of St. Andrew's, in extending a welcome to the brethren stated that it was the first time in the long history of the church that the Masons had attended service there. Taking as his text, 1 Cor. 3, 9-10: "For we are labourers together with God. We are God's husbandry, ye are God's building. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon."

Masonry Comprehensive

Masonry, said the preacher, is a very comprehensive subject. It has a long history, a great philosophy, a high ideal, and a mission to fulfil.

The references to Masonry in the Bible were extensively quoted, and it was brought out that mention of all the Masonic emblems are to be found therein. Masonry, said the diving, is a beautiful symbol of morality. Continuing, the speaker said: Masonry is greater in extent than the great British Empire. Its appeal has drawn men of distinction. Masonry was not born in a day—not talked over for a few hours in a small room. The roots of Masonry is traced to the dawn of civilization. Masonry is true; had it been false it would have fallen. It is founded on the rock bed of eternal truth. Masonry is not a religion, but it is religious.

Our ideal is to be a friend to all men, no matter what be their race or color. There have been jealousies all down through the age. In Masonry we have a society that seeks to unite all mankind. We believe in the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man.

The Fathers of Confederation, said the speaker, were very great men. Canada has made great progress and is destined to be the greatest nation in the world. This prediction is based on the extent of country, natural resources, religious freedom, educational system, religious institutions, and our British connections.

Duty to Foreigner

After a reference to the inroads being made by the agnostic and the "Red" element, the speaker said, "Our duty is to Canadianize the foreigner in the Western provinces; make them feel that the British Constitution is the greatest thing in the world. We speak of the greatness of this country of ours and refer to our mines, and forest, and other material things; but the greatest thing is the character of our people. We must have righteousnes, justice and freedom. Nations die for want of an enlightened Christian conscience. Let us make Canada a land to love because of the fine Christian character of the people. Masons, and all others, should be builders of character, home, and Christian nation. The Masonic Order is doing much to make men builders of the things quoted, by making men conscious of their duty to themselves and to their God.

There are 100,000 Masons in the Province of Ontario, said the speaker, this should be a powerful factor in the life of the people.

Concluding an eloquent and masterly address, the minister urged upon the brethren to serve God, oppose wrong, and to uphold Justice at all times. Our ideal, he said, is moral and it is spiritual. Let us all give to the world, Sympathy, Cheer and Service. Let your life be moulded by the Great Master Builder, Jesus Christ. Do something to make the world brighter, and better—that is our privilege, and we can all do it."

At the conclusion of the address, Mrs. (Dr.) Fred Free sang very sweetly and tenderly, 'He Leadeth Thee."

The singing of "O Canada," and the National Anthem brought a service long to be remembered by the people of Burnbrae and the visiting brethren to a close.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

As the hours of those three precious days alone with her husband passed with dream-like swiftness, Faith Hathaway felt that she wanted to hold them, as a mother holds a beloved, dying child in her arms. She wanted to cry out to stop the sun in its course, to make it pass so slowly that every day would be as long as a week of normal time. On Wednesday the family would descend upon them, shattering the first shimmering, iridescent bubbles of their happiness. Of course she would be glad to see them, she told Bob apologetically, but he forced her to admit that she had not missed them, had been conscious of nothing but Bob and herself. For those three days the whole world for Faith Hathaway was bounded by the tan-colored stucco walls of a new house in Enfield.

She learned, during those precious, too swiftly passing three days, what it means to love, and to be loved. Just the sight of his strong, tanned hand holding a fork or reaching for one of the crisp, golden biscuits she had baked could thrill her with such a sharp realization of love that she had to leave her chair and run around the table to him, to seize his hand and lay it caressingly against her lips or her cheek. She sat on the edge of the bath tub and watched him shave, laughing, with a rich note of love and tenderness at the grimaces he made.

If she was cooking, flashing about the kitchen with the deftness of long practise, he was at her elbow, having to be told just why she did this and that, kissing the little throbbing hollow of her throat above the round organdie collar of her prettiest house dress. Just washing dishes always took an hour of those precious, fleeting days, for Bob had to be kissed and admired in his apron.

On Monday and Tuesday evening they sat together on the big couch in the living room, Faith's head cradled against Bob, while he read to her, in his deep, rich voice, vibrating with tenderness and passion, the poems which had nourished his soul since he had been an idealistic youngster. Every love poem was written for them, though they agreed that the author, genius though he might be, could never have loved as they.

And before those three days had run their inevitable course, Faith Lane had indeed become Faith Hathaway. She had passed, led by the gentlest love that a man can have for a woman, from girlhood into womanhood, and she had emerged glorified, so deeply at peace that her voice was muted to a low, throbbing note of happiness. She walked with a new dignity, proudly, a woman beloved and wholly in love.

On Wednesday morning, as she coiled her shining, smooth brown hair into a knot on her neck, Bob stood behind her, his hands gripping her shoulders, his blue eyes looking into hers through the mirror.

"You are the most beautiful woman in the world!" he cried suddenly, with a break in his voice as if there was pain in too much happiness. "Look at yourself, love. Say you are beautiful!"

She looked and saw that her eyes were like stars, that peace and joy lay like a crown on her brow, that her skin was luminous, her lips like the petals of a dark, red velvet rose.

"Not even Cherry can make me feel awkward and plain again," she thought with sudden, passionate gratitude. Aloud she said, "I hope Cherry won't tease us too much. I don't think I could bear it. Only a few more hours alone, darling! Promise me you won't let anything change you—anything!"

He promised, but both knew that a cloud had flitted across the heaven in their eyes.

There was an actual physical wrench, as if her body were being torn in two, when Faith dropped her arms and let Bob go to bring the family to the new house in his car. She wanted to run after him, arms spread, a wild cry of protest on her lips, begging him to stay yet a little while. But she stood, with her hand pressed against her mouth to keep back that cry, on the steps of the porch. The other hand waved to him as the car rolled down the driveway to the street. He blew her a kiss shamelessly, regardless of neighbors who might be watching from behind curtains.

She knew that a phase of her love life had been lived and had passed. She could never know such perfect happiness again. Such a little time—three days! She flung herself upon the couch—their couch where they had read poetry and talked an even more beautiful poetry of their own, but which would now be the family's couch as much as hers—and wept in a frenzy of uncontrollable grief and foreboding.

But when the family arrived at last, she was singing in the kitchen, a great yellow bowl of bubbly waffle batter ready for the smoking hot electric waffle iron. The table, that had been set for two for three wonderful days, was now ready for five people.

She heard her father's voice, forcedly hearty—the voice of an old man who believes, bitterly, that he must earn his way by being genial—and she ran out of the kitchen to greet him, a lump of pity for him in her throat.

"Well, well, well! How's the bride" He held out a hand, embarrassment making his voice loud. Then he hurried on: "What's that I smell? Fried chicken, as I live! Your Aunt Hattie is a good cook, but she can't touch you with a ten-foot pole. Well, we're here, and I hope we ain't intruding."

As she kissed him, protesting that he could never be in the way, her heart was crying, "Where's Bob? Where's Cherry?"

"Bob's letting her drive the car into the garage," Joy panted. "She almost bumped the door off, too. She's been on a high horse ever since you left, Faith. Aunt Hattie simply bawled her out today for being so cross and uppity. But I guess she feels better now. She was laughing to beat the band when she bumped the garage door. If I'd been Bob I'd a-told her to pay attention to what she was doing—scraping the paint on that new door!" she nodded severely. "But he just laughed at her. He looks like he's so happy he could bust, and—" she drew back and gazed wonderingly at her sister's face—"so do you! Is it nice being married, Faith? Have you found out why they call it a honeymoon?"

"Yes, honey," Faith laughed, a blush dyeing her neck and cheeks and brow. "It's wonderful being married—to Bob! And I've found out why they call it a honeymoon, but it's a secret that every bride has to find out for herself. You'll know when you've been married to a man like Bob. Hungry, infant?"

"Just starved," Joy was emphatic. "Aunt Hattie gave us a boiled dinner every day, and nasty old bread pudding for dessert. Without any raisins," she added, in deep disgust. "What you got for dessert, Faith?"

Faith was about to return to the kitchen and her waffle iron when Bob and Cherry came into the dining room, Cherry with her right hand entwined in Bob's left, her lovely little face flushed with laughter. Bob was laughing, too, his blue eyes twinkling, his teeth gleaming between his up-curved lips. Faith, arrested by a pang of jealousy which she would have died rather than acknowledge, hesitated a moment before she went toward her sister.

"Hello, Faith, darling!" Cherry sang out, reaching for one of Faith's hands without releasing Bob's. "I've just been teasing this husband of yours unmercifully, but he's told me he'll lock me in my room without any supper if I tease you. What a heavenly blush that is you're wearing! There ought to be a rouge called 'Bride's Blush.' A lot of hard-boiled flappers would find it a boon. But isn't she the most naive thing you ever saw, Bob? She's actually shocked at me!"

Faith's heart plunged sickeningly and then seemed to stand still. For the first time in her life she hated Cherry. She wanted to tear that clinging little hand from Bob's. And he didn't have to let her stand there swinging his hand, as if she were his wife—

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Clear and bright is the combination of white and scarlet in this sports ensemble. The frock is of white flannel, with pleated skirt and scarlet bandings on the bodice, and the coat is of scarlet cloth faced with white silk.

Bright colors like highly spiced foods are always more prevalent in warm countries than in cool countries. You and I may feel that it ought to be just the other way around—that hot, highly seasoned food ought to be eaten in cold northern countries rather than in Mexico and India and Jamaica, and that brilliantly colored fabrics are of themselves too vivid and warm in tropical climates or warm weather But that is not how the matter is worked out in actual practice.

If you really like colors then you should choose bright ones for summer. The strong lights and vivid shadows of our American summers leave the light pastel tones looking rather pale and flat, though in the softer ligh and half tones of spring they were love'y. No one better understands the importance of bright colors in bright weather than the French woman, who is not usually so addicted to the wearing of bright colors as the American—possibly because most Americans live at a more southerly latitude than mos French women—with brighter sunlight and sharper shadows.

But for the brief weeks of summer when the sun does shine bright and clear the French woman delights in vivid prints, in frocks and hats of clear, bright color or vivid color combination. She is not inclined to wear these things in the city but reserves them for the weeks she spends at seaside and other summer resorts.

So it is not really very remarkable tha such well-known French dressmakers as Chanel have been making midsummer frocks of bright colors—really bright colors that have a note of newness after all the pastels of sp ing—like the red of poppies and salvia after the softer pinks of hyacinths and English daisies—o the orange yellows of nasturtiums after the light yellow of daffodils—the deep blue of corn flowers after the light blue of the forget-me-not.

White is sometimes used in combination with bright colors—with he bright shade of blue we call ball blue or pencil blue, with scarlet, or lacquer red, with a clear, bright yellow or with green.

Victorian Order Nurses.

The Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada is a national, voluntary organization, founded to commemorate the Diamond Jubilee of Queen Victoria in 1897, with headquarters at Ottawa. The primary function of the Order to-day is "to establish and maintain visiting nursing services in Canada."

For almost thirty years the Victorian Order has been serving the public throughout the Dominion. In the early days it established, maintained and administered twenty-five hospitals in outlying districts of Canada, trained hundreds of nurses and sent them where they were most needed, sometimes to sparsely settled districts, sometimes to crowded cities. Many of these nurses, from time to time, have changed their sphere of activity and have done further pioneer work in connection with other health and social agencies.

There are now sixty-six districts of the Order in Canada. Each centre is a link in the chain of the national organization and its by-laws are framed in accordance with the general policy of the Order. The Central Office, through its Chief Superintendent and her assistance, supplies nurses, supervises their work, acts in an advisory capacity to the Local Associations and assists in publicity.

There is no provincial subdivision. Contact is direct between district and Central Office. The Local Associations are composed of energetic, public-spirited men and women who have voluntarily assumed the responsibility of maintaining and financing the work.

One of the notable characteristics of the Order is its flexibility. Aiming to do the greatest good to the greatest number, it refuses to tie itself down to any hard and fast program, but adapts its work to the particular community it is trying to serve and co-operates with every other agency engaged in the same field of public service. There can be no question of overlapping because of having taken as its own particular function the care of the sick in their own homes. To-day, with the increased emphasis on the prevention of disease, this means that a nurse, because of her easy access to the homes, has unusual opportunities for teaching and promoting better health and of stimulating people to help themselves. Someone must always be taught to assume the responsibility of the care of the patient between the nurse's visits. Her nursing care is really a practical demonstration. Although the nurses collect fees, the Order is not self-supporting. It is believed that those who can pay should pay, as no other policy is consistent with the maintenance of the self-respect of the patient. While the service is available for everyone in the community, the most necessitous case receives first attention. A sliding scale makes it possible for all to pay according to their ability.

Because of the many-sided activities of the Order, it is necessary to secure the best type of graduate nurse, who, not only has technical knowledge, experience and culture, but who possesses that combination of efficiency and human sympathy so essential in public health work. The Victorian Order nurse is an important factor in the national life of Canada. Through intimate contact with the lives of thousands of new settlers, the nurses are helping to bind these people to their adopted country, making them Canadians in heart and outlook as well as in name.

The following statement was made in an address given recently at the time of a local campaign: "Every dollar contributed to the support of the Victorian Order is a dollar invested in the cause of good Canadian citizenship. It is the finest, and most inspiring kind of national insurance. Pessimists are fond of telling us that this generation is incurably selfish and self-centered, that it lacks all sense of responsibility and public service. Nothing could be further from the truth and if one needed a striking proof that the pessimists are wrong one need only point to the Victorian Order Nurse."

TOWN PLANNING.

Active Canadian interest in Modern Town Planning—which is defined as the scientific and orderly disposition of land and buildings in use and development with a view to obviating congestion and securing economic and social efficiency, health and well-being in urban and rural communities—may be said to have received its first impulse from the visit in 1910, of Mr. Henry Vivian, founder of the English Co-partnership Housing Movement, as the guest of Earl Grey, then Governor-General and himself an enthusiastic advocate of the more orderly planning of towns and cities.

Planning of some kind has always characterized the growth of towns and cities but the absence of thorough scientific method has usually left neglected areas, which have drifted into congestion and squalor and have themselves become direct causes of social discontent, inefficiency, disease and crime. Modern town planning is directing special attention to these areas and is building up a science of the social organism intended to secure decent living and working conditions for the large masses of people whose interests have been so largely neglected in the past and to meet the exigencies of modern traffic.

Mr. Noulan Cauchon, Ottawa, Consulting Engineer and Sociologist, has been a student of the movement for some years and about this time began the development of a plan for the Capital City, using its features as a basis for stimulating public interest in the subject. In 1912 the first provincial town planning act was passed in New Brunswick. An important town planning conference was held in Toronto in 1914, as a result of which the Dominion Government agreed to appoint a Town Planning Adviser for Canada with an appropriate staff of assistants. Mr. Thomas Adams, Town Planning Adviser to the British Local Government Board (now Ministry of Health) was appointed. A town planning educational movement was inaugurated, which, though much distracted by war conditions, resulted in the course of a few years in the passing of provincial town planning acts practically all over Canada. These town planning acts gave enabling power to the towns and cities to appoint town planning commissions, to initiate civic legislation which would exercise wider and more intelligent control over the disposition of land and buildings in urban areas and ensure more orderly, efficient and healthful development.

In 1913 the Dominion Government appointed a Commission to develop a comprehensive plan for the Capital City. War conditions interfered with the project and nothing was done to carry it into operation.

For a number of years the aspirations of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier to make the Capital City attractive and beautiful was exemplified by the Ottawa Improvement Commission, which has constructed many drives and boulevards and transformed waste land into beautiful parks and driveways. In 1927 the powers and duties of this commission were enlarged and the organization was reshaped into a Federal District Commission with powers to extend its work into the region surrounding the Capital. Throughout the Dominion there is now an active and intelligent interest in town planning method and it is expected that within the next few years many towns and cities in Canada will recognize the advisability of adopting new methods of developing urban areas which may be said to have received the endorsation of the whole civilized world.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SINGING LESSON.

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

(By Howard R. Garis.)

Dumple Wogglejig, the little red wooden boy, came prancing home from school one day. As soon as he saw Uncle Wiggily, who was going over to the rabbit gentleman's own hollow stump bungalow, Dumple exclaimed:

"Oh, I never can do it! Never!"

"Can't do what?" Uncle Wiggily wanted to know.

"My singing lesson," went on the Wogglejig boy. "Listen to this!" Lifting one leg up in the air, and turning his wooden head all the way around on his neck peg, Dumple began to howl:

"Do, re me fa, sol, la, si, do!"

"Wait! Wait!" begged Uncle Wiggily, holding his paws over his ears. "You are doing that all wrong. Try another key."

"Key or lock, it doesn't make any difference to me," said Dumple. "The louder I sing the worse it is, the Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Stump

A robin was singing his evening song.

School says. And yet she told us all to practise our singing lessons!"

"Yes," agreed Uncle Wiggily, "but wait. Now start over and not so loud."

Dumple opened his wooden mouth, but before he could say do, re, or me, along came his sister Mazie.

"Oh, isn't singing hard!" sighed the little light blue Wogglejig girl. "I'm sure I'll never learn this. Sol la si do—la-la-la-la!"

"Wait! Wait!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "You aren't singing that right, Mazie."

"Well, Teacher told me to practise it like that."

"Yes, but the Lady Mouse meant for you to sing sweetly, and in tune," said the rabbit gentleman. "Now listen a moment, and—" He held up his paw for silence, but, all of a sudden there was a rustling in the dried leaves, the bushes swayed from side to side, there were several loud howls and out jumped—no, not any of the bad chaps, but Wumple and Bumple, the yellow and green Wogglejig boys.

"Listen to us sing!" they howled. "We have singing lessons in school now."

"You will need many more lessons before you sing right!" said Uncle Wiggily with a chuckle. "And there is no use in practising wrong. Now come with me and I will give you a singing lesson." He beckoned to the six Wogglejig children all of whom crowded around him.

"I didn't know you gave singing lessons, Uncle Wiggily," said Dazie.

"I don't, exactly," answered the rabbit gentleman. "But I will take you to some birds who will teach you for nothing. After a few lessons from the birds you will be able to sing do, re, me, fa, sol, la, si, do much better for the lady mouse teacher."

Hopping along under the greenwood trees, Uncle Wiggily led the Wogglejigs to where a Robin was singing his evening song.

"Show my Wogglejigs how you sing," begged Uncle Wiggily, and the Robin turned his head first on one side and then on the other and his feathered throat trembled with joy as he trilled his song.

"Now my Wogglejigs, after having listened to that, practise your lesson," begged Uncle Wiggily. Dumple and the other sang again, doing a little better. "But it isn't good enough yet," said the bunny. "I want you to hear a song sparrow."

They hurried to the thicket where the song sparrow lived and listened to his sweet melody, which is like that of a canary bird. After this the Wogglejigs sang a little better.

"But there is still room for improvement," said Mr. Longears. "I want you to hear the vesper sparrow who only sings at evening." Deeper into the woods he led the Wogglejigs and in a bosky dell the vesper sparrow sang so sweetly that it made wooden tears come into the eyes of the Wogglejigs. "Now try, my dears," said Uncle Wiggily softly.

All of a sudden the vesper sparrow stopped his singing, which he had started again, and Uncle Wiggily cried: "What's the matter?"

"Matter enough," answered the vesper bird. "The Bob Cat is slinking along through the bushes trying to get you, but I'll fix him. I'll tweak his tail! Flying down, the vesper sparrow tweaked the Bob Cat's tail, making the bad chap howl. And of course when he had the Bob Cat's tail in his mouth the sparrow couldn't sing. But when the savage creature had run away, the sparrow gave the Wogglejigs another singing lesson, and next day they sang the sweetest of any in the Hollow Stump School.

So everything happened for the best you see.

IMPROVES THE CHOPS

Before broiling your lamb chops, dip them in lemon juice, or rub over with half of a cut lemon. It will make them delicious.

FOR TIDINESS

Keep all household equipment off the floor as much as possible. Put a screw-eye in the tip of the handles of brushes and brooms and let them hang instead of stand on the floor.

LOOKS BETTER TOO

Linoleum is said to wear much better if varnished when new and waxed lightly every month after washing.

PLUS ELBOW GREASE

When scrubbing all woods or metals, use a damp but not too wet cloth, as too much moisture prevents the friction that is necessary for good results.

VERY QUICKLY DONE

Wash steel knives with powdered bath brick or scouring powder, and use a large cork or a cut potato to scour with.

A JOB FOR SUMMER

Remove fruit stains at once from linen by stretching the stained part over a bowl and pouring boiling water over the stain.

SUMMER CEREALS

In summertime cooked cereals are much more interesting combined with fresh fruit or berries than without. Stir in half a cup of any kind of berries to every cup of cooked cereal just a few minutes before serving.

FOR TUESDAY, JUNE 21, 1927

Astrologers read this as rather an unimportant day in planetary direction and for this reason there should be a pursuit of routine matters.

Hotels should benefit from the rule, which appears to increase the number of permanent residents.

The seers prophesy that preceding a decided reaction toward the simple life gorgeous apartment houses and hotels will prosper in all cities.

Love in a cottage is to gain popularity, owing to large movements of population away from cities, it is foretold.

New lands are to be sought and regions not hitherto considered habitable will be transformed into gardens.

Warning is given that at this time the tendency to take what does not belong to one will be emphasized. Forgeries and embezzlement will be more numerous than in the past.

In certain crimes the apex will be reached this year, astrologers declare, and reforms will be widespread, owing to the awakening of the law-abiding elements.

Stringent laws and strict enforcement are foreshadowed by the stars, which appear to menace evildoers of every sort.

Suspicion of ulterior motives may be broadcast through the press wherever there is any political ambition, astrologers announce, because the aspects encourage envy of all who have positions in the Sun.

Storms that will affect Texas, Georgia and Florida again are foretold and all parts of the country will be affected by unusual weather conditions.

Increase in the birthrate is forecast and larger families will become common in America, despite divorce, the seers prophesy.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of prosperity, provided attention is concentrated on work.

Children born on this day may be endowed with steady, practical characteristics, which assure useful careers.

BLACKHEADS

Blackheads simply dissolve and disappear by this one simple, safe and sure method. Get two ounces of peroxine powder from any drug store—sprinkle it on a hot, wet cloth, rub the face briskly — every blackhead will be gone.

THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL'S VISIT.

Peterborough is glad today to have an opportunity to welcome His Excellency the Governor-General and Viscountess Willingdon on their first visit to this city.

Viscount Willingdon in the short time he has represented His Majesty the King in Canada has made a splendid impression upon all Canadians with whom he has come in contact, his tact and courtesy and his very evident desire to make his term of office of real service to the people of this country combining to win for him general favour.

The King's representative has had a fine record as a diplomat and an envoy, and his knowledge of Empire conditions and his appreciation of the important part in the Empire that belongs to the overseas Dominions make him peculiarly suited to the position of honour which he now holds among us.

The Examiner is but expressing the general sentiment of the people of Peterborough when it voices the hope that Viscount Willingdon and his charming consort will carry away with them pleasant memories of this city, and recalling Peterborough as the home of loyal and patriotic people and as a Canadian community which during the Great War established a recruiting record second to none.

A WONDERFUL PROCESSION.

The enterprise of the Jubilee Parade Committee in placing the expert knowledge of Tremayne Garstang, Director of Art at the Hart House Theatre, at the disposal of firms and societies which propose to have floats in the parade should be recognized.

Mr. Garstang is one of the best known scenery authorities in Canada, and his advice in regard to the designing of floats and the arrangement of decorations should be of great assistance.

Organizations planning floats should lose no time in consulting Mr. Garstang, who will be able to tell them how to obtain the best results at a minimum of expenditure.

Nothing like the jubilee parade has ever been witnessed in Peterborough, and the fact that an expert director of art has been secured in an advisory capacity indicates the completeness of the arrangements for this outstanding feature of the Diamond Jubilee.

To ensure every one a chance to see this wonderful pageant George street from McDonnel street to King street is to be closed to all vehicular traffic, while for the benefit of the hundreds of citizens who will go to the Exhibition Grounds early, it has been arranged that the parade will enter the Park street gate and pass by the grandstand, giving an unique opportunity to view the procession.

HISTORIC SITES.

Peterborough, like many other Canadian communities, has been decidedly lax in marking places of historic interest, and in this respect the year of Confederation's Diamond Jubilee might be a fitting time to deal with this situation.

A recent example is furnished by the captured German guns in Central Park.

Although these were taken in action by Eastern Ontario units in which Peterborough soldiers served, there is no tablet or sign of any kind to tell the visitor the significance of the present of the guns.

There are several places of importance in Peterborough's history that undoubtedly should be marked.

For instance, by permission of the Federal Government a tablet might be placed somewhere on the George Street Wharf relating the fact that near that point Adam Scott, first resident of Peterborough, landed in 1821.

The fact that the city's first school-house, which also served as a church, once stood near the southwest corner of McDonnel and College streets could be pointed out to visitors and citizens by a tablet in the Central School grounds.

These two places are mentioned merely as examples of historic sites that should be permanently marked, and others will readily suggest themselves.

MORE ACCOMMODATION NEEDED.

The Directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition will wait upon the County Council this week seeking a grant toward the cost of building new cattle barns at the Exhibition Grounds, and their request should receive sympathetic consideration from members of the Council.

The development of the Exhibition makes more accommodation for good stock absolutely necessary.

The cattle barn erected several years ago has been outgrown by the rapid increase in the exhibits of fine cattle, and as a result it has been found necessary to take care of several splendid herds elsewhere.

The Exhibition has been developing on sound lines; it has not made the mistake of allowing the recreation and amusement features to run away with the whole organization, and the result is that while each year sees the grandstand programmes improve and expand, every other department shows a similar enlargement, and the livestock exhibits have perhaps set the pace for everything else.

That is a healthy condition, because the Exhibition is not primarily a provider of amusement; one of its most important objects is to encourage the breeding of high-class stock, and much success along that line has already been registered.

This aspect of the Exhibition should appeal to the County Council, and as the grant to be asked for at this week's session is to be used to provide more accommodation for stock exhibits, the support of the county body should be readily forthcoming.

A HERO DOES HIS STUFF.

Few men are heroes to their valets and few suddenly created celebrities get away from the spotlight without some of the gilt of their great deeds being tarnished by personal peculiarities. Not so Lucky Lindbergh, the doughtiest and most lovable of limelighters. The roars of the crowd, the acclaim of the greatest of the earth, the prospect of easily earned millions seem to leave him cool and collected and chiefly concerned with getting another chance to face death in the hunt for adventure or in some kindly thought for the disappointment of his rivals. Out of the air has come a great-hearted gentleman whose every new act draws him nearer to the heart and imagination of the man in the street.

And what a highlight of romance is his latest exploit! Towards the end of a midnight benefit performance in aid of the families of Nungesser and Coli, he suddenly decides that he would like to have his own 'plane which he left behind in Washington. Evading the great audience and the newspaper men who trail him like a pack of foxhounds, he borrows a 'plane at Mitchell's Field, hops off at three a.m. and is back again with his own 'plane before the postman has delivered the morning mail, the 300-mile jaunt taking a little under five hours.

But the cream of the story is that this daredevil youth whose provisions for a trans-Atlantic flight consisted of five sandwiches and a bottle of milk never stopped to change his clothes but took his early morning bracer in the full evening clothes worn at the benefit performance, a flying suit being quickly hauled over his hard boiled shirt and nicely pressed trousers. Is it any wonder that a world that loves courage more than all the beatitudes, is thrilled with the exploits of this superboy from the clouds?—Ottawa Journal.

WHAT RESEARCH DOES.

A practical recognition of the value of scientific research in industry is given in the publication by the United States Government of a catalogue on research and testing laboratories in that country.

In the United States the National Bureau of Standards makes tests and carries out investigations for other Government departments. Because of the large amount of this official work, it is impracticable for the bureau to make tests for private individuals if other laboratories can do the work. To inform interested persons of the location of other laboratories, the bureau has compiled a list of the 207 commercial testing laboratories throughout the country, together with indications of the types of commodities which they are prepared to test.

To accompany the list of commercial testing laboratories there has been compiled a list of 143 colleges which are used not only for the purposes of industrstion but also to a considerable extent for research work. In fact, many important industrial research problems are being solved in the college laboratories.

Canada has no national bureau of standards, taking the lead in co-ordinating research work in the Dominion. We need such a bureau, financed chiefly, but not entirely, by the Dominion Government. When industry makes its needs in this regard known, it will get what it wants.

It will be necessary for private business organizations to carry on work in their own fields. Many American companies have research departments. When Armour & Company announced their new department of search the other day, F. Edson White, president of the company, made a striking pronouncement upon the value of science in industry. He said:

"Business is taking on a more scientific aspect day by day. Research work is developing new and better methods and making possible better products. Many leading corporations have organized research departments and given to them broad latitude of action. There is nothing mysterious about the research work we plan to do. The work will be to dig out essential facts relating to the conduct of our business. At first we shall probably take up market research which has been going on spasmodically for some time past and seek to co-ordinate it so that the company may have the benefit of the research in progress.

"As a result of the work already being done and that which we will inaugurate, we expect to learn a great deal more than we now know about the prospective supplies of livestock and about price trends of our most important products, possible new markets, the wisdom of handling various products which we now handle through choice, and the capabilities of salesmen. We shall also study and analyze the weak spots in our business for the purpose of making constructive plans for their improvement.

"Getting more facts about these matters than we now have will enable better planning, and our experience with the budget is conclusive as to the benefits of planning. A budget is merely a plan. We have made budgets effective in planning salaries, expenses and sales, and we have come to the definite conclusion that there is no department of our business which need operate without a well thought out plan. Plans have to be based on full and complete knowledge and the research department will seek to be constructive and helpful in supplying facts and in helping to make plans."

This is very powerful evidence of the need for research, coming as it does from an outstanding figure in an industry that is regarded as already having utilized commercially every part of the pig except the squeal.

Scientific research adds to farm wealth as well as to industrial wealth. Canada has had ample evidence of that, of which the most striking piece of proof has been supplied by the developments of new and better wheats. But there are boundless fields to conquer. We are, for instance, only dabbling as yet in the utilization of straw, of which millions of tons are burned annually on the prairies. An example of what might be done to eliminate this fearful waste is seen in a small plant operated by a Minnesota man who produces disinfectants, paints, roofing and other chemical products from straw, and who finds that one ton of oat and wheat straw produces 1,600 pounds of new, useful chemical products worth at least $250. Farmers selling to this plant now get for their straw alone more than they formerly got from their grain. Research work will speed the day when the farmers in Canada's West will gain a revenue for their straw.—Financial Post.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 20 (Canadian Press).—The foreign trade in grain on the Montreal market Saturday continued quiet, there being no demand from any source. The domestic market was also quiet but the undertone was firm.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour continued dull, but values were steady.

A moderate amount of business was worked in all lines of millfeed and prices were well maintained. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was active and firm.

A fairly active trade was done in eggs and prices closed unchanged. The receipts Saturday were 1,572 cases.

Only a small volume of business was done in butter, but the feeling was firm. The receipts were 3,895 packages.

The demand for cheese from English importers showed a further improvement and prices scored another fractional advance. The receipts were 6,671 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 20 (Canadian Press).—Rains in the wheat harvest region southwest, together with unfavorable crop advices led to upturns Saturday both for wheat and corn. Wheat closed firm, ⅝ to 1c net higher, corn ⅝ to ¾c up, oats ½ to ⅝c advance, and provisions unchanged to 5c lower.

Oats trade was sluggish, and the market was governed almost entirely by the action of corn.

Provisions were held steady by firmness of the hog market.

MONTREAL.

Each year leaves its mark, bright or gloomy, upon the life of the individual, the life of a nation, it is the centuries which count. And so Canada is regarded as a young country, whose gallant and vigorous youth foretells a glorious future. Yet we ourselves are often slow to realize the progress which has been made, until visitors from other lands call attention to it.

Similarly, in the classrooms of our primary schools there is but little of that emotion which is evoked even in the casual reader by the story of our early days. Among a thousand exploits which to the modern mind seem like the inventions of fiction, the founding of Montreal stands out like an epic.

It was the Jesuit Relations which first inspired Jerome Le Royer, Sieur de la Dauversiere, with the idea of founding a settlement at Montreal. M. Olier, too, later the organizer of the Order of Sulpiciens, dreamed of creating a mission centre on the Island of Montreal. These two men, meeting in Paris, encouraged each other in their plans; and through their efforts the Societe Notre-Dame de Montreal came into existence. To this society, in search of what we should call a manager Father Lalement, presented a young and enthusiastic officer, Paul Chomedy de Maisonneuve. An expedition was organized to sail for New France, and Mlle. Mance offered to accompany it in charge of the first group of "Montrealistes." This was in 1640.

The Island of Montreal was one of the greatest cross-roads stations of the New World. Iroquois, Algonquins, Hurons came and went in a steady stream. Eighty little tribes of natives lived in the neighbourhood, within easy reach of that Ville-Marie so soon to arise, whose founders had solemnly pledged themselves to "labour solely for the glory of God."

These pioneers, sixty-five in number, set sail in two groups, one from Dieppe, the other from La Rochelle. Maisonneuve and his comrades were urged to settle upon the Isle of Orleans, instead of proceeding upstream into the haunts of the Iroquois. But Maisonneuve had left France to form a settlement on the Island of Montreal, not to tarry by Quebec. "If every tree upon the island should turn into an Iroquois, my honour is pledged, and naturally, as I am sure you will admit, I must go." Thus spoke Maisonneuve to Montmagny who had been telling him of the dangers to which he would be exposed. And he went, in the spring of 1642. On May 16 he took possession of the island, placed it under the protection of the Virgin Mary, and gave the new-born colony the name of Ville-Marie. Father de Vimont, who celebrated the first mass, prophesied: "I do not doubt that this little seed will produce a great tree, will work wonders some day, will multiply and spread in all directions."

The epic was only beginning. Continually in peril, the colonists stood firm and worked on. Much brave blood was shed: Maisonneuve, Lambert Closse and Dollard des Ormeaux vied with one another in deeds of heroism. Exploits, sacrifices, martyrdoms even, increased; our history rapidly became, as Frechette so truly called it, "a casket of neglected pearls."

We may justly take pride in the development, within less than three centuries, of this forest fortress of Ville-Marie, which is now Montreal, the third French-speaking city in importance and in population, and the largest inland port in the world.

A Thought For To-day

The earth abideth forever.—Ecclesiastes 1:4.

This earth is our inn, not our home.—J. H. Vincent.

THE STORY OF QUEBEC.

Quebec is the oldest, the most picturesque and the largest of all the provinces of the Canadian Confederation, the sixtieth anniversary of which will be celebrated in a few days. Here Nature spent lavishly its treasures. If you come to admire its landscapes, this portion of Canada will make a strong appeal to your imagination; at the economic point of view, its natural resources are immense and offer great advantages to industries; its trade ranks near the top; its harbours are well equipped and amongst the most frequented of North America.

Quebec's area covers 703,653 square miles. About half of this area, or 351,780 square miles, belong to the Ungava Territory annexed in 1912. The actual area of the old and new Quebec is more than three times the area of France and of Germany, and also three times the area of Spain.

Modern physiography takes into account the influence of the characteristics of a country on its civilization. The physical aspect of this province is very diversified; mountains, hills, valleys, prairies, lakes and rivers abound in every direction. There are more than 185 rivers, the St. Lawrence and its tributaries forming a mass of running water almost unique in the world. The St. Lawrence river is 2,339 miles long, most of it being in the Province of Quebec. This province is also very wealthy in mineral and forestry products, but it is also proud of its past and of its French origin, remaining at the same time very cordial towards all the different races. Its population guard jealously the memory of their discoverers, the founders of their cities, their pioneers, their martyrs, their heroes and maintain their traditions under the conditions of modern life.

Its vast territory has hardly been touched, about half its population is rural; industries expand very rapidly. Quebec is the second province of the Dominion at the manufacturing viewpoint; lumber is its main industry, together with pulp and paper. Textile industry is next.

The area and variety of fertile lands, prosperous cities, natural wealth, forests, water-powers just in the process of being tamed and representing millions of potential horse-powers, all these exceptional advantages constitute for the Province of Quebec, the promise of a bright future.

This land was first discovered by Jacques-Cartier in 1534, this distinguished captain taking possession of the country in the name of France, in erecting a cross bearing the coat-of-arms of his own country, on the shores of the Bay of Gaspe. Until 1763, this part of the country was known under the name of New France; from 1841 to 1867, it was called Lower Canada, and since Confederation, in 1867, its name is Quebec.

One hundreds and hundreds of miles, north, south, east and west, the Quebec country shows with pride the "habitant," everywhere recognized by certain essential characteristics, practising the same farming methods, possessing about the same amount of wealth, the same independence, the same large families, the same cordiality and gayety, the same spirit of hospitality, speaking the same language of France and remaining faithful to his Roman Catholic belief.

Quebec is the province of historical monuments; its annals are full of great deeds which have a special appeal for visitors of every country in the world, and as for the population of all the other provinces of the Dominion.

The Late R. STANLEY WEIR

O, CANADA

Words by WEIR Music by LAVALLEE

O Canada! Our home, our native land!
True patriot love in all thy sons command,
With glowing hearts we see thee rise,
The True North, strong and free,
And stand on guard, O Canada,
We stand on guard for thee,
O Canada, glorious and free,
We stand on guard, we stand on guard for thee!
O Canada, we stand on guard for thee!

Owing to the fact that numerous suggestions were received from all parts of Canada that a uniform English version of "O Canada" be approved, the National Committee for the Celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation circularized the Prime Ministers and the Ministers of Education of all the Provinces. Replies were received that the version written by the late R. Stanley Weir, D.C.L., Recorder of Montreal, is being used in the schools of all the Provinces, including the English-speaking sections of Quebec. In view of this, the Committee is using the Weir version in its own publications.

MILLBROOK COUNCIL HOLDS MEETING

Council Decides To Pave King Street This Summer.

MILLBROOK, June 20.—The regular June meeting of the Council was held this week with Reeve W. T. Wood presiding, and present, Councillors J. R. Eakins, T. J. Lang, G. W. Sayles, P. Stinson.

Lang-Sayles: That the clerk be instructed to write the Workmen's Compensation Board asking information regarding insurance of municipal employees.

Stinson-Lang: That the order for firemen's equipment be given to Fowler and Pendrie, their tender being the lowest.

A communication was read from the Railway Commission stating that the application made by the C.N.R. for the abandonment of the Bethany sub-division had been received and filed.

Reeve Wood informed Council that the matter of paving King street would be proceeded with in 1927. Council discussed plans in connection with the paving programme as the main drain will have to be rebuilt before any permanent work can be done. As considerable expense will be involved it was decided to have a qualified surveyor give information regarding levels, etc., in anticipation of the work to be done.

About one mile of pavement will be included in the estimate, the Counties' Council and the Provincial Government assuming the cost of a 22 foot strip on all county roads, the municipality to complete same to the sidewalk on either side in the business section. The Counties' Road Commission, the Provincial engineer, and the Council expect to arrange a meeting in the near future for discussion of details.

On account of the paving programme in prospect council decided to water the streets this summer, and not buy the car of oil as was at first intended. The matter of watering the streets involves an expenditure of approximately $400, while the oiling should cost at least $1,000, and council considered the difference might better be used in gravelling some of the streets this season in view of the fact that King street will have to be torn up to quite an extent next season.

Stinson-Lang: That the following accounts be ordered paid:

W. G. Russell & Sons, lumber, $7.99; Hydro-Electric, street lighting, $69.83; Town Hall, lighting, $2.53; Rural Telephone Company, account, $3.70; H. R. Armstrong, insurance, (accident policy), $100.00; C. W. Richards, printing contract (second quarter), $22.50; George Ward, labor, $3.25; B. Raper, labor, $2.50; H. Nattrass, constable, and labor, $35.30; A. Wilson, labor, $21; A. J. Henderson, labor, $21; Thomas Richardson, lumber, $126; L. Morton, work with grader, $42; W. Murney, labor, $2.50; H. Murney, gravel, $105; S. Donnelly, street watering, $122.25.

Among those in town who have improved their property by having their houses painted this summer are: M. McDowell, A. A. Needler, Mrs. R. J. Doak, Mrs. J. C. Kells, Councillor P. Stinson.

Rev. D. N. McCamus, of London, Ont., formerly pastor on the Millbrook and Cavan circuits, will preach anniversarry sermons at the Fairmount church, morning and evening, on Sunday, June 19, 11 a.m., and 7.30 p.m. The annual garden-party will be held on the church grounds on Tuesday, June 21, those contributing to the programme being the male quartette from the George street church, Peterborough, and Mrs. D. Walker, soloist and reader. The supper will be served from 6 to 8, and the entertainment will be in the church.

Mrs. Havelock Graham, of Toronto, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith. The many friends of the latter will regret to learn that she has been ill with 'flu.

Mrs. J. J. Russell, who spent the winter months with friends in Peterborough, has returned and reopened her home here for the summer months.

Mrs. Jas. Perrin and Mrs. Jas. Dawson of Peterborough visited their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Fyers, South Monaghan recently. Mrs. Dawson has returned to Peterborough but Mrs. Perrin is remaining for a longer visit.

Canada's Farthest North.

Few Canadians were greatly thrilled, the world at large was quite indifferent, when the Arctic Archipelago was added to the Dominion by Imperial Parliament in 1880. Yet this was the culmination of a history as thrilling as any chapter in the exploration of the unknown world.

Since Frobisher in the days of Queen Elizabeth made the first bold dash into the Arctic, carrying the St. George's Cross where no flag had ever been seen before, British ships and British live had been lavished on heroic attempts to discover the secrets of the north,—partly in the hope of finding a new sea route for commerce from the Atlantic to the Pacific, but often in the purely scientific desire to complete man's knowledge of the globe he lives on.

Other nations at times had joined in the search, but none with anything like the persistent enterprise of our empire. It was entirely natural, then, that the new Dominion of Canada, entrusted with the exercise of British authority over the northern half of this continent, should be given responsibility also for the islands between us and the Pole,—many of them almost touching Canadian shores.

The responsibility was not light. Our new island territory covers at least 550,000 square miles—more than twice the size of France or Germany—and no part of it is easily accessible. But for many years the Federal Government has been exploring it by sea and completing the establishment of law and order where no civilized authority was known before.

Every year a ship is sent north to patrol the islands, carrying supplies for the various Government posts, establishing new posts where advisable, and accumulating a great body of information as to the nature and resources of the land and the conditions of navigation, which vary immensely from season to season, throughout the Arctic. The yearly visit of a ship is looked forward to with great delight by the Eskimo, who are entertained on board with moving pictures and receive medical attention from the ship's doctor. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police in charge of these posts have not only completely won the confidence of the people but shown all their traditional courage and enterprise on long patrols, covering on one occasion 2,000 miles by dog-team in the dead of winter.

Last summer a new post was established on Bache Peninsula, halfway up the east coast of Ellesmere Island, and considerably farther north than Etah, the Danish post in northern Greenland on the opposite shore of Smith Sound; the older posts are at Craig Harbour, in the southeast corner of the same great island (it is 500 miles long); Pond Inlet and Pangnirtung on the still larger Baffin Island, where the Hudson's Bay Company also had trading stations; and Dundas Harbor on Devon Island between Ellesmere and Baffin. Each of these has a post office as well as a police station, and that on Bache Peninsula is the most northerly post office in the world. Every station has radio equipment for the reception of messages from the rest of Canada.

There is abundance of game—walrus, seal, and wild fowl—even at the most northerly post; herds of musk ox are found grazing elsewhere; and coal is known to be one of the mineral resources of Franklin District—the name given to the whole archipelago in honor of the great explorer who lies there in an unknown grave.

Great additions to our information as to the country and its inhabitants are expected from the representative of the Mines and Indian Departments who remained on Baffin Land when last year's expedition returned.

The Prairie Provinces.

There could be no Prairie Provinces at Confederation, for Canada had no prairie.

And we should have no Prairie Provinces now, but for the foresight and unselfish zeal of a Scottish nobleman, Lord Selkirk. In 1811, having secured a controlling interest in the Hudson's Bay Company, he spent his energy and wealth in establishing a British colony on the Red River. Half a century later, when a flood of adventurers as well as settlers had spread over the prairie south of Line 49, if the white race north of that line had been represented only by a scattering of fur traders, there would have been a very serious danger of the flood breaking through, as it threatened, and "jumping the British claim." Without a war, or "negotiations" which might have proved equally disastrous, Canada would to-day have been confined to a corner of the continent between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic. Her natural westward growth would have been barred, as King Louis in the eighteenth century barred the westward expansion of the American colonies till their British mother-country came to their aid and broke down the barrier. The great Dominion, of which we are so justly proud, with her union of provinces complete from sea to sea, would have been forever impossible.

Happily, the Red River settlers were there to "hold the fort" until our nationalgovernment was formed and ready to establish Federal rule over the territory surrendered to the Imperial Government by the Hudson's Bay Company for that purpose, and proclaimed as Canadian soil forever on July 15, 1870.

Our first Prairie Province, Manitoba, was immediately created. It began as a little block of land with a population of 12,228 Indians included. Greatly enlarged in 1881, and finally in 1912, it now contains 251,832 square miles, with a sea-coast on Hudson's Bay.

The great national enterprise of opening up for settlement the new acquired prairie and connecting both that region and the Pacific gateway of the Dominion with our eastern provinces, was undertaken by the Canadian Pacific Company in 1881, and completed before the end of 1885. Settlers flowed in, mostly from Eastern Canada and the British Isles and spreading over Manitoba and far into the territory beyond. A territorial governor and partly elected council had been set up in 1876. In 1882 the southern part of the territory was organized into provisional districts, Regina became their capital, and six years later a regular legislative assembly was set up there, though without full provincial powers.

Progress had become so rapid by 1905 that the Federal Government created the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta. Each of these, like Manitoba, is larger than either France or Germany. A census in the following year showed a population of 365,688 in Manitoba, 257,763 in Saskatchewan and 185,412 in Alberta. Despite the war and abnormal conditions following, the census of 1926 shows that in the last five years Manitoba increased its population from 610,118 to 639,056, Saskatchewan from 757,510 to 821,042 and Alberta from 588,454 to 607,584, the total having thus risen from 1,956,082 to 2,067,682.

From practically nothing, prairie farming went ahead till in 1926 it raised field crops valued at $647,282,000 or more than half of all raised in the Dominion. Wheat alone accounted for over $407,000,000, and the bumper crop of 1923 exceeded $474,000,000.

And this is only a beginning.

The Merchant Marine.

Canada's ocean shipping had its origin in the twenty or thirty ton ships of European fishermen who crossed the Atlantic to make catches on the Atlantic coasts, while to-day 19,000 ton vessels come up the St. Lawrence river to the port of Montreal. It was in 1833 that the "Royal William," built in Canada for the run between Quebec and Halifax, crossed from Pictou to London entirely under steam. She was the first ship to accomplish this.

Canada was the birthplace of the Cunard Line, but in the year of Confederation the company terminal was moved from Halifax to New York. The Allan line has been famous in Canadian maritime history and always remained a distinctly Canadian company. To-day both the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian Government has its own merchant marine, and send vessels bearing the red ensign to the ports of the world. It was in the later decades of the Nineteenth Century, in the years when sailing vessels were in the height of their glory, that Nova Scotians held a high place among the first maritime people of the world. It was then that Donald, McKay was building his immortal clipper ships for the great traders of the world.

The sea-going trade of Canada has shown a steady increase particularly during the past thirty years. The high peak has just been reached, when vessels representing a gross displacement of over 40,000,000 tons entered and cleared from Canadian ports in a single year. Of these ships 5,700 were British, 17,000 were Canadian, and over 17,300 were foreign. The crews of the vessels entering and clearing Canadian ports in a year have numbered more than 1,000,000 comprising approximately 400,000 British, 300,000 Canadian and 300,000 foreign.

The Canadian Government Merchant Marine, operated by the National Railways, is a fleet of freight vessels sailing from Atlantic and Pacific ports on many of the world's great trade routes. On the West Indies service only does the Government Merchant Marine enter the passenger business. This year, however, finds the government investing in six new ships with considerable passenger accommodation as well as modern refrigeration for the West Indies service. This project is an outgrowth of the Canada-West Indies Trade treaty of 1924 and the company, though controlled by the Canadian National system, will be operated as a separate unit. The fame of the Canadian Pacific Railway fleet is world wide. Its passenger and freight services girdle the world. In war and in peace the ships of the C.P.R. have been conspicuous in their service of Canada. Other great companies, such as the Royal Mail Steam Packet and the White Star, are closely associated with Canadian sea-going trade.

As a definite feature of the Canadian marine picture isthe federal Department of Marine and Fisheries. It is charged with the administration of the Canada Shipping Act, the regulations of pilotage, the construction and maintenance of all aids to navigation, steam-boat inspection, etc. As an indication of the tremendous growth of maritime trade since Confederation days, it might be pointed out that in 1868 the revenues of the Marine department were $71,000 and expenditures $371,000, while, in 1925, revenues were $400,000 and expenditures $13,600,000.

Manitoba in the Union.

The Province of Manitoba came into being on July 15, 1870, when by purchase from the Hudson's Bay Company for £300,000 ($1,500,000) with the reservation of one-twentieth of the fertile belt and certain areas surrounding its trading posts, the area between Ontario and British Columbia was added to the Dominion of Canada. As it was established at first, it formed but a small part of that area, which in view of the date of the company's charter 1670, can be said to be the oldest continuously British territory on the continent.

Throughout that whole area sixty years ago the only place where settlement had passed beyond the stage of the clustering of a few hunters' families about a trading post was at the eastern verge of the vast expanse of prairie land, where at the junction of the Red and the Assiniboine rivers, the site of the future city of Winnipeg, there had grown up, during the preceding fifty years, a community known as Red River.

In the twenty years before the formation of the Dominion the growth of the Red River settlement had been rapid and its history had been at times turbulent. After the arrival of a few aggressive citizens from Canada, including William Buckingham and William Caldwell, who in 1857 brought to Red River the first printing press and established there a weekly newspaper, "The Nor'Wester," the demand for annexation to Canada increased greatly in strength.

When by legislation of the British Parliament and the Dominion Parliament and the Dominion Parliament the purchase of Rupert's Land was effected, the fears of the French-speaking people of Red River that their rights were to be disregarded, fears that were fomented by a few agitators who took advantage of certain injudicious proceedings preliminary to the transfer, led to "the Red River Rebellion," headed by Louis Riel, and the seizure of Fort Garry, the Company's walled headquarters, in November, 1869. William McDougal, who had journeyed from Ottawa with his commission as Lieutenant-Governor, was warned by Riel not to enter Manitoba. After a stay of several weeks on the Minnesota side of the international line, at Pembina, he went back to Ottawa.

Unfortunate as the events were which led to that armed outbreak, good judgment, wise decisiveness and an admirable spirit of conciliation on the part of the Government at Ottawa were strikingly in evidence afterwards. The "Rebellion," though it was marked by acts of violence and most memorably by the shooting of Thomas Scott by order of Riel and his associates, was, after all, a comparatively small affair; but it had great national importance. It effectively fixed the attention of Eastern Canada upon the West, and the ready response in the East to the call for volunteers for the Red River Expedition, under the command of Colonel Wolseley (afterwards Field Marshal Viscount Wolseley), which arrived at Fort Garry on August 24, 1870, to find that Riel and his colleagues in "the Provisional Government" he had formed had fled and the "Rebellion" was ended, disclosed and strengthened the spirit of Canadian national unity.

Donald A. Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona), of the Hudson's Bay Company, acted as administrator for the week following until September 2, when Adams G. Archibald, the first Lieutenant-Governor, who had travelled by way of Chicago to the end of railway construction in Minnesota, arrived at Fort Garry by canoe from Pembina. Colonel Wolseley and the regulars of the Red River Expedition left Fort Garry the next day and began their journey to Lake Superior and on back to the East.

In October a census of the newly made Province showed the population to be 11,963. Of this total 1,656 were white, 9,840 were of mixed white and Indian blood, of whom 5,757 were French-speaking, and 4,083 English-speaking, and 558 were Indians settled on the land.

Other Indians numbered 11,265 on March 15, 1871. Lieutenant-Governor Archibald opened the first session of the first Legislature of Manitoba.

GILLEX FOR ALL CLEANING

House-Cleaning Hard Work?

Yes—of course it is. Everything worth while comes as the result of effort. But housecleaning can be made much easier and the results of labor so expended much more satisfactory if you use Gillex for all cleaning purposes around the house, as well as for dish-washing and laundry work. Gillex dissolves grease—that's the secret of its efficiency. It has no grit, no odor, no sediment. It is a true "servant in the house." Try it once and you'll want to use it always.

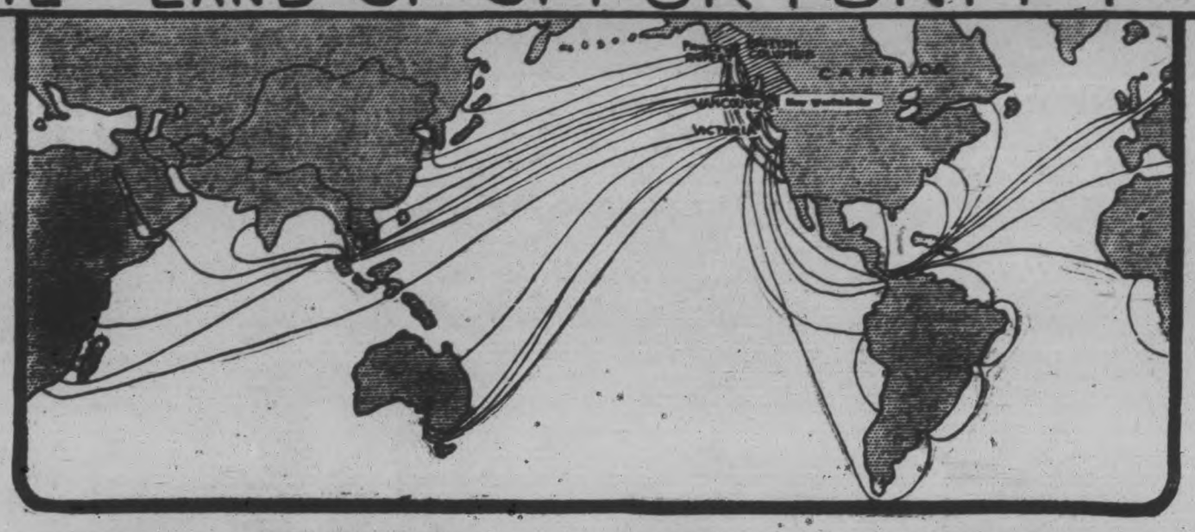
BRITISH COLUMBIA

THE LAND OF OPPORTUNITY



Where East Meets West

THE great traffic routes of the world meet in the ports of British Columbia—Canada's Pacific Gateway! Huge liners sail majestically into port; sailing vessels and smaller craft nose to harbor, and smoke-smudged freighters swing at anchor, laden with the earth's treasures, and manned by motley crews; while the busy tugs dart like beetles to and fro. Scenes along the waterfront are like pages from some picturesque tale. Tow-haired giants of the North rub shoulders with wizened old tars of nondescript color and race—with bland yellow men from the Orient and grinning negroes from the South. Bizarre costumes vie with trim blue and white uniforms, and strange jargons greet the ears.

Trade Links

Shipping lines reach long tentacles across the Pacific Ocean, linking British Columbia with Japan and China, Australia and New Zealand, India and the East Coast of Africa. Through the Panama Canal, the "cheaper-than-rail" route, they reach the Atlantic seaboard, South America, Great Britain, Europe and Africa.

British Columbia Ports

Canada's Pacific Gateway ports are splendid natural harbors—open throughout the year. A steadily swelling volume of shipments pass in and out, to and from the four quarters of the globe. Exports of British Columbia's ports, for the ten months ending January 31st, 1927, amounted to a total value of $124,655,226. Imports totalled $66,437,273.

Great Natural Resources

British Columbia production during 1926, which went to swell the great totals of exports, reads as follows: Timber, $82,000,000; agricultural products, $70,000,000; minerals, $67,718,400; fish and fish products, $25,000,000; manufactured goods, $430,000,000. A portion of this production was absorbed by home markets.

Vacation Land Supreme

Hunter and angler may find excellent sport in almost any part of British Columbia. Big game hunters from all over the world plunge through the vast game reserves where caribou, moose, deer, bear, mountain sheep and goats abound; there are plenty of game birds, too—grouse, pheasant, quail, and others. It's keen sport landing a huge salmon, often weighing from 30 to 50 pounds! Mountain lakes and streams teem with a myriad varieties of gamey trout.

Go A-Motoring

It would take many happy months to tour all of British Columbia's delightful mountain and marine motorways. There's a breath of romance in the very names of the highways themselves—Grouse Mountain at Vancouver; the Island Highway, "A Thousand Miles of Wonderland" beginning at Victoria; the magnificent Cariboo Road, whose rugged scenes recall the gold-crazed days of '61; the Okanagan Valley a-bloom with patterned orchards; and other trips too numerous to detail.

Playground

You'll never tire of things to do in British Columbia—they are so many and so varied. Bathing in the tingling surf at sheltered, silvery beaches; yachting, canoeing, sailing, excursioning; golfing on emerald fairways at public and private clubs; enjoying the tennis, polo, bowling, trap-shooting and many other games you'll find at the different resorts; riding, hiking, mountain-climbing.

Cool Vacation

The summer is always cool and comfortable, for the Pacific Coast temperature averages around 62 degrees and gentle breezes blow in from the sea; high in the mountain resorts, scented breezes flow through the mountain passes. Or you can enjoy the dry, subtropic air in the southern districts. A climate for everyone! Plan to see British Columbia this summer.

CANADA'S EVERGREEN PLAYGROUND

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL HOLDS BIG PICNIC

All Leading Organizations in the Church Co-operate in Event.

The co-operation of all the leading organizations of St. Paul's Presbyterian church resulted in the annual Sunday school picnic, held Saturday afternoon to Wallace's Point being generally declared to have been the most successful in the history of the congregation. So great was the attendance that in spite of the fact that arrangements had been made for the use of what was considered sufficient busses and automobiles to convey those wishing to attend to the grounds extra automobiles had to be impressed as well as extra buses and double trips on the part of the buses made, but in spite of this everybody reached the grounds in ample time to have a wonderful afternoon's outing. Estimates placed the attendance at between 400 and 500.

The sports were run off under the auspices of the Men's Association, headed by the president, Hurrell Dodds, and members of the executive committee. Provision had been made by the congregation, through the giving of a special collection on Sunday, June 12, for the giving of numerous prizes. The course was roped off and thus gave all the contestants a fair chance while the spectators had a clear view of the events, all of which were keenly contested. Following a congregational luncheon, organized by he members of the Ladies' Aid under the presidency of Mrs. J. Hall, the sports were continued, including soft ball games between teams representing the Session and the Board of Managers, and between the Men's Association and the Young Men of the congregation.

The Session, with O. M. Steer as pitcher, Alderman Geo. MacDonald, catcher, and Dr. D. Clark at first base, supported by a full compliment of elders, proved too much for the Board of Managers, with W. L. Ferguson as pitcher, J. W. Anderson as catcher and James Connell at first base, winning by 13 runs to 4 and an inning to spare. The Mens' Association team was too strong also for the Young Men's team, organized by the Young Peoples' Society, winning by about 7 runs to 4. The battery for the Men's Association was H. Dodds, pitcher, G. MacDonald, catcher, and P. Telford, first base, and for the young men, A. McLeish, pitcher, C. McLeish, catcher, and M. Turner, first base. Not for years, if ever before, was there such a representative attendance of members of the Session and Board of Managers. The prizes won in the contests were presented by Rev. Wm. Allan. Wallace's Point proved an ideal spot for the picnic which was a memorable one for all who attended.

His Excellency expressed the desire that those who were accompanying him on the train would be allowed to go over the locks, so Superintendent A. L. Killaly arranged for them to be taken over in the afternoon.

Her Excellency said she wished to see a Peterborough canoe in making, and also to see the making of a carpet, for she has some of the Brinton carpets on the floors of Rideau Hall. SACRED HEART

A very inspiring ceremonial at the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday afternoon, was the procession of the Blessed Eucharist, which commemorated the celebration of the Feast of Corpus Christi. Owing to the inclement weather, the procession which was to have been held on the church grounds, took place inside the building, which was packed to capacity. An exceptionally fine programme of music for the occasion was rendered by the choir, under direction of the leader and organist, Mr. J. Armstrong. The priests in the procession, fully vested, were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, Rev. M. J. McGuire, of Douro; Rev. J. V. McAuley, of Ennismore; Rev. P. Costello, Rev James Guiry, Rev. G. Maher, Rev. C. J. Carroll, Rev. J. F. McGuire, Rev. J. C. Maloney, Rev. P. J. Lynch, also two deacons, Rev. Chas. Begley and Rev. Edward Welsh.

Preceding the procession were 40 little flower girls and a children's choir of two hundred voices sang appropriate hymns, including the "Pange Lingua." An inspiring and instructive sermon on the Blessed Eucharist was preached by Rev. P. Costello.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

Right Reverend Dr. Seager, the newly-elected Lord Bishop of Ontario and former Chancellor of Trinity College, Toronto, was the special preacher at the centenary services yesterday.

Bishop Seager is by no means a stranger to the Anglicans of the city and he thanked Dr. Blagrave for his kind invitation to come to St. John's church on this special occasion.

His Lordship took his text at the morning sederunt of worship from the second chapter of the Epistle of Paul to the Ephesians, verses fourteen to sixteen. Bishop Seager said that in all probability previous speakers at these centenary services had spoken about the historical significance of the occasion, but he wished to dwell on something more specifically religious.

A congregation is a lot like individuals and families, for there are some who are fortunate and some unfortunate, if I may put it that way, said Bishop Seager. Some parishes in this country look back upon a time of weakness and discord; while others have had progress and unity during their whole life. I am glad to say that this parish is in the latter class and throughout its history on the whole there has been unity and progress which is something to be proud of.

"The external causes of weakness and feebleness or health and progress are fairly obvious to most people. There is only one way for the Chrisian church to succeed and that is to be really Christian. If you look back 50 or 75 years this parish, under wise guidance of able teachers and pastors, you could not have had progress unless you were Christian."

"What are the elements to be a Christian so that in the future you may put more effort on the forward line. From the words of our text the first thing required is to be loyal to the central fact of Christianity, that is to say in Christianity and in Jesus crucified we have redemption among men. As you have been loyal to the great law so you in a degree have been Christians and have had unity and progress.

"To-day I am sorry to say there is a kind of Christianity developing in some of the churches that has Christian ideals, but it has robbed these of the one power to make effective the redemptive power of Christ. We read—Except a man be born again he cannot see the Kingdom of Heaven. Hence the power of redemption is the centre of all personal things as a Christian.

"Many hold the redemptive power as a thing external to themselves and they say what has the death of a man 1900 years ago to do with things of to-day. That is not the doctrine of redemption. The cross always must be held in the foregrounds and the idea of the cross must be carried throughout a person's life. The cross is valueless unless we keep and practise it in our own life and to be a Christian we must find the cross the centre or our life and from that centre all other things must follow.

"The redemptive power of Christ forms the brotherhood of man and from this the church is the product. I have no right to say a man will be damned if he does not go to church, but I do assert that the New Testament teaches that there can be no Christianity apart from the life of a Christian.

"There is a strong tendency among us to divorce Christianity from the life of the church, it would be the same as to divorce the bride from the bridegroom without committing a sin. So I urge you upon your one hundredth anniversary that you see to it that the life of your church is Christian.

The real comprehension of what the church is for, it is to make all men brethren and that is the universal purpose that lay in the mind of Christ when all in one mind gather around the cross to worship at the feet of their Lord and King.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

"He that eateth My flesh and drinketh My blood, abideth in Me and I in him,—and I will raise him up on the last day," were the words, taken from the sixth chapter of the Gospel according to St. John, which formed the text of the sermon delivered at the High Mass at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday morning, by Rev. P. Costello, on the occasion of the celebration of the feast of Corpus Christie.

Harking back to past ages of the church, when public worship of Christ in the Blessed Eucharist was part of the regular ceremonial of the church, the reverend speaker also alluded to the huge celebration of the Eucharist Congress in Chicago last year. "The Feast of Corpus Christi," he said, "is closely allied with that of Holy Thursday, when Jesus left his death bed gift to His people in the Blessed Sacrament, to enable them to overcome the devil and all other enemies of their souls.

"Speaking to His people before the temple at Jerusalem, He said: "Your fathers did eat manna in the desert and are dead, but if any man eat My flesh, he shall not die. And I say unto you, except you eat of the flesh of the Son of Man and drink His Blood, you shall not have life in you."

"This is pre-eminently the miracle of miracles, the tremendous central doctrine. God, who does all things by a simple act of His all-powerful will, who controls the firmament and the whole world in the palm of His hand, can take a piece of bread and say: "This is My Body." And it is His Body, because God is the God of Truth and His power knows no limits."

Following the solemnization of High Mass by Rev. P. J. Lynch, assisted by Rev. G. Maher, Rev. C Begley and Rev. E. Welsh, a procession of the Blessed Sacrament was held in the church, Rev. Father Lynch bearing the Sacred Host in the Ostensorium, preceded by eight small girls strewing flowers, forty little children, the little girls dressed in white and wearing veils, and a number of acolytes.

The Sacrament of Holy Communion was received for the first time yesterday morning by 58 little girls and 36 little boys of the parish of St. Peter's Cathedral, at the nine o'clock Mass, and at Vespers last evening, His Lordship Bishop O'Brien administered the Rite of Confirmation to 48 boys, 39 girls and 10 adults.

At the Church of the Immaculate Conception yesterday morning, at the half-past eight o'clock Mass, His Lordship confirmed 58 children.

HELP FOR PEOPLE PREPARING FLOATS

Expert Assistance Will Be Given By Tremayne Garstang.

Expert assistance for the preparation of floats in the Jubilee procession is now available in the person of Tremayne Garstang, art director of Hart House Theatre, who will be in attendance at the premises of Selkirk & Elliott on Hunter street. Those arranging floats are asked to get in touch with Mr. Garstang immediately, and to submit their ideas to him to get efficient counsel as to the best methods of putting their suggestions into practice.

It is pointed out that the construction of floats must not be delayed until the trucks are available, and the need is stressed of doing the work now, if possible.

The three cups presented by local men will soon be on display in the windows of The Examiner. One is presented by T. H. Gillespie, District Manager of the Confederation Life Association, for the best float depicting Canadian progress since Confederation; a second is the gift of Isaac P. McNabb, Manager for Central Ontario of the Dominion Life Assurance Co. as an award for the best historical float; the third, presented by John I. Allen Superintendent of the Prudential Insurance Co., will be the trophy of the best school in the procession.

CHINA TO HAVE A NEW EMPEROR

Country Suffers From Too Many Rotten Generals, Says Hsuan.

LONDON, June 20 (Canadian Press). — China is suffering from "too many rotten generals," and the country will again have an Emperor, Hsuan Tung, a former 'boy Emperor' of China, who has lived in the Japanese concession of Tientsin since he was ejected from the Imperial Palace at Peking in 1925, told the Tientsin correspondent of the Daily Express.

Hsuan Tung states that it is "no sinecure to be emperor or king to-day," and admits that he is "not good enough morally or mentally" to be a father to the people of China.

Discussing the present state of the country, he says there is nothing but maladministration, treachery, bribery and wars. China is suffering from too many rotten generals. They are everywhere, fighting and marching backwards and forwards. Not for China, but for themselves. Chang Tso Lin, he declared, "is like all the rest of them, except that he seems to have made a determined stand against Bolsheviki."

If Teeth Lack Gleam Just Do This

Removing film restores sparkling whiteness

Please accept full 10-day tube free of this remarkable new method that leading dental authorities urge . . . note the difference in teeth and gums as dingy film coat goes.

* * *

It's been found that dingy teeth come simply from a film that forms on teeth. A stubborn film old-type dentifrices did not successfully remove. That's why brushing failed you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel that film now—a sort of slippery coating. It is a chief enemy of healthy teeth and gums.

It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites tooth decay, gum troubles and pyorrhea because it breeds bacteria.

Now, in a new type dentifrice called Pepsodent, a scientific combatant has been found. Leading dentists widely urge it. All druggists have it. Ten-day test sent free.

CANADIAN RED CROSS.

The activities of the Red Cross for soldiers did not end with the Armistice. The need of some line of action to correct the conditions responsible for the large number of unfit men of military age discovered in Canada resulted in the arrangement of a Peace-Time program of work. So, in addition to its war work, the Red Cross has assumed the duty of educating the nation to better habits of living.

In this capacity the society acts as a voluntary auxiliary to the Department of Health. The Red Cross is daily doing "its bit" for those disabled in the Great War. Weekly visits are paid the disabled soldiers confined in hospitals and comforts and extras are distributed to relieve the monotony of hospital life. The soldier fretting over his family or his business finds a sympathetic friend in the Red Cross visitor, who leaves nothing undone to relieve the worry. Red Cross convalescent Homes and sheltered workshops, as well as parcels of comforts and necessities for himself and family give the soldier settler and the unemployed, not only valuable aid but the assurance that his services for the Empire are not without appreciation.

That health education may be properly and permanently taught no fewer than one hundred and thirty-eight thousand school children are enrolled in over five thousand class rooms under the banner of the Junior Red Cross, pledged to its program of health, service to others and good citizenship.

Over five thousand crippled children have been restored to health as a result of the pennies saved by contemporaries. The juniors of Alberta and Saskatchewan have established a children's hospital in their respective provinces. Under this branch Red Cross fresh air cottages and baby clinics are doing good work.

Health education among the adults takes the form of Home Nursing classes nearly twelve thousand women and girls have been instructed in the elements of nursing and the principles of healthy living and hygiene in the home.

Through the medium of its Outpost hospitals and nursing stations the Red Cross provides skilled professional service in unorganized areas. Last year two thousand one hundred and thirty-eight patients were nursed, seven hundred and forty-three of these being confinement cases, most of whom would otherwise have been unattended. There are thirty-nine Outpost Hospitals, but if funds were permitted many more would be in operation.

In the Red Cross Seaport nurseries at Quebec, St. John and Halifax the immigrant mothers and children are given rest and refreshment on their arrival. Last year thirty thousand new Canadians were thus welcomed and given advice and assistance. In this connection twelve thousand families were kept in touch with by means of follow-up cards.

The Red Cross is always in readiness to aid towns and villages burned to the ground and areas swept by forest fires and cyclones.

The Society encourages the training and employment of Public Health Nurses and strives to promote the observance of rules for the prevention of disease. It also publishes and distributes health literature.

PERSONAL INSTRUCTION.

O'NEILL, Neb., June 18. — One of the highest-paid school teachers in the country, in proportion to the number of pupils, is Miss Marie MacLeod. She receives $75.00 a month and teaches one pupil in her rural school near here. When her picture was printed in a local newspaper, she received thirteen proposals of marriage.

PETES WIN LIGHT HITTING TILT FROM EAST PETERBORO STARS

Neither Seniors Nor Intermediates Show Much Punch in Saturday's Exhibition.

FINAL SCORE IS 3-1.

(By F. D. C.)

Neither the Petes nor the East Peterborough League All Stars showed much prowess with the bat in Saturday's exhibition game at James Stevenson Park which the Petes won 3 to 1, after spotting the intermediate selects a run in the first inning.

Manager Swanston worked Heckman, Hardill and Osterland three innings each in that order and the All Stars got one single off each of the three heavers. On the other hand the senior outfit collected only five hits and three runs off "Sailor" Maudsley in the first four frames and "Casey" Masterson held them scoreless and with but one safe blow for the rest of the game.

All three senior pitchers went along nicely and outside of the first stanza when a couple of misplays gave the All Stars their lone marker were well supported by their teammates. The losers had few chances to score after the opening frame,their best opportunity being choked off when Swanston nipped Jones trying to steal second in the seventh. There was a runner on third and two out and Jones did not expect the toss to second.

The Petes too were aided materially by All Star errors in amassing their total, although timely hits by Holyman and Rose supplied the final punch.

The weak offensive of both teams was compensated for to some extent by some nice fielding. H. Nicholls with several pretty catches of foul flies earned brackets.

It was a good workout for both outfits who took advantage of the chance to get their whole squads into action.

The Petes made their only errors of the game on the first inning and the All Stars' lone counter resulted. After Johnston had tossed out Jones, Wilson was safe on Batten's fumble. Ranger hit to Ash, who threw to second too late to get Wilson and both runners were safe. Rose let Corrin's roller get away, Wilson scoring, but Corrin was nipped trying to go to second on the play. H. Nicholls walked, but Collins tossed out Johnston on a tap in front of the plate.

For the Petes, Rose fanned; Shiner Johnston was safe on Wilson's bad throw, but Batten was called out on strikes, and Heckman lofted to Ranger.

The Petes took the lead in their half. Hall bounced a single off Wilson's shins. Ash hit to Wilson, forcing Hall at second but Ranger threw low to first trying to complete a double, and Ash reached second. Collins was out on strikes. Holyman crashed a single past third to score Ash. Spence was hit. Rose doubled to left, scoring Holyman. Johnston rolled to Maudsley.

For the All Stars in the third Wilson struck out, and Ranger and Corrin lifted flies to Batten.

Batten was tossed out by H. Nicholls. Heckman singled through short. Hall cracked a liner into Corrin's hand. Hackman was forced at second on Ash's roller to Wilson.

With Hardill pitching for the Petes and Swanston catching, H. Nicholls opened the All Stars' fourth by grounding to Hardill. Johnston was passed, but O. Nicholls fanned and Hackman, playing right field, made a nice catch of Rogers' smash.

The Petes got the last run of the game in their half. Swanston was safe when Johnston failed to hold H. Nicholl's low throw. Hardill singled to right and on Ranger's bad throw to second, Swanston scored; Rose fanned and Shiner Johnston grounded to Wilson.

Masterson went to the mound for the All Stars in the last half of the fifth and Kenneally took over the catching duties. Batten walked, Heckman and Hall flied to Corrin, and Ash lifted a foul to H. Nicholls.

Ranger opened the sixth by slashing a single past Rose, but Corrin and H. Nicholls fanned and Masterson grounded to Hardill.

Swanston struck out. Holyman rolled to Ranger. Hardill walked, and Rose singled through short, but Johnston fouled to Kenneally.

Osterland was on the slab for the Petes when the seventh opened. He walked Hillier to start with, but Kenneally flied to Hall, and Maudsley lined to Rose. Jones singled through short but was out stealing. Swanston to Rose.

Batten fouled to H. Nicholls. Heckman drove a long one to Jones in centre, and H. Nicholls grabbed Hall's foul.

In the eighth Wilson was thrown out by Rose. Ranger fouled to Swanston, and Corrin lifted one to Holyman.

Ash was thrown out by H. Nicholls. Swanston reached second on H. Nicholls' low throw. Holyman was out, Ranger to Maudsley and Osterland fanned.

The ninth was soon over. Baird batting for H. Nicholls was thrown out by Johnston, and then Osterland struck out Masterson and tossed out Hillier.

PIRATES' LEAD CUT TO ONE GAME

Hill Hammered By Cubs in the First For 14-7 Victory.

NEW YORK, June 20.—(Canadian Press.)— The Cubs cut down Pittsburgh's lead to one game in the National League race yesterday by swamping the Pirates 14 to 7, at Chicago. The Cubs hammered Carmen Hill in the first and sixth innings to take a commanding lead, their attack including three doubles and a home run by Webb, with two on base. It was Webb's eleventh circuit drive. They launched their final attack on Yde in the eighth, driving him off the hill. Cvengros checked the rally after five runs had been scored. The Pirates bunched hits off Root in the third and again in the last, when he eased up.

Pitcher Jack Scott performed the "iron man" stunt by pitching both halves of a double header at Cincinnati, winning the first game 3 to 1 and dropping the second 3 to 0. Scott held Cincinnati in subjection in the first game except in the sixth inning when Manninger doubled to right and went to third on an infield out and scored on a sacrifice fly. Philadelphia bunched three singles and a triple off Jakie May in the fourth inning, scoring three runs. In the second Cincinnati scored successively in the first three innings while Eppa Rixey pitched air tight ball.

The New York Giants evened up the series with the Cardinals at two all by taking the final game at St. Louis, 4 to 3. Benton and Clarkson held the world champions to four hits, each allowing two. Benton was relieved in the first of the sixth after being hit by a pitched ball in the fifth.

QUAKERS GAIN LEAGUE POINTS FROM THISTLE

Game Was Minus Any Points of the Scientific Touches in Soccer.

PENALTIES MISSED.

Winners Deserved to Win After Battling Ten Men Against Eleven.

After a very uninteresting soccer game at King Edward Park on Saturday afternoon, the Quakers defeated the Thistle two goals to one in a scrappy match. The Quakers ten men put up a great battle and deserved to win from that standing alone, while the Thistle played too much football and wasted chances galore — even two penalty kicks being awarded them that were not registered through the lack of having a marksman. When a number of former enthusiasts were asked their opinion of the game they were up in the air over the decisions awarded on the run of play and walked away in a peculiar mood.

Millar Opened Scoring.

Ten minutes later the Thistle gained the decision of the coin and made the Quakers face the sun and wind. Even exchanges were next in order, with both elevens trying to gain the necessary opening, that was productive of nice combination by each side. On one occasion Mitchell caught Anderson napping, to finish with a rocket shot over the bar. Then Lang did likewise at the other end, in below the bar. Turner, a new comer at centre-half, was brought down heavily in the penalty area but no response. Carmichael relieving nicely. Scott sent the ball back into goal where Millar touched the sphere into the net after twenty minutes play.

Ten Men Against Eleven.

The Quakers' ten players rallied back with greater force than ever to keep the Thistle defence on the alert to stop their progress. Even the stalwart Anderson kicking back to the custodian while the forwards hovered around the goal. A dribbling competition took place in the flag-corner in which the Referee awarded a corner-kick that brought disaster to Thistle citadel and evened up the score.

Players Question Every Decision.

At this period of the play the players questioned the adjudicator on his findings which resulted in tactics that were unwarranted in every department. In fact, it was a "bang the ball", "rush the man" style that failed to please the spectators who doubted the awards handed out to the contestants. Just before half-time announcement, the Quaker defence held the fast-moving Thistle front rank in check, who claimed a penalty-kick that never materialized. Half-time, one goal each.

Second Half.

After a very prolonged respite, the teams started on the same footing, ten men against the eleven. Mitchell twice with a few minutes missed the uprights with long drives. A break away by Foster again got Anderson at a disadvantage, who replied with his usual strategic movements to prevent a counter. From the resulting free-kick, Wilson missed the upright with a mid-air drive. The Thistle halves indulged in swinging the ball forward, and gained progress towards goal. On individual play T. McPhate went through the defence to be brought down inside the spot-kick area. Scott took the kick and placed it into the goal-keeper's hands.

Quakers Gain Two Points.

At this stage the losers were never away from the opponent's goal, but found an invincible pair of full-backs who never backed down to anything. Eventually Maker punted up-field, Foster gaining possession while on the run. He waited until his right wing men were with him, dribbling close in, made Griffin save twice in succession, then Hutton banged the ball against the inside of the post for the winning goal

Another Penalty Missed.

After this sudden set-back by ten players the "Jags" bombarded the Quaker's citadel from every angle but could not get the "goal that counts." Even Lang failed to register from the spot-kick. Again the referee came under the dispute column on the field-of-play and terminated his fiasco by ordering the vice-president of the Association from the capacity of linesman, after he had given a legitimate award. He raised his flag in favor of the Quakers, who should have received the throw-in, while the referee ruled otherwise with "ungentlemanly bawling out' 'that brought out another linesman. From this stage until the finish the spectators gradually dwindled away in a disgusted mood. Quakers 2, Thistle 1.

Goal-scorers: Hutton and Carmichael for Quakers; Millar for Thistle.

MAROONS WIN FROM CARSTEEL

Poor Marksmanship on Both Sides Prevailed Throughout Entire Game.

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

MONTREAL, Que., June 20 (Canadian Press). — Montreal Maroons earned a 2-1 victory over Carsteel in the first National League fixture between the two local aggregations this season, when the pair met here on Saturday afternoon. The three goals which were tallied do not by any means represent the innumerable opportunities that were given both teams to score, poor marksmanship prevailing throughout. In this connection, Maroons were the worse offenders, having most of the play in their opponents' territory.

But for the erratic shooting of the Maroons' forwards, the Montreal club gave a splendid exhibition, their half line of W. Campbell, R. Campbell, and Martyn being exceptionally clever, while Adams and Bain afforded Brown a clever and methodical protection in the rear rank. Carsteel were, on the other hand, completely off colour, and it was seldom that they made the right move at the right time.

For some time during the early part of the game it appeared as though the bad feeling which had marred many of the appearances between the two local National League clubs last season would again have a telling effect on the play, and had it not been for the action of Referee Lyons, who virtually read the "Riot Act" as soon as the players showed signs of bad temper, something drastic might have happened.

W. Campbell, Maroons' centre-half, was responsible for the first and second outbreaks. Abdullah was his first victim, the Egyptian being fouled badly after he had beaten Campbell for the ball, while a minute later Green had to be removed from the field after Campbell had kicked him.

Ten minutes after the start, Maclaine found the mark for the first tally, beating Robertson after he had accepted a pass from Pain at close quarters.

Maroons were the aggressors for the first twenty minutes of the second session, during which time Maclaine had again found the mark. With the scoring of the goal play became faster, but Carsteel were ineffective and most of their shots went astray.

Seventeen minutes from the end, Green rubbed one off when he beat Brown from close quarters with an easy shot. A misunderstanding between Brown and Adams was responsible for the score, the full-back stepping out of the way to let the custodian save, while Brown made no attempt apparently, thinking that Adams would clear the shot. From this time to the end Carsteel played much better, but failed to find the mark.

SEAGRAM STABLE CAPTURE FEATURE

Rio des Montanges Takes Highest Purse at Blue Bonnets.

MONTREAL, Que., June 20 (Canadian Press). — The Seagram stable of Waterloo, Ont., captured the feature race of the second day at Blue Bonnets on Saturday, and the highest purse of the meeting, when Roi des Montagnes, the three-year-old chestnut gelding by Mount St. Eloi out of Ruche-a-Miel, defeated the best of its class in Canada over the mile and an eighth route in the Windsor Hotel Cup. The trophy carried with it $5,000. Jockey Bourassa had the leg on the winner. The event was exciting, although, breaking quickly at the barrier, Roi des Montagnes was taken into a lengthy lead from the other half-dozen starters, and was never headed. The stoutest opposition came from Punjab, which was forced back at the first turn and lost considerable distance. After trailing the field for three-quarters of the way, Punjab responded sturdily to a gruelling drive, and was rapidly overtaking the winner down the stretch.

All races were well contested, and the crowd, estimated at between ten and twelve thousand, were entertained to a fine programme. Saturday's big upset took place in the opener, when Grey of Dawn, a brown filly, that had not raced before, took the two-year-old event from an experienced field, and returned its few supporters a dividend of $71.05 for the $2.00 investment.

Wills and Tilden Favorites to Win

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 20. — Canadian Press. — Helen Wills and William T. Tilden are the popular choices to win the singles championships in their respective events at the Wimbledon Tournament, which begins to-day.

Tennis fans, reversing the verdict of the special seeding committee which placed Rene Lacoste the French ace, ahead of Tilden in their ranking, have installed "Big Bill" as the favorite, Jean Borotra and Henri Cochet, the French players, also are being warmly supported, with Borotra favored above Cochet.

In the women's singles, Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree is the second choice to Miss Mills, with Senorita De Alvarez, of Spain, the third choice. Miss Ken Bouman, of Holland, Mrs. Mollis Mallory and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, rank next.

TORONTO SCOTTISH DEFEAT THISTLES

Lose Out By Goal to Nothing in National League Fixture.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 20. — Toronto Scottish defeated Thistles here on Saturday in a National League game by a goal to nothing, but in doing so they may consider themselves rather fortunate. Thistles deserved nothing worse than a draw on the play, and but for a bad mistake on the part of the referee they would undoubtedly have at least drawn the game. After a hard, fast, and interesting game in the first half, during which time neither team scored, Scottish took the lead five minutes after the interval, a great shot by Stevens finding the net, with Knight making a great effort to save. Ten minutes later Seraphine shot, and although the ball was over the line, Halliwell scooped it out and the sphere hit Seraphine and once more entered the net. This time the referee awarded a goal, but he was immediately surrounded by Scottish players, who hotly protested the point. After some time the official changed his decision and awarded a free kick for Hands.

Thistles pressed almost continuously after this, but could not score, and the game ended in a win for Scottish. Without being brilliant, it was a fine game. Noakes was a fine defender for the Scottish, while Brown was prominent at centre-half and forward. Stevens at centre was well held. Crawford and Donald at half-back for the Thistles were brilliant all the way through, but the forwards were disorganized through an early injury to Pettigrew. Nine hundred fans witnessed the game.

The line-up:

Thistles — Knight; S. Leslie and Craig; Crawford, Donald, and Slater; Barclay, Munroe, Seraphine, Pettigrew, and A. Leslie.

Scottish — Halliwell; Campbell and Noakes; Muir, Brown, and McCutcheon; Anderson, Burness, Stevens, Condie, and Nixon.

Referee—J. Owen.

SOFTBALL NEWS

Tonight Industrial Control meet the Lock Works at Central Park at 6.15 in a local Softball League game This is the second time these teams have met, the teams in Group 1 playing a double schedule. The last time these teams met the Lock Works were the winners, the Industrial Control losing out by errors. If the Control boys will give their pitcher decent support they will give the Lockmakers a stiff argument. Simmons is one of the best pitchers in the league, and given any reasonable kind of support will beat any team sacked up against him.

The Industrial Control are fielding their best team tonight and are determined to make the Lock Works step to win. A defeat for the Lock Works will be fatal tonight while a win for the Control will help them to make the post series games, as they are not yet out of the running.

The game is billed for 6.15 sharp and should draw a big attendance of spectators.

NEW YORK, June 20 (Canadian Press).—Buffalo defeated the Bears at Newark yesterday by the score of 10 to 6, in a game that was played in a drizzling rain. Leo Manhum being chased out of the game in the first inning for arguing with the umpire.

HYDROMEL WINS AMERICAN DERBY

Finished Fourth in the Kentucky Derby—Victor For $25,000 Purse.

CHICAGO, June 20. — Canadian Press. — Hydromel, little chestnut colt that finished fourth in the Kentucky Derby at Washington Park Saturday by five lengths, defeating four other crack three year olds, including Whiskery, the Kentucky Derby winner.

Handy Mandy, the filly that had never won a race, finished second, with Buddy Bauer, the entry of E. H. Bradley, and winner of the $25,000 Fairmount Derby, third. Handy Mandy, owned by Hal Price Headley, a Kentucky turfman, made a courageous challenge coming from behind during the long stretch run, after the vaunted easterners, Whiskery and Dolan had faded, and beat Buddy Bauer out of second place by inches.

The race, over the punishing mile and a half route, was witnessed by a sweltering crowd of 35,000 - 40,000 and was run in record-breaking time.

Hydromel negotiated the distance in 2.29, breaking the track record of 2.30 1-5, hung up by Boot to Boot in winning the derby a year ago.

Hydromel was not the favorite. Whitney's Whiskery carried that honor. The price in the 82 mutuels on Hydromel was $6.70 straight; $3.60 to place, and $2.80 to show. Handy Mandy paid $12.90 to place and $3.60 to show. Buddy Bauer was $3.10 to show.

The winner, rated as probably the best three year old in the west, was bred and owned by Former Senator Johnson H. Camden of Kentucky.

The Canadian tour of the team of British lawn bowlers this summer will extend from coast to coast. The visitors are due to arrive at Montreal July 16.

British Golf Fans Well Pleased Over Armour's Victory In U.S. Open

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland, June 20 (Canadian Press). — Tommy Armour's victory in the American Open at Oakmont has greatly pleased golfing fans at this shrine of the ancient game, for the former Edinburgh player is one of the few Americans whose entry has been received for the British Open, starting July 11.

Whether Armour can turn the trick that Bobby Jones accomplished last year and leave Britain at the end of July wearing both the United States and British Open crowns is a question that was being debated last night in the smoking rooms of the numerous golf club houses lining the famous links.

British regrets over the inability of their Ryder Cup team to make a better showing at Oakmont was somewhat assuaged by the playoff between Armour and Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, as both of them are British-born, Cooper having been born in England.

Some British golfers are beginning to suspect, they say, that the only way British players ever can compete seriously against American is to follow Armour's example and emigrate to the United States, practice putting there three or four years, and then start after the titles.

Bobby Jones will not defend his title at St. Andrew's, but nearly a dozen Americans have indicated their intentions of coming, although less than half a dozen have sent entries to the Royal and Ancient. The entries close July 1.

AT THE REGENT.

IF YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT A "GIGOLO" IS, SEE ROD LA ROCQUE

In his new Star Picture, He's King of Professional Dancing Men in Famous Cafe.

What's your guess as to the meaning of "Gigolo?" In this case it isn't a hat, as you may have at first fancied, but rather a motion picture in which Rod La Rocque is the star, and which will be the big feature at the Regent Theatre to-day.

Gigolo is the French moniker for a professional who dances with women as partner, for money, in such famous Parisian cafe's at Maxim's and the Cafe Marigny's. The millinery world has applied the term to a particular shape of a woman's hat which this season has enjoyed outstanding favor. Originally, however, "gigolo" applied only to a dancing man and as far as the milliners are concerned it is a "stolen" term.

"Gigolo," which was adapted for the screen by Garrett Fort and Marion Orth from Edna Ferber's story of the same name, unfolds the experience of a wealthy American boy who following an injury in the war has his face rebuilt, and becomes a "gigolo" at the Cafe Marigny's. Featured in support of La Rocque are Jobyna Ralston, and Louise Dresser, Cyril Chadwick and George Nichols are important members of the supporting cast.

Sir Sandford Fleming.

Among Canadians outside politics who contributed to the building up of the Dominion no man is more worthy of remembrance than Sandford Fleming. Born in Kirkcaldy, Scotland, he came out to Canada as a lad, and for seventy years of his life was closely interwoven with that of his adopted country.

Momentous changes took place in this one lifetime. Fleming arrived in Quebec in a sailing ship. He travelled up to Montreal in one of the early steamboats on the St. Lawrence, and made his way to Toronto by way of the Ottawa River, Rideau Canal and Lake Ontario. Ottawa was then a village and Toronto a small town. Practically the only railway in what is now Canada was the little line from St. Johns on the Richelieu to the St. Lawrence opposite Montreal. Fleming lived to see the completion of three transcontinental roads from ocean to ocean.

He had himself much to do with the history of railways in Canada. When the Intercolonial was projected as one of the terms for the entry of the Maritime Provinces into Confederation, it was decided that the Mother Country, Canada and Nova Scotia and New Brunswick should each name an engineer to carry out the preliminary surveys. They all agreed on Fleming. Having completed the surveys, he was given the bigger and more complicated task of overseeing the construction of the railway.

Before this big job was completed, the Dominion Government offered him the position of Engineer-in-Chief of the Canadian Pacific Railway. He hesitated to accept, feeling that the responsibilities of the intercolonial were enough for one man to assume, but finally consented as a matter of public duty, and for several years carried on his shoulders the double burden of Intercolonial construction and Canadian Pacific Railway surveys. Political or other considerations finally decided the route of the railway through the Kicking Horse Pass in the Rockies, but that was no fault of Fleming's, who, after examining all the available passes, had decided that the most practicable route was the Yellowhead. His judgment was confirmed a few years ago when both the Grand Trunk Pacific and the Canadian Northern were carried through the Yellowhead on a grade that is in striking contrast to that of the main line of the Canadian Pacific.

In 1885, thirteen years after he had taken charge of the surveys, Fleming was one of a notable group of railway builders, including William Van Horne, which witnessed the driving of the last spike of Canada's first transcontinental railway, at Craigellachie, by Donald A. Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona).

Perhaps no enterprise of Fleming's more effectively illustrated his characteristic qualities, quiet, unostentatious, but with an amazing tenacity of purpose, than the move at for the Pacific cable. This great Imperial scheme had been one of his pet projects from 1879, but it was not realized until 1902. In the interval he had to meet the determined and very powerful opposition of the existing cable monopoly. Little by little he made headway against not merely this opposition but the apathy and indifference of the British Government and the Colonies, and finally had the satisfaction of sending the first message over the new line.

To merely mention Fleming's further efforts for the establishment of a system of all-British state-owned cables around the world; his leading place in the Standard Time movement; his services as Chancellor of Queens University—gives only a very inadequate idea of what Canada owes to this public spirited citizen.

CANADIAN BUFFALO.

One of the least creditable incidents in the early history of the west, after the coming of the white man, was the near-extinction of the buffalo, one of the more creditable was the effective steps taken at the last moment to save the buffalo from utter extinction and bring him back, not to anything approaching his one-time numbers, but to a population that ensured the survival of this interesting and valuable animal.

At one time the buffalo ranged over the greater part of North America, and we know from the narratives of many of the early travellers and fur-traders that a hundred years or more ago they travelled in such incredible numbers over the plains of what is now Western Canada that the country was literally black with them as far as the eye could reach. Nevertheless at the time of Confederation they were practically extinct in British North America as well as in the Western States, although it is estimated that they once numbered 75,000,000. How they were exterminated is not a tale to remember.

One of the most picturesque links between the present and the past so far as the buffalo is concerned, is the veteran Canadian poet Charles Mair, still living in Victoria and approaching his ninetieth year. Mair knew the west when the buffalo might still be seen occasionally in their native state, and was so impressed with the tragedy of their extinction that in 1890 he published, through the Royal Society of Canada, an appeal that aroused the interest of thoughtful men. Some years later steps were taken to save this vanishing race of native Canadian mammals, with such success as may be seen to-day in the west.

It so happened that, almost accidentally, a few buffalo had been saved when the rest of the race disappeared. A man named Michel Pablo finally built up a herd of over six hundred in Montana. The Canadian government bought these and had them carefully transported to what is known as Buffalo National Park, in Alberta, about midway between Saskatoon and Edmonton. In this area of one hundred thousand acres the buffalo have thriven and multiplied until even that large area became insufficient to support their numbers.

During the summer of 1925 the experiment was tried of transporting sixteen hundred of these buffalo to the wooded country to the westward of Great Slave Lake, where there were already known to be about two thousand wood buffalo in a natural state. The experiment worked so well that last year over two thousand more buffalo were sent north from the Park; and this year the same number will be taken up to join their brethren. In addition about two thousand animals have been slaughtered from time to time, and disposed of in the public market, to keep down the numbers of the herd. Nevertheless, there will be about six thousand buffalo in the park.

In other words, the handful of buffalo that Pablo started with, or the six hundred that were first brought to the Park, have increased to fourteen thousand. That is surely a more satisfactory and a more creditable sight than the countless piles of buffalo bones that once marked the prairies of Western Canada.

FORMER CHAMPION IN TRAINING

(By Dan Thomas)

SOPHER RANCH, Calif., June 20.—Jack Dempsey actually is getting into fighting trim again.

Seven of his sparring partners who have walked out during the last ten days will testify to that. All of them gave the same reason for their walkout. "We can't work with him any longer—he's killing us," they explained to Gus Wilson, as they made their departures.

"The champion," as he is known on the ranch, appears to be in good condition. Two months of strenuous work in the mountains have given him a coat of bronze-like tan. All signs of fat are rapidly vanishing.

When I arrived at the ranch, isolated in the mountains about 100 miles from Los Angeles, Dempsey's face was covered with a two-day-old beard. Talk about the old Dempsey—that beard gave his face the same ugly appearance that used to be so well known among the heavyweights.

Jack isn't as fast on his feet as he was four or five years ago, but he shows a vast improvement over that rainy night he fought a fellow by the name of G. Tunney in Philadelphia. The big boy is regaining his murderous punch, too—something that was noticeably lacking against Tunney.

Dempsey isn't the least interested in whom he is going to fight. For the time being all he cares about is getting into shape so that he can fight someone. To attain that goal he is keeping five sparring partners busy all the time. He is neglecting all of his business in Los Angeles while he roughs it up here at an expense of $1,200 a week.

"I don't know yet what I will do," Dempsey told me. "I will not sign for any fight until I feel confident in my own mind that I can win. I am rounding into pretty fair shape now, but I still need more work before I will be fit to enter the ring.

"Say, this Tunney won't stand a chance when the champ puts on the gloves with him again," boasts Jerry the Greek, who has been the fighter's trainer for years. Jerry, about half Jack's size, treats the big boy like a son. He knows just how much work the "champ" should do and despite protests sends him to the showers long before Jack is ready to quit.

"I have watched the champ for many years and I know when he's in shape. He had no business to fight Tunney before, but he looks good now. If he keeps up his present pace it will be a far different story when he and Tunney meet again."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE VEGETARIAN

I don't eat meat, for many reasons,
I may be right, I may be wrong;
But, with the fruits of all the seasons,
A fellow ought to get along.
And, then, my health I value highly,
I'd like to live my allotted days;
Yet lots of people wonder slyly
If I'm all right in other ways.

Now, they do things I wouldn't think of,
There isn't room to mention here:
I wouldn't drink what some folks drink of,
And yet I do not call them queer.
It's quite all right that tastes should vary.
The things we want, and when, and how,
For, if we all should want to marry
The selfsame girl, my, what a row!

The other day I met a lady,
Carnivorous, but mighty sweet,
Who did not think my actions shady
Because I did not care for meat.
She said, "Some folks can live without it:
You must feel awful weak, of course."
Well, I had never thought about it;
I guess I do—just like a horse.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Posing at times as a barber, at others as ATTORNEY DAVIS, a curious man called VILAK has come to the queer little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, to help his cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, solve a strange mystery.

Elise, a beautiful American girl, has inherited a coffee plantation and other property adjoining Porto Verde. Several mysterious deaths occur, including that of one of her foremen. She herself has been threatened and warned to leave. Vilak, learning that LINCOLN NUNNALLY, a famous American chemist and once a teacher of his, is in South America, sends for him.

Vilak believes that GAYLORD PRENTISS, a mysterious and forbidding man, is somehow involved in the deaths. He tries to visit Prentiss, but is ordered to stay away. Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped and Prentiss is suspected. Vilak tracks the kidnappers, and recovers the child, unharmed, without finding its abductors.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He decides to close his barber shop and stick to the character of Attorney Davis. Word is brought to Elise that WILSON, manager of her property in VILLAPA, is ill and must see her. Vilak suspects a trick and he and Nunnally accompany her. They are ambushed en route by a band of soldiers.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXI.

Vilak heard a rustle in the brush behind which left no doubt that the officer had told the truth. Coolly he flicked open his cigaret case. "A cigaret, amigos?"

The other eyed him warily. "I do not smoke, amigos, when I have work to do."

Vilak lit his own casually. "That is foolish. A cigaret and the work is well begun, two cigarets and the work is done. It is an old saying of the philosopher d'Almaro which you, a good Portuguese, should know, amigos. May I take to myself the privilege of troubling you to ask why your good soldiers have done us the honor of so escorting us?"

The other scowled. "Enough of this rigolade, enough of this folly," he muttered harshly. "You and all my prisoners until I see fit to release you. I will begin by asking you some questions. Take care that you answer them well and truthfully, or it will be the worse for you. What is your name? Your profession?"

"Sherman Davis, attorney."

"Nationality?"

"United States."

The officer laughed raucously. "You are droll, amigos, very, very droll," He leered as he looked at the bony, angular face with its slanted eyes which even Vilak's skilful make-up could not completely efface. "I have seen many who come from this great country in the north, but never any who have looked like you."

He turned and winked at a cadaverous soldier with corporal's stripes, who had been riding beside him. "What do you say, Jesu, of this man who calls himself an American? Is he not rather a perfect Argentine?"

"Assuredly, mon capitaz. Were he to walk into Buenos Aires, fifty children would run to call him father."

The officer pointed to the chemist. "And this one. Who is he," he demanded.

The old man looked at his questioner nervously. "Er . . . Nunnally," he stammered. "Lincoln Nunnally. . . Er . . . chemist . . . yes . . . chemist."

"Nationality?"

"Er . . . United States . . . New Jersey."

The officer chuckled. "You hear him, Jesu? You hear him? Is he not indeed more droll than the first? This bald rabbit, this tiny insect who hops in the grass, tells us he comes from the United States where no man is less than six feet in height, where they kill all men who have not this height. Is not this droll one also a perfect Argentine, Jesu?"

'Assuredly, mon capitaz. In Buenos Aires, there are a thousand in each street who would call him brother."

The officer grinned at Elise. "And this third one?" he murmured. "This lovely senhorita with the black eyes which flame with anger and the cheeks that glow like the olive when it ripens in the sun. Who is she?"

Elise started to make an indignant reply. Vilak checked her. "Don't lose your temper. It'll make matters worse. We've got no chance here. They'll shoot us down if we give them the slightest excuse."

She obeyed her cousin's injunction and silent, coolly returned the officer's stare. He laughed. "Put down another Argentine, Jesu," he chuckled. "A beautiful one this time. There are not many like her in that mis-begotten country. Yes, a perfect Argentine." He stared at the fourth member of the party, the messenger who had brought them from Porto Verde. "This one is nothing but a jackal who comes after the lions for the moldy bones they throw him. Let him go."

The half-breed scampered off the road.

Vilak coolly tapped the end of his cigaret against the pommel of his saddle. "May I again have the privilege of inquiring why you have conferred upon us the honor of surrounding us on the road? Pleasant enough, amigos, for the society of you and your men is a boon for which we could all wish. But at the moment it hinders us slightly, for we would be on our way. What do you want with us?"

The officer put his hands to his sides and laughed with hysterical glee. "Jesu," he said, after the outburst was over, "you hear him? Is he not the king of actors, the king of kings of comedians? He does not know why we have stopped them."

"He does not know! That is indeed droll!" roared Jesu. The five other men echoed his words, and burst into convulsive merriment.

The laughter became so loud that it irritated the mustached officer. He reared himself haughtily in his saddle. "Enough!" he shouted. The pandemonium ceased at once. He wheeled around to Vilak. "You pretend not to know why my men have stopped you," he said. "Good. I will tell you. Then you can no longer say that you do not know. Last night on the fazenda Bonjardos, four miles from Villapa, Colonel Miguel Bonjardos, who had the fazenda from his father who had it from his father's father, went to sleep. It was his last sleep, for this morning, when the servants came to wake him, they found he had been killed as he lay in his bed. Killed with a pistol. All his thousands of reis were gone.

"Three persons were seen coming there in the night. Two men, one tall like yourself, the other short and old like your companion. Both English. With them was a woman. They could not see the woman well, but she was dark. Spanish, they said. They were seen by two servants who have described them well. They tell us the soldiers, for he was our commander, they will also tell the gendarmes. We go out to search. We see you. There can be no doubt. You are like the man and the woman the servants have seen as coffee bean is like coffee bean and palm leaf like palm leaf. We will take you to the jail where we will hold an inquiry, and if you are indeed those whom I know you are, you will be made to tell where you have hidden the money, and then you will be shot. For we will waste no time with those who have slain our beloved commander. The lawcourts are too long. Now do not say that you do not know." He twisted his mustache so that the two ends looked like miniature horns.

Elise's hand, holding the bridle, quivered with repressed emotion. "This is preposterous. Absolutely preposterous," she said as she leaned forward and indignantly confronted their accuser. "How could we have been here last night? All of us were on my Fazenda. You are strangers here, that's why you're doing this. Go on to Villapa or Porto Verde, and ask who I am. Everyone knows me about here."

The officer spat between his teeth at a purplish lizard sleeping on a stone. "All who are taken by the law say they are innocent. If we took only those who said they were guilty, we should take no one."

"Somebody will pay for this stupidity," she went on doggedly, "I warn you. I hate to get anyone into trouble, but I'll certainly telegraph to Rio the first chance I get. The idea of soldiers doing this, of government soldiers. It's inconceivable!"

The officer turned his back on her and walked over to speak to one of the men who had come forward from the bush. Vilak touched her arm. "Be calm, Elise," he whispered. "Whatever you do, don't get excited, you're only wasting your breath. These men aren't soldiers at all. They're degenerate types of the South American soldiers of fortune, insurrectos, who just go around the country waiting for a local revolution to break out which will give them a chance to do some looting. A lot of them are the worst sort of criminals.

"This whole thing is a frame-up. An absolute frame-up. I doubt if there's been a hint of either a theft or a murder. These men have been bought body and soul. Can't you see that? This is the work of some of our friends at Porto Verde. What I feared has happened. That message from Villapa was a trick and the man who brought it probably never saw your fazenda there. We've walked blindly into a trap."

What is wrong with the tea? If this question is ever asked at the table you may find that the tea you are using was in a paper package. Careful experiments have proven that paper is not a fit package to keep good tea in. You should try Red Rose Tea and see how fresh and brisk and pungent it is in the Aluminum package.

GOLDEN JUBILEE IS CELEBRATED

Fraserville United Church Closes 50 Years of History.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

MILLBROOK, Jan. 20.— The Golden Jubilee of the Fraserville United church which was observed on Sunday, June 19, drew large congregations both morning and evening that taxed the capacity of the building for their accommodation.

Former pastors present included Rev. Dr. Manning, of Toronto, who preached the sermon at night, and who was in charge of the circuit forty-five years ago; Rev. Francis Johnston, of Lindsay, who led in the opening prayer at morning worship; and Rev. R. J. Paterson, of Janetville, who read the Scripture lesson from Deuteronomy the eighth chapter. With these on the pulpit platform were the present pastor, Rev. H. W. Foley, and the chairman of the Presbytery, Rev. F. J. Maxwell, of Saint Andrew's United church, Oshawa, whose sermon in the morning was of a most inspiring character.

The church was fragrant with beautiful blossoms, the floral decorations about the altar being largely in white and gold, appropriate to the Jubilee occasion.

Large Choir.

The choir was augmented by many members of former days, though the pastor announced that of the choir at the time the church was dedicated there is but one surviving member, Mr. George Berry, now in his 85th year, and because of advanced age unable to accept the invitation to be present and take part in the service of song.

The anthem in the morning was: "I Will Life Up Mine Eyes Unto the Hills,' and a solo, "By the Waters of Babylon," by Mr. Edgar Finlay, of Kansas City, was particularly appreciated. From youth until early manhood Mr. Finlay was connected with the Fraserville church, and came home specially to attend the fiftieth anniversary.

Rev. Mr. Maxwell chose his text from Philippians 3, 13 and 14: "This one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus," developing his theme by urging that in the warfare, the wrestling match, the fight, the race, whichever view of the Christian life, as Paul makes comparison, one cares to follow the follower of Christ must allow nothing to divert him from the goal.

Paul looked back and did not forget God's mercies. "There are some things we may forget, but not the mercies of our covenant-keeping God; they are inspirational and upbuilding. This church is hallowed ground to some of you, for here God's grace was revealed to your soul; this is a memory to abide. Let your gratitude have some tangible expression, for we can never afford to be niggardly in our expressions of thankfulness to Almighty God."

Paul did not forget past sins, for he speaks of himself as the "chief of sinners." But when God has "cast our sins into the depths of the sea," is it wise for us to fish them up again? Not to brood over them, but as a warning, inducing deeper penitence. No sin of man's can ever overtop the cross of Christ."

Paul also did not forget former history as a ground of warning. "Thou shalt remember all the way the Lord thy God hath led thee." This church has a host of living witnesses, and a long list of sainted dead, the aroma of whose sacrifice is an inspiration to the workers of to-day.

"Reaching forth unto those things that are before" you have had a splendid history in the past; do more for the future. Make this year the best in your church life, individual life, family life, filled with bigger and better things than the past has recorded. The primary requirement of all progress is to "forget those things which are behind, and press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Concentration means power every time, and to do the will of God is the main thing in life. "Seek ye first—first—first — the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things will be added unto you."

Special Offering.

A special jubilee offering was received at the services, Rev. Mr. Foley announcing that no particular objective financially had been set, the emphasis being placed on the social and spiritual side of the anniversary.

Previous to the sermon the pastor read a Jubilee Hymn specially composed for the occasion, the writer, who preferred to be anonymous, aptly voicing the sentiments of those long connected with the congregation, who would naturally look backward rather more than forward when the Golden Jubilee was being observed.

NAUSEA OFTEN NOT FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

The majority of cases of nausea with a desire to vomit are not from any disorder of the stomach itself, but from reflexes coming from other parts of the body.

It is true that over-eating and incompatible mixtures of food will sometimes cause nausea, which can only be relieved by vomiting. Nevertheless, the greatest cause of nausea is because the liver or gall-bladder is stuffed with bile. The patient is, therefore, bilious from the absorption of biliary toxins and sometimes a violent spell of vomiting will make the gall-bladder disgorge its contents, which is often the only way by which relief can be experienced.

If gall-stones are present in the gall-bladder, the nausea may continue until the stones are removed through dieting or by surgery. The majority of cases of bilious nausea come from a functional interference with the normal eliminative process of the liver and gall bladder and not from a serious disease of these organs; but a chronic form of nausea will be caused by cancer or cirrhosis of the liver. When the liver is diseased to such an extent, not much hope can be felt for a complete recovery.

Nausea may also be produced from a chronic inflammation of the appendix, with or without pus formations around this little pigtail end of the colon. Congestion in the ovaries or womb may also produce a steady or intermittent feeling of weakness with a desire to vomit. Sometimes this is only because of the mechanical pressure of one organ upon another, which exists when the abdominal organs are prolapsed. Nothing is more sickening than the feeling which comes from the ovaries being squeezed and pressed upon by a prolapsed stomach, especially after a full meal is eaten.

Disease of the kidney, where degeneration exists or if renal calculi are present, will result in nausea similar to that produced from gall-stones or liver trouble. It is not difficult for the physician, who is a good diagnostician, to find out the exact cause which produces any kind of nausea. Of course, a complete examination must be made, and it is then unnecessary to guess.

A patient examined a few days ago had been to eight other doctors to find out what was making her nauseated. Practically everyone of these physicians made only a superficial examination, tried to guess the cause of the trouble and then wrote out a prescription.

They had all been wrong, as I found, by the Graham's gall-bladder test, that she had a gall-bladder three times its normal size filled with thickened bile. This is an examination made by giving the patient capsules of a certain dye which is absorbed by the gall-bladder. X-ray pictures will then show exactly the shape and condition of the gall-bladder. The patient has started to fast and nausea has already disappeared, and she is now on the road to recovery.

If you are troubled with nausea, try a fast and diet for biliousness, and if this does not get rid of the nausea, have a good diagnosis and find out what is causing the trouble.

of France. It was divided into four sections: French literature, history, political science, etc.; English literature, history, political science, etc.; mathematical, chemical and physical sciences; and geological sciences. Since then a fifth section has been established devoted to biological sciences. Like the famous societies on which it was modelled the Royal Society has a limited membership, ranging between forty and fifty in each section. As vacancies occur Canadians who have earned distinction in any branch of science or literature are elected to fill them.

To mention only a few of the men who have won this coveted distinction since 1861 will make it clear how closely the Royal Society has been associated with the scientific and intellectual life of the Dominion. The first president was Sir William Dawson, the famous geologist and head of McGill University, and it is interesting to note that his almost equally famous son, Dr. George M. Dawson, filled the same office about ten years later. Dr. Dawson was for many years director of the Geological Survey of Canada. Among later presidents of the Society have been Sir Daniel Wilson, Sir Sandford Fleming, Archbishop O'Brien, Sir John Bourinot, Louis Frechette, the famous French-Canadian poet, Sir James Lemoine, Benjamin Sulte, the historian, Dr. W. F. King, Astronomer Royal of Canada, Sir Adolphe Routhier, afterwards Chief-Justice of Quebec, Professor Coleman the eminent geologist and J. C. McLennan, whose researches in connection with Helium have won him world recognition.

The transactions of the Society, which now fill over fifty volumes, contain valuable papers on every branch of science and literature in Canada, and these alone, as they are found in all the great libraries of the civilized world, are of immense importance to the country because they are tangible proof that Canada ranks high not merely in her area and natural resources, but also in the intellectual calibre of the men she has produced. Besides this, the Royal Society has taken a leading part in bringing about the establishment of such important Canadian institutions as the Public Archives of Canada, the National Museum, the Research Council, the National Gallery, the Ethnological Survey, the Board of Geographic Names and the Biological Board, and has also been instrumental in carrying through such events as the Quebec Tercentary and the Cabot Celebration. Altogether it would hard to overestimate the real value to the Dominion of such an organization as the Royal Society.

SENATOR STRICKEN.

Shavinigan Division Representative Suffers Stroke of Paralysis.

THREE RIVERS, June 20 (Canadian Press).—Senator Hippolyte Montplaisir, member of the Senate for Shawinigan Division, suffered a stroke of paralysis yesterday, and little hope is entertained for his recovery. He is 89 years of age.

THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

No more significant event in the scientific and intellectual development of Canada has taken place since Confederation than the creation of the Royal Society in 1881 at the suggestion of the then Governor-General the Marquis of Lorne, afterwards the Duke of Argyll. Lord Lorne realized, as perhaps most Canadians were unable to at that time, the value that such an organization would be to the country in stimulating public interest in science and literature and particularly in the application of scientific methods to the development of the country's tremendous natural resources; in serving as a meeting-place for the scientists and writers of Canada; and in helping to break down the walls of prejudice between English and French Canada.

The Society was modelled partly on the Royal Society of London, a purely scientific body, and partly on French Academy, the intellectual centre three years of the close of the war many of them were in the Royal Canadian Air Force, detecting forest fires, locating smugglers on the boundaries, and mapping out by photography the vast areas of the hinterlands.

Civil flying soon pushed its way to the front during the post-war years, and the government of Canada was quick to establish the necessary code of laws for aerial navigation. The administration of these regulations was given to a branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force, and to-day the Dominion is safeguarded by a set of strict regulations governing the licensing of all mechanics, pilots, air harbours, international flying signals, and the inspection of air craft.

The most conspicuous work done during these recent crowded years of flying history in Canada has been the survey work in which the Dominion has led the world. Other countries have put on spectacular flights of astonishing endurance, but Canada's contribution has been along sound commercial lines. In 1926, 56,000 square miles of Canadian territory were photographed and mapped with an accuracy which would have required years and millions of dollars if done by ground work.

The year 1927 has brought a practical acknowledgment by parliament of this valuable work. Since the war Canada has never spent more than $1,500,000 a year for air development. This year more than $3,000,000 was voted by parliament for the Royal Canadian Air Force to be divided between military and civil flying. Cities are being encouraged to set aside land for future air harbors, technical advisers from Great Britain are visiting the Dominion to make recommendations for the future linking of the Empire by airways, and the Post Office Department is taking the initial steps toward what will be an Atlantic to Pacific air mail route.

Canada's future in the air is assured. So certain is the Canadian Government of the development to come that at the Imperial Conference of 1926, Canada pledged herself to the erection of a great mooring mast which will be one of the air ports for the vast dirigibles being built in England to cruise the word through the Empire's skyways.

THREE BABIES DIE.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 20 (Canadian Press). — Three babies are dead, another is believed to be dying, and five others are seriously ill of food poisoning at Springfield Redemption Home, an institution for infants under the care of the Courts.

CRASH LEADS MEN TO COURT

Smash-up on Chemong Road Gave Four Bad Fright.

FINED $10 EACH.

Broken fences at the farm of Sid Blewett on Chemong Road, and a new telephone pole erected to replace one broken down on Saturday night are parts of the evidence of an alarming crash which took place during the closing minutes of the week at the interesection of Chemong Road and the Fourth Line of Smith.

A sequel to the accident took place in the Police Court this morning, when fines of $10 and costs were imposed on E. Coward, T. and J. Mathers, and another youth named Crumley by Magistrate O. A. Langley on charges of drinking liquor in a place other than their residence

Alvin Perry of Lindsay and A. Sanderson, a young man working in Toronto, but belonging to Lindsay, were returning from Chemong Park to Lindsay when the accident occurred. In the darkness they missed the turn into the Fourth Line and the car was steered into the entrance to Mr Blewett's farm to enable them to reverse their direction. They both state that before backing out into the road, they looked carefully out to see if all was well. Discerning nothing to cause them to hesitate they were backing out, when the car in which were the four accused came along at a high rate of speed and crashed into the rear of their vehicle

Perry was slightly injured and was taken into Peterborough by Mrs. Pappakeriaze, who brought him to the house of Dr. H. M. Yelland, where he was treated for his bruises.

The windows and some of the spokes of each car were damaged and a litter of small parts lay all Sunday on the road as mute reminders of the accident.

Perry and Sanderson both returned home to-day.

RAISED TO CARDINALATE.

Sorrow With Chinese Expressed By Pope in Allocution.

ROME, June 20 (Canadian Press). —Mons. Van Roey, who succeeded the late Cardinal Mercier as Archbishop of Malines, was created cardinal by Pope Pius at a secret consistory this morning. Monsignor Hlonda, Archbishop of Poland, was also raised to the cardinalate.

The Pope, in an allocution, paid a tribute to the Roman Catholic episcopacy of the United States for its aid in making known the true situation of Catholics in Mexico, and expressed keen sorrow over the tribulations of the Chinese people, which, he said, resulted from no fault of the Chinese, who naturally were peace and order loving, but from doctrines imported from abroad.

Referring to Mexico, the Pope said, that noble country continued to shed her blood for religious liberty, and that her episcopacy, clergy and the faithful, must be included among the most illustrious of which the annals of the church can boast. "If persecution can tear the bishops from their sees, anxious as they are to fight and die with their flocks," he declared, "it can never tear them from the heart of the Pope."

The recrudesence of this "barbaric ire" against religion is due, the Pope believes, to the public and secret circulation of subversive theories of all kinds, "which filter like poison through nations, while rulers do almost nothing to render their countries immune from this danger."

Referring to France, the Pope said the enemies of the church averred that he (the Pope) did not know the true situation there, or was misinformed by his ministers, "whose loyalty in fact is above praise," or that because of party passions "we are working for the reconstruction of some kind of Empire, or that we are misled by affection for some nation, or that we trespass the limits of our authority, ordering actions against patriotism."

"All this," he continued "is not only very insulting to us, but repugnant to the truth and smacks of madness."

Going into the struggle within French Catholicism the Pontiff renewed his admonition against any internal division, reaffirming the necessity for unity of the Church and the unquestioned authority of the Papacy. He expressed regret at the continued disobedience of a certain number of French Catholics, evidently alluding to Leon Daudets group, whose paper "L'Action Francaise" was recently proscribed by the index committee of the Vatican. "We are entirely ready," the Pope said, "to receive and embrace with paternal charity whoever recants and proposes sincerely to remove the scandal which too long has been presented to the whole church, particularly that of France. Indeed, we hope that soon all will find themselves with their common father."

Mary Lathrop, the first woman admitted to membership in the American Bar Association, has been practicing law in the same office in Denver for over thirty years.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO STOCKS.

Nearly a score new peak prices were established, the list including Air Reduction, Amereica Bank Note, American Steel Foundries, Sears Roebuck, St. Paul preferred and Chicago and Alton preferred.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, June 20 (Canadian Press).—Rains over the harvest region, in the south-west, brought about a sharp early advance of wheat values to-day. On the other hand, more seasonable temperatures throughout the corn belt gave a downward swing to the corn market. Opening at 3-8 to 1 1-8 cent gain, wheat re-acted somewhat but soon rose higher than before. Corn started unchanged to 7-8 off and subsequently showed losses all around. Oats were easy.

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME IS GIVEN KING'S REPRESENTATIVE AT CENTRAL PARK ASSEMBLY

All Creeds and Classes United in Acclaiming Distinguished Visitor.

PRESENT GIFTS.

Address of Welcome Read To Their Excellencies By Mayor Holloway.

Seldom in its history has Peterborough extended a more spontaneous and enthusiastic welcome to its distinguished visitors than that accorded yesterday to His Excellency the Right Honorable Viscount Willingdon, G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., G.C.I.E., G.B.E., Governor-General of Canada, and Her Excellency Viscountess Willingdon, by the huge assembly of citizens in Central Park.

It was a truly royal welcome. All creeds and classes; all ranks and professions; citizens, young and old, united in acclaiming the King's representative and his Consort.

On their approach, passing up Murray Street, Their Excellencies were greeted by the cheers and the waving of flags by the thousands of school children lined up in front of the specially constructed platform.

As Their Excellencies approached the platform the band of the Peterborough Rangers crashed out the soul stirring strains of "O Canada," and as if moved by a common impulse the large crowd joined in the singing of the anthem.

Reads Address.

His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway voiced a common sentiment when in his brief, well-chosen message he welcomed the Governor-General and his Lady to Peterborough.

"May it please Your Excellency," he said: "The citizens of Peterborough are greatly pleased that you and Her Excellency, the Viscountess Willingdon, have honored them with a visit, and on their behalf I desire to give you a most cordial welcome.

"We welcome you as the Governor-General of our Dominion, the Diamond Jubilee of which we are soon to celebrate. The growth of Canada has fully demonstrated the wisdom of those Canadian statesmen who, sixty years ago, with the co-operation of the Imperial authorities, brought about the federation of the provinces, and laid the foundation for that national prosperity which the people of this country have since enjoyed. In the development of the Dominion this community has shared in a marked degree. Peterborough, sixty years ago but a small town, has, by the utilization of its resources, and by the enterprise of its people, expanded into a conspicuously thriving city, with the future promising still greater progress.

"We welcome you also as the representative of our beloved Sovereign, His Gracious Majesty, King George. In no part of the British Empire can His Majesty have more loyal and devoted subjects than in Canada, and in no part of Canada can the people be more sincere in their attachment to the Crown, or more ardent in their love for the great Empire, than they are in this community. This has been shown on many occasions, and particularly during the great struggle that took place in the years from 1914 to 1918; and while we hope that the peace of the world may permanently be maintained, we can assure you that Canadians will be as ready in the future as in the past to respond promptly to the Empire's summons in time of need.

"We are gratified to know that His Majesty has selected as his representative in Canada a statesman of your eminent ability and experience, and one who has given in various parts of the world such valuable service to the Empire. We are confident that this country will benefit much by the undoubted efficiency with which you will perform the duties of your office, and we fervently hope that your sojourn here will in every way be as enjoyable to yourself as it will be advantageous to the people of this vast Dominion of ours."

The address of welcome which was handed to His Excellency was a beautiful piece of penmanship executed by E. G. Glover of the Trent Canal office. The body of the text, which was in Old English, had illuminated initials, ornamented in water colour, which gave an added charm to what was a superb example of workmanship

Presented Gifts.

At this juncture little Miss MacDonald, daughter of Alderman and Mrs. G. A. MacDonald, presented Her Excellency with a beautiful bouquet of roses, the gift of the City Council, and another little lady, Miss Mary Hall, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil D. Hall, performed a similar office on behalf of the Canadian Legion.

His Worship the Mayor led the crowd in three lusty cheers as His Excellency rose to reply to the address. Obviously pleased with the royal welcome His Excellency replied:

"Mr. Mayor, and Gentlemen of the City Council of Peterborough:

I wish to thank you most gratefully for the very cordial greetings that you have extended to my wife and myself on the occasion of this, our first official visit to Peterborough.

I am indeed happy to think that the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Canada should take place during my term of office as Governor-General. As you rightly observe, Mr.

Flier Will Attempt Trans-Canada Flight

WINNIPEG, Man., June 21 (Canadian Press). — Captain Briton, of the Canadian Air Force, who will attempt a Trans - Canada flight next month starting at Montreal and flying continuously to Winnipeg and thence to Vancouver, was in this city yesterday making landing arrangements before leaving for Montreal.

Captain Briton will fly alone, stopping one night in Winnipeg and leaving for Vancouver at dawn. He will carry with him the first Trans-Canada air mail in his 80 horsepower plane, which is a De Haviland moth.

The flight is being undertaken under the auspices of the Royal Canadian Air Force but it is a private project.

LIQUOR STORE OPENED TO-DAY WITHOUT FUSS

No Line-up When Peterborough's Government Store Started Business.

LADY IS THIRD.

Occasion is Subject of Joking By Citizens Gathered Across Street.

If there were any persons who had visions of a long line-up of thirsty patrons when Mr. Hanna's Peterborough unit of the Provincial cash-and-carry liquor system opened its doors for business this morning, there must have been some disappointed individuals.

There was no line-up; no rush.

When the store opened only two customers were on hand, and for twenty minutes after that the purchasers arrived at the rate of one every two minutes.

The first customer, an out-of-town man with a grip in his hand, arrived on the scene a few minutes before 10 o'clock, tried the door, found it locked and waited.

Customer No. 2, a Peterborough resident, appeared soon after.

Vendor Frank Bradburn opened the door as the clock was striking the hour, and the first two pioneers passed inside, the Peterborough man waving his hand to the spectators across the streets as he entered.

The first lady customer was the third to arrive, and after her patrons of Peterborough's latest business trickled in fairly steadily.

The second man in was the first to emerge with a couple of packages under his arm at 10.11, and soon after the first customer made his appearance with a carton, and was greeted with subdued cheers from the onlookers.

Incidentally the only line-up was composed of these just-mentioned onlookers who gathered across the streets from the Peterborough oasis and watched the proceedings.

There was no need of a policeman on duty, while Enforcement Officer Joseph Stewart witnessed the opening, and after a short time decided that his presence was not necessary.

In short, the opening of the Peterborough store was a quiet and business-like affair, in which even the spectators soon lost their interest.

Rules Explained.

The rules and regulations to be observed were carefully explained to purchasers by Col. Bradburn and by Mr. Johnston, sent from Toronto for the purpose.

W. H. Bradburn, the local representative of the Ferguson government which introduced and carried the Liquor Control Act, was an interested observer of the proceedings for some time in the forenoon.

There was a touch of unconscious humour in the action of a nearby retail merchant who brought out his Union Jack and erected the pole on the edge of the sidewalk shortly after the store opened for business. Between these two acts there was obviously no connection, although facetious onlookers chose to see in them an exemplification of the principles of cause and effect, of action and reaction.

Many of the purchasers openly expressed their delight at the commencement of new methods of handling the liquor question. One man came along and asked, "Is she open?" in a tone of expectancy, not unmingled with doubt. Another exultantly declared, "Free once more," as he approached and realized that the store had actually opened.

The hours of business in the store are from ten till six. Each brand is numbered. When ordering, permit holders are required to sign a purchase order when presenting their permits to the censor. The purchase order must state buyer's name, and full address, the name of the brand, its number on the lists of the store, the quantity desired and the price.

SACRED MUSIC FOR CONCERT ON JULY THIRD

Peterborough Rangers and Salvation Army Bands To Lead Community Singing.

CHOIR OF 400.

Fifteen Thousand Jubilee Programmes Issued—J. Wearing To Preside.

An appropriate sacred programme has been drawn up for the gathering in Victoria Park on the evening of Sunday, July 3, as part of the Diamond Jubilee celebrations.

The bands of the Salvation Army and the Peterborough Rangers will play selections from the opening of the programme until 9 o'clock. Then will come community singing, in which all will be asked to join, of sacred numbers known by all. These will be led by the choir of 400 voices accompanied by the two bands. "The Lost Chord," "Praise Ye the Father," and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah are typical examples of the numbers that figure on the programme.

Special illumination and seating arrangements are in hand and a large congregation of between ten and fifteen thousand is expected if the weather conditions are favorable. The bands will be provided with special musical scores and several hundred copies of vocal music have been purchased for the choirs. Martin Chenhann will conduct the chorus, the bands of course, being under the direction of their respective conductors during their playing of selections.

Joseph Wearing will act as chairman and will also lead the community singing.

The police have been requested to keep all automobiles away from the neighborhood of the park during the Sunday concert.

Fifteen thousand Jubilee programmes of community singing have been issued. These will be used both in Exhibition Park and at Victoria Park.

All the vocalists of the city, whether members of choirs or not, are cordially invited to join the Jubilee chorus and to attend rehearsals in Victoria Hall on Sunday at 4.15 p.m.

His Excellency Presents Portrait To Civic Head

The City Council will soon have a tangible reminder of yesterday's visit to Peterborough of the Governor General and Lady Willington. Shortly before his departure last night, Lord Willingdon presented a portrait of himself and Lady Willingdon to His Worship, Mayor W. T. Holloway, who had been His Excellency's guide, counsellor and friend throughout the day, from the moment of the arrival of the C.P.R. trai nat eleven o'clock. His Worship proposes to have the picture framed and it will hang on the walls of the Council Chamber, which is already adorned by a picture of the former distinguished occupant of the office, Lord Byng of Vimy.

ATHENS, N.Y., June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Bernice and Phyllis Zitenfield, 13-year old twins, were ahead of schedule yesterday in their 162 mile swim from Albany to New York when they arrived off the Athens Flat light twenty seven and one half miles below Albany at 3.05 p.m. yesterday.

The twins took off from Albany Sunday morning in their attempt to break the record held by Mrs. Lottie Moore Schoemmel in the Hudson swim. When they were taken out of the water they were more than an hour ahead of Mrs. Schoemmel's record.

Believe Piece Of Airplane Wing Is a Fragment Of French Airmen's Bus Missing Since May 5

PARIS, June 21 (Canadian Press). — Experts of the Farman Aeroplane Company today expressed the opinion that the raft made of an areoplane wing to which were attached two wheels, found near the mouth of the Amason River was part of the plane in which missing French airmen, Saint Roman and M. Mouneyres set out from St. Louis, Senegal, for a flight to Brazil on May 5.

Markings given by the fisherman who made the report, it was said, are those of pneumatic tires on landing corresponding with the number on the type of tires furnished only for aeroplanes of the model which Saint Roman flew.

BRITISH DELEGATE PROPOSES LARGER TYPE OF SUBMARINES

Says Would Make It Easier To Limit Number of Destroyers.

NAVAL CONFERENCE.

Necessary To Guard Against Powers Not Signatory To Agreement.

GENEVA, June 21 (Associated Press).—In submitting to the conference concrete proposals which involved the reopening of problems regulated by the Washington conference, W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, said the British had not changed their minds with regard to their willingness to agree to discontinuance of the use of submarines in warfare, but they recognized that the Powers possessing fewer of the larger warships would look upon submarines as valuable weapons for defence

However, he felt that if the British proposals limiting battleships and other large warships were accepted, it would not be unreasonable to suggest limitation in the size, and perhaps also the numbers of submarines. Therefore he proposed a larger type of submarine, which would make it easier to limit the number of destroyers.

The first lord emphasized that owing to the position of Great Britain in relation to Europe its was necessary to guard against an increase in naval strength by the Powers not signatory to any agreement between the United States, Japan and Great Britain; hence a provision for reconsideration would be needed, though he hoped the European Powers would adhere to the agreement.

Reduction in Size

Mr. Bridgeman refrained from recommending any total tonnage of cruisers, destroyers and submarines, limiting himself to advocacy of reduction in the size of battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers, and also the guns on these craft, and, in view of his suggestion that future cruisers should be reduced to 7,500 tons he urged a special agreement limiting the number of 10,000 ton cruisers to be authorized.

Admiral Saito, representing Japan, said nothing should be done to prevent a satisfactory agreement, and he believed an agreement possible if proper sympathetic consideration were given to the peculiar conditions and requirements of the various nations.

He emphasized that the value of auxiliary war craft varies according to special conditions in each country and argued that the requirement of each nation are reflected in what that nation possesses actually or in authorized programs. Hence, adequate consideration must be given to the existing status of each nation.

Prevent Expansion

"The most important object," he said, "is to prevent the expansion of armaments without simultaneously endangering national security. Radical departures from existing conditions calculated to shake the foundation upon which a sense of security rests should be carefully avoided."

Admiral Saito then proposed that for a certain period the Powers should agree upon the prohibition of a new building program or the acquisition of warships which will increase naval strength. By naval strength he meant the tonnage of completed ships which have not reached the replacement age and the tonnage of ships now under construction.

In determining the naval strength to be allotted to each Power he wanted taken into consideration those ships which would pass the replacement age during the execution of such program.

EMPLOY BLIND.

Sightless Men Meet in Convention in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., June 21. — (United Press).—American employers should be forced to employ blind persons whenever they prove their capability, said Robert B. Irwin, a blind man from Montclair, addressing the Association of American Workers for the Blind in convention here. In Europe employers are compelled to hire sightless persons when they can do the work, Irwin said.

Find Plane Wreckage Believed St. Roman's

RIO JANEIRO, June 21.—(A.P.) —Interest in the fate of Captain Saint Roman, French aviator, and his companion, M. Mouneyres, who hopped off from St. Louis, Senegal, on May 5, for Pernambuco, Brazil, and have since disappeared, was revived here yesterday with the receipt of news that the wreckage of an aeroplane had been found in the mouth of the Amason river by a fisherman.

The news was contained in a telegram from Para and was signed by the chief of the National Telegraph district. It stated that a deep sea fisherman had arrived yesterday at the mouth of the Amazon river and with the report that he had seen a raft made of an aeroplane wing attached to which were two wheels. On the wheels were the marks, "5-Aero 800x 160 12.12 x 26."

FATHER WHO MADE ATTACK IS REMANDED

Thomas Scott Charged With Doing Bodily Harm To Family.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Accused is Sixty Years of Age —Wife Seriously Injured.

COBOURG, June 21 (By Staff Correspondent).—Thomas Scott, a farmer residing near Pontypool, appeared in Police Court last night on two charges, first of assault and doing bodily harm to his wife and daughter, and, second, attempting to commit suicide. He was remanded till June 28th at 11 a.m., when he will appear at a special sitting to be held in Bethany.

Scott is a man of 60 years of age, and is said to have attacked his wife and three children, and then attempted to commit suicide. He was arrested and brought to Cobourg by Constable Rowland of Manvers. Mrs. Scott is the most seriously injured, suffering from a bad head wound.

BETHANY, June 21.—One of the most shocking things that has happened in the Township of Manvers occurred on Sunday evening when Thomas Scott, a farmer living two miles southwest of Pontypool and about twelve miles from here, attacked his family with a heavy iron poker and an axe, then tried to take his own life by cutting his throat in a fit of temporary insanity.

It appears there has been differences in the family for some months and on Sunday evening, while the eldest son was at church, Scott began questioning his wife on certain things and not receiving, to him as he thought, a satisfactory answer, he picked up the poker and struck her on the head, knocking her to the floor unconscious.

The two small daughters who were present, came to the rescue of their mother and managed to get the poker away and to throw it through an open window, but the enraged father picked up an axe standing near and struck at his nine-year-old daughter, who put her hand to her head to save it and got the blow in the hand, which, upon examination, it was found to be necessary to amputate a finger.

In the meantime the mother recovered and managed to get herself and small children to a neighbor's house, where they called for Dr. McNeil of Pontypool and upon finding him absent in Toronto, phoned for Dr Hamilton of Bethany.

Constable Rowland accompanied Dr. Hamilton, who went to give first aid. Scott's family remained all night with a neighbor, and in the morning Magistrate Jakeman issued a warrant for the arrest of Scott. Constable Rowland, accompanied by Keith Thorndyke, went to the home of Scott, and there met with a horrible sight. The kitchen floor was covered with blood. In the bedroom Scott was found lying on the bed almost naked with his throat badly cut but still alive.

They managed to get him clothed and into the car; then they brought him to Dr. Hamilton's office. But upon examination it was thought wise to have him removed to Turner's private hospital, Millbrook, where the wound was attended to last night Scott was taken to the County Jail at Cobourg, where he will await trial.

BIG MEETING OF DELEGATES HELD IN CITY

CO-OPERATION NEEDED.

Report of Nominating Committee is Submitted; A. H. Acres, M.P.P., President.

The second annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce began this morning in the auditorium of the Public Library.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary-treasurer, G. O. Herity, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, Belleville. The president of the association, Mayor Holloway, thanked the members present for giving him the honour of being the first president. He then remarked that in his estimation an annual meeting of this Association was practically useless, and they should have meetings three or four time a year. Mayor Holloway stated that when only an annual meeting is held everyone loses interest of the previous meeting, and then when that question arises again, it is forgotten by the majority.

"To gain better co-operation, it is necessary to hold meetings more often," he said, "for if we know each other better it is easier to discuss these important matters more freely, than if we were almost total strangers."

Mayor Holloway then remarked that if the Association would go after things they would get them, and expressed his hope that the coming year would bring more frequent meetings.

"We will get together and keep the interests of the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce at the head of things," stated the Mayor, "and anything that can be improved on will be accomplished by us."

His Worship then remarked that it was with a great deal of pleasure that he welcomed all the visiting delegates to Peterborough, and anything that they required would only be readily fulfilled by the Council or any of the local members of the Chamber of Commerce.

The following is the report read by the secretary for 1926:

Membership dues, 1926	$110.00
Membership dues, 1927	5.00
Total	$115.00
Expenditures	23.13
Balance	$ 91.87

This report was audited and found correct by S. R. Armstrong and G. K. Dewey.

The secretary then reported that the executive had held two meetings since the last annual one, and that they had taken up matters of highways, advertising, Hydro, membership, and other matters. They also made an appointment with the Hydro Commission on November 18, and in an interview with the Commissioner for more adequate supply of power for Eastern Ontario, they had received the satisfactory reply that he had given much consideration to the matter and that the possibilities of obtaining power were very good, and he had every assurance that the necessary power would be obtained.

"If we can get this," said the secretary, "it will mark a splendid year's work."

The Nominating Committee then went into a brief discussion, and submitted the following report:

President—A. C. Acers, M.P.P., of Britannia Bay.

Vice-president—Mayor Preston of Oshawa.

Vice-president District 2 — Col. R. Graham, of Belleville.

District 5—Duncan McNaughton of Finch.

J. O. Herity, of Belleville, secretary-treasurer.

Members of the executive are:

Mayor R. D. Preston, of Oshawa, for Ontario County.

Mayor Thomas Holgate for Durham and Northumberland.

T. H. Stinson, M.P., of Lindsay, for Victoria.

A. J. Reynolds, of Peterborough, for this city.

R. J. Graham, of Belleville, for Hastings.

F. G. Bishop, of Kingston, for Frontenac.

Leeds and Grenville—Mayor Reynolds, of Brockville.

D. McNaughton, of Finch, for Glengarry and Stormont.

A. H. Acers, M.P., of Britannia Bay, for Carleton.

Dr. A. J. Anderson, of Smith's Falls, for Lanark; and Mayor Logan, of Renfrew, for Renfrew County.

Vice-Regal Party Attend High Tea At St. John's Church

Following Afternoon Tea, Their Excellencies Present at Short Service of Evensong in Church Forming Concluding Festivities of Anniversary.

UNVEIL BRONZE TABLET IN MEMORY OF CENTENARY AND CELEBRATIONS

Lord Willingdon, Addressing Audience, Expressed His Pleasure at Having the Opportunity To Share in Hundredth Anniversary of St. John's Church.

The High Tea and garden party which formed the concluding festivities of St. John's Church Centenary celebrations yesterday proved to be as successful from every point of view as the previous ceremonies in connection with this celebration of the hundred years of service in the community just completed by the Mother Church of Anglicanism in this district. The weather was propitious, the mildly threatening clouds of the afternoon refusing to do more than keep the temperature at a pleasantly low ebb, and resolving themselves during the evening into a beneficent sky that gave a real summer atmosphere to the garden party and its closing episodes. From the elongated arch of evergreens, surmounted by a white cross, that topped the entrance on Hunter street, to the flowering acacias and glistening ivy against the belfry tower, the old church was at its best for the occasion and a general note of pleased rejoicing in the satisfactory progress of the celebration emanated from the lips of the many hundreds who were in attendance during the afternoon and evening.

Following the tea which which was served to their Excellencies and invited guests, at the rectory, at four o'clock in the afternoon, a short service of evensong was held in the church at five o'clock. The large edifice, its interior draped with bright flags, was packed to capacity for the service, which was in charge of Rev. Dr. Blagrave, and Rev. T. J. O'Conor-Fenton, of Norwood the lesson being read by His Excellency, Lord Willingdon.

Preceding the service, the organist, F. G. Mann, played an organ voluntary in a "Caprice in B flat," also the National Anthem, and the Chimes rang out in "Rule Britannia," "O Canada," and "God Save the King." Following the brief service, a Processional March was played on the organ, also "See the Conquering Hero Comes," and "The War March of the Priests," from "Athalia."

Clergymen Present.

Present in the chancel were clergymen from the city and neighboring district, including Rev. Canon Allan of Millbrook, Rev. J. L. Hughes of St. George's Church; Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Church; Rev. W. M. Creighton of Lakefield; Rev. Clarke Wallace of Campbellford; Rev. T. Dwelly of Young's Point, and Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's Church.

Directly after the conclusion of the service, the vice-regal party standing on the front steps of the church, the band of the Peterborough Rangers in attendance, played "O Canada," and Rev. Dr. Blagrave, speaking briefly, extended a cordial welcome to Their Excellencies from the church and congregation of St. John's. "Words fail me in expressing the appreciation of the membership of this church, and of the people of this Deanery, of your Excellencies' visit here, and I wish to assure your Excellencies of the loyal devotion of the people of this church and Deanery to the Empire, to His Majesty King George the Fifth and to yourselves, as representatives of the King in the Dominion of Canada. By your cordial and winning manners, you have won our hearts, and I am sure that the ladies of this church in particular appreciate your presence here to-day to have high tea with us."

Unveils Memorial.

Dr. Blagrave then asked Lord Willingdon to unveil a tablet placed in the vestibule of the church, in memory of the Centenary and its celebration. This is a handsome large square tablet of brass, placed on the western wall of the vestibule, its lettering outlined with a narrow black border, and ornamented with corner motifs of scarlet. The inscription reads:

"To commemorate the Centenary of St. John's Church, 1827-1927. Unveiled by the Governor-General, June 20th, 1927."

Coming out to the front steps of the church once more, Lady Willingdon was presented by little Jacqueline ("Peaches") Grahame, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Grahame, and grand-daughter of Mr. Thomas Grieve, with a beautiful bouquet of pink roses.

Lord Willingdon, speaking in a pleasant, clear voice, then addressed the audience from the church steps. He said, prefacing his remarks with an excuse for delivering what he called a "sermon":

"I can only say that it has been a real pleasure to my wife and myself to find that we had the opportunity of sharing with you in the celebration of the centenary of your church a celebration which may probably have no parallel while I am living among you, and one which is extraordinarily agreeable to me. It coincides so closely with the celebra-

STRANGLER IS UNTOUCHED BY 26 WITNESSES

Shows No Interest in Proceedings at Coroner's Inquest.

WOMEN STRANGLED.

Many People Link Up Chain of Circumstantial Evidence.

WINNIPEG, June 21. (Canadain Press. — Without emotion and displaying no interest in the proceedings, Earle Nelson, alias Virgil Wilson, alleged to be the "dark strangler," sat in the dock in the little court room at central police headquarters last night, for two hours, while 26 witnesses testified at the coroner's inquest into the deaths of Lola Cowan, aged 14, and Mrs. Emily Patterson, aged 27, and heard the jury's verdict holding him responsible for the double slaying.

Dr. W. P. McGowan testified that the girl's death had been caused by strangling and smothering. Her lungs showed signs of asphyxiation, and there was a mark on the top of her head as if the victim had been struck by a blunt instrument. The blow, he thought, would not have been sufficient to kill.

Dr. McGowan indicated that Mrs. Patterson had met death in much the same manner. Both had been violated.

Mrs. Catharine Hill, a rooming keeper identified Nelson as the man who had rented the room in which Lola Cowan's body was found. She also identified the clothes left in the Patterson house as those which Nelson had worn when she last saw him.

Sam Waldman, a second hand clothes dealer told of fitting out Nelson with new apparel. He identified the clothes he had sold and those the man had left.

W. J. DROPE PASSES AWAY

Former Principal of Peterborough Collegiate—Leading Dominion Mason.

LEADING EDUCATIONALIST.

TORONTO, June 21 (Canadian Press).—W. J. Drope, one of the leading educationists in Canada, is dead in Grimsby, Ontario, where he had founded his Lake Lodge School for boys.

Mr. Drope, former Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, A.F. and A.M., was 61 years old.

In the Masonic Order Mr. Drope was known throughout the Dominion. He was initiated in Peterborough in 1892 and he became Grand Master in Ontario in 1923, holding the position until his health began to fail near the end of his two-year term.

Before building Lake Lodge School, Mr. Drope was Principal of Peterborough Collegiate Institute for a number of years. He was born in Alnwick, County of Northumberland, Ontario. He contested South Wentworth as a Conservative in a pre-war Provincial election.

The origin of the word "spooning" goes back 500 years. Then a man would make known his marital intentions by giving a girl a "love spoon," a utensil with two bowls on the same stem.

ITALY MAKES STRONG BID TO GET MANDATES

Germany and Italy Open Claimants For Share in Territories.

SHOW UNITED FRONT.

GENEVA, June 20. — The permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations met here yesterday to discuss eventual redistribution of the mandates now under the control of the league.

With both Germany and Italy now open claimants for a share in the mandated territories, the meetings of the mandates' commission have become one of the most important international political events under the jurisdiction of the league.

Up until a year ago the rivalry between Germany and Italy for a redistribution of and participation in the mandates was adroitly used by the present mandatory powers as a means of checking any possible action.

When Italy demanded a share in the mandates she was told that it was difficult, if not impossible, owing to Germany's claims. When on the other hand, Germany put forth her desires, she was told that Italy's attitude rendered any redistribution impossible.

United Front.

With the treaty of friendship signed a year ago between Italy and Germany, however, these two nations are now putting up a united front to see that they get in on this aspect of the "spoils" of the Great War. Germany insists that she is entitled to the control of at least one of her former colonies which were mandated to the various allied powers, while Italy insists that her necessity of expansion renders imperative a colonial mandate.

The first concrete step in the combined campaign of these two countries to break up the monopoly of the ex-allies on the former German colonies, is the campaign just started by German Foreign Minister Stresemann to secure for Germany a seat on the league's permanent mandates commission.

Mr Stresemann has already discussed the question with Chamberlain and Briand, and in league circles it is considered likely that the concession will be granted. The commission already has as president an Italian, Marchese A. Theodoli.

The other members of the commission at the present time are Monsieur Freire d'Anfrade, Portugal; Monsieur Beau, France; Sir Frederick Lugard, England; Pierre Orts, Belgium; L. Palacios, Spain; D. Van Rees, Holland; Madam Bugge-Wicksell, Sweden; H. Chiyuki Yamanaka, Japan, and William Rappard, Switzerland.

Sets New Record in Conquest of Flagpole Shipwreck Kelly Aloft 12 Nights and Days

NEWARK, N.J., June 21. — An Irish-American eagle descended in a tireless bosun's chair here on Sunday, and man's most defiant accomplishment in the conquest of the flagpole had been completed.

Alvin (Shipwreck) Kelly landed on the roof of the St. Francis Hotel at 10.24 p.m., completing a non-stop stay on top of the hotel flagpole that began June 7, at 10.30 a.m.

For 12 days and nights he had sat there, never faltering in his determination to become the man who had sat longest on a flagpole at the top of the St. Francis Hotel in Newark, or on top of any flagpole anywhere.

And yesterday nothing but flags waved from Newark flagpoles, for with Kelly out of the air, none remained aloft to contest his title.

To keep the record straight, it was exactly 12 days 12 nights 11 hours 50 minutes that Kelly remained on the perch 20 feet above the hotel roof.

Rain trickled down his neck, and a hot sun beat down upon his head in the course of his fortnight on the pole.

Kelly's bride of six months waited patiently below, tieing soup on the end of a string for him to hoist to the top of the pole, sending him shaving implements and such other devices as he found necessary, and generally caring for his distant wants.

Not Popular Sport.

Sporting experts, however, predicted flagpole sitting contests would not gain permanent popularity in the sporting world. There is something curiously uninspiring about watching rivals see which can do nothing longest, as many boxing fans have paid good money to learn.

It's too much like a chess tournament.

DELIVERS ADDRESS ABOUT TEMPERANCE

W. A. Anderson, M.P.P., Is Special Speaker to Warsaw S. S. Scholars.

WARSAW, June 21. — At the United Church Sunday School on Sunday, Mr. Anderson, M.P.P. for East Peterborough, gave a short talk on "Temperance." He said he had always been opposed to the use of liquor as a beverage, and he did not know but it might easily be done without as a medicine. When he was a boy he went to work in a cheese factory in a town that had just enough inhabitants to have four licenses. He went up street with some of the other young fellows. One of these places was open, so they went in. Soon he was asked to have a drink. He said "No," and that 'no' stood him in good stead. He had many times since been invited to drink, and under many different circumstances, but he has always said "No."

He said sometimes a measure's greatest enemies were those who might be expected to stand by it. There are ministers of the Gospel who were bitter against the O.T.A.

As for the new regulations, it is too soon to judge, and he did not feel he could say anything until the people could see how it would work. The question should not be a party issue, and should be voted upon outside of politics. If the people wish a temperance law to be upheld, they must send representatives to Toronto, and also to Ottawa, who will see that the regulations are carried out.

The speaker ended by urging every boy and girl to abstain from the use of alcoholic beverages absolutely, and to do all they could to have others do the same.

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME

Mayor, the growth of Canada has indeed demonstrated the wisdom of those Canadian statesmen responsible for Confederation, and I know that the citizens of Peterborough will contribute their full share towards the forthcoming celebrations, and by so doing give further evidence of their unswerving loyalty and devotion to His Most Gracious Majesty the King, and the great British Empire of which he is head.

You in Peterborough, as in other parts of the Dominion and indeed of the world, went through a period of stress and hardship after the Great War. You have weathered those bad days, and can confidently look forward to a period of sound and steady progress in all your commercial activities, and I trust most sincerely that the citizens of Peterborough may fully participate in this advance.

You have been good enough to refer to such services as it has been my privilege to give in the past to our Sovereign and the Empire. I most sincerely hope that at the end of my tenure of office as Governor-General, I may feel that, under Providence, I have contributed in some degree, and to the best of my ability to the prosperity and advancement of the greatest of the Dominions, and to the well-being and happiness of its people.

Let me thank you once more, on behalf of my wife and myself, for the warmth of the welcome that you have given us to-day.

VICE-REGAL PARTY

tion of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation of the nine provinces of Canada.

"You are here to-day looking back with pride to the fact that your church for the past hundred years has given spiritual comfort and refreshment to many thousands of your denomination. You are going to look forward to-day to the sure fact that this church will stand for long years to continue to give that comfort and refreshment to the Protestants of our denomination.

"In a few days' time we can look back to the services rendered to Canada by the great statesmen of the Dominion in the past and look forward with assurance to the success of our country in the years to come. I feel a very proud man when I stand here as Governor-General of Canada at this very time, and I want to say to you that I have been impressed in many parts of the Dominion with the fact that Canadians are full of a high and confident assurance in the future progres sof their country. They are full of loyalty to our King and they are full of kindliness and friendliness.

"I know that much of your kindness to myself and my wife has been due to the fact that I stand here as representative of our Sovereign but hope in the days to come, when I return to Peterborough, as I hope to do, that there then may be some touch of personal affection for the Governor General and his wife as people who have tried to do their best to further the highest interests of our Dominion. In my humble way, living in a great many parts of the empire, I have tried to do what I could to uphold the prestige of the Empire.

"I have seen many years in India, and I have many good friends there, but still I feel that towards the end of a public service—and it will come to an end before many years are over—that it is good to feel that one can end one's service among one's own people of the same stock, speaking the same language and thinking the same thoughts.

Vice regal—Take 2 — Design ... ..

"It is also a great satisfaction to me to feel that, notwithstanding the fact that in my youth I was a Liberal member of Parliament, it happened that a Conservative Prime Minister made me Government-General of Canada.

"Standing here, I feel that I should say with firm conviction that I do not believe that any country will ever persist in a solvent condition in its administrative life until it has religion as the basic principle of the whole of its public existence. I feel this very strongly indeed, and I believe much of the unrest of unsettlement of the world now is due to the fact that there are many people who seem to have forgotten that there is a great Providence that shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will, and to Him we must turn, for He is the anchor of our existence on this planet. I am glad to say that in my journeys around Canada, that I am impressed with the strong religious feeling among the Canadian people. I feel that with this idea firmly imbedded in the mind of the people, the future of Canada will be one of the brightest among the nations of the world. I again thank you for the charming reception you have given to me and to my wife today."

Attend Tea

The presentation of many of those in the audience was then carried out, both Lord and Lady Willingdon, who were attended by their aides, extending a cordial and gracious word to all who met them, and the service of High Tea followed. The band of the Peterborough Rangers continued to provide an excellent musical programme for those who waited for the second table, and also played during the evening. Upwards of six hundred tickets had been purchased for the High Tea, served in the parish hall, and the majority of the ticket-holders were on hand for a delicious meal, served with despatch and in very pleasant surroundings.

The large parish hall was decorated from end to end for the occasion. Much time and attention had evidently been lavished on its arrangement. The long, white-clothed tables were arranged with lighted green candles that formed a golden pathway down the centre, and stood banked in glowers; marguerites, cosmos and bridal wreath forming their bases. The same flowers, with peonies and iris, were in baskets placed at intervals along the tables, and the windows of the long hall were filled with cornucopeia filled with long fern fronds and spring flowers, while ferns and evergreens decorated the walls. The stage itself was a bower of flowers, and overlooked as a central decoration the large, frosted, birthday cake with its tiny hundred candles. The archway of the stage was centred by a hanging basket of green foliage and flowers, and the footlights were covered by vases of daisies and peonies and ferns. The head table, flanked by two smaller tables, was placed on the stage, near the north wall, and was decorated in a lovely fashion. It was in charge of Mrs. E. S. Martin and Mrs. G. S. Cameron who looked after the menu with especial attention. The centre of the table was done with an artificial mirror lake, fringed with bridal wreath, and arranged with white swan baskets of pink sweet peas and forget-me-nots. Two huge silver baskets of pink roses, donated by Mrs. W. Dolby, were at either end. Seated at this table were Lord and Lady Willingdon; their aides, Captain C. S. Price-Davies and Major O'Connor, D.S.O.; the secretary, Mr. Meiville; Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Blagrave, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Kent, Mayor and Mrs. Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Aylmer, Judge Huycke, Mr and Mrs. W. H. Bradburn, Mr. and Mrs. W. Logan of Hamilton, and E. A. Peck, M.P. Seated at the two smaller tables were visiting clergymen of the city and district, including Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hughes of St. George's Church; Rev. Clarke Wallace of Campbellford; Rev. and Mrs. T. Dwelly of Young's Point; Rev. Canon and Mrs. Sawers of Toronto; Rev. Canon and Mrs. Allan of Millbrook; Rev. and Mrs. J. D. Paterson of All Saints; Rev. W. S. Edgar of Gilmour Memorial Church, and Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's United Church.

During the progress of the High Tea, a copy of the Centenary History of the church, in a de luxe edition bound in blue leather, was presented to Their Excellencies by Mr. J. A. Aylmer, and a bound volume of pictures of the day's celebrations from the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, was also presented. This last represented an achievement on the part of the Roy Studio, Mr. Roy and his assistants making special and successful efforts to have the pictures taken and completed during the day, for presentation at the High Tea. Their Excellencies then departed.

The arrangements for the High Tea were in the capable hands of the Churchwomen's Association of St. John's. In the absence of the president, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, those in charge were Mrs. A. E. Coulthard and Miss M. English, with the menu arranged for by Mrs. A. W. Turner. Mrs. J. H. Seels was convenor of the decorating committee, with members in Mrs. C. H. Rogers, Mrs. Gerald Wood and Mrs. D. Lawrie.

After the conclusion of supper, a brief programme was held in front of the Rectory, with Rev. Dr. Blagrave as chairman.

The vicar, alluding to the entire success of the celebration and the day itself, spoke of the splendid impression made by Lord and Lady Willingdon on all with whom they came in contact, and extended the thanks of himself and the congregation to the various committees of the church, who had looked after all arrangements with such satisfactory results, to the C.W.A., to the patrons of the celebration, to The Peterborough Examiner for the "splendid way in which it helped with the celebration and the advertising given in its columns, also for its agreeableness and generosity", to F. Stinson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, for an encouraging letter received with regard to the celebration, to Mr. J. J. Duffus, who had placed a Willy-Knight car and driver at the disposal of the committee during the day, to the Mayor and City Council for their co-operation and interest in the proceedings, to all who had attended the Memorial Service on Friday evening last, and to the Hydro-Electric Commission for their donation of services in putting on the lights on the grounds.

Take 2 continued—Vice regal ... ..

Dr. Blagrave read a letter of regret at inability to be present, owing to engagements for Confirmation throughout the parish, received from His Lordship, Bishop O'Brien, also a telegram of congratulation from Archdeacon Davidson, and a similar message from Mr. W. R. Morris from Amiens, France.

Congratulating Mr. F. M. Delefosse on the splendid history of St. John's Church, which formed a portion of the Centenary celebration. Dr. Blagrave commented on two slight omissions, one in failing to record Mr. Hughes Charles as a past church warden; and the other, the omission of the gift of a paten and chalice presented by Rev. Canon Sawers in memory of his mother and other members of his family.

Address Given

Brief addresses were given by Mayor Holloway, who congratulated the church and the congregation on the general success of the celebration, and spoke with hope of the future when the old Church of St. John's might constitute the cathedral church of a new parish; by E. A. Peck, M.P., who is a descendant of Rev. Samuel Armour, rector of St. John's Church one hundred years ago; and by Mr. W. M. Logan of Hamilton, who spoke in humorous fashion as a wind-up to the proceedings.

The musical programme included a song by Mrs. W. M. Logan of Hamilton, who gave Land of Hope and Glory" in excellent voice, and a number of Mr. F. G. Mann's male voice choir, who sang in robust fashion 'Here''s Life and Health to England's King."

The grounds, gay with overhead strings of lights and numbers of colored pennants, were brightened also by the large tent where the Women's Friendly Bible Class of the Church sold home-made candy in dainty blue and white boxes and the A.Y.P.A. had a sale of soft drinks and ice cream. Flower-filled vases decorated both tables and the ladies of the W.F.B.C., in charge of Mrs. J. Bacon, wore frilled cape of blue and white. Mr. J. Gore, president of the A.Y.P.A., was in charge of the second sale.

Members of the A.Y.P.A. also policed the grounds during the afternoon, giving effective service. They wore sleeve badges of blue and white.

FINAL MEETING OF RED CROSS SOCIETY

E. Hinton Gives Much Appreciated Address on Examinations.

HIAWATHA, June 21.—On June 17, the final meeting of the Hiawatha Red Cross Society was held with George Paudash, Jr., in the chair.

There were readings, riddles and contests, followed by a game of dodge ball. The meeting was much enjoyed by the pupils.

Mr. Hinton made a few remarks on examinations. He said examinations are often thought of as a nuisance. Pupils sometimes dread them, but in everything that is worth while, a time of testing comes. Some students never fail, but they never try. People are often similar. Their lives appear success, but they really have never tried to make anything of their talents. They've never used their wings as it were.

Some folks think the examinations deal only with school and college work, forgetting that each and everyone of us are being watched and judged by our friends and foes every minute of the day. Every nod of the head is noted and if we are of a loving, kind disposition, others will unconsciously imitate us. Sorrowful it is to think that our faults are just as easily copied.

We should ever be on our guard, to each day pass the tests that our associates subject us to. An opportunity comes to us to cheat and thereby we may pass one examination but fail in that, we have weakened our one priceless possession, our character. To honorably fail, is far above passing dishonorably.

We may say that nobody will know we did wrong. There is always someone, and that is ourselves. How can we expect others to trust us, if we do not trust ourselves, which is possible if we do crooked things.

Every minute every day,
In our work and in our play,
We are always in a searching test,
Let us pass it by doing our best.

There were thirty-eight meetings held during the year, and a few special meetings.

Miss Evalfne Gibb, of Hastings, was a visitor in the village Friday last.

Mr. Moses Anderson is repairing the fence in front of his cottage, which was heaved out by the frost last winter.

OLD MASTERS

I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchards and the mowing fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds my tax-collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine—
Wild scents and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And, more magnificent than all,
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity—
A little strip of sea.

STRANGE LIGHTS STILL MYSTERY

Parties Investigating Flares Seen in Northern Quebec—Will Be No Let-up.

SEARCH RIVERS.

CHICOUTIMI, Que, June 21 (Canadian Press)—There will be no let-up in the efforts to establish the nature of the mystery lights that have been seen at various points in Northern Quebec in the vicinity of the Shipshaw and Peribonka Rivers for the past week. It has been firmly fixed in the popular mind that these lights have some association with Nungesser and Coli, the missing French aviators, and this aspect has stimulated those best able to render assistance to do what they can in order to clear up the matter. M. Kaine, superintendent of the Price Bros. Company, who own extensive timber lands in that regions, declared yesterday to M. Desbiens ,Mayor of Chicoutimi, and Gustave Deslisle, the local member of Parliament, that the company had no intention of discontinuing its search on the Shipshaw and Peribonka and Trinity Rivers, while the company will today send a hydroplane northward.

Meanwhile an interesting element in the situation is noted in one of the telegraph offices at Chicoutimi, where there is a telegram, addressed to Nungesser and Coli, awaiting them "to be called for."

GLEANERS' CLASS IS ENTERTAINED

Miscellaneous Shower Held in Honor of Miss Beatrice McGregor.

The Gleaners' Class of Gilmour Memorial Sunday School and a number of friends met at Pinecrest Farm last Friday when Miss Margaret Mann entertained at an afternoon tea and miscellaneous shower in honour of Miss Beatrice McGregor, whose marriage will take place this week.

Many useful and pretty gifts to the bride-to-be were transported into the room on a handsomely decorated waggon drawn by Jean Fowler and Jean Maan.

The afternoon was spent in games and music. Tea was served from a beautifully ornamented table. The house was decorated in pink and white, and the lights from pink candles in silver candlesticks produced a pleasing effect.

Young Auto Thief Makes Sad Mistake

DEMOPOLIS, Ala., June 21.—(United Press).—"You're pinched", Officer Jim Miley informed John Harris as the latter started to drive away, "for trying to steal that automobile."

"So's your Aunt Hattie" flippantly replied the young auto thief about-to-be.

"This is my car."

"I haven't any Aunt Hattie", the cop came right back, "and that isn't your car, it's mine."

Woman As Old As She Feels Says Sir Thomas Oliver

LONDON, June 21. — (United Press).—"A woman is as old as she feels, not as she looks", said Sir Thomas Oliver in his presidential address to the Institute of Hygiene.

"Age is not a matter of years, but of changes in the tissues so that as long as a woman does her best to keep her mind and body young she is young.

"A woman who conceals her age is a benefactress to her sex, for throughout her determinate to remain young, she sets up a superior standard of health."

OBITUARY.

MRS. MARY CAVANAGH.

ENNISMORE, June 21.—The funeral of the late Mrs. Mary Cavanagh took place on Monday morning from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Roger Torpey, Peterborough, to St. Peter's Cathedral. Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Father Carroll. They then proceeded to St. Martin's cemetery, Ennismore.

The pall-bearers were: Eugene Murphy, Thomas Cavanagh, John Roach, Daniel Hayes, Michael Torpey, James Hoar.

The deceased was 90 years of age and lived here until about twenty years ago. She was well known and highly esteemed by all who knew her and her passing is mourned by a large circle of friends. She leaves to mourn her loss three daughters, Miss Anna, Mrs. James Kearney, Mrs. Roger Torpey of Peterborough and one son, William, of Ennismore.

WEDDING BELLS.

CLARKE—McFALL.

HAVELOCK, June 20. — A very pretty June wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hubble, William Street, on Tuesday, June 14th, when their niece, Evelyn Marguerite May McFall, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McFall, of Blairton, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to James Mason Clarke, son of the late James Clarke and Mrs. Clarke of Stirling. The ceremony was performed at high noon by Rev. W. R. Archer, of the United Church, assisted by Rev. H. Clarke, of Hilton, brother of the groom.

Mrs. Bert Robson played Lohengrin's Wedding March, and accompanied Mr. Robson when he sang "Why Song Is Sweet," while the register was being signed.

The rooms were attractively decorated with pink and white and the ceremony was performed amid a setting of bridal roses banked in ferns.

The bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her father. She was daintily attired in poudre blue georgette crepe with coronet of orange blossom, and wore the gift of the groom, a green gold wrist watch. Her shower bouquet was chrysanthemums.

After the marriage ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Later, the happy couple left amid showers of confetti for Toronto, the bride wearing salmon satin-faced crepe, with navy coat and poudre blue hat. On their return they will reside in Stirling.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Rev. and Mrs. Clarke of Hilton, Mrs. James Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Stout of Stirling, and Mr. and Mrs. D. Howley of Marmora, Mr. Joseph Brock, Miss Lena Webb, Mr. James Russell, Mr. William Aunger, Mrs. Thomas Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Robson, Miss Doris Robson of Blairton.

TEMPERING JUSTICE WITH MERCY.

The action of the Attorney-General's Department in advising the dropping of a charge of manslaughter against a nineteen-year-old hired man who accidently shot and killed the son of his employer will meet the approval of public opinion.

While there is nothing to condone the careless action of the youth, and while the law is clear that anybody who points a gun at another whether in play or not is guilty of manslaughter if a death results, the publicity already given the case should serve to act as a warning to everybody to be careful in the handling of weapons and to remember that the pointing of a firearm at another person is a criminal offense.

The good reputation of the boy and his tender years were doubtless taken into consideration by the authorities in deciding not to prosecute the case.

The tragedy stresses the vital necessity of making sure that firearms are unloaded before they are taken into a house, as well as the criminal folly of playfully pointing a gun, a risky practice that is too often indulged in.

The ends of justice have been served in this case, however, perhaps as well as if the charge had been stressed and a jail sentence imposed.

THE JUBILEE CHOIR.

The Diamond Jubilee Choir, which it is hoped will be built up to 500 voices, promises to be one of the outstanding features of the celebration, and all singers in Peterborough who have had the necessary training should regard it as a duty to associate themselves with this organization.

The observance of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation in a manner befitting the importance of the occasion is a responsibility that every Canadian, native born or by adoption, should be glad and proud to assume.

Local singers, therefore, should welcome the opportunity offered by the formation of the Jubilee Choir to discharge their share of that responsibility in a pleasant and very useful way.

The choir is to take a very prominent part in the celebration, and there is no reason why its membership should not be at least five hundred.

The time is short, and it is hoped that all vocalists who have not allied themselves with the Jubilee Choir will take advantage of the rehearsals in Victoria Hall on Tuesday and Friday nights of this week.

Good singers who are good Canadians will answer "Here" when the choir's roll call comes.

THE JUBILEE RECEIPTS.

An inquiry is made by a citizen who apparently has not been keeping as closely in touch with the preparations for the Diamond Jubilee celebration as he might have done as to what is to become of the receipts taken in at the Exhibition Grounds.

The fact that the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board has undertaken to handle the taking of tickets, a very important part of the jubilee activities, has created in the mind of this inquirer the impression that the proceeds are to be given to the Industrial Exhibition.

That idea, of course, is ridiculous.

The proceeds from the two days' events at the Exhibition Grounds are to be devoted toward paying the cost of the celebration, which will be at least $5,000.

If there is any surplus it will be expended on charitable purposes.

So far as the Exhibition Board is concerned, their part is simply to assist in the celebration by taking over the handling of the crowds and the tickets on behalf of the committee, who are delighted that this responsible work is being assumed by men who are familiar with such duties.

There should really be no necessity of making this explanation, but because there may be others whose impressions of the jubilee are as hazy as this particular citizen it must be stated again that the gate receipts will be used to finance the celebration and the surplus, if there should happen to be one, will be donated to charity.

NORTHWARD MIGRATION.

It is pointed out by a contemporary that in regard to tourist traffic the balance is with Canada. At the Peace Bridge one day there were three or four American cars entering Canada for one Canadian car entering the United States. The explanation given is the much greater density of the United States. The tourists are said to leave in Canada more than $200,000,000 a year, which more than offsets the adverse balance shown in the trade returns.

There is more than that. The greater density of the United States will eventually bring about a flow of population to Canada, not only temporary, but permanent. Unless we greatly over-rate the attractions of Canada, the visiting motorists will carry back favorable impressions of this country, tending to encourage northward migration. This may not for some years happen on any very large scale. The United States is not at present overcrowded. When compared with Europe, it is sparsely inhabited. But when compared with Canada, it has a smaller area and about thirteen times as many people. Eventually population must flow from the more thickly peopled to the less thickly peopled country, and a time will probably come when our largest immigration will be from the United States. It is true that a large part of Canada is represented as too cold for habitation and settlement, but it is also true that there are climatic and other obstacles to the settlement of a large part of the United States. Our neighbors suffer far more than we do from floods, earthquakes, cyclones and other convulsions of nature.

So far as movement of population is concerned, time is on our side. That, of course, should not prevent us from making efforts to add to our population by suitable immigration, but it should remove all anxiety as to the future. Our troubles, if such they may be called, arise largely from an abundance of good things. Our farmers produce far more food than we can eat. Our railway mileage is sufficient for at least twice our present population. The problems thus created are nothing like as serious as those arising from the opposite causes—overcrowding, insufficient food, and defective transportation, such as exist in China. A Canadian sometimes does not realize how well off he and his countrymen are until he visits some country in Europe or the Orient and learns what real hardship and misery are—hardship and misery not exceptional, as here, but on a large scale, and clearly exposed to the traveler's view.

It must not be forgotten, however, that as population grows, troubles and problems like those of the old world will come. It is not merely because of excitability or love of theorizing that Europeans fly to such extremes as Bolshevism and Fascism, and that there is serious discontent even in Great Britain. Poverty breeds these plants, and if Canada and the United States enjoy comparative freedom from such troubles, it is largely because there is more wealth in proportion to population, and because it is more widely distributed. So long as these conditions prevail movements calculated to disturb the social order are likely to make little headway here. But when we obtain a large increase in population, we must expect to pay the price in the greater difficulty and complexity of social problems.—London Advertiser.

A PLEA FOR TOLERANCE.

The Hon. Peter Heenan, Federal Minister of Labor, makes the interesting suggestion that a message of tolerance and co-operation be broadcasted throughout Canada on the occasion of the Dominion's Diamond Jubilee ceremonies. Speaking in Ottawa this week, Mr. Heenan delivered a severe criticism of those who sow the seeds of discord and discontent in a racial or religious way, thus continuing the same line of thought to which he gave utterance before the recent convention of the Knights of Columbus in Windsor.

Mr. Heenan does well to make these pleas for tolerance. Such appeals must bring fruit. It is unfortunately true that we have had a great deal of intolerance in Canada at one time or another. It is much less serious than it was. We are seeing things in a better way now. Still, every so often, the creature of intolerance and bigotry raises its ugly head and bad feeling is created. It is to prevent such incidents as this that Mr. Heenan and other good citizens of Canada are laboring.

Politicians have not hesitated to raise the religious cry or, to put it more correctly, to use the cry, for it is ordinarily handled in an underground fashion rather than shouted from the housetops. It was used against Sir Wilfrid Laurier, just as it is being used against Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, who is a potential candidate for the presidency of the United States. In Sir Wilfrid's case, religious prejudice is said to have been worked both ways. In Ontario, people were asked to vote against him because he happened to be a Roman Catholic. In Quebec, his enemies were supposed to have urged similar treatment on the ground that Sir Wilfrid was not a "good Catholic." Either campaign, of course, was despicable and unworthy of Canadians, but it is astonishing the lengths to which people will go when fired with political zeal and the flaming hope for the triumph of one party or another.

The fact of the matter is, of course, that a man's religion has, or should have, absolutely nothing to do with his fitness, or otherwise, for public office. Religious belief should not be a factor at all. If a man seeks nomination for membership in the Legislature or the House of Commons, what has the accident of his being a Presbyterian, a Unionist, a Roman Catholic, a Jew, a Baptist or a Christian Scientist to do with the matter? Nothing at all. If he is the proper man for the job he is entitled to the nomination. Then if he has the good fortune to belong to the dominant party, he is likely to be elected. Party affiliations are a proper standard of selection under our system. But a candidate's religious beliefs should have nothing to do with the result. Nor do they count with broad-minded citizens, of whom, thank heaven, Canada has an ever-increasing number.

Beyond party connection, there is only one test for the fitness of a man offering himself for public office, and that is his personal ability to carry out the tasks the office involves. Any religious or racial suggestion is entirely beyond the point in a country like Canada, where every race and every religion are represented and where one man should be as good as the next man, no matter where his birthplace, no matter what his antecedents.

Mr. Heenan wants a message of tolerance as our Dominion's great message on the 60th anniversary of the Confederation pact that brought our country into being. It is a good suggestion. The spirit of tolerance and co-operation should impregnate the whole effort next month. Let us on Dominion Day, July 1, dedicate ourselves anew to the great task of nation-building, to the wiping out of the jealousies and suspicious of the past, to the setting up of a new standard of broad-minded, whole-hearted effort that will make Canada the envy of the world.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The celebration of the Diamond Jubilee should occupy everybody's thoughts from now until Sunday, July 3.

If there is community, civic and Canadian spirit in Peterborough the jubilee will be the greatest event in the city's history. Everybody can help.

Householders should see to it that their homes are decorated for the jubilee. Every house in the city should have its flag for this wonderful occasion.

Canada is worth living in; isn't it worth while, then, once in sixty years, showing that we all appreciate that fact?

Some place in the jubilee programme there is work for you to do. Do you love Canada well enough to do your part in the celebration?

Motorists who joined the Safe Drivers' Club and the others who should have done so but didn't should resolve that on all occasions they will drive with judgment and care.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., June 21 (Canadian Press). — The export trade in grain here showed no improvement, owing to the continued indifferent attitude of foreign buyers, and the market was again dull.

The domestic market was also quiet and prices for corn were weaker at a decline of one cent per bushel. Car lots American sample corn were quoted at $1.05½, and Argentine at $1.04½ per bushel. Canadian Western oats were steady.

The flour situation was without any new feature to note, business in the spring and winter wheat grades being inactive but prices were firm.

The millfeed market was moderately active and values were unchanged. A fair trade was done in standard grades of rolled oats and the undertone was firm.

Prices for all grades of eggs were firmly maintained under a moderate demand. The receipts were 985 cases.

There was no further change in prices for old potatoes, but the undertone was weaker and the prospects were that a lower level will be reached in the near future. Sales of American new crop No. 1 potatoes in car lots were made at $8.50 per barrel, and Quebec old crop white B grade at $2.00 to $2.15 per bag, with Reds at $1.70 to $1.80 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The butter trade was inactive, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1,133 packages.

A stronger feeling prevailed in the local spot market for cheese, and the prices were advanced ¼c to ½c per pound. The trade was fair. The receipts were 8,047 boxes.

Demand—$4.85⅝.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 21 (Canadian Press). — Reports that rains had improved the outlook for Kansas wheat did much to make the market react at the last yesterday from an early advance. Wheat finished irregular, ¼c net lower to ⅝c gain; corn, 1¼c to 1⅝c down; oats at a shade to ⅜c decline, and provisions showing 7c to 10c to 25c drop.

Both in wheat and corn, much late selling also was ascribed to gossip that the Kessinger Bill in the Illinois State Legislature might receive favourable consideration. The main bearish factor as to corn, however, was higher temperature throughout the corn belt and a prospect of general sunshine. Besides, receipts of corn in Chicago yesterday were liberal, 328 cars, and the corn visible supply increased 844,000 bushels for the week. Oats sagged with corn, notwithstanding numerous unfavourable reports concerning the oat crop.

Packers' selling acted as a weight on the provision market.

The Rise Of Journalism.

Canadian journalism has mirrored the growth of Confederation during sixty years. It has caught and reflected the disappointments, the triumphs, the tragedies and the comedies of the people of this Dominion. From day to day and from week to week, the press has captured in printed words the spirit of the drama of these last six decades. The ringing phrases of yesterday no longer stir the blood of to-day's generations, but they are recorded in faintly faded print on the yellowing sheets of old newspapers carefully filed in the vaults of the nation's libraries. It is to these vaults and to these ageing sheets that historians turn most frequently when trying to re-create the pictures of our country's story.

If the daily and weekly press of Confederation days was meagre in news it made up for any such shortcomings by a wealth of opinion. They were sturdy, courageous journals glorying in political combat. Advertising was dull and unattractive and circulation was circumscribed by the transportation system of the day. But the press took quickly advantage of the mechanical improvements of the later nineteenth century. The rapid transmission of news by telegraph, the improved presses and the cheaper newsprint paper all contributed to the expansion of the press. The direct results of good advertising and the rapid growth of Canadian railroads also contributed to development.

To-day, instead of daily papers reaching only a thousand of the people, Canada has a press that reaches to all the corners of the country. The papers are served and linked together by the Canadian Press, which is a co-operatively owned news service supplying impartial accounts of current events to more than one hundred members over special wires. The larger papers supplement this service by despatches from special correspondents giving color and political interpretation to suit the paper's policy. With the emphasis in these days placed upon news rather than upon opinion the major aspects of journalism have the affairs of the world at large and despatches from all the world compete with Canadian affairs on the front page of the great dailies. There is, to borrow a recently coined phrase, a "day-to-dayness" about the press of to-day that did not exist fifty years ago.

The weekly press of Canada has enjoyed a creditable if not spectacular history. These journals, covering as they do the small towns and rural communities have become the intimate family reading matter of a large portion of Canadian people. A generation ago in both the weekly papers and small daily paper communities there were valiant battles between rival publications but with the increase in production costs one of the rivals almost invariably fell by the wayside and to-day most of the town dailies and village weeklies occupy their local fields free from competition.

There are in Canada to-day 111 daily newspapers, 9 tri-weekly papers, 30 semi-weekly, 35 semi-monthly periodicals, 331 monthly periodicals and 27 quarterlies, or 1,540 in all. Definite figures for all these types of publications are lacking prior to 1892, but in that year there were 96 dailies, 6 tri-weeklies, 22 semi-weeklies, 653 weeklies, 30 semi-monthlies, and 217 monthlies.

MASONIC CIRCLE HOLDS BIG NIGHT

D.D.G.M. F. E. Brown Pays Official Visit To Madoc Lodge.

MADOC, June 21.—Tuesday evening, the fourteenth was a red-letter day in the annals of local Masonry, it being the regular meeting of Madoc Lodge Number 48 A.F. and A.M. at which Rt. W. Bro. F. E. Brown, D.D.G.M., paid his official visit to the Lodge

There were a large number of local members present as well as visiting brethren from the neighboring Lodges of Picton, Lake, Brighton, Trenton, Stirling, Bancroft, Tweed and Marmora.

After the usual reception of the D.D.G.M. and his opening address, the Fellowcraft Degree was conferred on two candidates. Rt. W. Bro. Brown congratulated the Lodge on the able manner in which the degree was conferred. He spoke to the members at some length in regard to the progress of Masonry and the Lodge was closed with the usual formalities. All then repaired to the banqueting hall where the ladies of the local Chapter of the Eastern Star had a sumptuous repast in readiness. More than two hundred sat down at the tables, which were artistically decorated with flowers and blue and white streamers, while forty-eight candles chosen to correspond with the number of the Lodge, added color and brightness to the festive board.

On the stage, banked with ferns and palms, the Mirimba Orchestra played sweet music during the supper hour. The addresses given by those proposing and responding to the toasts were especially interesting and called forth much congratulatory comment from all present. The toast list and programme was as follows:

PREDICT GOOD YEAR FOR MINING STOCKS

Expected Be Heavy Market For Better Grade at Improved Prices.

The Canadian mining share market has been decidedly off color for the cheaper stocks and it begins to look of if the "cats and dogs" as they are commonly called, are in for a hard Summer. On the other hand, the better mining stocks seem to be quite scarce and the general feeling is that the Summer will see a good market for them at slightly improving prices.

Confirmation of the rather optimistic statements that have been made in these articles of late in regard to International Nickel, is had his week in a statement on the outlook of the Sudbury district, prepared by Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines of Ontario, at the request of the writer. The Minister asserts briefly, that Sudbury mines have ore reserves sufficient to last for from 100 to 150 years, and that the sensational Frood copper discovery has indicated the tremendous tonnage of 100,000,000 tons makes it rank among the sensational mines of the world. The Minister states that the Bunker Hill Sullivan Company will develop 50,000 h.p. near Sudbury and will provide a sufficient tonnage in the construction of their lead zinc smelter and refinery to take care of customs ores as well as their own.

In studying the nickel copper situation recently the writer learned that the new prosperity which has come to International Nickel has also been well shared with Mond Nickel, which is controlled in England. This company came to Canada to find nickel ore. It has a process for refining nickel that it could not sell and which it would like to put to some use. That was in the late eighties Since then it has had a steady battle to find ore. Today its troubles are over. It has between 30 and 40 years proven ore reserves, a very economical plant which is operating at capacity, while the last balance sheet shows its financial position to be one of great strength. The company has been a continuous dividend payer since 1905.

Annual Report Encouraging.

The annual report of Keeley Silver Mines just issued will prove encouraging to the shareholders. The lot of the silver companies has not been a pleasant one of late owing to the low price of their product. Despite this Keeley shows that the dividend of 16 per cent. and bonus of 8 per cent., involving the distribution of $480,000, was well earned, the net profit available being $538,693, or 27c per share. Costs were cut to help achieve this, the drop being 1.42 cents per ounce of 1,640,000 ounces.

It is expected that the annual meeting of Argonaut Consolidated Mines will see an increase in the capital stock from $3,000,000, to $5,000,000 and shares will be offered to the shareholders at 30 cents. What is not taken up of 1,0000,000 will be handled by two Toronto brokerage houses on a basis of 30 cents. Argonaut mine is looking quite well and reports from reliable sources state that some flood news may be expected any time in regard to results on the new deep levels at 1150 and 1275 feet.

Considerable importance is attached to the surface discoveries made on Amulet property in Northwest Quebec. These have been reflected in the market for the shares, although work has not yet reached the stage where the real possibilities of the finds can be judged.

There is a reported strike of $50 ore on Kirkland Lake Gold. This venture is looking better but is not in the class of the other producers close by. The recent rise in the shares of Tech Hughes which moved up close to $8, was in anticipation that the company will make a material increase in the dividend, which is expected to be announced soon.

A Thought For To-day

SOMETHING UNPURCHASABLE.

Many a woman fails to succeed because she does not understand the need of a quiet period; the daily quiet period when self-analysis may be indulged in, when seeming grievances and annoyances may be calmly reasoned out—the quiet period when she can get her bearings, so to speak, and relax mind and body.

Money in the bank gives a feeling of security that you should have, but the practice of indulging in a quiet period gives a poise and self confidence that money cannot buy.

Trading Posts To Capitals.

One of the things that links three of our western capitals with the days before Confederation is the interesting fact that each of them was at one time an important centre of the fur trade. Winnipeg covers the site of Fort Garry, Edmonton of Fort Edmonton and Victoria of Fort Victoria.

Winnipeg's association with the fur trade in fact goes much farther back. The old North West Company and the Hudson's Bay Company both had trading posts at the mouth of the Assiniboine, and as early as 1738 La Verendrye, the famous Canadian explorer, had Fort Rouge built within what is to-day the capital of Manitoba. Fort Edmonton was an important distributing point for the Hudson's Bay Company for its operations on the upper waters of the Saskatchewan, and north to the Athabaska and the Mackenzie River country. Similarly Fort Victoria was for years the headquarters of the Company's trade on the Pacific coast, after Fort Vancouver had been abandoned because of the settlement of the 49th parallel as the international boundary.

Things have changed considerably since the day of Fort Garry, Fort Edmonton and Fort Victoria. Those trading posts were occupied by a handful of white traders, with their half-breed boatmen and hunters; Indians roamed about the country that is now the four western provinces; countless herds of buffalo blackened the plains. To-day busy modern cities cover the sites of the old trading posts; three great provincial buildings rise majestically from where Indian tepees or camp-fires once stood; thousands of square miles of wheat-fields have taken the place of the old grazing grounds of the buffalo; and two transcontinental railway systems follow the river systems that were once the thoroughfare of the fur trader.

It seems almost incredible, as one stands on the busy streets of these flourishing Canadian cities of to-day, that within the memory of men now living, such as the venerable Western Canadian poet Charles Mair, the only commerce that existed in these places was the trade in peltries, the only means of communication the canoe or horse or ox-cart, and the only government that of the famous Company of Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay.

In the year of Confederation, Winnipeg was exactly five years of age; Manitoba had not yet been created out of the old Red River Settlement; to reach Eastern Canada it was necessary either to travel by canoe down the Red River to Lake Winnipeg, up the Winnipeg to the Lake of the Woods, from there by a series of small waterways to Lake Superior, and by the Great Lakes and the Ottawa river to Montreal, or to take an equally roundabout route through American territory. The Canadian Pacific Railway was still a thing of the future. Edmonton was still a trading post in 1867, and much more remote from Montreal than Dawson City is to-day. Victoria, like Winnipeg, was a baby community, although it had been through the hectic experience of the Cariboo gold rush. It would have been an exceptionally optimistic and far-seeing man who could have stood in any of these places in 1867 and predicted what they would become sixty years afterwards.

WILD LIFE IN CANADA.

"The wild animal life of to-day is not ours to do with as we please. The original stock is given to us in trust for the benefit both of the present and the future. We must render an accounting of this trust to those who come after us."

—"The Sportsman's Code of Ethics"—

A great many of our citizens have heard about the conservation of wild life, but probably only a few of them could give the essential reasons for this conservation. It has been estimated by competent authorities that the annual loss to Canadian agriculture through insect depredations is $125,000,000 annually, and it is well known that birds are the chief natural factors which tend to keep insects in check; in fact if these injurious insects were to increase without any natural control there would be practically no vegetation on this continent in a very short time, so it is quite obvious that the protection of our birds is essential from the point of national economy.

Here are some of our very useful feathered friends: For the protection of trees and foliage—warbler, chickadee, phoebe, downy woodpecker, aerial insect destroyers—whippoorwill, swallows and crows. Destroyers of rodents—owls and hawks.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, when Governor General of Canada, took a very real interest in the conservation of Canadian birds, and personally saw that nesting boxes were distributed through the grounds of Government House similar to those used by the Ottawa Improvement Commission in Rockcliffe Park and the Dominion Government at the Central Experimental Farm.

It is impossible to even approximately estimate the value of our wild animal life in dollars and cents, but it is well to remember that moose, for example, not only furnishes our Indians of the northern woods with meat but provides them with clothing as well. The buffalo within the limits of the last century has been reduced from millions to practical extermination, total extermination in fact if it had not been for the excellent wild animal conservation accomplished by the Dominion Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior.

Canadians have excellent reasons for being proud of their national parks, which comprise a total area of nearly 9,000 square miles, and are absolute preserves for wild life; hunting being totally prohibited within their borders, and fishing allowed only under strict regulations. Banff is especially an ideal spot for the animal lover, as excellent natural paddocks have been constructed in this vicinity where buffalo, wapiti, mountain sheep, goat and deer are confined for those who wish to see these animals in ideal surroundings. An excellent motto for every hunter and sportsman is:—"No species of animal should be destroyed at a greater rate than it can increase."

One of the most encouraging signs at present is the increasing number of nature books being published, and it is thought that our future citizens will realize more fully each year the priceless asset that "Wild Life Conservation" is to our country.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

Newfoundland was long known as the "Ancient Colony" and, though no longer a colony in the former sense, is sometimes still referred to as such. Although lying alongside of Canada on the Atlantic coast, as if guarding the mouth of the St. Lawrence, its relations with Canada were never intimate. Its industry was essentially based upon the fisheries, upon which at least eighty per cent of the population is dependent. Its exports for all the years consisted mainly of fish in some form. Of recent years it has developed an iron industry of considerable proportions, its iron deposits being the chief source of supply for the Nova Scotia iron and steel works. There has also been developed a pulp and paper industry under the control of the Northcliffe interests.

Newfoundland was represented at the Charlottetown and Quebec conference by Sir Ambrose Shea, probably the most prominent figure in the colony's recent history, and Honorable B. F. T. Carter, Speaker of the Island Parliament. Their report in favor of union was defeated by two to one, and only once since has there been a proposal to re-open the question. Even to-day on the Island there is a sort of superstitious dread about discussing the question at all. The one occasion referred to was in 1895, when a delegate came from Newfoundland to discuss the entrance of that colony into the Dominion. It was not because the people there wanted Confederation, and as a matter of fact at that time they were opposed to it in sentiment. As stated by the Honorable George Shea, nephew of Sir Ambrose, in an interview, it appeared inevitable on financial grounds. —Newfoundland was very hard up,— and it was upon these grounds alone that the negotiations, conducted on our side by Sir George Foster, then Minister of Finance, were based. The latter did not wish to assume liability which the proposals of the delegates seemed to involve and the negotiations fell through.

Various opinions have been expressed as to why Newfoundland did not come in in the first place. Two have been advanced, both of which, each in its own way, account for it. The hardy folk of the old colony did not like to give up their independence in the matter of governing their own affairs. But there was another reason. St. John's is the commercial metropolis as well as the capital of Newfoundland, and the most influential opposition came from the merchants of that city. They were certain of their trade as it was, but were afraid of losing that assured position under Confederation. They were afraid, indeed, of the merchants of Halifax.

The most important connection with Newfoundland is that by union with Canada it would "round out Confederation." Geographically, it belongs to Canada. Moreover, standing as it does as a sentinel on the Atlantic to the great mainland shores, it has a strategic and commercial value of great importance to Canada and the Empire. If, however, the Ancient Colony, ever enters Confederation, it will be of its own free will. It may be that the recent decision of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, which has given Newfoundland a substantial portion of what was Ungava, ceded to Quebec, will bring about negotiations favorable to union.

VISION and Action—these are the qualities to which Canadians of today pay tribute in their grateful recognition of the work of the Fathers of Confederation sixty years ago.

These qualities are still demanded of those who are serving Canada in the present. Our Fathers took possession of half a continent, unified it, gave it the institutions it still enjoys, and founded the transportation system which is to this day the backbone of its economical life.

We, their successors, have likewise our problem to solve. We have to provide this half-continent with a population sufficient in numbers to ensure its proper development; educated up to the best Canadian standards; trained in the ideals of good Canadian citizenship; accustomed to respect for law and order; and conscious of the noble tradition which is our national heritage.

Can any Canadian doubt what would be the attitude of the Fathers towards this problem if they were here today? They dreamed, but they also worked for the realization of their dream. The Canadians of today likewise have their vision and their opportunity for action. They have the example of the Fathers to teach and to hearten them. The vision which our Fathers saw must never fail. Their noble deeds must still live in the minds of generations to come.

THE MARKETS

TORONTO STOCKS.

TORONTO, June 21 (Canadian Press).—Prices remained depressed, save in a few exceptional cases, despite the substantial increase in activity on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. International Nickel, the leader, lost one at 64, and Brazilian lost more than any other stock on the board, selling down four points at 157 5-8. Davies A lost one at 39½ and liquor stocks all eased downward. Seagrams dropped one at 22¾, Carling nearly a point at 36, and Walkers and G. and W. each ¾ at 50¼ and 55¼. Laura Secord Preferred was marked up 2 at 110. Northern Bakeries firmed a quarter at 27¼, while B. A. Oil lost a like fraction at 22¾.

CHICAGO WHEAT.

CHICAGO, June 21 (Canadian Press).—Unfavorable weather over both the winter wheat region and corn belt tended to lift grain prices early to-day. Advancement of the Kessinger bill in the Legislature in Springfield, however, was construed as bearish influence, and acted at times as an offset. Opening unchanged to 5-8 cent lower, wheat subsequently rose to above yesterday's finish. Corn started unchanged to ¾ cent up, and later scored gains all around. Oats were firm. Provisions pointed upward.

TORONTO MINING.

TORONTO, June 21 (Canadian Press).—A slight downward movement was evidenced on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day, with trading remaining moderately heavy. Amulet and Area, sharing active leadership, each lost fairly substantially, Amulet dropping sixteen cents at 245, and Area 2½ at 49. Nipissing sold down 35 at 6.00, and Kirkland Lake six at 143. Teck Hughes gained four at 7.71. Duprat eased ¾ at 9¼, and Laval-Quebec lost a half at 25½.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, June 21 (Canadian Press).—Talk of Competitive buying of Chicago and Alton and Peoria and Eastern, the outlook for more favorable terms being obtained by the Nickel Plate for its Pere Marquette shares on the expiration of the current option, and pool operations in American Can, Postum Corporation, and Canada Dry Ginger Ale, caused the stock market to recover the early general losses of one to three points.

Several high-priced stocks responded rapidly to buying. Baldwin rallying from 223 to 229, a new high record, while Commercial Solvents B recovered from 339 to 347. Other issues pushed up 3 or 4 points above yesterday's final figures, these including Western Pacific, Nickel Plate, Gulf and Air Reduction.

Nearly a score of stocks were quoted at their best figures for 1927, among them American Can, Postum Corporation, Canada Dry Ginger Ale.

GERMAN PLANES SHOW ADVANCES

Results of Removal of Restrictions on Construction Are Now Seen.

LONDON, June 21 (Canadian Press) —The results of the removal last year of the restrictions on the construction of German aircraft are becoming more apparent, says the Times' Berlin correspondent. The Paris Agreement was not followed, as many people both in Germany and in other countries expected, by a rush of big multi-engined machines. Those German firms which had evaded the restrictions in a way by building and operating large commercial machines in foreign countries were able to import a few of the completed machines for service in Germany, but these were not many and it took time to transfer the construction of the large machines from foreign to home factories.

The first striking evidence of the removal of the restrictions was the construction of the Junkers G.32 all-metal, triple-engined passenger and freight aeroplane, at present the largest aeroplane in Germany, which has, however, not yet finished all its trials. This machine, which has been called the "aero-omnibus," was completed so far as essentials were concerned, last autumn, and underwent a number of technical trials. This machine has a cruising radius, with normal supply of fuel, of 621 miles at a speed of 114 miles an hour. It is equipped with three Junkers engines developing 1,200 h. p. The average width of the cabins is 7 ft.

There are three passenger cabins, entirely separate from the freight and baggage compartments. They are equipped to carry 15 passengers in all, and are provided with sleeping bunks and armchairs, which are interchangeable, so that, if necessary, the whole machine can be used as a "sleeping-car" or as an ambulance. There followed the twin-engined Dernier "Superwal," a large flying-boat, which made a spectacular trial flight at Friedrichshafen in which 60 passengers were carried, although only 21 are to be carried normally when it takes its place in the Lufthansa service this summer. The "Superwal," equipped with two Rolls-Royce "Condor" engines, developing 1,300 h. p., has a speed of 118-130 miles per hour.

In the meantime the Rohrbach Metall-fugzeugbau, which, owing to the restrictions, had been building its all-metal machines in the works of an associated company of the same name in Copenhagen, produced the three-engined Ro. VIII. "Roland," smaller than the G.31 or the "Superwal," which rapidly proved its value as a 10-passenger machine and was taken into the Lufthansa service in the autumn.

While building another "Roland," which later broke five world's 'records' for flights with specified loads the Rohrback works in Berlin set to work on a flying-boat to succeed the Ro. VII.—"Robbe," which distinguished itself in the seaworthiness tests at the conclusion of the Warnemunde seaplane competition last summer. The new flying-boat, the 'Rocco,' somewhat larger than the 'Roland,' has just been completed and shipped to Copenhagen for trials in the Sound, as the company has no flying-boat station in Germany as yet from which to test it. Like other Rohrbach flying-boats, the 'Rocco' will be provided with emergency sailing gear. Owing to the method of construction, by which all sections of the wings, in fact, all extremities, form self-contained box-like units attached simply by a couple of bolts, the packing was not a difficult undertaking. Work has already been begun at the Rohrbach works on yet another flying boat, the 'Romar,' larger than the 'Superwal,' or the G.31 aeroplane, equipped with three B. M. W. VI. engines, developing 1,380 h.p.; maximum speed, 138 miles an hour.

The age of a salmon can be learned by examining its scales through a microscope. The scale contains a number of tiny lines which multiply at the rate of 16 every year.

A fish called Paleyms has been caught in the Mediterranean. It can travel at a speed of 50 miles an hour, and is said to be the fastest fish in the world.

Records taken over 36 years indicate that the greatest number of fatal influenza cases occur about the ninth or tenth week of the year, and the fewest about the 35th or 36th week.

LIQUOR STORE OPENED TO-DAY

The censor compares the signature on the permit with that of the order slip, and checks the price. At the back of the permit the censor also records what is being taken by the purchaser.

All orders also pass through the hands of the cashier, who registers the amount of sale. The slips are stamped and presented at the counter. There are different slips for different bottles of liquor. For every bottle taken out a slip must be placed in a box, and at night a check-up is made.

Cash and carry customers use white order forms. "Delivery" customers use pink forms. A charge of 30c. is made for delivery, except for beer in quantities exceeding 6 pints or 6 quarts. In these cases, the delivery is made from the brewery or warehouse, although the orders and payments must be made at the Government liquor store.

Col. Bradburn's assistants in the store are D. Hammond cashi P. Kenny stockman, George Evans clerk, George Benton censor and Frank Pratt cellar man. These appointments are temporary, but in all likelihood will be made permanent in the near future

SAFEGUARDING MILK BY PASTEURIZATION

The next procedure is that of careful supervision of the milk from the producer to the dairy in the city during the time of transportation. One of the most important advances that we have made which has been in force for the past twelve years, was that of requiring all milk cans to be owned by the dairies in the city. They were required to have proper sterilizing devices installed and it is now possible for our inspectors to see that all these utensils are efficiently washed, sterilized, and sealed after the milk is emptied out of them, before being returned to the producers. This seal has to be broken by the producer immediately preceding his straining the milk into the can, and then after it is filled, he is required to seal the can again with his own identification seal.

After the milk reaches the dairy, it comes under the observation of our inspector, who, after thoroughly mixing the contents of any can from which he intends to take a sample, draws off one pint for sedimentation test. These samples are forced through discs of absorbent cotton, which show any evidence of barnyard contamination. As is quite obvious, the slightest speck will be revealed. If such evidence is found, the producer is notified that in the event of a second occurrence of this kind he will be prohibited from contributing further to our milk supply.

At the dairies the milk is received into a milk well, where it is weighed, after which it is scientifically pasteurized.

As already states, the process of pasteurization is made absolutely fool proof by the installation of self-recording thermometers which are owned and controlled by the Department of Public Health.

The milk after pasteurization is filled into sterilized bottles, capped by machinery so that the human hand does not touch either the upper part of the bottle, the cap, or in any way come in contact with the milk after it has been pasteurized.

It is then promptly cooled to a temperature of not higher than 50 degrees, and as far as possible held at that until delivered to the consumer.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The pulpit of St. Paul's Presbyterian church on Sunday was occupied by Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, the beloved clerk of the Peterborough Presbytery, whose services to the congregations in the Presbytery, over a long period of years, have been such as to draw forth much public recognition, and approval. Attention was called at both services to the important celebration to be held at Keene next Thursday afternoon when the corner stone will be laid on the new Presbyterian church, for the erection of which many thousands of dollars have been contributed, mainly by people who a few years ago contributed liberally to the erection and furnishing of the former Presbyterian church, which was lost to them as a result of Church union. Following the lay of the corner-stone the Ladies' Aid of the Presbyterian church will entertain all who attend to a luncheon. The members of St. Paul's congregation were invited to attend in the largest possible numbers.

Rev. Mr. Thompson chose as his text for the evening sermon Mark 2-5: "When Jesus Saw their Faith He said, Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." This verse relates the incident recorded in the Gospel of St. Mark where four friends of a paralytic sought to take him to Christ for healing and on finding it impossible to get into the house carried their burden to the roof and after removing the tiles lowered him into the presence of Christ. A wealth of spiritual lessons were drawn from the brief record of the miracle by Rev. Mr. Thompson, who pointed out that very little is known about the young man except by inference. First, we note, that he must have been young, or Jesus, who Himself was a young man, would not have addressed his as Son. Secondly sin must have been at the bottom of his malady as otherwise Christ would not have stressed the point that his sins had been forgiven Him, when healing him.

No mention is made of the young man's father. Presumably, therefore, he was the son of a widowed mother. This is indicated by the fact that he was told to go to his house and not to his father's house. He must have been popular ot his friends would not have been willing to make themselves conspicuous by carrying him through the streets to the Lord. They also must have been true friends of which most of us have too few. These four friends represent the organized church, in that they brought a needy one to Christ, which is the mission of the Christian church. It is recorded that when Jesus saw their faith, not the faith of the young man, that he performed the miracle. It has been said that these four men constituted the first Christian Endeavour Society.

When the four friends reached the house with their burden they found it impossible to gain entrance because of the press of people that was in the way. Sometimes today good people make it difficult to bring others to Christ because they are in the way. The young man when lowered into the presence of Christ knew, as Christ looked into his eyes, that He Himself was looking into the eyes of Deity. He was troubled and diseased in both body and soul. It is the Spirit of God that convicts sinners today of their sins and leads them to make confession.

When Jesus forgives, He prepares the way for a better life. Christ ont only told him to take up his bed and walk but He made is possible for him to be a living witness for Christ. He sent him away to become a home missionary. Many young converts today find this a difficult task. The restored one was an excellent example of a prodigal returning home. There are many prodigals today who, if they will but turn to Christ and make confession of their sins may be restored, as this young man was, to a right life and happiness.

UNITED.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 21.—Sunday was anniversary Sunday at St. John's United church, when the Rev. W. A. Bishop, D.D., of Alberf College, and late of Sherbourne street Methodist church, Toronto, was the special preacher.

At the morning service the distinguished divine took for his text, John 14-12: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, he that believeth on Me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto My Father."

Dr. Bishop stated that a large confidence had been put in men in spite of their frailty. Jesus knew what they could do when possessed of a new spirit. Such a spirit enchanced their powers and enabled them to fulfil prophecy—to do greater works than He did. He traced workers out of this principle through the history of the church showing how many greater things have actually been done that He was unable to do in His life time. He applied it to the church today; reminding his hearers that the day of great achievement is not past. If the church was possessed of the same spirit, said the speaker, it would be able to do before the world the things described as greater works.

At the evening service Dr. Bishop spoke from St. John 6-68: "Lord, to whom shall we go, Thou hast the words of Eternal life." The speaker said that men were attracted to this text today, and Peter's response, because of a certain situation abroad in the world today, an attitude corresponding to the feeling in the world at that time. The popular tide, said the speaker, had turned away from Jesus; He saw their backs in place of their faces. They were disappointed. The political hopes that had arisen in their hearts had been shattered. He turned away from them when they wanted him to be their King. He gave them a severe test—he that would take up His cross could follow Him. He taught in mysteries, That is why they turned away from Him. The tide threatened even the inner circle. It was in this situation Jesus said to the little band, "Will ye too go away?" Peter says: "To whom can we go but unto Thee, Thou hast the words of Eternal life."

We are attracted to this text because there is a corresponding situation today. There is a turning away from Jesus. When a crisis came He was rudely brushed aside and came the Prince of War. In 1914 a tragic turning away from Jesus took place. In this day of big affairs the Sermon on the Mount goes unheeded. The social world and the church has not taken Jesus seriously. People in this modern day are turning away.

But there is a bright light. Great men say, we see that the hope of the world lies in the Man of Nazareth. They are discovering that Jesus is the bed rock of our civilization. The cause of the turning of discerning men is the effect of the Great War where selfishness was leading humanity. It was not only in times of old that man worshipped other Gods. We are wrecked on the reefs of national selfishness and the only thing that will save this world is good will, and good will came unto the world through the ministries of Jesus. Scientific men say that the world needs not less, but more of Christ.

To the Church this is a new day of opportunities Like the Grecian, "We would see Jesus." This is the hour of opportunity for the church, also the day of testing; whether the man seeking Christ shall find Him. Will they find Him in the message or the social life. How these Christians love one another. What radiant hope—will they find that? If not the longing world will turn elsewhere in their search for the Christ.

The choir under the able leadership of Mr. Albert Hazell presented an excellent program at both services. At the evening service the duet by Mrs. Smith and Dr. Lillian Young; and the solo by Miss Meiklejohn were particularly pleasing.

No Longer Gray!

Fear of crude dyes no longer excuses gray hair. You don't have to use them. Kolor-Bak is a clean, colorless liquid that cannot harm the hair; and it does bring back the color. Not the weird hues women used to get from old-fashioned hair-dyes, but the color your hair ought to be—the color it used to be.

Kolor-Bak acts gently; the change is gradual. That's why your closest friend can't detect it. Hair is left lustrous; only the gray is gone. Blonde, auburn, brown, black—any shade responds to this natural process. This one bottle is right for all.

Why experiment with anything, even on one lock of hair, when Kolor-Bak always gets the same perfect result—on a money-back guarantee!

CAR IS DAMAGED.

Bursts Into Flames as the Gas is Being Pumped In.

NORWOOD, June 21.—Fred Ruttan of Dummer drove his car to Nelson Wellman's garage on Thursday evening to have it filled with gas. Just as the gas was being put in, the car burst out in flames. The fire alarm was quickly rung and the fire department were soon at the scene, but not before top and the cushions were badly burned. It is supposed that the cause of the fire was a short circuit in the wiring. Fortunately no other damage was done. Recreation club

Those who have followed the organization of the newest chain system, Canadian Department Stores, Limited, will be interested to know that their first big selling event, launched on Thursday simultaneously in all of the stores, was successful to a degree greater than was expected.

Included in Canadian Department Stores, Limited, are over twenty of the oldest and most firmly established retail firms in Ontario and one in Montreal. The merger which brings them together under one centralized administration, located in the Harbor Terminals Building, Toronto, with one buying staff, one accounting staff, etc., has naturally affected every wholesaler and manufacturer who previously has done business with the individual firms concerned.

The success of the general sale effort this week gives every assurance that the chain store idea has made a very positive appeal to the buying public in the twenty-two communities served by this new organization.

CAMPBELLFORD VETS ORGANIZE INTO BRANCH CANADIAN LEGION

Provincial Organizer H. MacLeod Delivers Inspiring Address to Ex-Soldiers.

DISCUSSES PENSIONS.

Speaker Says Men Have No Statuory Right in Claims Against Government.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 21.—"Let's go!" was clean cut out of the troops vocabulary yesterday afternoon as they sat from 2.30 to 5.45 and listened with rapt attention to Provincial Organizer H. MacLeod.

With Major Bygott in the chair, the meeting opened with the customary two minutes silence.

The chairman said: "What you want to know are facts concerning the Canadian Legion—and what it is going to cost; and immediately introduced Mr. MacLeod.

Mr. MacLeod began his address by reading The Peterborough Examiner report of the last meeting of the ex-service men, stated that he was very much impressed with it, and that The Examiner had certainly got the vision of the Canadian Legion, "or I might say, the vision splendid."

We follow, said Mr. MacLeod, an ideal capable of realization, and our dream can come true.

Pensions Reviewed.

On the outbreak of war there was not much thought, in this country, given to problems that might arise after the war. The basic pension in 1916 was something like $250 as in 1888, or at the rate of 80 cents per day. An attempt was made when the men returned to look after their own problems. These organizations did mighty good work. There were a great many organizations attempting to bring together the ex-service men, but only on the arrival of Field Marshal Haig was this accomplished. When he came he called the heads of the many Associations together. Haig came with a message. He told the officers that they were neglecting their duties. Many officers who had no connection jumped in, and at Winnipeg at that greatest parliament of veterans, the Canadian Legion was born.

Ontario's Position.

Ontario is the centre of Canada, continued the speaker, "there can be no doubt about it", but it is one of the latest Provinces to get going, but we have shown them things. Peterborough convention was a wonderful inspiration. The reports submitted to that convention were such that any man should feel proud of. It looks as if Canada is going to justify the faith placed in it by Field Marshal Haig.

We were proud enough to enlist, proud to go overseas, thought this country a good country to fight for. Now that we are back, let us don the overalls and work for humanity.

We have a real soldier now, said Mr. MacLeod, as Minister of National Defense. The Canadian Legion takes credit for getting the extra militia grant, as shown in the budget.

Behind League of Nations.

The Canadian Legion, said the speaker, is not a fighting military body. We hate war like hell. We strive for peace. We are solidly behind the League of Nations, but the time has not yet arrived for casting aside the instruments of war—we are out for protection.

When unity of ex-service men is accomplished, all things are possible. The Association has nothing to offer 80 per cent. of the members except the privilege to serve. The comradeship of the trenches, sealed with your own blood; with that spirit we can do a great deal.

Many Suicides.

Men ask, why can we not get a pension!! The Canadian Legion has not hit it's stride yet—not hitting on all cylinders. We will not be able to hit the stride until all places are organized. Here Mr. MacLeod told some of the things that are happening to returned men in Toronto that made his audiences hold their breath, twelve returned men within the past six months in the city of Toronto taking their own lives due, in most cases, to delays of Pension Commissioners. Some big man, said the speaker, will some day get up and indite someone responsible for this outrage.

Mr. MacLeod pointed out that ex-service men have no statutory rikhts. They may go from court to court has a claim against the Government of his country he ceases to be a free o fhis coutnry he ceases to be a free citizen. He should have ample opportunity to prove his claim. Cases may now be re-opened when turned down by the Federal Appeal Board. This was put on the statute books by the Canadian Legion.

The Canadian Legion invites you to send your problems to us; there is no costs, and your case is handled by experts.

Officers Elected.

At the conclusion of the address George Free moved that the meeting proceed with the election of officers, this was seconded by E. J. Johnston, and the following is the result:

President—Major Bygott.

1st Vice President—Glen Thompson.

Secretary-Treasurer — J. D. McEachern.

Executive Committee—Edwin Roberts, Major A. Linton, E. J. Johnston, G. H. Free, Capt. T. Hyland, Harry Free, Arthur (Pat) Morgan.

When the voting was finished Mr. MacLeod congratulated the Campbellford branch on organizing and stated that the Legion acts as buffer between the government and the man, and assured the branch that they would receive every co-operation from the Provincial Command.

Comrades Morley Fritz and Ford Bradley, both of Brighton ooth made brief complimentary address. Comrade Bradley advocating a county executive when the different towns have been organized.

At six o'clock the meeting was brought to a close by the singing of "The King."

Skin Is Now Clear Had Disfiguring Eczema

Two letters which tell how Dr. Chase's Ointment has cleared the skin of Eczema.

It is not unusual for people to use pleasant smelling salves and lotions for diseases of the skin with the idea that they have medicinal value. This is of course a mistake.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is a medicinal preparation which is composed of the most effective ingredients known to science. For this reason it is looked upon as the standard treatment for eczema and similar skin troubles.

Mrs. Sadie Waid, Lennoxville, Que., writes:—

"My little sister's face was all covered with eczema, which even spread to her ears and was just a mass of running sores. We tried several kinds of salve, but without success, until we saw in Dr. Chase's [illegible] testimonials recommending your Ointment as a relief for eczema. After using a couple of boxes, she was entirely free from sores and thanks to the Ointment, her face is left without any disfiguring scars."

Miss Clara Yates, Bolton Centre, Que., writes:—

"I had very stubborn little sores on my face, for which I used Dr. Chase's Ointment, when the sores entirely disappeared. Dr. Chase's Ointment is the only ointment I would dare to recommend. I have also used the K. & L. Pills, which I found very beneficial."

MEMORIAL PARK GIVEN TO VILLAGE

Land is Given For Park in Memory of Lieutenant W. J. Roberts.

NORWOOD, June 21.—The old log house on the corner of Ridge and Colborne streets, one of the oldest landmarks in the village, is being demolished. Recently the property was purchased by Mrs. J. W. Davidson of Toronto and presented to the village for a memorial park in memory of Lieut. Walter T. Robus. The house is being torn down and the material in it is being given to Mrs. Saltern of Dummer, who recently suffered the loss of her home by fire. Men will soon be at work putting the grounds in shape and it is understood that Mr. Thompson of Toronto, who put up the local war memorial, has been engaged by Mrs. Davidson to put in whatever is erected in the line of a stone. It is planned to have the park opened about the fifteenth ot August.

COUNTY TAX RATE STATIONARY WARDEN HINTS IN HIS ADDRESS

Debenture Debt the Lowest in Twenty Years—June Session Opens.

SIMPLE CEREMONY.

Warden Middleton Felicitously Refers To Confederation.

Warden J. A. Middleton, Reeve of Smith Township, intimated in his address at the opening of the June sessions of the County Council this afternoon, that there would be no increase in the county tax rate. This pleasing information was relayed from the chairman of the finance committee, Reeve Smithson of Otonabee.

Warden Middleton also pointed out that the county's debenture debt, $90,055.23, is the lowest it has been for twenty years.

The Warden's address follows:

County Council Chamber,
June 21, 1927

To the Members of the County Council:

Gentlemen: As has been the custom of my worthy predecessors, I beg to address you on a number of important matters that are claiming the attention of this honorable body at the present time.

First of all I wish to express my thanks and appreciation for this honor and privilege; also for your hearty co-operation during the half year that I have had the honor of being Warden of the County.

The crops look very promising in our locality and are reported as such from almost every agricultural section of our Dominion. If the Kind Hand of Providence blesses this country with a bountiful crop this year, Canada's Jubilee Year, Confederation could not be better commemorated. The wealth of Canada's agricultural products is the backbone of her development, yet without that union of government established by the Fathers of Confederation, her backbone would not be nearly as strong as it is today. We, as Canadians, are glad to be Canadians and see Canada rise to the status of a nation. We rejoice with fellow Canadians in celebrating her Diamond Jubilee.

Court House Addition

The new addition to the Court House Buildings has been completed The special committee empowered to purchase necessary extra equipment for the offices of the new addition, have completed their work except for some minor fittings. The debentures that were authorized re construction of new addition have been printed, and should be dealt with at this session.

The Implement Shed has been constructed as per arrangement agreed upon at the November session in 1926. The grounds in front of the new addition has been levelled and seeded and the bank at head of Victoria Park sodded. When the respective chairman makes his report, I think every member will agree with me that the work has been done for a very reasonable amount.

Excellent Roads

A careful inspection of the county roads was made by the County Road Committee, the County Road Superintendent, and the Department Municipal Road Engineer. It is gratifying to note the excellent condition of the roads.

The Chairman of the Standing Committee on Roads and Bridges informs me that county bridge construction for this year will be light.

In the Grand Jury report, some suggestions were given re improved comforts for the inmates of the House of Refuge. This matter can, I think, be left in the hands of the House of Refuge Committee for action, if necessary.

It is pleasing to note the condition of the County Debenture Debt, namely $90,055.23. This is the lowest that the County Debt has been for twenty years. Such is a credit to the system of financing of past councils, of paying as you go. Though it is not necessary to mention same to this Council, this record should be a stimulus for this and future Councils to practice every economy. The Chairman of the Finance Committee informs me that he will be able to present to you an amount that will not raise the present rate. ... .

Treasurer Recovering

We are glad to hear that our Clerk and Treasurer is recovering from his illness. Though he is not able to be back in his office, he is fast gaining his strength and we all join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

In conclusion I wish to thank the members for the hearty support and co-operation given me in carrying on the County's business.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

Mother Expresses Baby Boy Clerk Finds Infant in Valise

NEW YORK, June 21 (United Press).—But for the keen hearing of Fred Turbee, a clerk, a ten days' old baby boy would have been smothered to death last night in the baggage room of the Grand Central Terminal.

Turbee heard muffled cries. Soon after a woman had checked a cheap valise, received the baggage check and fairly run away. He thought she was trying to get rid of a cat. He opened the valise and found the infant with a wad of cotton stuffed in his mouth. He pulled out the gag and called a doctor.

The youngster was taken to Bellevue Hospital and found to be in perfect health. But he missed his mother and informed hospital attendants of the fact by kicking and crying until he was too tired to care and fell asleep while police were searching for his mother.

ANIMAL TIED TO AXLE OF CAR

Bull's Horn Was Torn Off—Shocking Cruelty oT Animal.

FINE IMPOSED.

Cruelty to a bull cost Walter Holgate of Huntingdon $10 and costs, which amounted to $17.30, in the Police Court at Stirling yesterday. Magistrate Jarman occupied the bench, and the prosecution was launched at the instance of the Ontario Humane Society, following investigations by R. C. Smith, Humane Society inspector of Peterborough. Mr. Smith attended Stirling Police Court in connection with the case.

Holgate's offence consisted of dragging a bull by a rope attached to the axle of the wheel of his car. The unfortunate animal had one of its horns torn off. One of its knees was badly cut, and other parts of its body were scraped, causing intense pain.

OLD ENGLISH HOME RECIPE

For Falling Hair, Baldness, Dandruff and Itching Scalp. Makes Hair Beautiful.

Thousands of people who find their hair coming out badly try various advertised hair tonics and hair growers without results and finally resign themselves to baldness and its attendant discomfort. Yet their case is not hopeless. The following simple home prescription in many instances has made hair grow again after years of partial baldness and almost instantly stops dandruff and further loss of hair. It will not make the hair dry or greasy, is pleasant and easy to use, inexpensive and can be put up in a few moments by any good druggist. Bay Rum, 6 oz. Lavona de Composee, 2 oz. Menthol Crystals, one-half drachm. Add a little of your favorite perfume, if you desire. This preparation is absolutely harmless, but highly effective. Ladies using the prescription should be careful not to get it on the face or where hair is not desired.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. ANDREW'S SUNDAY SCHOOL ANNIVERSARY.

One of the most worshipful interesting and inspiring services, ever held in St. Andrew's church, took place on Sunday morning when the Sunday school anniversary was celebrated. The members of the Sunday school, teachers, officers and scholars, cooperated in arranging the programme under the direction of Mrs. J. A. McKone, and every number was of such high calibre and so suitable that one felt that not a word should be omitted or changed.

The tiny tots, led by Mrs. George Roper and Mrs. F. G. McNeely, made their own delightful contribution and touched the hearts of all.

Songs and recitations, with a deeply religious and patriotic flavor, choruses, and a violin solo, by Mr. Arnold Spencer, made up a programme which in dignity, religious appeal and sometimes quaint humor, would be hard to equal, and reflected the greatest credit upon Mrs. McKone and all who so willingly assisted her.

Allison Gordon accompanied at the piano a group of little girls representing the children of all nations, while they sang a missionary hymn.

The church was tastefully decorated with flowers and flags. Mr. Wm. Fanjoy was in charge of the orchestra, and Mrs. Fanjoy presided at the piano.

The matron and children of the Shelter and the people from the Protestant Home, were guests on this special occasion, the children being brought to the church in special cars.

MARMORA UNITED CHURCH.

MARMORA, June 21. — "Influence as it affects us and our lives" was the subject of a very telling address delivered by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Berkley at the United Church on Sunday morning, at the initial of six alternate Sunday morning services planned for the summer months.

His text was, "None of us liveth unto himself," Romans 14:7. The days of nationalism have passed away, he declared. We are living in days of internationalism. We cannot afford to despise the poor because they carry a power that will stamp their brotherhood and sisterhood upon us. Continuing Rev. Mr. Beckley illustrated how that soldiers, merchants, doctors, lawyers and preachers in so far as they provided for the needs of others, were truly successful.

Speaking of heredity and environment as it affects the child, the preacher stated that the sins of the fathers are visited unto the third and fourth generation, and the same might be said of their virtues. Our children are made ever so much what they are by environment. Home training goes a long way but it does not accomplish all. Our life is only redeemed from destruction and crowned with loving kindness and mercy as we bathe ourselves in the sunlight of the Son of Man."

A duet was sung by Mrs. F. S. Pearce and Mr. W. M. Lester in the course of the service.

Indigestion Is Conquered

By New Scientific Method —Here is Proof.

This new product of a Canadian laboratory is causing much favorable comment by physicians.

Some even think that its influence for good may even outrival that of insulin.

Renzyme cannot fail to relieve indigestion because it restores the digestive fluids to the stomach. Relief is obtained promptly because the very first dose of Renzyme is effective in helping to digest the food in the stomach.

Rev. A. B. Fahrney, The Rectory, St. James Church, St. Mary's, Ont., writes:

"Having been troubled for some years with indigestion I have tried a good many remedies but without results. Some time ago friends of mine spoke to me about a preparation called 'RENZYME' being put out by your firm and immediately I secured a bottle and found almost instant relief.

"I can say without hesitation that it is the best remedy for stomach and bowel trouble that I have ever tried and wish to tell you that I will never be without it and take this opportunity of highly recommending it in order to show my appreciation for what it has done for me. I know the integrity of the personnel of the company and can say that there is nothing in this preparation injurious to anyone."

You can obtain Renzyme from your druggist at $1.50 a bottle or it will be sent to you, postpaid, on receipt of price, if you mention this paper. The Renzyme Laboratories, Toronto, 2, Canada.

DRESS

Summer bags in great variety are in the shops. The sketch shows one of chintz, one of plaid linen, one of loosely knit while silk with white kid mountings and one of white linen with white silk stripe.

Handbags that are meet and proper for winter won't do at all for summer. And this season the shops show a display of warm-weather handbags that tempt us to put all our winter bags away in the cedar chest and buy an entirely new collection for summer.

Raffia envelopes of the sort that were bought rather lavishly by Americans in Paris last summer are to be found in most of the shops here, and are no longer looked upon as suitable only for informal resort wear. They are to be had in innumerable colors—and in sizes ranging from one scarcely larger than a card case to a fairly large underarm sort. They are not expensive so that you may choose a number of them to harmonize with various summer frocks. There are some made of natural colored raffia combined with black—suitable for your black and beige costume—others in pastel shades, with a bit of embroidery in contrasting pastel tone, and still others of natural raffia foundation with raffia embroidery in the vivid colors that we associate with dyed raffia.

Crochet visca bags may be chosen to go with your crochet visca hats, linen bags and chintz bags, bags of woven ribbon, bags of heavy white linen with insets of coarse real lace or embroidery. There are bags of glazed chintz and bags of oilcloth, and bags of a new glazed kid—iridescent or white—which have the advantage of being washable. One of the disadvantages of the white bag has been that it so soon showed wear—a little grimness at the edges and folds. But such marks can be removed from thesg new washable bags by a little rubbine with a moistened cloth. And there really is no sort of bag that looks better with the all-white ensemble than all-white bag.

Envelopes of various sorts are in high favor, but the type of bag called a pochette—usually made with a wide opening and a rather flat bag portion—is also looked upon with favor. If you are deft with a needle you may like to buy separate tops of metal or imitation tortoise shell—fermoirs as they are called in Paris—and finish them with bag portions of the materias of your frocks. If the material is unsuitial for frocks. If the material is unsuitial and light of weight it may be backed with a heavy silk or cloth.

SAINT and SINNER
By ANNE AUSTIN

That first evening after the family had invaded Faith's paradise was a nightmare for the girl-wife. Jim Lane, heartbreakingly humble and self-effacing, had gone to his unfamiliar room at nine o'clock, pretending an overwhelming sleepiness, but when Faith went to him at half past nine to see if he was entirely comfortable, she found him sitting forlornly on the edge of the bed, his head in his hands, his thin old shoulders bowed low.

"Would you rather stay at the old house, Dad? I thought you'd want to be with me—"

"I do, daughter, but the first day or two's going to be hard. Feel all uprooted. Home broken up— But don't let me spoil your happiness. I don't feel right about us all piling in here on you, honey. 'Fraid it won't work, Faith." And he shook his head wearily.

"Of course it will work, Dad," she assured him fondly, but her heart was heavy with the same foreboding.

When she returned to the living room Cherry was playing on the baby grand piano, and singing, in her high, sweet voice: "I'll be loving you—always!"

Bob was sunk deep in the big wing chair, his feet outstretched on a hassock.

Faith closed her eyes, lay back quivering with desire for the touch of Bob's hands, for his lips, for one more blessed hour of that complete aloneness which had been theirs for too brief a time. A tear slipped from between her closed eyelids and started down her cheek, but she felt too desolate to raise her handkerchief to wipe it away.

"Come on, Joy, and let's go to bed. We're quite obviously in the way!" Cherry's voice, hard, metallic, drove Faith and Bob apart, made them sit up self-consciously.

"Please, Cherry!" Faith begged. "Won't you play and sing some more?"

"Sing 'The Prisoner's Song,' Cherry!" Joy cried. "'Oh, if I had wings like an angel—'" her piping voice essayed the tune before Faith, horrified for Cherry's sake, could stop her.

"Oh!" Cherry let out a long, shrill scream, a scream of wild hysteria, then fled from the room.

"What made her do that?" Joy demanded, grimacing with disgust.

"You forget, honey, that Cherry was a prisoner herself. I think we all forget it sometimes, don't treat her as gently as we might," Faith said, a sob choking off her words.

"Gosh, I'm sorry!" Joy shivered, then began to cry too. "I'll tell her I'm sorry, Faith. Don't be mad at me!"

But Faith did not pause to comfort her younger sister. She left that task to Bob and followed Cherry, her feet fleet with fear. If Cherry did not control herself, she would be violently ill, and her baby might be lost.

"What's the matter, Cherry?" Faith begged, taking the tiny body into her arms. "Joy didn't mean to hurt your feelings. She's crying now because she did."

"Oh, it isn't that!" Cherry gasped, trying to writhe out of Faith's arms. "I'm so miserable I want to die! And I hate you and Bob—so happy! Kissing and looking at each other like—like—oh, I want to die!"

At twelve o'clock that dreadful night Faith telephoned for young Dr. Atkins, who had attended her mother in the last year of her illness. Cherry had been weeping continuously for two hours, and nothing that Faith could say or do could stop those terrible, racking sobs.

"I'm afraid she's going to make herself so ill that she will lose her baby," Faith told Bob when he joined her in the kitchen where Faith was preparing a hot water bottle and a dose of spirits of ammonia.

"And I think that's exactly what she wants to do," Bob said angrily, his mouth grim and hard.

"Don't say that!" Faith commanded him almost sternly. "She's really ill—you ought to be sorry for her. Oh, darling, don't let's quarrel! Tonight has been so ghastly hard for both of us—"

"It certainly has!" Bob agreed grimly. Then his face softened, and he took her in his arms, murmured over her comfortingly."

As she forced Cherry to rest her icy little feet on the hot water bottle and chafed the clenched, cold little hands, Faith was thinking drearily that all her fears of this first day with the family had not dared picture anything so terrible as had actually happened. Cherry was jealous—insanely jealous—of her sister and her sister's husband. Could it be possible that Cherry still loved Bob Hathaway, to whom she had once been engaged and whose love she had forfeited in philandering with other men? Oh, dear Lord, not that! Faith prayed, her heart like lead in her breast.

When the doctor arrived at last he did not mince matters with his patient. He had already had a talk with Bob Hathaway before he entered Cherry's room, and his voice, when he spoke to her, was sharp, staccato:

"What's all this nonsense, Mrs. Wiley? I'm ashamed of you. I thought you had more consideration for your sister than this."

"I didn't ask her to do anything for me!" Cherry sobbed. "I told her not to call you!"

"All you had to do to make sure she wouldn't was to stop crying and behave yourself," Dr. Atkins scolded her. "Now, I'm going to give you a sedative and make Faith leave you alone. Stop that crying this minute, or I'll spank you!"

When Faith had brought him the water and spoon he shooed her brusquely out of the room, closing the door firmly upon himself and his patient. Faith walked on slow, leaden feet into the living room, where she found Bob seated in the big wing chair, Joy cradled in his arms, fast asleep. His face, leaning against Joy's tow head, was gentle again, but the eyes he raised to greet her were so sad that she wanted to cry.

"I'll put Joy to bed with Dad," Faith whispered. She could hardly bear to look at him, so terrible it was to see that resigned, sad, almost hopeless look in his eyes—eyes that had glowed and sparkled with happiness and love no more than seven hours ago.

After Joy had been laid, sleeping, beside her father who was also sleeping, Faith went back to sit with Bob until Dr. Atkins should have finished his lecture to Cherry. They scarcely spoke, and his hand, loosely clasping hers, seemed like other flesh than that which had made every cell in her body sing with joy.

"Well, that's that!" Dr. Atkins said briskly, as he stepped into the living room. "She'll sleep now. You two can go to bed. I'd rather you did not go in there again, Faith. Now I want you to promise me one thing, young woman. Don't pamper Cherry. She's strong and well, except for nerves, and it won't do them any good for you to coddle her and give into her every whim. Make her work and exercise and see people—if that won't be too painful, considering everything. Promise me?"

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SPLATTER DASH

"Uncle Wiggily" sang the red Robin bird one morning "I wish you would come down to the edge of the brook while I take my bath."

"Why do you want me there when you take a bath Mr. Robin?" asked the rabbit gentleman. "Do you want me to wash behind your ears or get the soap when it floats away from you?" and he laughed, for a bird has no ears that any one can see since they are hidden under his feathers. And birds don't, as a rule use soap when they take a bath.

"The reason I want you with me when I go to the brook" sang Mr. Robin "is because when I am splattering in the shallow water flipping it over my back with my tail and wings I can't hear or see if any bad cats or other hungry animals are coming to catch me."

"Oh you want me to be a sort of guard?" asked the rabbit.

"That's it" answered the Robin.

"But why don't you take a bath in some other place besides the brook which is so fringed with bushes and trees that cats can easily creep up on you before you know it?" asked Mr. Longears.

"If there was some other place than the brook to take a bath I would" said the Robin. "But I need just such a shallow place as I find on the pebbly edge of the brook. I might go in a mud puddle where there would be no bushes to hide the cats creeping up but I like to bathe in clean water. If I had a sort of bath tub raised up from the ground on a post with no bushes or trees near it to hide the sneaking cats E. Errett of Toronto, A. B. "Here's your tickets—two cents, please."

"With my splatter dash raised up on a post in the middle of my lawn" said Uncle Wiggily "that will not happen. In the first place I will make the post of stone so a cat can't stick her claws in to climb up as she could in a wooden post. And I shall put the basin for water high enough up so no cat can jump. But you birds can fly down into it and splatter as much as you please. And you can easily keep watch all around the splatter dash for there will be no trees or bushes to hide the sneaking coming of cats or other bad chaps."

After Uncle Wiggily had kept guard while Mr. Robin bathed in the brook the rabbit gentleman called in Mr. Twistytail the strong pig gentleman and Uncle Butter the goat who was also strong and the three of them took a very large clam shell and set it on top of a stone post which they set up in the middle of Uncle Wiggily's lawn.

The clam shell was filled with clean water and down flew the Robin the Starling the Blue Jay the Sparrow the Wren all the Warblers and the Brown Thrushes to splatter and dash in the new bath. They had no fear for no sooner did a hungry cat try to sneak up on the bathing birds than the hungry animal was at once seen not being able to hide behind trees or under bushes. And as soon as the cat was seen all the birds cried:

"Cat! Cat! Cat coming!" and they flew away in safety which they could not have done had they been bathing near the tangled vines at the edge of the brook. So they all thanked Mr. Longears for making them such a fine bath and they splattered and dashed the water to their hearts' content.

And that night the Wolf thought he would slip slyly up and catch Mr. Longears. But the night was dark and before he knew it that Wolf bumped kerbang into the splatter dash bird bath and sprayed water all over himself until he thought it was raining.

"I must run home and get my umbrella!" howled the Wolf and of course by that time the bungalow doors were locked and he couldn't get in. So this teaches us it is a beautiful thing to make bird baths.

STOVE PANS

Be as careful to scour the sliding pan under the burners of your gas stove, as you are to scour the stove stove, as you are to scour the itself, if you desire real kitchen cleanliness.

PROTECT IRON

Never cool a flatiron by putting it in cold water. This ruins the temper of the metal.

WHETSTONE

Knife sharpeners are for sale which may be fastened to the wall, always within the cook's reach when an implement fails to cut.

THEY WON'T FADE

Always hang colored clothes in the shade wrongside out and where there is a current of air to dry them quickly if you wish to minimize the possibility of fading.

LIKE A BOUQUET

You keep parsley best by placing the stems in a bowl of cold water and keeping in the refrigerator, or the coolest place you have.

LETTERS OF A FARMER'S WIFE

Dear Olive:

I've just put a pan of spare-ribs into the oven for the dinner, so come along and dine. The folks on the hill killed a pig for summer meat and of course I had to go up and attend to the meat, putting on the sugar in curing the brine, and getting the bones into shape so nothing would go to waste. Marion was in delicate health and couldn't eud much. You know how particular she is about any sort of meat, although she can cart pork very well. She can hardly stand beef at all. I'm so glad nothing bothers me like that. I was going to tell you I got a good helping of the pig for yesterday I was busy cooking and canning for future use, and to-day I'm going to have a piece of spare-rib. I have an iron frying pan I like to use for a small roast instead of my large roasting pans. I always think meat has just a little better flavor cooked in an iron kettle on top of the stove or in the oven than to cook it in aluminum or graniteware. I must be sort of an old-fashioned body. I like to cling to some of the past methods of doing things.

We have some new neighbors living about one and a half miles from us. They came from Parry Sound. I was telling you of their trips through here last summer, do you remember? Well, now they are moving in, bag and baggage—taking a piece of land, unimproved lot. They are going to erect a small cottage as a start for a dwelling house I suppose, and intend on having a garden. I understand they are tired of town life and think a change in the country will be better for them. I hope they like it and also that their coming will be an encouragement for a whole lot more to come. There is plenty of land that could be used for homes in this vicinity, and it's too bad, for it to be in apparent waste, when there are so many poor people that need homes. There are loads of natural resources in this country to afford numbers of folks a good living, and an independence in making a livelihood. Then, too, it would make it far better to have more neighbors to the north of us. I 's a cozy little neighborhood as it is, but we will welcome all the newcomers, no matter how many come.

There will be a good many tourists through this part this summer if nothing happens. They seem to went to get away from the fashionable summer resorts to more out-of-the-way places, where they have more privacy and freedom. We expect a new bunch of folks this year from Pa. I hope we all like each other—do you remember what a scare-cat I used to be of strangers. I'd always hide some place. I'm not quite so bad now, although I never go where they are if I can avoid it, but if they come where I am I'll stand my ground and face the music. I've knocked around in different places so much and met all kinds of folks, good—bad and indifferent that I have gotten so that I do not mind meeting strangers nearly so much; I just make the best of the situation now, and treat them as hospitably as possible, and let all hands make the best of it. It seems they are suited, for these folks from Pa. have come up here every year since we became acquainted, so they must be satisfied with the usage they get.

I don't believe in over-charging them just because they happen to hail from the States. It seems to be a prevalent idea among the Canadian people that anyone who comes from the States is just a money-bag. A majority of the folks that come here as tourists are just plain, hard-working men and women. They are tired of working in offices, schools, factories, etc. and just feel they have to get as far as possible away from it for a while. Most of them only have two weeks holidays and some have told me that if it wasn't that they got their salary paid to them while on holiday they couldn't afford to take the trip. So we needn't be envious of them, when they are sporting around under our noses for a few days, while we have to pelter right into the some grimy, old building, days and days while we are enjoying the great outdoors. I just charge them a reasonable price for what I sell them and generally throw in some for good measure—we never lose by being generous to anybody—neighbors or strangers.

Did you have these lovely rains we are getting down here, its wonderful now the grass is growing and the leaves are getting quite a size; also the rains have caused the mushrooms to spring up. Eva and Helen had a nice little supper of them last night, they picked them on their way home from school, and I put them in salted water for a little while, then stewed them until tender and added some cream and pepper and salt. They did taste fine. I want to get enough so we can have all we want. Ethelbert wouldn't eat them for anything; he is afraid they are poisonous.

We have another improvement in front of our dwelling-cottage in the way of a new gate—"Everything added to what you got makes just a little bit more"—remember that song that comic fellow sang one night at vaudeville. I'm glad though, now, when I think of it I'm away from such things and places, although I wouldn't be tempted to spend my time and money on the likes of that anyway. I have found something that satisfies and is more enduring in my life than a whole world full of that.

I feel badly for all those poor folks that have been flooded out. Isn't it horrid to think of having to leave those cozy little homes, but the Lord will provide others for them, that's one grand consolation we all can depend upon. He takes from us sometimes, but He also replaces. We know not the reasons for such happenings.

Lovingly, Molly.

Leafs Down Tribesmen in 8-3 Victory

WIN OPENER FROM TRIBE

Leafs Hammer Horne Out of the Box in the Sixth Inning.

BISONS DEFEATED 7-4.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—The Toronto Leafs won the opening game of a five game series at Rochester by a score of 8 to 3. "Sonny" Horne, league-leading pitcher, was knocked out of the box in the sixth innings by the Leafs and suffered his second defeat of the season. He was opposed by Lefty Faulkner, who kept the Tribe's hits well scattered.

The Stars strengthened their hold on first place by defeating Buffalo, 7 to 4, at Syracuse. Bill Hallahan, was the big noise. He struck out seven Bisons and in the sixth inning hit the longest home run ever made in an international League at Star park, driving the ball over a double deck sign in deep center.

Newark, behind Jack Bentley's fine pitching, defeated Baltimore in the opening game of a series at Newark by the score of 6 to 3. The former New York Giant, although touched for thirteen hits, was the master of the situation all during the game, being invincible with men on bases. All the Baltimore runs were scored with two men out.

Three singles and a force out in the ninth inning gave Reading its tenth victory of the season and its first victory of the year at Jersey City. The score was 2 to 0. It was Jersey City's fifth consecutive defeat.

WELCOME DEFEATS WESLEYVILLE NINE

Winners Play Errorless Ball in Durham League Game.

WELCOME, June 21.—On Friday evening Wesleyville baseball team played Welcome at Welcome. Both teams were well supported and there was a large crowd to witness the game. The score was 12—1 in favor of Welcome. Jack Haskill pitched for Welcome and played exceptionally well. He also made the outstanding hit for the night when his batted ball sped the length of the field and over the provincial highway, making a home run. There were very few errors on the part of Welcome and they all did their best. Wesleyville changed pitchers three times, Reg Bee, Rowe and Ted Outrid following in succession. However, one of their players, Roy Cornish, did not play and they were rather handicapped. Welcome's net game is with Garden Hill on June 29.

LOCKMAKERS WIN FROM CONTROL BOYS

Simmons Outpitched Dunkerly, But Errors Pave Way For Victory.

A last inning rally that netted them three runs and tied up the score proved of little value to the Industrial Control for the Lock Works came right back with one run in their half to win the game. It was a great battle and kept the large crowd of fans on their toes all the time. The Industrial Control led 1 to 0 until the fifth inning when the Lock Works scored three runs. They added another in the seventh and were leading 4 to 1 when the Industrial Control went to bat in the ninth. A great rally by the Control boys tied the score, but the Lock Works won out in their half of the inning, scoring the needed run after two were out.

Bill Simmons lost out to Joe Dunkerly in a pitcher's battle. Simmons allowed but four hits and walked two men. Four errors in the fifth paved the way for the Lock Makers three runs. Dunkerley was touched for seven hits and walked five. His support was none too good, but the errors made by his teammates did not come at a dangerous time. The brand of pitching dished up by Simmons would win a ball game anytime and would have last night had his teammates not fallen down in the fifth inning. Outside of the fifth inning and the ninth the Control turned in a good game. The work of Williams at second and Billingsley at first standing out. McColl turned in a great game behind the bat.

Dunkerley and Galbraith were the shining lights of the Lock Works, both in hitting and fielding. The former fielded his position well and collected two of his team's four hits. Galbraith made a couple of nice catches and collected a timely wallop. G. Williams and Convery got two hits each for the Industrial Control.

The line ups follow:

Industrial Control—E. Williams, 2b; G. Williams, 3b; Convery, ss; Griffin, cf; Billingsley, 1b; Clancy, lf; F. Simmons, rf; McColl, c; Simmons, p.

Lock Works—Crary, 2b; Weese, ss; Nicholls, lf; Holland, cf; Dobson, c; Johnston, 1b; Westbrooke, 3b; Galbraith, rf; Dunkerley, p.

TILDEN WINS AT WIMBLEDON

Favorites Take Opening Games in Lawn Tennis Championship Play.

MASCULINE DAY.

WIMBLEDON, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Strictly tennis, and plenty of it, was the order of the day at the opening of the Wimbledon lawntennis championships, and the organizers, aided by beautiful weather, realized the unprecedented feat of running off the entire first round of the men's singles, in which 128 players were entered.

It was "masculine day", not a single woman player appearing on any of the 14 Wimbledon courts, and the contests were carried out without a hitch. Only one of the eight seeded players fell by the wayside, the seven others seeing it through with more or less difficulty. The quantity of tennis, however, greatly outshone the quality.

Win Opening Matches.

All the interest of 8,000 fans assembled centred in the showing of William T. Tilden America's star, and Rene Lacoste, ranking No. 1, against their respective opponents. Both won their matches without giving the spectators an opportunity to judge what they would do in a crisis. Both the American and Frenchman loafed through their three sets.

Henri Cochet, Jean Borotra and Jacques Brugnon, of France; Louis Raymond, South Africa and Karl Kozeluh, Czecho-Slovakia, and other seeded players, passed the test successfull. Takeichi Harada, of Japan, was the only upset, he being defeated by a comparative newcomer, Pierre Landry, of France.

Lacoste, with his newly acquired reputation of the greatest player in the world, and his 15-year old opponent, Sidney B. Wood, an American boy, provided something of a joyful note to the rather monotonous day. Lacoste, usually serious minded over the nets, seemed to take a lot of fun out of the uneven contest. He did not play quite so hard as though he were stroking against Tilden, and took good naturedly the applause which greeted the boy's every favorable play.

Young Wood managed to score five games in three sets, the match ending in Lacoste's favor, 6-1, 6-3, 6-1.

Had Easy Time.

Tilden had an easy time against his English opponent, G. A. Pratt, winning 6-2, 6-1, 6-0. He limped considerably in the third set and sensational stories appeared in the newspapers that he was suffering a recurrence of his old knee trouble. But Tilden himself made the following statement to The Associated Press correspondent:

"The trouble with my knee is not the old cartilage injury which affected me last year. I ran against the side of the courts while playing Greig at Manchester Thursday. I expect and hope the knee will be all right in a day or two."

Borotra, holder of last year's championship, had a stormy passage in the first round. He defeated A. C. Belgrave, England, in straight sets, but all of these went into extra games, the score being 7-5, 7-5, 9-7.

Borotra showed the poorest form of any of the seeded players, even Harada in defeat playing superior tennis to Borotra in victory.

ADMIRE SHARKEY.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 21.—(Canadian Press).—"I admire Sharkey's confidence but he doesn't frighten me," Jack Dempsey said here yesterday on his way to New York to see Tex Rickard. "While the financial side of my match with Sharkey July 21st is not settled, I'm sure Tex and I will get together satisfactorily."

STARR STERLING'S PROBLEM

A Serial for Boys - By BERT REED

Using long, vigorous strokes that were indicative of his character, Starr Sterling sent his canoe skimming through the water. With nine of his chums from Riverview he was camping for the Summer on the Silver River, about five miles above the little town of Beamville. On the other side of the river, about half a mile from camp, the boys had discovered a level stretch of ground that adapted itself peculiarly to their needs. Here they had improvised a diamond, and as the Silver River Baseball League would open the next day, Sterling with the rest had put in a busy two-hour practice.

Having some work to attend to in connection with the league, Starr had left the boys and was returning to camp alone, Sterling was a strong-willed, manly chap. Each graceful sweep of his paddle betokened a reserve strength and energy. Well-developed muscles revealed the athlete. But it was Sterling's eyes that were the most noticeable. Dark and fearless, they at once declared that behind them lay an indomitable spirit—a chap, who, having once formed a purpose, would not be easily shaken. His magnetic personality had won for him a circle of friends, all as true as steel.

As the shore glided by, Sterling thought of a time, six months before, when alone and friendless, save for an uncle who lived in the place, he had come to the little town of Riverview; of how, gradually, he had won these fellows over until he formed friendships that were grappled with hoops of steel. He glowed with joy and boyish enthusiasm as he recalled them.

As he swung his canoe around the point of land upon which their camp was situated, his eyes met a sight that roused him to anger. A young fellow of about eighteen, sportily dressed and smoking a cigarette, was offering Joe Beaver, their Indian guide, a flask. Already, Sterling could see that Beaver had consumed considerable liquor, for he was unmistakably intoxicated.

"Take it, Joe, old boy," the flashy youngster was urging; "you need a bracer just to straighten yourself away." The Indian, swaying unsteadily on his feet, lurched forward and grasped the flask. He was about to place it to his lips when Sterling's voice rang out.

"Drop it, Beaver!" Involuntarily, the Indian opened his fingers. The flask slipped through and struck a rock. It was shattered to pieces.

"What is the meaning of this, Beaver?" Starr cried as he stepped out of the canoe and advanced toward the pair. "Where did you get that stuff?"

An angry light flashed in Beaver's eyes and his brows contracted, but he did not answer. Sullenly he looked down at the broken glass and the spilled liquor which was soaking into the ground. He muttered something unintelligible to Starr.

"You gave this man that liquor," cried Sterling accusingly, swinging round upon the other. "I think we'll let the law deal with you."

A sneer had settled upon the face of the chap in the sporty suit and he carelessly played with a heavy gold chain that was strung prominently across his vest.

"Is that so?" he answered insultingly. "Any old day you can get the law on Chip Bascombe you'll have to know more than you do now. In any case, that was Beaver's own liquor."

Sterling felt sure that the fellow was lying. He was certain that Beaver had not brought any liquor into camp. He had heard of both Chip Bascombe and his father, Zeb Bascombe, president of the Silver River League, the most important man, in his own estimation, in Beamville. The reports that he had received of both father and son were not flattering, to say the least. With mingled curiosity and contempt he looked Bascombe over. Chip was not a bad looking fellow, but already the marks of dissipation were beginning to mar his face. His worst feature was a rather brutal mouth. Sterling recalled now that he had been named the bully of Beamville.

With a body blow that lifted the bully of Beamville right off his feet, he dropped him backward into the water.

"I'm not going to argue with you, Bascombe. You're on private property; we've rented this place for the Summer. You've come here uninvited, you've made our guide drunk. You're not wanted, so get out and take Beaver with you. We don't want him either."

The insolent sneer disappeared from Bascombe's face. A puzzled expression took its place. It was a new experience for Bascombe to have some person tell him what he could do.

"What did you say?" he asked slowly.

"I said, get out!" replied Sterling, "and make it snappy or you and your friend will be wet outside as well as in. I'll run you both into the river." Sterling's words were not boastfully spoken but still there was no doubt in the mind of Bascombe that he would at least attempt to do what he had promised.

Chip's face grew purple. The chords in his neck swelled. "You little puppy," he gurgled, "I'll break you in two," and with a bound he was upon Sterling.

Star was not unprepared for the attack, but for some reason he retreated a step, then, grasping the bully's arm, he dropped quickly upon one knee. With a strange, lightning-like movement he flung him right over his head. Bascombe seemed literally to sail, spread-eagle, through the air, landing upon the ground some eight feet away. For a moment he lay there stunned, then slowly rose to his feet. At the same moment from behind Starr's arms were pinned to his sides. He was in the grip of the Indian.

"Hold him, Beaver!" came exultantly from Bascombe. But the words were scarcely passed his lips before Starr dropped on one knee. Beaver's arms slipped up to Sterling's neck. As they did so, he grasped Beaver's wrist and with a quick twist turned the Indian's palms upward, then using his arms as levers, threw Joe over his head in the same direction Bascombe had taken a moment before. He had thrown both opponents by two simple ju-jitsu tricks in as many minutes.

But, though a bully, Bascombe was no coward and sprang at Starr just as the latter was rising to his feet. Taken at a disadvantage, Sterling could not ward off the blow he delivered. Jerking his head to one side, however, he turned what might have been a serious punch into a glancing hit. He stumbled, but was on his feet in an instant. Already he noticed Beaver was on his. As much as Starr disliked a personal encounter, he would have to see this through.

Like some miniature cyclone, he went at Bascombe. Shaken by the fall he had sustained, Bascombe could not withstand the whirlwind attack. Vainly he threw up his guard, as quickly it was battered down. Weakly, he sidestepped. Sterling anticipated this. Back, back he drove him toward the river's edge.

"Into it, Bascombe. You asked for it, now you've got it," he cried.

On the edge of the bank Bascombe again attempted to stay Sterling's attack. It was for the moment only. With a body blow that lifted the Bully of Beamville right off his feet, he dropped him backward into the water.

The spot where Bascombe struck was only a few feet in depth and a moment later he rose to his feet, the water spouting from his mouth, and pouring off him in miniature rivers.

Sterling looked around him. The Indian had disappeared. "Now, Bascombe," he advised, "there's your canoe, you're not hurt, get into it, get away from here and don't come back."

Sullenly the beaten bully climbed up the bank; at the top he paused. "I'm not through with you yet," he snarled. "Tomorrow I'll even this up."

Starr did not reply. Chip hesitated a moment longer as if to say more, then, apparently thinking better of it, stumbled down to the shore, got in his canoe, and pushed off.

PIRATES HOLD CHICAGO CUBS

Lee Meadows Allows Four Hits To Win Shutout Victory.

RETAIN LEAD.

NEW YORK, June 21.—(Canadian Press).—Lee Meadows, Pirate pitcher, held Chicago to four hits and shut them out, 4-0, in the second and final game of the important Chicago series involving leadership of the National League. A home run by Gooch in the sixth with two men on bases decided the issue.

The Cubs filled the bases after two were out in the third but Hack Wilson fanned for the third out. Again in the ninth the home team filled the bases with one down but could not touch Meadows with a scoring punch. It was the second straight shutout the bespectacled Pirate pitcher has scored.

An error by Eddie Pick, Chicago's rookie third baseman, paved the way for the Pirates' victory. Pick muffed a throw from Stephenson that would have resulted in the third out, and Gooch followed with his home run.

Only one game scheduled.

RECREATION CLUB MEETS AT HAVELOCK

Scully Cup Rules Formed By Committee Are Accepted By Gathering.

HAVELOCK, June 21.—A special meeting of the Havelock C.P.R. Recreation Club was held on Tuesday evening, June 14th, when only a small number of the members were present. As no regular monthly meeting had been held since February this special meeting was called by the president to clear up a few outstanding affairs. The president, Mr. Pincombe, occupied the chair. Mr. Pincombe advised the meeting that all the equipment owned, by the Club had been gathered up and Mr. Gordon reported that he was short some material to finish the case for this equipment. It was moved by Mr. Roche and seconded by Mr. Evans, that Mr. Gordon secure the necessary material to finish this case.

The secretary read a draft of the rules and regulations governing competition for the Scully Cup, as formulated by a committee composed of representatives of the recreation clubs at Smith Falls, May 21, 1927. The rules were discussed and on motion of Mr. Roche and Mr. Gordon were accepted as satisfactory.

On motion by Mr. Roche and Mr. Evans the Tennis Committee was authorized to secure more netting to surround the tennis court to protect the hedge and also to keep the balls from rolling towards the tracks. On motion of Roche and Evans the secretary was instructed to call a meeting of the executive to discuss plans for the holding of a picnic. The meeting adjourned.

PROBE SMUGGLING IN THE MARITIMES

Customs Commission Open Sittings at St. Johns, N.B., To-day.

SAINT JOHN, N.B., June 21.—(Canadian Press.)—The smuggling of liquor from Canada to the United States has been revealed at earlier sittings of the Customs Commission, but it is stated that the Maritime Provinces will produce evidence of extensive liquor smuggling into the Dominion. Also, the Commission will be offered evidence of the smuggling of other commodities during the sittings in this port of Canada.

The Commission comes to the Maritime Provinces after visiting the six other provinces in its tour from British Columbia eastward. The initial meeting in the Martimes will be held here this morning and the Saint John sittings will occupy the remainder of this week. At the outset, Customs officers of the ports and outports of New Brunswick will be called, and evidence will be taken from the men engaged in preventive work throughout the province. Then the Commission will turn into specific cases which have been prepared for its consideration. Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., and R. L. Calder, K.C., joint counsel, are here, as well as their assistants Gordon Lindsay and R. R. Law. Reports of breweries and distilleries will be presented by A. E. Nash, of Clarkson, Gordon and Dilworth, Commission auditors.

Chief Commissioner J. T. Brown, and Commissioner W. H. Wright, made the trip from Quebec by motor car, Commissioner Ernest Roy arrived by train. Sittings here will be held in the court house, and persons or bodies having any complaints or information in regard to smuggling will be asked to present them. Halifax sittings will follow those in Saint John, to be followed by a meeting in Charlottetown, which will conclude the public activities of the commission for the time being.

Outsiders Feature At Blue Bonnets

MONTREAL, June 21 (Canadian Press).—Yesterday's racing at the Blue Bonnets race track was featured by several upsets in form, outsiders for the most part capturing the purses. It was the third day of the summer meeting. One of the highest prices ever paid on a Canadian track turned up in the second event, a five and a half furlong affair, when Antimony, ridden by R. Helmslein, and owned by W. T. Trenholme of Montreal, romped home ahead of a field of ten horses. Mutuels paid $217.40 to win. Antimony's victory was received in dead silence by a thunderstruck crowd, who had scarcely recovered from the jolt when, in the third race, another outsider gathered in the first money. Meister, ridden by Erickson, led a baker's dozen to the winning post and paid $48.30 to its supporters.

There was no feature race yesterday, all purses having a value of $800.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Dear Mac:

I have just received a letter telling me that the Peterborough Rangers and the Machine Gunners are going into camp on July 1 at the rifle ranges. Here's luck! My visit to the battlefields has given me a new idea of of her Militia-trained men who made Peterborough has reason to be proud of her Militia-trained mebn who made so great names in the Great War. And if there never was a war that required men to defend the homeland, the training would still help to make men. We didn't like the army training any too well when we were in the army, but you can pick out an ex-soldier in the street today by his carriage. The others haven't any. So here's more luck to the Militia camp —and I'm toasting you in vin blanc —bon pour the estomac, ness pah?

With a mental picture of the Somme battles before your eyes, you go more gaily to the places south of the Bapaume road than to those northward, about the Ancre. Though there was little difference in the losses north and south of the road, the northern portion has a tradition of tragedy, because here, for so long, sacrifice seemed vain, progress was negligible, and the marshy ground made its own contribution to the horrors of war.

Thus one steps out more gaily along the road to Fricourt, for here were gathered the first-fruits of victory.

Becourt and Becordel nestle peaceful among the recovering trees away to the right, much as they did before August, 1914. But they are villages of new bricks, and, between them, is a feature which was not here in 1914 —a British cemetery whose headstones, recently washed, gleam even more brightly than usual. Once a year every stone, in every cemetery, is washed with a special solution whose effect is not only a clean but to preserve the stone.

Over to the left is Lozenge Wood, barely to be distinguished. At best, it was nothing much of a wood, though a distinct trouble to our men when they sought to dislodge the enemy from it. And if Lozenge Wood could hardly be seen, what are we to expect of The Poodles, two trees so proud and important that they were deemed worthy of special designation and a place on the trench map. But still, only two trees, and so much happened after they were put on the map! Poor Poodles, I fear they are no more!

That is typical of the disappointing of the battlefields as they exist today. Features of the landscape which, to the soldier, were as familiar as the centre of his own town or village, are not to be seen, or they elude one's eyes. Then, too, the isolated graves and little cemeteries have gone, all gathered into the nearest God's Acre. It is better thus, infinitely better, but once the white crosses which marked them were distinctive features of the battlefields, and now they are gone.

To this statement one must make two exceptions, so far as the Somme graves are concerned. At Fricourt, lying just across the road from the cemetery, is an isolated British grave. It bears a stone of French design, and marks the resting place of Major R. G. Raper of the 8th South Staffordshire Regiment. I was told, too, of another such grave at Leuze Wood, in which is buried a relative of Charles Dickens.

These isolated graves are not tended by the Imperial War Graves Commission, private arrangements having been made for their upkeep. I believe that the Commission's powers are sufficient to cause the removal of these graves to the nearest cemeteries, but, apparently, the relatives are averse from such a course, and the Commission prefers not to ride roughshod over their feelings.

Around Fricourt, the fields are all under cultivation, and, viewing them from high ground, one sees the same kind of chequer-board design which, during the war, was so pleasing down the valley towards Amiens, because it spoke of peace. Here, however, despite much attention, the surface of the ground is still uneven. The plough dips as it passes over a filled-in trench. It bumps across the outline of a hole made by a "nine-two," and, maybe, drags up a piece of barbed wire. The peasant mutters a strange oath. Will his holding ever be free of this accursed stuff!

Nevertheless, it is remarkable what has been achieved. During the war it was freely stated that the French Government had decided to make one huge forest of all this ground between the Somme and the Ancre, for never, surely, could the fields be reclaimed and the sites of the villages be discerned. But the French peasant decided the issue by coming back almost upon the heels of the advancing troops, and, despite intense hardship, settled down at once to restore his lacerated fields.

Soon the story of the war on this southern side of the battlefield will be read principally in the British cemeteries and on the memorials. Only in the cemetery at Fricourt does one find a clue to the glory which the Green Howards gathered at this place at so high a price. Here is a granite memorial to the 7th Battalion of the Princes of Wales' Own Yorkshire Regiment which revives in the minds of those who know it, the story of those Yorkshire lads who "went over" at Fricourt in face of murderous fire from Mametz Wood.

The contemporary records of those days suppressed, somewhat needlessly at times, the names of the regiments who bore the brunt of the battles, and now it is possible to piece history together only by a patient reading of regimental and divisional records, or by a careful examination of the headstones in the cemeteries. These latter show, always, that although one or two battalions paid a heavy price, others, too, were close at hand and did not escape unscathed. Then, again, one is reminded of those gallant fellows, the gunners. Their part was not to dash over the parapet at zero hour, but the time came to move forward their guns over ground so broken that progress was painfully slow, and they were often an easy mark for the enemy fire. Their names mingle with those of men of the infantry. Similarly, also, the steady toll of the Royal Engineers, and the machine gunners, is recorded here in the long soldierly rows of headstones.

At the cross-roads at Mametz one encounters a remarkable memorial. It is but a rough wooden cross more commendable for durability than artistic conception, but it has withstood ten years of Somme weather, and is an epitome of Britain. In the Seventh Division, whose exploits it recalls, were grouped regiments from all parts of the British Isles—the Devonshire Regiment, the 20th, 21st, 22nd and 24th Manchesters, the 2nd Gordons and 2nd Queen's Westminsters, the 2nd Royal Warwickshire and the 2nd Royal Irish Regiment. It is a great pity that this eloquent memorial has not taken a more permanent form. Too often the memorials on the Somme battlefields give disproportionate emphasis to a particular contingent drawn from one section of the British Commonwealth.

Here, however, is a blending of many elements, symbolic of the united effort which brought us to victory, and it is sad to think that its days are, inevitably, numbered. Whatever our personal feelings may be, and whatever we said and did during the war days, we all recognize that only union brought the strength that won the war. This, too, is symbolized in the Canadian Legion, which I notice is progressing well. I was glad to see the report of Campbellford's entering the Legion, and the splendid reports of the convention in Peterborough. The future looks good.

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL.

"THE NIGHT OF LOVE"

"The Night of Love," the feature picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this week, is one of those super-sentimental productions that seem to flourish best in giddy summer time. Velma Banky and Ronald Colman are the handsome stars of the feature, which has an exciting unfolding and thrilling denouement Marie, the heroine, is abducted on her wedding night by the gypsy, Montero, and eventually falls in love with him. What she considers to be a sign from heaven intervenes to remind her of her marriage vows, and she decided to enter the convent and take the veil However, Montero takes her back to the castle of her husband the Duke, and she discovers him in the midst of a carnival of dissipation Once more she summons the gypsy to her aid, and the Duke tortures him with fire. Another supposed miracle intervenes in the nick of time and Montero is saved by Marie, ho takes the place of a statue and cries for help. The peasants and the Duke's soldiers regard this as a sign from above and a great fight ensues, in which the Duke is killed, paving the way for a happy ending for the gypsy and Marie.

A very interesting portion of the picture programme is the inclusion of pictures of the 'Peterborough' speed boat jumping a raft, and doing other gymnastic stunts in the water. This is a fine demonstration of what can be done in our own city, and is calculated to advertise Peterborough extensively in a spectacular way where ever this picture may be shown. The little boat does some breath-taking stunts in the water.

The shorter reels, which are out of the ordinary with this programme, in their type and exceptional interest, include also a graphic series depicting Lindbergh's take off from the flying field, prior to his flight to Paris, and a Confederation picture, which is notable at the present time, and shows Canada from Halifax to Vancouver, at the time of Confederation and as it is now.

AT THE REGENT.

LA ROCQUE WINS AGAIN.

Rod La Rocque scored another hit in his latest star picture, "Gigolo," which was shown with emphatic success at the Regent Theatre yesterday. This the story of an American aviator in the war, whose face is rebuilt through plastic surgery and who becomes a gigolo, or dancing man in cafes, to earn a livelihood. When his boyhood sweetheart appears and dances with him without recognizing him, things begin to happen. The story is thrilling and appealing. Mr. La Rocque's portrayal of the gigolo is most artistic and excellent support is rendered by Jobyna Ralston as the girl and Louise Dresser as the mother with a Paris complex. All in all "Gigolo," which is pronounced "Jee-go-lo," is one of the most entertaining pictures seen here in many months.

5TH PETERBORO' TROOP.

The weekly meeting opened under the auspices of our scoutmaster with flag break. Then came the roll call and the taking of fees. In previous meetings the suggestion had arisen that the troop would hold outdoor meetings in the woods during the summer. Our scoutmaster agreed to try it and we had a fine tracking game going out. Patrol Leader F. Parsons and his patrol were to surround green hill and the Bulldogs and Crows were to get past and capture the flags. The game was exciting for the opponents, but not so good for the defenders, as the mosquitoes did not like the intrusion. After this jolly game came some instruction. Then, as it was rather damp and some of the boys had colds, we called off the council fire and came back to our troop rooms and held it. After several debates and so forth about scouting, our scoutmaster had the troop observe the Scout silence and then singing God Save the King. The meeting then came to a close. All members of the troop wishing to go on an extended hike over this coming week end please report to Patrol Leader Garry Johnston, 'phone 1495J, at once.

Among the speakers expected other than the resident pastors and local workers will be Rev. E. O. Seymour of Toronto and Rev. J. E. Griffith of Blackstock. The rain of Sunday was greatly appreciated, as the earth was becoming very dry, with a hard crust forming. Moisture was needed to promote growth and help ripen the strawberries, of which a bumper crop is expected in this locality.

A SERIES OF LESSONS ON FOOD COMBINATIONS
(A Summary of Rules for Good Food Combinations)

In the last four articles, I have given you some rules for the use of proteins, starches and non-starchy vegetables. I have not mentioned fresh fruit, toast, milk or desserts, but will try to summarize my views about food combinations in some very simple rules.

These would have been more complicated if I had written them twenty years ago, but through the years, I have found that good rules for food combinations can be made very simple and not many exceptions need be made.

Protein Combination.

Any one protein may be used with one or more of the cooked and raw non-starchy vegetables, with the addition of one kind of fruit, either cooked or raw.

Starch Combination.

Any one starch may be used with one or more of the cooked or raw non-starch vegetables. No fruit should be used with this meal.

Non-Starchy Combination.

One or more non-starchy vegetables, either cooked or raw, may be used with either one starch or one protein, or with any one other article of food, such as milk, toast or fruit.

Fruit Combination

One fruit, either cooked or raw, may be used with a protein meal, or with milk, or with any one of the non-starchy vegetables.

CAUTION! Fruit should never be used with a meal containing a highly starchy food.

Toast Combination.

Toasted food may be used with any other article of food or with any combination.

Milk Combination.

Milk may be used by itself or with any one kind of fruit or with one or more non-starchy vegetable.

CAUTION! Never use milk with meals containing protein or starch.

Desserts.

Desserts, such as gelatin, stewed or raw fruit, may be used in combinations with one non-starchy vegetable, or as an addition to a protein meal, but never with starchy food.

SPECIAL NOTE! Whole wheat crackers or muffins may be used in a limited quantity with either protein or starchy food by those in good health. This seems to be an exception to the general rule regarding proteins and starches.

I hope that you have saved all of the articles in this series on food combinations. If you have not done so, secure the last four back numbers of the paper, or write to me and I will send you the set of articles which you have missed.

The subject of food combinations, I consider one of the most important studies n dietetics, and I will continue to write on this subject from time to time.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

A GARDEN PROBLEM

We have the bulbs and seeds all in,
We're just about all in ourselves;
And yet no greater joy you win
Than when a fellow digs and delves.
For now we're sitting down to wait
Until the plants come peeping through;
But all the early things are late,
We only see a leaf or two.
We aren't sure just what they are,
Because—well, there's another thing,
Another in particular,
That bothers people in the spring.
Perhaps we ought to pull it up,
And give the other plants a show;
But maybe it's a buttercup,
It's hard to tell, to really know.

There's only one way, after all,
To do in such a case as that,
When you've forgotten, can't recall,
Where ev'rything is planted at.
We can't remember all the seeds
We planted in this yard of ours;
But if they live we know they're weeds,
And if they die we know they're flow'rs.

TWO BICYCLES FOR BOY AND GIRL

Two C. C. M. Bicycles and 22 Other Prizes Free To Boys and Girls in Peterborough.

With the excellent work done by contestants in the clean-up poster drawing competition in this city and district recently closed, there should be many entries in the Lowney Chocolate Contest, of drawing the Union Jack in colors with crayons, water colors or oils and a four-line verse about Canada to be added. The bicycles and twenty-two other prizes are given away free to the winners. Every school boy and girl should be in the contest.

These are the rules:

Any boy or girl may enter this contest. Entries submitted must be their own work. The Union Jack is to be drawn in colors, with crayons, or water colors, or oils, and a four-line verse about Canada must be added. (The verse may be original or copied. More marks are given for original work). You may arrange the flag in any position—the whole flag must be shown. Simply run a sharp knife across the label on a 5c or 10c bar of the new "Crest" Chocolate (right under the words "made by Walter M. Lowney Co., Limited, Montreal") — turn the label over and work on the white side. You can make as many entries as you like, using a label from a "Crest" Chocolate Bar for each drawing and verse.

There are absolutely no entrance fees and no red tape in this contest.

Neatness and originality count largely in the results. Put your name and address on the Red side of the "Crest" label and mail when completed to—

Lowney's Chocolates,
Montreal, Quebec.

Entries close with the last mail posted on June 30th, at your own post office. No letters posted later than June 30th will be considered. Judging will be completed as soon as possible and winners announced in your local paper.

The judges in the contest for Peterborough City and District are Miss Mamie McCarthy, Mr. Carl Brown, and Mr. J. H. Callander.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl who owns and lives on property adjoining the queer little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of one of her foremen. Her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped but is found again, largely through the efforts of VILAK, her cousin and protector, who is known in Porto Verde as ATTORNEY DAVIS, Elise's lawyer. Vilak has sent for LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, to help him get at the bottom of the mystery.

They are ignorant of the cause of this hostility toward Elise but suspect that a man named GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding character, is somehow involved.

Word is brought to Elise that the manager of her property at VILLAPA is desperately ill and must see her at once. Vilak suspects a trick and insists that he and Nunnally accompany her.

On the road to Villapa they are ambushed by a band of ruffians in the uniforms of soldiers. They tell Vilak that he and his companions are wanted for murder. The charge is obviously a fake. Vilak is convinced their captors are in the pay of Elise's enemies and that the messenger from Villapa was their tool, and he so tells Elise.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXII.

The anger faded from Elise's face. "What will we do?" she asked quietly.

"Nothing," Vilak answered. "For the present, absolutely nothing. We are fearfully outnumbered, and if I raise a hand they'll simply annihilate the lot of us. There's nothing to do but wait for an opening. I don't know what their plans are yet. When I learn there'll be a possibility of doing something. Meanwhile, do everything they tell you to do. In a case like this save your energies for the moment when they're most useful."

In a moment the mustached officer returned. Closing his men about the three Americans so that they would be targets from all points of the compass if they resisted, he demanded their pistols. The old man and the girl looked at Vilak questioningly. He handed over his weapon without an instant's hesitation. The officer gave the signal for the troopers to advance. The cavalcade galloped away.

In a short while they left the road to Villapa and took a deserted lane leading toward the mountains, white in the west. They rode past a thick forest where some beautiful but poisonous appearing fungi, much resembling orchids in color, made brilliant the tops of the dark trees.

They reached a rockier more open section, once a farm, but which had been abandoned for some years, judging by the dilapidated condition of the small cottage which stood a hundred feet from the road. All its windows were broken, the wooden roof partly caved in, and where it was still intact, covered with vines; the two wooden steps leading up to it were rotten and crumbling.

Into this gloomy habitation, soaked with the constant rains, the officer led his captives. Vilak's quick eye caught a noose of leather carelessly slung over the remains of a wooden bed. The bed was old, the noose was new. Vilak hoped that the others did not see. The officer ordered a chair and table brought to the window and, making a pretense of piling some papers about him and looking as judicial as possible, sat down.

"The military court of inquiry into the death of Colonel Miguel Bonjardos of Bonjardos Fazenda will begin," he grumbled, beating with his warty hand upon the table. "Jesu, bring forward the prisoners." The oily-visaged corporal lined them up before him. The captain eyed them sardonically. "We will not waste time with formalities, like the lawcourts which are long, and the lawcourts which are stupid. The court of the soldiers of Colonel Bonjardos will be brief, and their aim . . . good. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Write down 'Innocent,' Jesu. If you are innocent, you will want an attorney. Which one of my men do you choose?" He pointed down the row of grinning, ugly faces of the men leaning against the wall.

Vilak shrugged his shoulders.

"Very well. You will take none? Then I must choose for you. No man shall say that the soldiers of Colonel Bonjardos do not obey the law. He looked gravely at the sallow-skinned Jesu who was acting as clerk, then at a lazy, bleary-eyed giant slouching in a corner. "Pedros!" he called.

The giant stumbled forward. "Yes, capitaz."

"You will defend these three criminals charged with the murder of Colonel Bonjardos."

"Yes, capitaz."

"Jesus, you will be the prosecutor; I shall be the judge."

"Yes, capitaz."

"Begin, Jesu."

The corporal rose awkwardly to his feet. "I, Jesu Barbos, son of Miguel Barbos, native of Crato, in the great republic of Brazil, hereby accuse these three prisoners of having killed our beloved Colonel Bonjardos, who . . ." he faltered . . . "who was ever ready to give his life for his men, and . . . who . . . gave them bread, though he went hungry. I, Jesu Barbos, son of Miguel Barbos, native of Crato in the great republic of Brazil, hereby accuse these three criminals, because . . . ." He stumbled, and began again. "I, . . . Jesu Barbos . . ."

"Son of a wandering dog, native of Crato in the great republic of Brazil," shouted out a fat-faced warrior in the shadows.

The men howled with laughter.

"Silence!" roared the captain. He turned on the luckless Jesu. "Fool! Ox of the field! Toad of the slime!"

Furiously he tipped over the table at which he had been sitting, scattering the papers he had carefully placed on the table onto the backs of a troop of the termite ants scurrying over the floor. "Enough of this folly," he said, calmly. "These two men and this woman are not children. They know that we do not hold a court, that what we do is but make a silly play. Tie them up, stupid Jesu. Perhaps your hands can do what your head cannot. Tie them well or you will pay for it dearly. Leave the two pigs of men here, and take the woman there . . ."

He pointed to a smaller room toward the rear of the wretched dwelling.

"I will keep her there, while I ponder what I shall do. Bind them. Quickly. Hand and foot. Of the woman, bind only the hands, so that she may not strike me."

The men proceeded to execute his orders. The three captives made not the slightest attempt at resistance, the two men quietly allowing themselves to be stretched upon the muddy floor and be trussed with ropes of hide until beyond a slight movement of the head and wrists they were helpless as though in a plaster cast.

Elise walked slowly into the other room. Testing the ropes to make certain they were secure, Jesu grinned and stabbed Vilak brutally in the side with his heavy boot. "Goodby, my pigs," he grunted. "In an hour we shall come back and tell you how you shall die."

He closed the door behind him. The two men were left alone, but the voices of men buzzing outside the two doors of the room told them they were well guarded. For five minutes they lay in silence. Vilak, motionless as a statue except when he rolled over to crush with the weight of his body a termite ant crawling on his hand or leg. The Chinese cast of his eyes again accentuated. Finally the old man in the corner, some ten feet away from his friend, could bear the silence no longer. "Vilak," he called quietly.

"Yes, Nanny, what is it?" Vilak's voice was calm as though he had been sitting in his study.

"Er . . . I want to talk . . . to you."

"Roll over to me. Quietly now. It's all right. These ruffians don't understand English."

The chemist obeyed and rolled to the other's side. His face, hair and clothes became covered with mud as he twisted over the water-soaked ground. His thick glasses were obscured by a black film so that they were worse than useless. "What are they going . . . er . . . going to do to us, Vilak?" he whispered. "Kill us?"

"Yes, if they can."

"What will they . . . er . . . do with Elise? . . . Elise? Kill her, too?"

"I don't think so. More likely carry her off somewhere."

"What will we do? . . . Yes . . . what?"

"Keep very cool, and try to prevent them, that's all. They're divided now and off their guard. Rub your head against that wall, and knock off your glasses. Your eyes must feel wretched that way."

The old fellow followed the other's suggestion. In a moment his wispy leg was twisting beneath its bonds. He spoke again, half in irritation, half in resignation. "Vilak."

"Yes, Nanny." His intonation was placid, soothing. "These . . . er . . . termite ants are walking over all parts . . . er . . . parts . . . of my body. They're troubling me . . . fearfully. . . . yes . . . er . . . fearfully."

"Roll over on your side and crush them beneath you. That's what I've been doing ever since we've been here."

The old man obeyed. His wispy body rolled violently from side to side a moment. When he stopped, relief was evident in his countenance. "Little beasts. Annoying . . . er . . . annoying. Terrible place they've put us in . . . really . . . terrible. Pools of water so that you can't lie in a dry spot. Certainly get pneumonia . . . quite certainly . . . er . . . Vilak . . . and these termites . . . er . . . termites— . . . positively devilish." His wispy body squirmed again.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE — CCXII—Edison's Gift to Transportation. — by MAX HAHN

EDISON'S INCENTIVE TO BUILD A PRACTICAL ELECTRICAL RAILROAD ORIGINATED IN A VACATION. HE WENT TO WYOMING IN 1878 WITH A PARTY OF ASTRONOMERS. THE STARS DIDN'T IMPRESS HIM NEARLY SO MUCH, HOWEVER, AS THE FACT THAT WESTERN FARMERS WERE WASTING MUCH VALUABLE TIME HAULING GRAIN TO MARKET.

TWO OR THREE AMERICAN INVENTORS WERE BUSY ON THE IDEA OF AN ELECTRIC RAILWAY BEFORE EDISON CONSTRUCTED HIS IN 1880. EDISON'S PREDECESSORS WERE NOT SUCCESSFUL, AND HORSE CARS WERE IN GENERAL USE IN CITIES. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

SOME OF THE NOVELTY OF THE ELECTRIC LAMP HAVING BURNED AWAY, EDISON BEGAN EXPERIMENTS ON ELECTRIC TRANSPORTATION. HE WAS STILL THINKING OF THE WYOMING FARMERS AND THEIR NEED FOR A SPEEDY METHOD OF GETTING CROPS TO MARKET.

HE MADE MANY IMPROVEMENTS ON HIS ELECTRIC RAILWAY, THUS PIONEERING THE TRAIL FOR OTHERS TO DEVELOP THE FAST TROLLEY LINE, AND THE ELEVATED AND SUBWAY SYSTEMS.

REVIEWS PROGRESS OF CONFEDERATION

Only Remaining Member of Original Press Gallery Tells of Canadian Progress.

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I., June 21 (Canadian Press)—Writing in the Charlottetown Guardian, J. E. B. McCready, who is the sole surviving member of the original press gallery at Ottawa at Confederation, reviews the progress of the past 60 years, in part as follows:

"Canadian enterprise during this period in combination with the vastness of the Dominion's natural resources, has rapidly increased the national wealth until in per capita amount Canada is exceeded only by the United States and Great Britain. The comparative figures of national wealth per capita as compiled by the League of Nations are, United States, $2,918; Great Britain, $2,459; Canada $2,406; France $1,570; Germany $1,080; and Japan $544. To what high place among the Nations of the world may not a United Canadian Dominion yet advance? And how much depends upon that patriotic spirit and purpose which should inspire every true Canadian in this Jubilee Year of our great Federation. It was well interpreted in the words of one of the eloquent Fathers when he cited a myth of the classic ages of antiquity. A sculptor had chiseled a figure of such faultless and perfect mould that he fell in love with the work of his own hands and knelt before it, but when he rose and embraced it the marble gave back only an icy chill. There was no life, no warmth there. Thus it will be with our fair Dominion if our people are not possessed of a national spirit, a national life and a national devotion.

"Fortunately the signs of the times are now auspicious. The spirit of unity, concord and equality is abroad in the land as it has not been in the years that are past. The disappointed and discontented people of the Maritimes are becoming pacified by measures of justice and equity too long delayed, but welcome and the coming celebration of the National Birthday anniversary promises to be joyfully honored from ocean to ocean."

The British cross-channel air services recently celebrated their seventh birthday. During that time the British air liners have flown more than 7,000,000 miles.

LITTLE THEATRE

LONDON, June 21 (Canadian Press) —"I think the future of the English stage depends upon the Little Theatre," said Jerome K. Jerome in a speech at Bristol Little Theatre. "The big theatre must attract a big audience or go bankrupt," he declared. "A play, to be successful in the West End of London, must draw nearly £2,000 a week. When riches like that come pouring in through the box-office window, art flies out at the stage door."

The big manager, Mr. Jerome explains, does not ask whether a play is good or bad. He asks: "Has it got a punch in it? Will it bring them in?" By "them" he means the people who regard the theatre as an interlude between a dinner and a dance—the people who go to the theatre in the hope of being excited by sensationalism or by sexuality.

"An appetite grows by what it feeds on," he continued. "There is danger of the British stage becoming a sink of sexuality. To be successful, every new play has to go a bit further. The thing works in a vicious circle."

"In the provinces," he said, "there are not so many difficulties to contend with. The Little Theatre gets known. It enters into the life of the town. I should like to see a Little Theatre in every town of more than 40,000 people. And it can be done. The Little Theatre is needed to keep alive the English drama. To-day, half the theatres in London are controlled from America. The other half soon will be. It is only a question of time.

"London isn't all England—not yet, thank God," he added.

BROOKS' APPEAL HEARD TO-DAY

I. F. Hellmuth, K.C., Appears Before First Divisional Court.

STATES CASE.

TOTRONTO, June 21. Canadian Press. — Declaring that the trial judge should never have sent the case to the jury, I. F. Hellmuth, K. C., appealed to the first divisional court today on behalf of Bartlett J. Brooks, against the conviction on a charge of attempting to procure an illegal operation on the late Ruth Dembner. Brooks was sentenced to five years. Dr. Oswald C. J. Withrow in the same connection was sentenced to seven years.

One of the chief grounds of appeal outlined by the appellant's counsel is that since medical evidence at his trial had established that Ruth Dembner's death had been caused by an alleged illegal operation, Brooks having been found not guilty on the charge of manslaughter, could not in law be found guilty on the count of performing or assisting at operation.

Mr. Hellmuth declared the conviction had been made on evidence of the flimsiest character and there should not have been a conviction on either count.

GIFT PRESENTED TO U.F.O. SECRETARY

Harold Lewis Honored By Local Club on Occasion of His Marriage.

The following letter, along with the gift of a fountain pen, as a token of esteem on the occasion of his marriage to Miss Beatrice McGregor, was despatched this week by the local branch of the U.F.O. to Harold Lewis, secretary of the organization:

Dear Harold,—We, the undersigned, on behalf of the officers and members of Peterborough U.F.O. No. 519 Club, desire to avail ourselves of the opportunity afforded by the happy occasion of your marriage to tender to you an expression of the good will and esteem of the club, to congratulate you on your choice of a life partner, and to thank you for your labours on behalf of the club during the last six years. We ask you to accept the enclosed gift of a fountain pen as a slight indication of the regard in which you are held by the members of the club. May we express the hope that you will long be spared to wield the pen in the service of the club, in the office which you have adorned for the past two years.

Since you linked up with us on com-

Since you linked up with us on com- you have proved yourself a useful and valued member and a real asset to the organization. Before you assumed the office of secretary, you frequently took part in the entertainments of the club and the junior section has been indebted to you for help and encouragement.

We remember also with pleasure that your bride-to-be is well known among us, and that she also has been a familiar figure on the programmes of the club. You are, so to speak, marrying within our ranks, and we wish for you both long life and happiness.

Signed:
E. A. Scott, President.
C. E. Moore, Vice-President.

A school in Oklahoma City last fall offered to accept cotton in payment of tuition and about 200 students took advantage of the opportunity.

WEDDING BELLS.

DUMMITT—LINTON.

The wedding was solemnized quietly at All Saints 'church on Saturday afternoon last, by the rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson, of John Frederick Dummitt and Mrs. Isabel Jane Linton. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dummitt.

MAGEE—PARNELL.

On Saturday afternoon at All Saints' church, the wedding was solemnized by Rev. J. D. Paterson, of John Henry Magee, of Toronto, and Violet Isabel Parnell of Peterborough. Mr. and Mrs. W. Boucher were attendants at the wedding of the latter's sister.

TAYLOR—MOHER.

The wedding was performed quietly at All Saints' church on Saturday afternoon last, by the rector, Rev. J. D. Paterson, of Elijah Taylor, of Curve Lake, and Margaret Moher, of Peterborough. There were no attendants.

GRIFFIN—KENT.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at a quarter past twelve o'clock to-day at All Saints 'church, which was decorated for the occasion with a profusion of marguerites and ferns, when Margaret ("Peggy") Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kent, King street, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Thomas L. Griffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Griffin, Park street. The rector, Rev. J. D. Patterson, officiated.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. R. J. Devey, wore a lovely gown of white georgette trimmed with white silk flowers and rhinestones. She wore a white veil and wreath of orange blossoms, white kid slippers and white silk hose, a string of pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of columbia roses, lily of the valley and maiden hair fern.

The bridesmaid, Miss Gertrude Wilson, wore a frock of Indian orange georgette, trimmed with sand and gold, blonde shoes and hose and sand hat. Her bouquet was of ophelia roses and ferns.

A little flower girl, Isabel Kent, small sister of the bride, wore crepe de chine, with sand hat trimmed with rose, and carried a basket of carnation pinks.

Mr. Fred Griffin acted as best man, and ushers were Mr. George Benton and Mr. Elmer McLaren.

During the signing of the register, Mrs. C. Scholey sang "Until."

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, and a wedding breakfast served. Mr. and Mrs. Griffin left on the afternoon C.P.R. train for a honeymoon trip to Toronto and Niagara Falls. They will reside later on Stewart street.

The bride travelled in a dress of peach colored canton crepe, with black and gold trimming, peach colored hat, cherry shoes and coat of black satin trimmed with white fur.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a leather travelling bag, to the bridesmaid a bar pin set with brilliants, to the flower girl a signet ring, and to the best man a pen and pencil, encased.

PERRIN—HOLYMAN.

A pretty house wedding took place to-day at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holyman, Lock Street, when their second daughter, Lillian, became the bride of Murray Perrin, son of Mrs. D. Perrin of this city and the late Daniel Perrin. The house was decorated with a profusion of yellow and mauve iris and ferns. The ceremony was performed at half-past one o'clock by Rev. Wm. McDonald, pastor of Knox United Church.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of rosewood crepe meteor, with hat to match, and blonde shoes and hose. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses.

Mrs. R. B. Bowen and Mr. T. Holyman, sister and brother of the bride, were witnesses to the signing of the register. Mrs. Bowen sang "Until," and Mrs. J. H. Young of Ottawa, sister of the bride, played the wedding march.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served to the immediate relatives and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Perrin leaving on the afternoon train for Toronto, Niagara Falls and Ottawa. On their return, they will reside at 176 Rubidge Street. The bride travelled in a smart suit of seamoss green, with hat to match and blonde shoes and hose.

FEUD BEING WAGED BETWEEN PREMIERS

Child Endowment Scheme Comes Under Fire of Premier Bruce.

MELBOURNE, June 21 (Special by British United Press).—A furious feud is being waged between Premier Lang of New South Wales and Prime Minister Bruce over the Commonwealth's attitude toward the Labor leaders' scheme for child endowment.

This advanced paternalistic proposition fathered by the New South Wales Government is to come into operation on July first and under the new arrangement for the pooling of the various State liabilities under the Commonwealth, Mr. Bruce strongly objects to the scheme as financially prohibitive. He says it will need about one hundred and twenty million dollars per year which would have to be obtained by direct taxation.

Mr. Lang vehemently accuses Prime Minister Bruce of broken faith declaring that he has violated his 1925 election pledge. The conference of Premiers decided today to appoint a Royal Commission to investigate the whole question.

NATURAL BEAUTY IS SPOILED BY TURNING SMALLER LAKES INTO RESERVOIRS FOR POWER

Hon. C. A. Magrath Addresses Visiting Delegates at Luncheon.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

Derive More Revenue From the Tourists Coming To See Beauty Spots.

Following the first session of the annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce in the library yesterday, luncheon was served to the delegates in the club room of the Empress Hotel. Here addresses were given by Hon. C. A. Magrath, Chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and by T. H. Stinson, M.P., Lindsay, Ontario.

The speakers were introduced by His Worship Mayor Holloway, who stated that it was very kind of these two busy men to attend the second annual convention of the Eastern Chamber of Commerce. The president then called on Hon. C. A. Magrath for an address on the Hydro in Eastern Ontario, and how it could be bettered in the interests of the manufacturers in that part of Canada.

Mr. Magrath remarked that, owing to busy sessions lately it had not been his privilege to move around among the different cities as he would care to, but that he had been connected with this enterprize for over a year and that it was one of the foremost subjects that he had in his mind.

Spoils Nature

In explaining the present St. Lawrence River difficulty, Mr. Magrath stated that it started merely from an engineer giving a personal interview and that it was not worth worrying or thinking about. "In connection with power supply," he said, "the St Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers are the main sources and it is my personal belief that smaller lakes should not be turned into reservoirs, for it spoils Nature, and in my estimation, I believe that you will have a larger revenue coming in from tourists coming over here from the United States to see these natural beauty spots than you could possible derive from turning them into water reservoirs.

"We have a country," continued Mr. Magrath, "that will yield to every intelligent effort, and I hold that there is no other greater country in the whole world than Canada, for no other has such opportunities that our's presents in regard to Nature and Commerce. He then went on to say that though Canada had many difficulties, she was now coming into her own, for it is a peaceful country carrying on its own affairs."

"This delegation," remarked the speaker, "is giving up time and service to build up Eastern Ontario, and I suppose that you are wanting power from the Commission. I know we have not progressed so fast in reaching this aim," said Mr. Magrath, "but we can get you all the power now, at a reasonable figure, so that you need not be held back by that difficulty, for we have an insight into power that will give you enough for some time to come." He then stated that it was the aim of the Commission to give the Province as much power as possible and at a reasonable price. Mr. Magrath told of letters from Russia and Ireland requesting men from the Hydro of Ontario to help solve difficulties over there, thus assuring the people of Ontario of the efficiency of the employees of the Hydro Commission.

"I am very pleased," said Hon. Mr Magrath, in closing," to have been able to be with you today, and am sorry you have not had adequate power in the past, but we are going to keep you busy using it in a short time. You will be met with a fairness by the Commission in any of your problems, for we realize that we are the servants of the people, and any constructive criticisms that you care to make in regard to this great undertaking will be received and appreciated by the Commission."

Alberta Coal

T. H. Stinson M.P., of Lindsay, was the next speaker. He remarked that he appreciated the privilege of being connected with such an organization of business men, who came away from their respective businesses today to organize service and aid to make Eastern Ontario greater in every respect.

Speaking on Alberta coal, Mr. Stinson remarked that it would be a great thing for the Province of Ontario if she could import the Alberta coal and thus make money. "Last year," he said, "three million tons of anthracite coal were imported from the United States, and there is enough coal in Alberta to last for eighteen centuries. Alberta coal," continued the speaker, "can be kept long periods if protected from the weather, and still hold the same number of thermo units." Mr. Stinson then stated that on actual test two tons of Alberta coal had only left ninety pounds of ash. "If we only had this available it would have many distinct advantages," said Mr. Stinson, for it would give us a larger revenue for population increase, add

The question of the law which empowers the society to charge 75 cents a day for each ward, against the municipality liable, was brought up, and considération given as to whether it should be enforced. Young Canadian Doctor In Despair Takes Own Life When Jilted By An English Society Girl In Paris

PARIS, June 22 (Special by British United Press). — Heart-broken over a love affair with an English society girl is probably responsible for the suicide here yesterday of Dr. Frank Morgan, according to his personal friends.

Dr. Morgan, who comes from Winnipeg, shot himself in a hotel here yesterday shortly after his arrival from Dieppe, having burned his papers and destroyed identification marks on his clothing beforehand.

According to the story told by his friends, Dr. Morgan met the young lady last October in Canada, and apparently expected they would become engaged. After her return from the United States last April, the attachment was broken, and apparently Dr. Morgan despaired of renewing it again.

Dr. Morgan is one of three brothers, all of whom are physicians. He served as a Lieutenant in the Canadian Army during the war.

ADVOCATES HEAVY REDUCTION IN DUTY ON IMPORTED LIQUOR

Customs Collector Tells Way of Discouraging Smuggling in Maritimes.

ST. JOHNS SITTINGS.

Suggests Placing Fast Patrol Boat on Bay of Fundy.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 22 (Canadian Press). — From Customs Collector G. B. Lockhart ,of St. John, the Royal Customs Commission received some suggestions yesterday afternoon as to how the business of smuggling liquor into Canada via the Bay of Fundy may be discouraged, if not stamped out altogether. Mr. Lockhart's suggestions were three in number. First, he advocated reduction in the duty on imported liquor from $10.00 to $5.00 a gallon. Second, he suggested placing a fast, armed vessel on the Bay of Fundy to deal with the smuggler before he has an opportunity to land any of his cargo. Third, he advised the establisnment of a land preventive force which would be strong and efficient enough to meet a situation which evidence showed to-day serious from the customs point of view .

Mr. Lockhart said that he believed the preventive service was going to place a couple of boats on the Bay of Fundy, and these would be of material help in driving off the rum-runners.

The opening day of the Commission's sitting in the Maritime Provinces was devoted to the examination of customs officers stationed at different points in New Brunswick. It was not long after the sitting opened before counsel for the Commission uncovered evidence of liquor smuggling into the province. Other commodities, such as boots and shoes, dry goods, automobiles, household effects, also figured among the seizuers which were dealt with, but apparently liquor holds the first place easily among the commodities which enter the province by the underground route. "Largely liquor," was the answer of Collector Lockhart when asked to indicate the nature of the seizures at this port, and other officers told of similar seizures.

Camouflaged Cars.

Frederic T. Lister, collector of customs at McAdam, gave testimony of seizures which indicated that camouflaging of car loads of liquor has been practised in New Brunswick as well as in other provinces of Canada. Liquor shipped from Georgetown, P.E.I., to Moonsocket, L. I., as "potatoes," and alcohol under the innocent guise of "laths," were among these shipments. Prince Edward Island potatoes were used to cover 746 sacks, each of which contained a number of bottles of liquor. In the other case, the laths were stacked around the car so as to conceal the alcohol.

Mr. Lockhart was the first witness of the afternoon. He put in a list of seizures at the port of St. John covering the period from April ,1923, to about the present date. Seizures of liquor, motor cars, and dry goods, with liquor the most frequent commodity, formed the majority of items in the list. Contrary to evidence offered at the morning sitting, Mr Lockhart testified that he and his subordinates here co-operate closely with the preventive service in the exchange of information, making of seizures, etc.

Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel for the Commission, drew the attention of the witness to certain specific cases in the list of seizures. The first of 365 proof gallons of liquor and 141 gallons of alcohol took place back in 1924, but the liquor was not destroyed until March of the present year. Harry E. Stone figured in this seiz-

Summer Officially Opens This Morning

WASHINGTON, June 22 (United Press).—Disagreeing with the popular conception that summer arrived yesterday, the United States naval observatory said summer officially opened at 5.22, eastern standard time this morning. At that time, the sun reached its farthest point north of the equator and the day—the longest of the year—will be 14 hours and 55 minutes.

AGED RADICAL GAINS FREEDOM

Charlotte Anita Whitney Pardoned By Governor—Sentenced During the War.

WAS SOCIAL WORKER.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 22. — Sixty-year-old Charlotte Anita Whitney, social worker, convicted in wartime as a dangerous radical, yesterday was free to devote herself to her invalid mother and the flowers and books at her cottage at Carmel-by-the-Sea.

A pardon issued by Governor C. C. Young spared Miss Whitney a sentence of from one to fourteen years in San Quentin prison.

The United States Supreme Court had upheld her conviction on May 17.

"I am issuing this pardon because I do not believe that under ordinary circumstances this case would ever have been brought to trial, because the abnormal conditions attending the trial go a long way toward explaining the verdict of the jury," the Governor said in announcing the pardon.

"Miss Whitney, life-long friend of the unfortunate, in any true sense is not a 'criminal,' and to condemn her at sixty years of age to a felon's cell is an act which is absolutely unthinkable."

Miss Whitney was in seclusion at the time her pardon was announced. She could not be reached at either of her two residences at Oaklond and Carmel-by-the-Sea. John Francis Neylan, attorney, who caused prominent persons throughout the country to interest themselves in her defence, was reported out of the city.

Miss Whitney was tried January 20, 1920, on charges growing out of her attendance at a meeting of the Oakland branch of the Communist Labour Party. She was sentenced to San Quentin, February 20, 1920. The District Court of Appeals upheld the Lower Court in 1922, as did the State Supreme Court, and finally the United States Supreme Court.

The dead are Janet Shearer, 17, Bettie Howes, 16, Alice Scott, 32, a housemaid and a cook named Helen, whose last name was undetermined. No others were believed to have been in the house.

AGREEMENT IS MORE POSSIBLE WITH JAPANESE

New Light Thrown on Tokio's Intentions When Proposals Explained.

ALLOW FOR SUBMARINES.

Treaty Now Impossible Unless Somebody Recedes From Original Position.

GENEVA, Switzerland, June 22. — (Canadian Press.)—The dove of peace still swooped over the tri partite naval disarmament conference last night, but he had some spot on the under side of his wings. At the close of the second day of the conference the experts were able to reaffirm their early impressio s that the three plans presented—the British, United States and Japanese—are so divergent as to be utterly irreconcilable and are certain to make a treaty impossible unless somebody recedes from his original position.

It is understood that the United States delegates will reply to the British proposals by announcing that the United States will never be forced into building cruisers too small for the needs of her national defence. The British proposed the abolition of 10,000 ton cruisers authorized by the Washington parleys.

Admiral Saito, however, in a statement to the Associated Press last night, in which he explained the purport of the Japanese proposals, threw an entirely new light on some of Tokio's intentions and justified the belief of the United States' delegation that an agreement would be more possible on a basis of the Japanese plan than the British. Saito made it clear that in future cruiser building programmes of the United States she could, under the Japanese project, scrap some of her numerous destroyers and put the tonnage saved into cruisers.

Strengthen Cruisers.

But Saito emphasized that Japan wanted to keep her existing or contracted for strength in cruisers, numbering 32, with a total tonnage of 200,000. It is evident that on these figures the United States would be obliged to possess eventually some 30 high-powered cruisers of 10,000 tons each, if it desired to keep the parity of 5-5-3, which was fixed at the Washington conference, for battleships.

The admiral admitted that the Japanese plan allowed the construction of small submarines without limit but contended that these were purely for the defence of Japan's extensive island coast lines.

Even naval experts are having difficulty in their efforts to understand the exact meaning of the respective plans. That is why selected officers of each country will meet to-day and endeavour to determine theier exact purport.

Despite the heat, the leaders decline to get excited. Admiral Viscount Saito is unperturbed, calm and meditative, as if sitting in his Japanese garden in the outskirts of Tokio. The first lord of the British admiralty, W. C. Bridgeman, is approachable and candidly discusses the virtues of the British plan.

Would Lighten Burden.

Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States' delegation and president of the conference, refuses to abandon his smiling optimism, while Admiral Earl Jellicoe and Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick Field, receiving the correspondents, reiterated the British belief that adoption of their plan would lighten the burden of the taxpayer and earnestly contended that the British proposal was not a blow at the Washington treaty but really embodied a commendable attempt to do things now which must be accomplished at the second Washington conference to be held in 1931.

As evidence of the confusion in the air concerning the exact meaning of the various projects ,Admiral Field told the press representatives that the Japanese plan would give the United States only 15 cruisers as against 29 for Japan and 61 for Great Britain. Thus the British admiralty, as represented at Geneva, seems to be unaware of the Japanese intenfion as disclosed to the Associated Press to allow the United States to transfer destroyer strength into cruiser strength.

Admiral Field tried to ridicule the United States' contention that fast merchantmen like the Mauretania could be converted into powerful auxiliary cruisers under the British plan by mounting 6-inch guns.

"Why,' he said, "they would merely be eggshell targets for any type of modern cruiser armed with guns of equal calibre."

But this quick dismissal of the importance of swift merchantmen is not accepted by the Americans, who insist anew that the British plan to reduce the size of cruisers would take the teeth out of the United States' navy.

Given Six Months For Selling Liquor

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., June 22 (Canadian Press). — Mike Captain, Italian, farmer of Hurkett, charged with selling liquor to Melvin McGrath and John McNee, who were killed when run down by a Canadian Pacific passenger train east of Hurkett, on Monday, was sentenced yesterday afternoon by Magistrate O'Brien to six months' imprisonment. The Magistrate gave Captain the maximum penalty, and said had the penalty been heavier he would have imposed it.

TWO WOMEN KNOCKED DOWN BY CAR DRIVER

Driver is Unable to Account For the Swerving of the Automobile.

NEAR APSLEY.

Mrs. Watson and Mrs. R. Farthing of This City, Met With Accident.

APSLEY, June 22. — On Sunday morning Mrs. Watson and Mrs. R. Farthing, both of Peterborough, were the victims of a peculiar accident. They were within a mile of Apsley, having walked from Loon Lake, when being overtaken by a car, the driver of which slowed down to offer them a lift, for some unaccountable reason, the car swerved, knocking down the ladies, Mrs. Farthing being right under the car, miraculously escaping with only slight bruises. Mrs. Watson fared the worse, being cut and bruised on the mouth and face, and both shoulders and badly bruised on the hip where the car hit her. They were brought to the village, where Dr. Shepherd attended to their injuries, and later taken to Mr. Watson's cottage at Loon Lake. When seen today, Mrs. Farthing was not much the worse for the mishap, but Mrs. Watson is confined to her bed, and unable to walk.

SENATOR ATTACKS ST. LAWRENCE PLAN

New England Member Against Proposed Building of Big Ship Canal.

WASHINGTON, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Attacking the rpeort of the New England-St. Lawrence waterway Commission recommending the development of the St. Lawrence Canal as against a waterway across New York State, Senator Copeland, Democrat, said he could not conceive of the United States citizens endorsing the plan that would make Montreal the great port of the Western world at the expense of the United States' ports and the nation's merchant marine. It was absurd, he added, to suggest that the St. Lawrence Canal would open to New England industries a new and cheaper transportation artery or that it would establish lines of vessels running from the Great Lakes' ports with no outlet or intake of cargoes from Lake Ontario.

FOUR WOMEN ARE INJURED BY MOTOR CAR

Toronto Teachers Struck Down While Alighting From Street Car.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Miss West, a Native of Stirling, is the Most Seriously Injured.

TORONTO, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Four Toronto women teachers were injured when they were struck by a motor car as they alighted from a street car at Leslie and Gerrard Streets corner to-day. The four teachers were removed to the hospital. The most seriously injured was Miss Laura West, several head injuries, and Miss Hazel McEwen, who is suffering from injuries to ribs and shoulder. The two others with less severe injuries were Miss Cassie Hutton and Miss Florence Barber.

W. T. Armour, driver of the car, was arrested and charged with criminal negligence. Miss West is a native of Stirling, Ontario, 26 years of age, who graduated while still under age in Peterborough.

COMET APPEARS.

Hurls Through Space a Million Miles a Day.

CHICAGO, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Hurtling earthward at the speed of a million miles a day, the Pone-Winnecke comet, traveller of the skies, was visible here last night, and, astronomers say, as it nears the earth in the next few days, it will seem larger than a full moon at the point of the nearest approach. It appeared last night near the star Vega.

LOST IN BUSH FOR 20 HOURS

Guelph Man Wanders Alone in the Woods Near Burk's Falls.

LIVES ON MILK.

GUELPH, June 22. — Lost in the trackless wilderness of bush which surrounds his summer camp at Doe Bay, on Lake Katrine, near Burk's Falls, Richard Mahoney, local business man, wandered alone for twenty hours over the week end, according to word reaching his son, Dr. Richard Mahoney, here yesterday.

He set out for a farm a few miles away for milk and potatoes on Saturday night about nine o'clock, and lost his way on the unblazed homeward trail. He was found shortly after four o'clock on Sunday afternoon by a search party of farmers and other summer residents which had been hastily recruited in the district.

During his hopeless wanderings through the maze of trees, Mr. Mahoney had only the milk and potatoes which he had bought at the farm house for food. When found Mr. Mahoney was quite calm and collected and little the worse for his unpleasant experience. The pail of milk, he said, had kept him from hunger.

PROSPECTS FOR CROPS ARE GOOD

Crops Never Looked Better in Alberta Than at the Present Time.

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 22 (Canadian Press). — Prospects point to a good crop throughout the Prairies this year, stated Leslie H. Boyd, chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, on his arrival here on Tuesday on official business. "Alberta has not had a better prospect in years," he said. "If Alberta carries through the crop she now seems likely to have, Vancouver is sure to come into its own as a grain port this year."

Salvation Army Makes an Appeal To County Council For Grant.

DELEGATIONS PRESENT.

Trent Waterway Association Ask For Help To Carry on Great Work.

Reeve John Clark, of Galway and Cavendish, was the only member of the County Council whose desk was vacant at the opening June sessions, and Mr. Clark sent a letter to the effect that he had been detained by the illness of his brother, but would try to be present on Thursday or Friday.

The Council expressed its sympathy to the family of Reeve Clark in a resolution by Reeve Curtis, of Havelock, seconded by Reeve Montgomery of Norwood.

Mr. Smith Milburn appealed to the Council for a grant to the Lakefield Cemetery for the maintenance of the House of Refuge lot which contains the graves of nearly sixty former inmates of that institution.

"The lot is one-quarter of an acre," said Mr. Milburn, "and we have been looking after it. The County has occasionally contributed to the cost of the work, and we consider the Council should pay for our maintenance of that lot."

Reeve C. S. Tanner, of Lakefield, suggested that $25.00 be granted to the Lakefield Cemetery. The request was referred to the Finance Committee.

The faulty accoustics of the County Court Room were again called to the Council's attention by Judge Huycke, His Honour left the bench in his adjoining room to address the Council in regard to a communication from W. R. Turner, of Peterborough, conveying expressions by the bench and bar of Hamilton with the improvements in the accoustics of the Court chamber there.

"Personally I have nothing to complain about," said Judge Huycke. "The officials of the County have treated me most kindly. You have a beautiful Court Room. There are few better than that in which I preside. But I have been frequently told that it is almost impossible to hear what is being said. The public are entitled to hear what is said in the Court. In fact, it is one of the most public places we have under our constitution. I am not unduly pressing this, but I feel that it is an important matter, and of course, experts know what should be done to correct conditions."

His Honour also asked the Council to have the flags over the judge's desk taken down and cleaned of their accumulated dust, and at the same time obtain a coat of arms befitting the Court Chamber and the dignity of this country. The present coat of arms had been "dug up" by J. J. Turner & Company in an emergency caused by a High Court judge's demand that the armorial emblem be placed over the bench.

Warden Middleton promised that these matters would receive the Council's consideration.

Salvation Army Appeal.

R. C. Braund and Adjutant Snowden asked for a grant to the Salvation Army.

"It is the same story," Mr. Braund smiled. "We are doing the work for fallen humanity, for people who come from outside the Army. Our homes are for the help of anyone in need. We make no restrictions as to class and creed. I wouldn't ask you for money if, as a business man, I did not support it myself. I give as much as I can, and, if I may say so, my donations last year were more than $800. If you have any money to give deserving charities, we will place it for the help of people, from this and other counties, who need it."

Adjutant Snowden said that the Salvation Army's matron reported 23 cases from this county which she had attended from April, 1926, to June 8, 1927. These cases ranged from domestic trouble to attempted suicide.

This petition was also referred to the Finance Committee.

Renew Insurance.

The Council this morning promptly renewed its $11,000 insurance with the Globe Indemnity Company, covering possible highway accidents.

Mr. Frank Plaxton of Toronto, representing the company, pointed out that the risk this year was greater as a result of the increasing of the speed limit from 25 to 35 miles an hour and of the kick in Ontario's beverages. These changes tended to heighten the hazard.

The company was now dealing with a claim from Cooney & Jopling of Peterborough for $160 damages in an accident on the Norwood Road a few weeks ago.

"We are looking into this matter very carefully, because it might be that the company carrying the 'bus line insurance would bring suit against the county. I may tell you that a writ for $10,000 has been issued in behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Moynes against the Council of the

MINISTER HAS VERY OLD RELIC

Bethany Clergyman Has a Bible Which is 324 Years Old.

OLD ENGLISH STYLE.

Bethany, June 20. — Rev. Alfred Poulter, pastor of the United Church here has a Bible which is 324 years old, which has the 300-year-old Toronto record beaten.

The Bible in Mr. Poulter's possession is an old family relic and was given him by an uncle in England.

It weighs 13½ pounds, is 15¼ inches long, 10 inches wide, and 3½ inches thick. The book is in perfect preservation, with all the pages intact. It is written in Old English print with its double u's for w and Book spelled Booke.

It is a "she" Bible, however, as it was printed in Queen Elizabeth's day. On the fly leaf is: Imprinted at London by the deputies of Christopher Barker; printer to The Queene's Maiesties, Anno 1588.

The edition includes the Aprocrypha. Records made in the Bible by members of the family over 300 years ago are written in a beautiful clear hand and are prefectly legible although greatly faded with time, the ink having faded to a rusty brown. Needless to say Mr. Poulter prizes his Book very highly.

DISTRICT CHURCHES

United.

MADOC, June 22. — About sixty members of Number 48 A.F. and A.M. attended divine service at the United church on Sunday morning. Rev. A. H. Foster preached an interesting and appropriate address relative to Masonry. Special music was given by the choir, the solo in the anthem being sung by Mrs. Ashley. A solo, 'Blessed Are They,' was rendered by Miss Norma Fair.

Presbyterian.

In St. Peter's Presbyterian church a special service for old people was held. Rev. Mr. Marshall took as his subject, 'Sunset and Evening Star,' and drew his texts from II Sam. 19-35, "I am this day fourscore years old and can I discern between good and evil," and Joshua xiv:10, 11, "And now, lo, I am this day four-score and five years old. As yet I am as strong this day, as I was in the day that Moses sent me; as my strength was then, even so is my strength now, for war, both to go out and to come in."

In the congregation were many elderly people, some of whom find it difficult to get to church regularly, and who listened with eager attention to the helpful ,beautiful thoughts of Mr. Marshall's address. Mr. Marshall recalled the church services rendered by these faithful ones of the church and the help they had so willingly given all their lives. He spoke of the work accomplished in St. Peter's by Rev. D. Wishart, who had been pastor there for many years and was beloved by all his congregation. In his closing remarks Mr. Marshall likened the elderly people to harbor lights guiding the younger ones and leading the way to the city not made with hands.

The anthem sung by the choir was "In the Sweet Bye and Bye." Mrs. Yule of Tweed, sang a solo, "Crossing the Bar."

The whole service was one of such beauty and inspiration that it will not soon be forgotten by both young and old.

About twenty members of the Presbyterian church in Tweed attended the service in St. Peter's.

The service in St. John's church was conducted by Rev. Mr. McConnell, of Toronto, who will be in charge of the parish until a permanent rector is appointed.

WEDDING BELLS.

BUCHANAN—DAVIDSON.

HAVELOCK, June 22.—A very pretty June wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother, Mathison street, on Saturday, June 18th, when Mary Velma, only daughter of the late Carp Davidson and Mrs. Davidson became the bride Harold Smith Buchanan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Buchanan of Havelock.

The rooms were arranged with pink and white with bouquets of snowballs forming an effective decoration.

The ceremony was performed at high noon by Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., minister of Havelock United church.

The bride entered the drawing room to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, played by Mrs. C. E. McMullen of Belleville, and was given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. John Davidson. During the signing of the register Mrs. C. E. McMullen sang "Because" in sweet voice.

The bride looked charming attired in a gown of Rose Marie georgette, trimmed with gold lace. She carried a shower bouquet of ophelia roses.

After a dainty buffet luncheon the happy couple left on a motor trip to London and points west. The bride travelled in a navy blue suit with white hat and white fox fur the gift of the groom. One their return they will reside in Toronto.

Twin Girl Swimmers Start On Third Lap

The girls were taken from the water at 12.22 yesterday morning, when a slight stiffness developed in the arm of Phyllis, but both declared themselves feeling fit and ready for a long swim to-day.

RENEW SEARCH FOR AVIATORS

Hogan Says Confident of Theory Forced Down in Storm.

ESTABLISH GAS BASE.

NEW YORK, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Thomas Hogan, news camera man, left last night to renew his aeroplane search in Quebec Province for the missing French aviators Nungesser and Coli.

Hogan said he was confident there is basis for the theory that the French men were forced down by a snowstorm and crashed into a mountain. One of them, according to his theory, is sending flare signals and caring for his injured partner, killing game for food.

Hogan said flares had been seen at a point about thirty miles from Chicoutimi on the Saguenay River, 60 miles past Robervale. Last Friday and Saturday he had spent an hour in the air over this region with a Curtiss seaplane, piloted by Captain T. G. Stephens, Canadian war flier. Since then Hogan has arranged to establish a gasoline base at Chicoutimi.

Decide on Search.

QUEBEC, Que., June 22 (Canadian Press).—What the Quebec Government will do with respect to a search for Nungesser and Coli in the north woods will be definitely decided this morning when Hon. Honore Mercier, Minister of Lands and Forests, will confer with Premier Taschereau on the matter. Before consulting the Prime Minister, however, Hon. Mr. Mercier will have in his possession a full report of the whole matter, commencing with the message received a week ago of strange lights being seen, up to the later reports of the experiments being made with regard to the direction of the lights.

The log is being prepared by C. C. Piche, chief of the Forestry Service, and his assistant, Avilla Bedard. The Department refuses to express any opinion as to whether or not the Government would be wise in sending an airplane search expedition on the strength of the evidence received.

MONTREAL WOMAN ACQUITTED BY JURY

Connection With Deaths of Infants at Her "Baby Farm."

HULL, Que., June 22 (Canadian Press). — Mrs Diana Lacroix, 63-year-old woman who had faced three separate murder trials within two weeks in connection with deaths of infants at her "baby farm" in South Hull early this year, was acquitted of two of the charges late yesterday afternoon. She had been acquitted on June 8 of the first charge. Yesterday's acquittals were received by loud cheering by the spectators in the Court Room. It was quickly silenced, however, by Mr. Justice Walsh, of Montreal, who presided.

With all the evidence in yesterday afternoon, in the baby Riendeau case, both Crown prosecutor and defence counsel waived the right to address the jury. Mr. Justice Walsh, in addressing the jury, pointed out that as there had been insufficient evidence to warrant a verdict of murder, the jury's decree must be either manslaughter or one of complete vindication.

The jury was out only three minutes, and returned with a verdict of "not guilty."

Proceedings at once commenced in connection with the third murder trial against Mrs. Lacroix, that in connection with the death of Baby Lalonde.

Crown Prosecutor Parent announced that he had no additional evidence to produce which had not been previously introduced. The jury was, therefore, unceremoniously called upon to render a verdict in this, the final charge against Mrs. Lacroix.

The jurymen, without leaving their seats, nodded to their foreman, who repeated the verdict of "not guilty."

revenue to the railways, give more employment to the people of the Dominion of Canada.

"The monetary circulation in the United States is three million yearly on coal," said Mr. Stinson, "so it is very easy to see the effect that a revenue like that would have toward the betterment of our country."

The speaker then went on to say that if this could only be accomplished by a decrease in the freight price, there would be fifty thousand more jobs for the people in Canada, which would mean approximately two hundred and fifty thousand more people added to her population.

In concluding, Mr. Stinson stated that Canada had all to make her an outstanding country in the world, and that all her people should have great admiration and pride for her.

F. Mason moved a vote of thanks to the two speakers who had so graciously condescended to speak to the delegates of the Chamber. Mayor Preston of Oshawa seconded the motion.

Following the luncheon, business was resumed at the Library. The following resolutions were placed before the meeting and passed:

And resolved that the Departments of Immigration and of Agriculture at Ottawa and the Department of Agriculture at Toronto be called to the possibilities of a more intensive development of agriculture in Eastern Ontario, particularly in such branches as fruit growing, dairying, animal husbandry, apiculture and truck farming and that more serious efforts be made to bring about the settlement here of suitable immigrants from Great Britain anid Northern Europe.

Resolution proposed by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce:

And resolved that the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce express its commendation of the policy of reforestation, fire prevention and resettlement introduced by the Government of Ontario, particularly under the administration of Hon. William Finlayson;

And, further, be it resolved that the Department of Lands and Forests be requested to carry out this policy to as great an extent as is practicable in those sections of Eastern Ontario that are far more suitable for forest growth than for agricultural settlement.

Resolution presented by the Belleville Chamber of Commerce:

Whereas, the Hydro-Electric Power Commission is likely to secure a large allotment of power for the use of the municipalities of Eastern Ontario;

Therefore be it resolved that the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce make an earnest and concerted effort to interest British and American capitalists and industrialists in this section of Canada with a view to securing the establishment here of important manufacturing industries such as would utilize our great resources of power, timber, minerals and other features of our natural wealth.

ure, Mr. Lockhart said, and the net result was that the boat on which the liquor was, and the liquor itself, were forfeited. There had been no prosecution in the case.

Glancing over the records, Mr. Rowell asked the witness if he could say why such a long time elapsed between the date of certain seizures and the final disposition of the seized articles by the Customs Department. Mr. Lockhart explained that the preventive service at Ottawa was not until recently possessed of up-to-date records covering the undisposed seizures at Saint John. Now he was sending in a statement every month giving this information.

Other seizures mentioned by Mr. Rowell comprised 83 cases of alcohol found in a wood pile after being landed from a schooner, 136 cases of champagne landed on the shore about six miles from the city of Saint John, champagne and whiskey to the value of $13,654 found covered with hay in a stable. The last seizure took place in April of the present year, and Mr. Lockhart said he believed the champagne and whiskey had been brought into New Brunswick by water.

Going On Since 1922.

Mr. Rowell asked Mr. Lockhart how long liquor smuggling into the district had been carried on and whether or not it was extensive. The collector replied that he could not say how extensive the movement was, but he thought it had been going on actively from 1922 up to the present time. Liquor-laden schooners lay off "the Wolves" and discharged their cargoes into small boats. He believed that speedy payment of informers would result in the customs obtaining more information about smuggling. Customs and preventive officers shoud be authorized to pay their informers within five days.

At this point Mr. Rowell informed the commission that Mr. Lockhart was called to attend a smuggling case in another court.

"We'll give him every encouragement to go to that court," Chief Commissioner Brown remarked as the witness left the box.

GALE DELAYS BYRD'S FLIGHT

Dampens Hope of Men Intent Upon Flying To France.

TAKE FOUR AIRMEN.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N.Y., June 22 (Canadian Press).—A storm howling up the Atlantic to the Grand Banks yesterday extinguished for yet another day the hopes of four men intent upon flying to France.

Early yesterday morning there was a stir of suppressed excitement at the flying field of Richard E. Byrd, where the giant monoplane America squatted in its hangar with outstretched wings as though poised for momentary flight.

It was whispered about that the flight was to be sometime yesterday, that conditions in the air had at last improved and the tedious waiting was almost at an end.

Commander Byrd appeared and made formal announcement that there were to be four men on the flight instead of the three originally planned for. The fourth man to ride with him and Bert Acosta and George Noville, he said, was to be Bernt Balchen, formerly a lieutenant in the Norwegian navy, and closely associated with Byrd for the past year.

But on the recommendation of James Kimball, meteorologist of the weather bureau, all plans for a flight either last night or this morning were abandoned, due to the storm. In the afternoon the America was hauled from its hangar to be gaped at by a shifting crowd kept out of reach by a rope barrier.

America-made motion picture films sent abroad last year had a total length of 214,000,000 feet.

Flight To Hawaii By the Los Angeles Hinted By U.S. Government Official

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The possibility of a flight by the dirigible Los Angeles from its base at Lakehurst, N.J., to Honolulu, a distance of approximately 5,400 miles, was suggested yesterday by Edward P. Warner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, in charge of aviation, as a result of the announcement made by Secretary Wilbur that in the future the Los Angeles would be used on longer flights.

The dirigible is now being overhauled at Lakehurst, primarily for repurifying its helium.

Assistant Secretary Warner, in discussing his suggestion, pointed out that a mooring mast for lighter-than-air craft is maintained at Honolulu.

While he was on a recent inspection trip of navy air craft facilities along the Pacific Coast and in Hawaii the crew stationed at the Hawaiian base told him that they were prepared to moor the Los Angeles on four hours' notice.

The Los Angeles had been unusually successful in its mooring tests with the tender Patoka, Mr. Warner said. For this reason, should the Los Angeles make a trans-Pacific flight, the Patoka would probably be used as a trailer ship.

The Los Angeles has made one trans-oceanic flight, that from Friedrichsafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, 5,081 miles, in 1925, after her purchase by the United States.

DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL

The wrap-around coat shown here is of navy-blue twill with collar and cuffs of two shades of blue grosgrain.

Last winter there was fairly good reason to make the prediction that the wrap-around coat was passing. And there was even reason to think that the coat that fastened all down the front would soon come into favor. But nowadays it is hard to put any fashion into the discard and emphatically the wrap-around coat that has to be held together seems to be one of the things that well-dressed women refuse to discard.

It may be inconvenient. There are undoubtedly disadvantages about it. But it has the decided advantage of gracefulness.

At any rate, it is still with us and many of the light coats now being made for summer are of this sort. Some of the new summer coats—made to go with light-weight summer frocks—are made to hang straight down from the shoulders without attempting to meet at all in the front. But most women seem to prefer the coat with a surplice closing that may be draped across the body. They undoubtedly contribute to the effect of slenderness which is still one of the objectives of fashion.

It is worth noting, however, that sport coats, motor coats and steamer coats usually have a more convenient closing. It is absurd to try to drive a car with a coat that must be held together to keep it from falling open at the front. When you walk around the deck of the ocean liner or tramp through the country you want a coat that leaves your arms and hands free. The wrap-around coat would then be as inappropriate as the huddled gait that such a coat seems to demand.

The cost of artificial flowers to wear on wraps, suits and frocks is one that must be reckoned with in the well-dressed woman's dress budget. To be sure, there are some lovely little boutonnieres that may be had for an amusingly low price. A little bunch of violets to be worn as the bouttonniere of a two-piece suit may cost only ten cents—and still pass muster. One very well-dressed woman boasts of the fact that she has quite a collection of these little ten-cent posies, which she wears with perfect satisfaction. But for the evening frock or elaborate afternoon frock these floral decorations come high. You must not be amazed to see nine or ten or fifteen dollars marked on the price tag of a drooping rose or chrysanthemum that takes your eye at the artificial flower counter.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS

SAINT and SINNER
By ANNE AUSTIN

At the breakfast table thenext morning Faith found it hard to believe that Cherry had suffered such a severe attack of hysterics the night before that she had required the services of a doctor. For Cherry was as gay and lovely and dewy-fresh as if she had slept an uninterrupted nine hours.

Faith, passing from kitchen to dining room on constant errands connected with cooking and serving the breakfast, had the desolate feeling that she had slipped back into her role of family drudge, that Cherry had again taken her place as star in the drama which she always made of life.

"Some more toast, darling," Cherry asked sweetly, as Faith had taken her seat for a moment between pilgrimages to the kitchen. "And I'd like a little hot water for my tea. The doctor is mean not to let me have coffee."

Faith started to rise obediently, but Bob stretched out a hand to detain her. "Sit where you are, Faith, and eat your breakfast. I'm not going to have you waiting on us like a servant. I'll get the fresh toast and the hot water."

When he had passed through the swinging door into the beautiful blue and white kitchen, Faith bowed her head on a trembling hand, her eyes closing over threatening tears.

"Why don't you wait on yourself, I'd like to know?" Joy demanded shrilly of Cherry. "You ain't sick. I think you're just mean to Faith, ordering her about all the time."

"Oh, I'll wait on myself!" Cherry flamed, rising from the table so abruptly that her chair fell over. "But I didn't know I was supposed to be a servant—oh, Faith, I'm sorry! Don't cry, darling! Forgive me! I'm just a selfish little beast! You mustn't let me be mean to you, Faith!"

"Here's your toast, Cherry," Bob said brusquely, having come into the room unheard by the sisters. "And today I'm going to arrange for a maid to take most of this sort of thing off your hands, Faith. My wife isn't going to be a family drudge."

Jim Lane, who had come shuffling into the dining room, unshaven and in carpet slippers, stopped before he reached his chair, surveyed the flushed and embarrassed group around the breakfast table, and then padded drearily into the kitchen. Faith, stung to fresh tears by the thought of what he must be feeling, followed him hurriedly, after one long, reproachful glance at Bob. She found her father fumbling in the kitchen cupboard for cup and saucer, his hands trembling so that the dishes rattled.

"I'll wait on myself," he insisted stubbornly, and after a bit Faith had to leave him, crouching over a stool beside the little white enameled kitchen table, the coffee pot and two pieces of toast before him.

She found Cherry chattering brightly, her voice lilting with excitement and approval.

"I think the matter is settled, Cherry," Faith interrupted crisply. "You'll send someone from the agency today, dear?" she added to Bob, bending over him to remove an imaginary thread from his coat with an air of wifely possessiveness. And there was healing for her sore heart in Bob's instant response, the way he drew her quickly to his side, his arm clasping her waist.

Faith Hathaway had not quite realized that she was Faith Hathaway and not Faith Lane, the negligible older sister of the famous beauty, Cherry Lane, until the first candidate for the position of general maid in her new home appeared at the door and demanded to see "Mrs. Hathaway."

Her heart swelled with a sudden, sharp joy as she replied quietly, "I am Mrs. Hathaway."

"Pretty young, ain't you?" the middle-aged woman who had announced herself as Mrs. Kate Lundy retorted disapprovingly. "If there's anything I hate it's doing for newly-weds. Mushing all over the place, or her always bawling around because he didn't kiss her good-bye like he used to before they were married. How many in the family?" she asked, in hasty suspicion, as Cherry's voice, raised in carefree song, came from a bedroom.

"Five," Faith answered, her heart sinking to the pit of her stomach. "My father and two sisters, my husband and I. But if you prefer not to work for newly married couples—"

"Hold on, child," Mrs. Lundy commanded, like a mother addressing an impudent child. "You look like a sensible young piece to me. Now let's see the house. New, I take it. All modern conveniences? Got a vacuum cleaner?"

"Yes," Faith smiled.

Faith conducted the candidate willingly on a tour of the house, her naive vanity in her new possessions fed by the evident approval of the strong-minded, strong-bodied servant.

She showed her kitchen after the dining room had passed muster in Mrs. Lundy's sharp eyes.

"Mm!" Mrs. Lundy planted her big red hands on her hips and surveyed the room that was the pride of Faith's heart. "Electric refrigerator! Don't they make the very devil of a noise when they start up? But handy, I'll say that for 'em! Big gas range, too. Built-in ironing board—say, am I expected to do any washing and ironing? That will be extra, and I don't figger to have time for much besides housework and cooking."

"The bulk of the wash will go to the laundry," Faith assured her. "And my sister and I will manage the rest—underwear and things like that. There's a really wonderful little laundry in the basement," she added proudly.

"Who tidied up this kitchen this morning?" Mrs. Lundy demanded, running an inquiring finger over the enameled top of the gas range.

"I did," Faith flushed. "Why?"

"As slick a job as I ever seen, that's all. Guess I'll have to step some to keep up with you, Missus Hathaway. Not a speck of dust in your whole house, far as I can see. Thursday afternoon and Sunday afternoon off?" she demanded succinctly.

"Yes," Faith conceded. "That is, Sunday afternoon from two o'clock on. The hours otherwise will be seven-thirty to six-thirty, with your time free from luncheon until time to prepare dinner. Luncheon will be a simple matter, usually for myself and Mrs. Wiley only. My other sister goes to school and will take her lunch. She's only ten, and her name is Joy," she added.

"I hope she lives up to her name," Mrs. Lundy had begun grimly when Cherry poked her bright head through the swinging door.

"Well, land alive! If it ain't the girl that was in all the trouble over poor Mr. Cluny!" Kate ejaculated. "Come in here and let me get a good look at you. I tried to hear some of your trial, but I couldn't get within a mile of the courthouse, hardly."

Cherry's face flamed with sudden color, but Faith noticed that she preened herself a bit as she entered the kitchen. She was again a heroine—

Uncle Wiggily
By Howard R. Garis

To-day's Bedtime Story.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S RUSH LIGHTS

One night in the hollow stump bungalow, when Uncle Wiggily was reading the bedtime story for Baby Bunty and the other little rabbit children were studying their lessons, all of a sudden the lights went out. No one knew where they had gone, for everything was dark and there was no way of telling. But Mrs. Longears cried:

"Well, I like that!"

"I can't say I do!" chuckled her husband. "It was so sudden!"

"I guess your wife was speaking sarcastically," whispered Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, which was the truth.

"I won't have to go to school tomorrow if I can't study my jeegogaffy lesson!" said Tooter.

"And I can't do my nithmarick, either," said Jingle.

"Daddy will soon make the lights come back," spoke the lady rabbit.

"I don't know whether I can or not," said Mr. Longears, doubtfully. "Maybe a fuse has blown out or maybe the power is off."

First the rabbit gentleman groped his day down cellar to look at the fuses as well as he could by one match he found. And when the fuses seemed to be intact, which means not burned out, he said:

"There must be trouble at the power house. I'll hop down to the brook and take a look."

In Woodland where the rabbits lived some electric eels had lately been put in the brook to make the current for lighting the bungalows and hollow stump homes. But when Mr. Longears made his way to the waterside by the light of the moon not an eel was to be found.

"No wonder our lights went out when the electric eels all quit work!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "What's the idea!"

"They have all gone to a party!" croaked Bully NoTail, the frog boy. "We haven't any lights in our lilypad house, except a few lightning bugs that we saved after we put in electricity."

"I wish I had done that," murmured Mr. Longears, scratching his pink nose as he tried to think how he could get lights in his bungalow so the little bunnies could study and he could finish the bedtime story. "I'll go see if I can find a few fireflies."

But when so many of the animal creatures in Woodland hired the electric eels to light their homes, the fireflies all flew away to a more old-fashioned town, so none could now be found to show their lights in the rabbit's bungalow.

All was still in darkness as Uncle Wiggily prepared to hop back home, and it made him sad to think how disappointed every one would be that he couldn't get the electricity turned on. But the electric eels were still at the party and there was no telling when they would swim back to make a current.

"Dear me!" murmured Mr. Longears. "In some ways the old times were best. When we had candles they never went away to a party, and when we changed to lightning bugs they were always there when we wanted them. But with the new fashioned electric eels we'll never know when we are going to have a light."

"Do you like old fashioned things?" asked a quavering voice down in the grass near the brook.

"I'd like a few old fashioned candles," said the rabbit.

"Well, I haven't any candles," went on the voice, "but I can tell you how to make rush lights which were used before candles were invented. How about that?"

"I have heard my grandmother tell about rush lights, Mrs. Hop," said the bunny, for it was the old toad lady who had spoken. "But I don't know how to make them."

"You just gather some dried rushes from the brook," said Mrs. Hop. She pointed to them in the moonlight. Rushes were like long stems of grass. "Dip the rushes in some melted tallow," she went on, "and when they become hard they will be like little candles. The rush will be like the wick of a candle."

So Uncle Wiggily gathered a paw full of rushes and, going back to his bungalow, he had Nurse Jane melt some tallow on the stove. Then when the rushes were dipped in the melted grease and allowed to cool, they made little candles, or rush lights. And by the glow of the rush lights, Mr. Longears finished reading the bedtime story, the little bunnies studied their books and when it was time to go to bed the electric eels had started work again and the regular lights came on.

JUDGE HUYCKE ASKS COUNCIL

Peterborough county's insurance expired on June 18. Reeve Smithson moved, seconded by Reeve Lillico, that the policy with the Globe Indemnity Company be renewed.

Trent Waterways Association.

Mr. Walter M. Fowlds, president of the Trent Waterways Development Association, requested the Council to make a grant for the promotion of the Association's work. He was accompanied by Mr. F. D. Kerr, honorary president, and Mr. Frank Stinson, secretary. Mr. Kerr introduced Mr. Fowls, mentioning that he had been a Warden of Northumberland and Durham Counties.

Mr. Fowlds said the Trent Waterways district had no equal on the American continent as a summer resort. "You are all getting the benefit, directly or indirectly, from the publicity work of our association. You may say the towns and villages make contributions. That is true. They help individually in a small way, and the total of the grants enables us to carry on our work. The City of Peterborough and its Chamber of Commerce have been very good to us. I believe that, if they had not come to our assistance as they did on numerous occasions, we would have fallen by the way."

Mr. Fowlds gratefully mentioned the financial aid Northumberland and Durham had given this year, although only a few of their municipalities were located along Trent waters. He sketched the details of the Association's effort in its booklets, motion pictures, and correspondence. Last winter Mr. Stinson attended the New York automobile and motor boat shows, where more than 200,000 persons had seen the Trent films which the Ontario Government's staff had produced.

Mr. Kerr and Mr. Stinson supplemented Mr. Fowlds' plea, which was passed on to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Stinson stated that direct revenue results could be traced in this district to the tourist influx. For example, at Bobcaygeon last year, $90,000 had passed through the banks, and at Lakefield $60,000 in 1925.

"There is no doubt," said Mr. Kerr, "that the association has performed a very useful work, and we appreciate the co-operation and assistance we have received."

That notices and accounts relating to indigents and their maintenance be forwarded to the clerk of the local municipality in which the indigent patient resides and that a duplicate copy be sent to the county treasurer, is the suggestion of a resolution from the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham requesting Peterborough County's co-operation in memorializing the Provincial Government.

GOLDEN JUBILEE OF FRASERVILLE UNITED CHURCH

Special Re-union Gathering Continued on Monday, June 20th.

MANY ATTEND.

Mrs. Fred Clarke Presented With Bible as Souvenir For Occasion.

The Golden Jubilee of the Fraserville United Church was continued on Monday, June 20, the special re-union gathering being announced for 4 o'clock in the afternoon when reminiscences were exchanged, and the social side of the event was particularly featured.

There were a large number of "old boys and girls" home for the occasion, and a steady stream of arrivals from neighboring towns and cities, and from practically the entire district, soon left parking space at a premium both along the highway in the immediate vicinity, and in the church yard as well.

The long tables were filled again and again for the supper, with a most satisfying menu, which the ladies of the congregation provided preceding the mass meeting in the church which began about 8.30 p.m., the capacity of the building being taxed for the accommodation of the audience.

The programme was appropriately opened with conrreational singing of "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," after which Rev. D. N. McCamus of London led in prayer, and the Jubilee Choir, composed of present members and those of former days who were home for the anniversary, rendered the anthem "Jerusalem My Home."

Presented With Bible

A pleasing feature at this juncture was the presentation to Mrs. Fred Clarke of a morocco-bound Bible as a souvenir of the Golden Jubilee, and in grateful recognition of her faithful services as a member of the choir for over thirty years—the longest record of anyone now residing in the vicinity. The pastor, Rev. H. W. Foley, made an informal address and offered the gift, the fact that Mrs. Clarke is still assisting in the worship of song being happily noted. Mr. George Berry, the only surviving member of the choir which sang at the dedication services was in the audience, his presence being referred to by the pastor in pleasing manner. Mr. Berry, it had been hoped, would have been able to speak briefly but his advanced age and the heat of the building made it impossible for the request to be complied with.

A host of letters had been received in the reply to the more than 220 invitations sent out for the Jubilee, from former residents from all over the continent, and Mr. Foley read brief messages from a number of these, in cases where the writers were not able to be present.

Assisting with the musical part of the programme were Professor Edgar Finlay of Kansas City, Miss., who was home for the anniversary, and who sang two solos, with encores, Mrs. Finlay playing her husband's accompaniments; and Mrs. Marie McBain of Palmerston, a granddaughter of the late Samuel Might, to whose help with the choir on former days reference was repeatedly made during the evening. Mr. Might's daughter, Mrs. James Hutchison, played her niece's accompaniment.

"The Story of the Years," covering the history of Methodism practically from its beginnings in the Townships of Cavan and South Monaghan, and particularly the fifty years since the present brick church at Fraserville was erected,, was read by the pastor, and proved full of interest and inspiration.

Pastors Present

Of the sixteen pastors who have served the church during the half century, six were present for the Golden Jubilee—Rev. Dr. Manning of Toronto; Rev. Francis Johnston of Lindsay; Rev. D. N. McCamus of London; Rev. Benjamin Greatrix of Peterborough; Rev. R. M. Paterson of Janetville; and the present incumbent, Rev. H. W. Foley.

A frame church, located on the Might farm where the gravel pit now is, was in use before the brick church was built, the late William Pendrie of Millbrooke, being the contractor, and the late Rev. William Buchanan, who passed away in his 81st year about one year ago, and who was actively connected with the ministry for forty-five years, being the pastor when the funds were collected and the building put up. Mr. Buchanan left the circuit before the dedication was held, in February, 1877, the Rev. N. R. Willoughby, chairman of the Peterborough district, presiding, and Rev. Coverdale Watson preaching the sermons. Rev. Henry McDowell was the pastor.

Greetings from Rev. Mr. Buchanan's eldest son, the Honorable William Buchanan of Lethbridge, Alberta, were read among the messages from "old boys" who sent warmest congratulations for the Jubilee occasion, but regretted being unable to attend the happy event. Senator Buchanan was born during his father's pastorate on the circuit.

Antedating the present wide, paved Provincial Highway was a corduroy road through what was known as the Long Swamp, in which it was said a pack peddler, who sold jewelry, had once been murdered, hence the legend, long prevalent, that his ghost haunted the wooded flats, and many folk were actually afraid to drive through the place after dark.

The building of the church followed the growth of the settlement, which in turn was the result of the building of the railroad; where the latter crossed the roadway a "stop" was made, later to become the present station, and the little village gradually grew. It was named after Mr. Fraser, a prominent citizen of Port Hope, who owned considerable land in the vicinity. An interesting bit of history in this connection is the fact that "Bloomfield," the original name for Bailieboro was changed because of a place with similar name in Prince Edward County; the father of the late Samuel Eakins of Millbrook, who had a business in the village, called it Bailieboro, after the home town from which he had come in Ireland.

Short addresses were given by the ministers formerly on the circuit at Monday night's gathering, all of whom expressed felicitations upon the happy occasion, stressing especially the thought "the best is yet to be." Two wives of ex-pastors, who were present, Mrs. (Rev.) William Leigh of Wolfe Island, and Mrs. (Rev.) Wickett of Oshawa (Mr. Wickett is now deceased), with Mr. Barton, formerly a teacher in "Cairo" (Fraserville) School, and the pastor, who is also an ex-teacher of the same school, added their words of appreciation and optimism. Rev. Mr. Foley was especially grateful for the fact that, while teaching in the neighborhood, he had been led to decision for the ministry, and began active work.

The singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," prayer by Rev. Dr. Manning, followed by the Benediction pronounced by Rev. D. N. McCams, brought a very successful Jubilee occasion to a fitting close.

The pastor announced that $180.00 had been taken in at the supper and $80.00 placed upon the offering plates on Sunday.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFE TIME.

His Excellency The Governor-General during his visit to Peterborough especially stressed the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation and urged all citizens to participate.

For the first time since the vision and wisdom of our statesmen of sixty years ago brought the provinces together and laid the foundation for the present prosperous Dominion. Canadians are called to join in a nation-wide demonstration to honor the anniversary of Confederation and to testify to our gratitude of the progress that has been made.

Everywhere next week the people of Canada will celebrate this historic occasion and Peterborough must see to it that the local demonstration falls behind none in extent, enthusiasm and loyalty.

The co-operation of the whole community is essential.

Let every house be decorated.

Let every family resolve for this one holiday to remain in the home city and help in the celebration.

It is the one great opportunity of a life time to show our pride and faith in Canada.

Let us make it a memorable anniversary.

COURTESY IN FLAGS.

A complaint is made to The Examiner in regard to an automobile bearing United States markers and displaying an American flag, without the Union Jack, seen here last night.

It is through thoughtlessness of this kind on the part of a few, when guests on both sides of the line, that causes flag incidents, and there is no doubt but that the visitor, as soon as he realizes the situation himself or his attention has been drawn to it, will provide the remedy.

We are glad to welcome our cousins from the South, delighted to have them come and enjoy with us the wonderful heritage of lakes and rivers that is Ontario's, and anxious to do all that we can to be hospitable and courteous and friendly and to make their visit enjoyable.

There is no particular reason why Americans visiting Canada or Canadians visiting the United States should desire to fly their national flags; but if they feel that they must do so, by all means let them also fly the flag of the country they are visiting.

There is no objection to United States visitors displaying the Stars and Stripes in company with the Union Jack, or Canadian visitors in the States flying a Union Jack with the Stars and Stripes, but when this lack of courtesy is observed in either country those responsible should be very active in reversing conditions as soon as their attention is drawn to the situation.

AN OPENING WITHOUT A LINE UP.

Mr. Hanna's hope that the citizens of Ontario would receive the advent of Govenment control in a sensible manner was fully realized in the opening of the Peterborough liquor store yesterday.

To the credit of the common sense and moderation of the people of this city and district, may it be said that the commencement of Government sale was marked by no unseemly happenings.

There was a brisk sale throughout the day, but at no time were there signs of a line up or of a mad rush to take advantage of the local opening.

Fully half of the customers were from outside points and the vanguard of American tourists contributed toward the day's receipts.

The services of the police were not needed to control the crowd, there were never more patrons at any one time than could be accomodated within the store, and altogether the Governmnet sale of liquor was launched here in a decorous and orderly manner.

Evidently the people of this section of Ontario believe that the restoration of the privilege of buying liquor is to be accepted in a moderate way and is not to be abused.

Certainly the first day's operations occasioned no disturbance and upon that condition of affairs the public is to be congratulated.

THE FIRST CUSTOMERS.

The expectation evidently held by some citizens of Peterborough that The Examiner would feature the opening of the local liquor store by publishing the names and photographs of the first customers, was unnecessary.

The Examiner does not believe in that sort of publicity.

The sale of liquor by the Ontario Government was authorized by the votes of a majority of the electors in this Province, and legalized by the people's representatives in the Ontario Legislature.

It is therefore quite as legal for a citizen of adult age to purchase liquor according to the provisions of the Act as it is for him to purchase a pair of shoes, and similarly it would be just as logical for a newspaper to publish the names and photographs of the first customers of a new shoe store as it would to give such publicity to the first patrons of a liquor store.

So long as the law permits the purchase of liquor The Examiner believe that it is an infringement upon personal liberty for a newspaper to single out customers for undue publicity.

The people of Ontario asked for the privilege of purchasing liquor from Government stores; that privilege is now their's, and so long as they conform to the regulations it is nobody's business when they buy or what they buy.

At least that is The Examiner's view of the matter.

PLAYING SAFE.

A few days ago The Globe published a letter from the General Manager of the Toronto, Hamilton & Buffalo Railway Company dealing with the frequent accidents at level crossings that have been distressing the public during the past two weeks. It was pointed out in this letter that responsibility for such accidents invariably falls on the motorist. A similar conviction is expressed by Mr. F. M. Rutter, Division Superintendent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at London, Ontario. Mr. Rutter places the onus for all accidents upon the shoulders of the motorist, as the railway companies, he states, have done everything that lies in their power to prevent accidents.

Despite all precautions that are taken by railway companies to guard against accidents at level crossings, the annual toll of fatalities at these places is steadily mounting. The increasing number of such tragedies can be attributed only to a growing carelessness by motorists when approaching the railway tracks, and this constitutes the most serious aspect of the problem. It is obvious that the railway companies can do little more than has already been done to safeguard human lives in this respect, short of having every train stop at a crossing, which is manifestly impossible.

The remedy for this whole deplorable menace rests with those driving automobiles on the highways of the Province. The Legislature, of course, might enact a law to compel motorists to come to a stop at every crossing, but, as was pointed out in The Globe a short time ago, such measure could be enforced only in close proximity to the larger towns and cities. Remote from the chief centres of population, the careless motorist would hardly be likely to give heed to a regulation where the force of the law was not in evidence to implement it. This does not mean that such a law may not have to be enacted if the crossing tragedies do not speedily show a decided decrease. But in the final analysis it is the motorist, and no other, upon whom the entire responsibility devolves when accidents occur and human lives are lost. The sensible driver will realize this, and take no chances at the level crossing, no matter where it may be, but will come to a dead stop before he reaches it. In other words, he will play safe. —Toronto Globe.

WHAT CANADIANS READ.

The Dean of Windsor, who recently toured Canada, and who, for a visitor, enjoyed usual opportunities for mingling with the Canadian people and learning their thoughts and feelings, has given an outline of some of his impressions in The Star, of London, England. Among other things he tells of what Canadians read. When he looked through the bookstores and bookstalls he was struck with the overwhelming predominance of literature published in the United States and placed on sale in Canada. At the same time he found that English magazines were almost unknown, and that English books were represented in a secondary degree, and largely through American editions. He also states that English books which cost 5s 6d in Australia, New Zealand or South Africa, cost two dollars in Canada. After a closer study of the situation, he came to the conclusion that Canada was steeped in American literature.

One observation, which ought to please Canadians, is his testimony to their individuality and independence of thought. He says:

"The more I travelled in Canada the more I was struck with the strength of its individuality. Both on this occasion and on my previous visit, I had been impressed with the enormous difference between the mentality of Canada and that of the States. I have had, for an Englishmen, unusual opportunities of studying the mentality of the States and now that I have had some chance of studying that of Canada, I feel the difference more acutely. The most striking quality of the Canadian, as it seems to me, is independence of thought. The remarkable school of painting which has sprung up in Canada, so original and full of vitality, is an evidence of this. The rapidity with which the new universities are passing from the stage of being mere schools of teaching to that of becoming important centres for research is another evidence. And in the many opportunities I had of hearing discussion and talk, sometimes for many hours, among young men of different kinds in different part of the Dominion, this same peculiarity was brought out clearly. There was no place for second-hand thought in these discussions. The young men all expressed their own thoughts clearly and simply."

He utters a note of warning, however, against the danger of becoming dominated by the flood of American literature, and expresses the opinion that, unless this influence is counteracted by the generous diffusion of English literature, the originality may be lost:

"To me everything that can foster Canadian individuality is of the utmost importance. With the vigorous character of its population and the immense natural resources of the country, Canada must become rich and populous, but it will only be a great nation if it retains and develops its own individuality. If it tends to become a mere reflection of the States it will have no individual message for the world, and yet I believe that it should, for many reasons, become one of the most important factors in the life of the world, if it develops on its own lines."

Thoughtful Canadians have deplored this tendency, and already a strong movement is under way to foster a robust type of Canadianism and Canadian literature. It is well to lay to heart the wise words of the Dean of Windsor before it is too late.—Brantford Expositor.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

"Now it can be sold" in Peterborough.

The opening of Peterborough's liquor store offered nothing for the movie men. The line up failed to materialize.

Yesterday may have been the longest day in the year but a customer of Mr. Hanna's Peterborough branch declared that the day before felt like it.

Boost the Diamond Jubilee celebration. Peterborough must be second to none in its observance of the historic occasion.

It was remarkable the number of out-of-town citizens who found it necessary to come to Peterborough yesterday on business.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 22. — The cattle trade remained slow at the Union Stock Yards yesterday, with receipts of 693 head and left overs totalling 1,200. Prices were 25 cents a hundred lower on good steers and 50c lower on plain steers, cows, and bulls.

While this is true the quality is not as good as on Monday. Any animals showing equal quality with Monday sold at Monday's prices.

Choice butcher steers brought $9.00 to $9.25 with common downward to $7.00. Good cows brought $6.25 to $6.75, with a few at $7.00. Heavy fat bulls are almost unsaleable. Baby beeves were numerous but many lacked finish. A few fancy sold up to 11c, with the bulk selling at from 8c to 10c.

Choice springers met with fairly good trading at $90 to $115. Good at around $70 to $85. Medium springers and milkers are not really wanted. The bulk of the springers are going to Buffalo and Quebec. The local dairymen are well supplied for the present.

Calf prices remain steady at $10.00 to $11.50 for most choice, with a few at $12.00.

Common calves sold from $6.00 to $8.00 a hundred.

The lamb market was slightly stronger, being up a quarter at $16.25 to $16.50 for choice. Good light sheep brought $6.00 to $7.00 a hundred. Choice yearlings from 8c to 11c.

With hog receipts at 760 head, the packers were bidding 25 cents lower at $8.75 off car for selects or at $8.85 f.o.b. for selects.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., June 22 (Canadian Press). — Dullness was the chief characteristic of the export grain trade here yesterday, there being little or no demand from outside sources.

In sympathy with the renewed strength in the future market for corn at Chicago prices for the cash article on spot were marked up one cent per bushel. Car lots of American sample corn were quoted at $1.06½, and Argentine corn at $1.05½ per bushel. Canadian Western oats ruled steady.

Prices for all grades of spring wheat flour were well maintained, but the volume of business was small.

Business in winter wheat flour was rather more active than it has been of late, and the undertone was firm.

A fair amount of trade was done in all lines of millfeed, and values were steady. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was good and prices were unchanged.

The egg market was moderately active and firm. The receipts were 4,348 cases.

The undertone to the market for old crop potatoes continued easy yesterday, and another downward revision is expected in the near future. Car lots of Quebec white B trade were quoted at $2.00 to $2.15 per bag, and Reds at $1.70 to $1.80 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The spot butter market was without any new feature to note, prices being steady under a very limited demand. The receipts were 2,063 packages.

The cheese trade turned quiet and values were inclined to be heavy. The receipts were 16,133 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 22 (Canadian Press). — Notwithstanding unsettlement in grain markets yesterday resulting from passage of the Kessinger Bill to third reading at Springfield, corn and wheat finished higher. To a considerable extent price advances, especially in corn, were associated with unofficial predictions of a frost period starting on June 28th and another on July 7th, with freezing temperatures as far south as the Potomac.

Corn closed nervous, ⅞c to 1⅜c net higher; wheat ⅛c to ¾c up; oats at ⅛c decline to ¼c gain, and provisions a shade to 15c down.

Provisions were neglected, and had a downward slant notwithstanding that hog values were higher.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Women's Institute of Warsaw Make Presentation To Mrs. David Miller.

WARSAW, June 22.—On Thursday evening last a number of the members of the Warsaw Women's Institute, their husbands and a few young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Miller. The people kept arriving and Mrs. Miller couldn't understand the meaning of so many car loads coming to their home on such a rainy evening. But although completely surprised she made every one welcome. Miss Elsie Cooper's piano selection helped in the programme and an address was read by Mrs. G. G. Taylor and Mrs. W. H. Clements presented a furnery to Mrs. Miller. The address read was:

Dear Mrs. Miller:

We, the members of the Warsaw Women's Institute, have gathered here tonight for the purpose of showing in some small way the appreciation of your services in the society for so many years. You have always been so willing to give your help in everything for the good of the country and community. Your sterling qualities have made you very dear to us and we ask you to accept this furnery, as a token of our love and appreciation of your services and hope as the time goes on you will enjoy health and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the Institute: Mrs. G. G. Taylor, Mrs. W. H. Clements.

Mrs. Miller replied by saying that she was so taken by surprise she hardly knew what to say. The Institute members were very kind to her; as for the gift she was very thankful and it was something she had thought of lately and would like to have. As for the Institute it was such a broad work and anything that was good for the community she was pleased to be able to help with. After Mrs. Miller's reply all joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" Several choruses were rendered. Two selections on the mouth organ, by Kenenth Maurasiam, and a mixed quartette was enjoyed.

Lunch was served and although Mrs. Miller was asked not to help, as the ladies had come to entertain this time, she brought out some of her own cooking, fruit cake, etc. to be served. She said she had intended entertaining the Institute ladies but as her home was being built partly new she was unable to do so until it was finished. Before leaving the party sang "God Save the King." All felt they had a jolly time, and were sorry the rain prevented many from enjoying the suprise party.

A Thought For To-day

PLEASE RESERVE YOUR OPINION UNTIL YOU FINISH THIS ARTICLE

Before you pass an opinion concerning this article, please read it all.

I am disgusted with the hundreds of impolite people that I meet.

I am "sore" on the many men who take themselves too seriously.

I am out of patience with so many people who think they are smart.

I dislike dozens of men who do not seem to like other men or to like me.

I hate hypocrites.

I hold a deep-seated animosity for men who brag about their female conquests.

My hatred, my animosity for men who detest many things is fulsome.

I dislike myself whenever I come under the class of chronic human haters.

How about you?

Weeds—a menace

Neglect is the friend of weeds. Neglect is responsible for the alarming spread of this pest in Ontario. Weeds now take an annual toll of at least five million dollars out of the wealth of the province.

The Department of Agriculture asks for united, active co-operation to exterminate weeds on every farm, highway, lane and waste space in town and country. Destroy weeds wherever found, as often as necessary to prevent their going to seed.

Write for bulletin No. 188, "Weeds of Ontario".

WARNING

Under the provisions of The Weed Control Act 1927, now in force, the destruction of noxious weeds is no longer optional. The destruction of noxious weeds is now compulsory.

Every occupant of land and every owner of unoccupied land is required to destroy all noxious weeds before their seeds ripen. Municipal councils are required to destroy all noxious weeds growing upon the highways. Let everyone co-operate to end the weed nuisance.

"In His Quiet Moments"

A True Story

Always 'the life of the party' everybody admires Ted Carruthers for his breezy good nature and winning personality. He is a real man through and through.

But in his quiet moments—

Poor Ted has his personal problem from which he cannot shake himself free when alone. A recent illness, the price of overwork, left his health impaired. The doctor says it is only a matter of time.

He now has only a few short years in which to provide for Mary and the children. What is he to do? He is not able to get life insurance and cannot save much more than $300.00 a year. In five years this will be but $1,500.00—not nearly enough!

'Tis now he realizes just what it would have meant if he had insured when able, to provide for his wife an income of at least $100.00 a month ($1,200.00 a year) as long as she lived. At his age (35) $6.40 a week with the London Life would have guaranteed it, and worry would not now be further sapping his strength, killing any chance he may have had of recovery.

The future may easily be made safe for loved ones by insurance, and worry removed from those who have dependents.

WARSAW W. I.

Members of Lakefield Junior Institute Attend Meeting at Warsaw.

WARSAW, June 22.—The June meeting of the Warsaw Woman's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Town Hall. Nearly all the members of the Lakefield Junior Institute were present also.

Little business was done, except that Mrs. Miller announced that several people had asked if the Institute could not do something towards enlarging the town hall. Several artisans have offered some free help and others have offered to draw sand or do other work to aid The seating capacity is too small. At most entertainments many stand, often every window is filled, and frequently several just go home. The stage is too small, a kitchen is needed, also dressing rooms. In the last twenty-five years the Institute has paid out rent enough to have half paid for some of the absolutely essential changes.

Mrs. Lowe, the speaker for the afternoon, held the interest of the meeting. She spoke of the large Institute here, of the beginning, of the spread all over the world, and especially did she speak of conservative England taking a leaf from Ontario's book, and now having four thousand. The Scots adopted the Institute too, but not so easily.

We have so much, and we take so much for granted. She spoke of some objecting to be officers, because some would criticize, but no one who repeats the Institute ode can criticize. The Institute is for all absolutely without distinction; it should be one large family. When there is a roll call, every one should be prepared and answer. A good laugh does much good, crying never helps. One should take trouble to do things and trouble makes character. An Institute member should have a clear view, untiring energy, and power to resist wrongs. Members should be a group of women who aid the sick, or troubled, and stand back of all that is good. The busy woman seems to find most time to help. Those who criticize usually do not do much to help. The Institute belongs to every member. The officers only make it so that they can carry on. They need the help of every member.

Institutes should take great interest in the schools. She advised a committee of two ladies to visit each of the nine schools in the Institute area. The children should be taught never to drink after any one. The schools need the help of the Institutes. She advised the use of the travelling library, though the Institute has a library. She spoke of Institutes seeing that the cemeteries are well kept. She asked, "What does the community need that you can give?" Discover that need and supply it. There could be well-visiting as well as sick-visiting.

No one must ever be slack. Slackness weakens character. Being late is one bad form of slackeness, it is lack of self-control.

At the end of life we will not be asked what pleasure and success we had, but what service and sacrifices. There is nothing like brightness, happiness and love. Bad temper is one of the very worst things. A fit of temper poisons the whole system.

In community work of any kind the right way must be found, and that will be the easy one.

She quoted a prayer for good, all-round common sense, copied from a tablet in Winchester cathedral.

During intermission Mrs. Rufus Payne sang "In the Garden of My Heart" and Mrs. Weller announced that arrangements were being made for a coaching class some time near the end of July.

The latter part of Mrs. Lowe's address was principally to the girls. She warned against the habit of jazz music and the qualities of mind it produced. She advised good study and understanding, for the more one knows the less one thinks she knows. Conserve the health. If one has health, one is ready for anything. Worrying is useless, and does not get people anywhere. Whiskey is returned. What is to be done? We cannot sit and wish some one else could or would do something. The young must be taught—taught to respect law, to obey, and to have self-control; disobedient children are going to get whiskey, and it is up to the mothers to teach obedience. Woman has more influence now than formerly. Fifty years ago, all a woman could do to earn a livelihood was to teach school, teach music, or get a man. Now there is absolutely nothing a woman may not do, if she chooses, and is fitted, and country girls have much that the city girls have not. But there must be knowledge, and knowledge will bring wisdom. An educated person has many windows to the soul. Time is an invaluable treasure and we should not waste our time, nor allow anyone else to waste it. No one should be afraid of work. The one who does just what he is paid for, does not get ahead. Success goes to the one who does a little more than is demanded.

Mrs. Lowe urged charity in everything, urged moderation in all things, love of humanity, and that people are put into this world to do all the good they can.

After refreshments and a social half hour, the gathering separated, and each one felt an inspiration to try to make the world somewhat better.

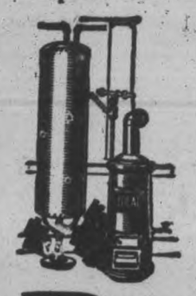
"Expense is Practically Nothing"



MR. JOHN WEAR, 21 SPROAT AVENUE, TORONTO, ONT., writes:

I may say that the Pease Invincible Tank Heater is a dandy. My wife is so pleased with it. She can get the tank boiling in half an hour with a little kindling and a small amount of buckwheat coal. It will turn anything. She does not throw anything away. She can burn anything in this apparatus. We have lots of hot water now, and the expense is practically nothing. We cannot speak too highly of it.

ANNIVERSARY AT WARKWORTH

Walter McCleary Conducts Services at the Presbyterian Church.

WARKWORTH, June 22.—Anniversary services were held in the Presbyterian church on Sunday. Walter McCleary of Keene had charge of both services and both addresses were thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The evening service opened by singing hymn, "I Need Thee Every Hour." Reading, Psalm 23; solo, "Open the Gates of the Temple", by Walter McCleary; reading, Luke, 8th chapter; duet, Mrs. Robert Walker and C. T. Maycock; anthem; hymn, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus". The text was taken from eight chapter of Luke.

When Jesus landed at Capernaum after their sail across the lake, they found a crowd of people on shore waiting for Him and Jairus, a very rich man, asked Him to come to restore his child to life. In the crowd was a poor woman who had been ill for many years. She had tried many doctors but none could help her. She hears that Jesus is passing by and she tried to come to Him but she could not reach Him in the throng of people. As Jesus passed by she reached out her hand and touched the hem of His robe. At that instant she felt in her body that she was cured. Jesus Himself felt her touch and said: "Who touched me? One soul needs Me more than the rest." The crowd parts and the woman goes to Jesus, fearing and trembling over what she had done, but Jesus said: "Go in peace." Jesus passes on to Jairus' home.

The minister stated: You can come in contact with Jesus in a crowd and go away and never feel His influence. We must know Christ as a personal Saviour. Christ says to His disciples: "Come apart and know Me"

Why did Jesus come? The universal cry is "Oh, that I might find Him to go to His mercy-seat. His power lifted the bleeding feet of men and women. He came for sinners. His great work was to teach and to bring life to the souls of men.

The woman was lost in the crowd but not to Jesus Christ; Jesus is a personal Saviour. Christ cares for the individual. He says there is joy in Heaven over one sinner saved. Jesus called her back in order that she might confess before the crowd. The one essential is that we must have a longing to see God.

Closing hymn—"Just as I Am."

JUDGE HUYCKE GIVES ADDRESS

Is Special Speaker at Quarterly Meeting of Humane Society.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Peterborough Humane Society was held in the Chamber of Commerce, Thursday evening, June 16th. The President, Dr. Thomas Johnston, presided. After the minutes were read and usual reports given, the meeting was favored with a very interesting address from Judge Huycke. The Judge, as everyone knows, is an animal lover and at the beginning of his address he stated that he was interested in all humane societies as their object is the prevention of cruelty, which pertains to the benefit of mankind as well as animals. The Judge said the word "humane" means humanity as it ought to be—kind and considerate. Mankind is thoughtlessly cruel—just as the boys who thought it fun to throw stones at the frogs until their teacher told them what meant fun to them meant death to the frogs. Judge Huycke also stated that we are all animals and have very many things in common with the lower animals. We've all cried over the loss of a pet, which is not to be discredited, as it shows humaneness. The best people who have ever lived have been fond of animals. No one knows just what animals know, what their language is, we do not know. Dogs, particularl, have a long memory. We must realize that animals think, suffer and know much more than we think they do. The object of the Humane Society is for the refinement and education of humanity at large. Just before concluding his address, the judge suggested that the educational work of the Society be extended into the schools.

A plan of the animal home to be erected was presented, but was left over to the committee for the necessary consideration.

After the meeting closed the parade committee met for purpose of making final arrangements for July 1st parade.

Inspector Smith's report for the week is as follows:

Attended the unloading of Midway all the unloading was done by trucks.

Seized a very emaciated horse on Donegal Street, which had been driven in five miles from country. This horse is now on pasture.

One cat humanely destroyed.

One stray dog brought in.

Stopped a lame horse on street and called veterinary surgeon to examine same. Horse not curable and not suffering.

Attended the early morning unloading of Sparks Circus. Examined all the horses, saw all animals in and around circus, saw most of animals being fed, and dogs exercised, and reports no abuse or ill-treatment.

GRANDSTAND TO BE ERECTED

Bethany Athletic Association Begins Work on Field.

RAISE FUNDS.

BETHANY, June 22.—At last the Athletic Association of this village see their way clear to erect a grand stand on the Athletic Park. For several nights past a bunch of local fans have gathered to assist with the work and the cement pillars are all in place ready for the heavy timbers which are being used for beams.

A dance is to be given on Tuesday night, June 21, and the proceeds will be used to help meet the expenses of the building.

A grandstand has long been needed, for on previous occasions, anyone wishing to attend a ball game or local sports had one or two choices, either to stand up throughout the entire game or sit on the ground and one must be a great enthusiast indeed to endure the strain of either standing or sitting in such an uncomfortable position.

W.M.S. Meeting.

The Women's Missionary Society of the United church held their June meeting at the home of Mrs. William Lee. Twelve ladies were present. Miss Ada Richardson presided and a very interesting program was given.

Mrs. A H. Monk gave the chapter in the study book new days in Old India entitled "In the Footsteps of the Great Physician."

Mrs. Elmer Rowan gave a paper on "Faith and Its Obstacles" and Mrs. Rev. A. Poulter sang a solo "In Jesus I'm Safe Ever More." Several members reported on the Watch Tower. The president asked that all members have their quilt blocks made and ready to bring to the next meeting to be held in July at the home of Mrs. T. J. Jackson.

Mrs. Lee and her daughter, Miss Verna Belle, served tea, and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Price, Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Monk, Mr. and Mrs. Campbell Darroch and Mrs. S. Arnott were visitors to Peterborough on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. William Lee and daughter, Miss Verna Belle, motored to Peterborough on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. John McKinley has had her front verandah rebuilt and it makes an improvement in the appearance of her residence on Main street.

The teachers of the Public school and the ministers residing in the district are trying to work up a union school confederation program to be given by the scholars of the township sometime around the first of July.

Mrs. George Foster spent a few days this week with her friend, Mrs. Wes. Galloway.

Manvers Crop.

The crops in this district are doing fine regardless of the cool weather. The fall wheat is particularly good, a number of farmers report an excellent crop of hay.

The farmers are well up with their work and as far advanced as they were a year ago.

The potatoes are up and in local gardens doing well. Although the stocks are very dark green in color. This is attributed to the frosts which occur nightly.

Small stuff is progressing slowly and some local gardeners are complaining about the cut worms being bad. Cabbage and tomato plants have been eaten off.

Strawberries promise a good yield. Raspberries bushes look well, so do currant and gooseberry bushes.

Early apples will be scarce but fall and winter apple trees put forth a good showing of bloom. If the frosts haven't damaged them for fruit bearing.

Haw trees are a thing of beauty these days with their delicate bunches of white blossoms.

The maple trees are in full leaf and the village streets look like dark green tunnels and with the white ribbons of roadway make this village very attractive at this season of the year.

Doyle Shutout Tribesmen to Win Second Game 9-0

LEAF HURLER HOLDS TRIBE

Wins Second Game of Series at Rochester By Score 9-0.

HOMER FOR BRATCHI.

NEW YORK, June 22. Canadian Press. — The Toronto Leafs, with Jess Doyle pitching, blanked the Tribe at Rochester yesterday and won the second game of the series by a score of 9 to 0. The feature was a home run drive over the left field fence with two men on bases. The Skeeters managed to break a lengthy losing streak by stopping the Reading Pretzels at Jersey City. The score was 3 to 0. Dick Coffman confined the cellar champions to six well scattered hits in winning his sixth game of the season. It was his fifth shutout performance.

Eddie Dyer, Syracuse southpaw, registered his fifth straight victory yesterday, pitching airtight ball while his mates backed him up with a terrific hitting spree all the way for a 15 to 2 verdict over Buffalo. Dyer had the visitors at his mercy throughout and did not allow a score until, with two down in the ninth, and the count two and two, Brainard hopped a fast ball for a double to score Huber. Carter's single gave the Herd its other run. Peel and Selph knocked homers.

Johnnie Ogden bested Al. Mamaux in a brilliant pitching duel at Newark, the Baltimore club defeating the Bears by the score of 3 to 0. The victory gave the Oriole twirler his eleventh win of the season. Mamaux was touched for three hits in the eighth frame, which, together with a base on balls and a sacrifice, gave the victors their runs.

JOCKEY INJURED AT BLUE BONNETS

O. K. Kinty's, Turner Breaks His Neck in Smash-Up.

MONTREAL, Que., June 22 (Canadian Press).—Dignus, the three-year-old black filly by Meridian, out of Dignity, owned by C. L. Whiting, captured the feature event in the fourth day's racing at the Blue Bonnets track yesterday afternoon. The "Forest and Stream" handicap of six furlongs carried with it a purse of $1,200. The winner was ridden by T. Wilson. Dignus started quickly in the spring and overtook the favorite, Rolls Royce at the half-way mark. The pair raced in company with Powhatan, Accomplish, Worthmore and Patricia J. bunched up in rear. The winner continued with good speed, and withstood a challenge from Rolls Royce, which was kept on all the way up the home stretch. Dignus managed to hold on and crossed the line three-quarters of a length in front of Rolls Royce. Patricia J. was third.

Turns Somersault.

An accident in the third race sent Jockey S. Bulcroft to hospital when his mount, Turner, fell shortly after the break. The horse somersaulted completely and broke its neck. Bulcroft was pinned underneath. His injuries were not serious.

It was another outsiders' day yesterday, honors in prices going to Shep herd of the Hills, which paid $35.50 in the $2 Mutuels. Running in excellent company, which included such racers as Phanariot, Goldbeter, The Vintner, Opperman and Mohamed Jamal, Shepherd of the Hills led practically all the way and just nosed his way home ahead of Phanariot.

HELEN WILLS HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Almost Knocked Out of Women's Singles by Miss G. R. Sterry.

WIMBLEDON, England, June 22. — (Canadian Press).—Miss G. R. Sterry, of England, almost knocked Helen Wills, of California, out of the women's singles in the opening round of that event here yesterday.

Ten thousand spectators were too astounded to applaud the tennis as they observed the great Helen, who ordinarily wins straight love sets, struggling desperately against the magnificent service and heavy driving of her youthful opponent. Miss Wills finally pulled the match out at 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. Miss Sterry gave what was considered a remarkable exhibition of sound and consistent tennis. She uncorked one of the best backhands seen in Europe for some time. Her drives had both speed and length and she aced Miss Wills five times.

The game was played on soggy, heavy courts, under low threatening clouds after a heavy downpour. The spectators who remained in the gathering dusk expecting to see Miss Wills make short work of Miss Sterry broke out into spontaneous cheers when the English girl won the second heat. Miss Wills apparently received a real shock when she encountered the stubborn defence and the aggression of her opponent in this set. She was compelled to fight for every point during the entire match and many games went to deuce.

In the second round of the men's singles both William T. Tilden and Francis T. Hunter maintained invader's prestige. Tilden defeated R. D. Holland, England, in straight sets, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1, while Hunter took the measure of the veteran English player, Lieut.-Col. Algernon Kingscote to the tune of 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Raymond Defeated.

A surprise in the men's coptests was the defeat of Louis Raymond, of South Africa, by George Crole-Rees, England, Raymond being the second seeded player to fall by the wayside.

Lacoste, Cochet, Borotra and Brugnon, all of France, and Kozeluh of Czecholslovakia advanced to the third round safely.

Mrs. Kitty McKane Godfree, Mrs. Beamish and Miss Bennett of England; Miss Hapscott and Miss Heine of South Africa, Miss Bouman of Holland, and Senorita De Alvarez of Spain, favorites in the women's singles, all passed from the first to the second round.

Owing to the derangement of the schedule, caused by the rain, Mrs. Molla Mallory and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, United States, and the school girls, Betty Nuthall and Cecile Aussam, of England and Germany, respectively, did not have an opportunity to appear on the courts.

YANKEES TAKE DOUBLE HEADER

Subdue Red Sox at Boston By Scores of 7-3 and 7-1.

ATHLETICS SPLIT BILL.

NEW YORK, June 22. — Canadian Press. — The Yankees at Boston subdued the Red Sox twice yesterday by scores of 7 to 3 and 7 to 1. Pennock held the Hose to six hits in the initial encounter, while Hoyt gave only five in the second tussle. Gehrig hung up his 18th circuit wallop with two on base in the first inning of the closing game. Babe Ruth connected for two singles in the first contest and got a double in the other struggle, from which he retired after the seventh inning, because of his sore right knee.

A crowd of 25,000 Philadelphians watched the Athletics divide a double header with Washington yesterday by winning the second game, 8 to 2, after dropping the first game by 5-4. The Senators clinched the first game by hitting Romel for three runs in the first inning and assuming a lead that was never overcome. The Mackmen bunched their nine blows on Walter Johnson effectively in the second game, while Rube Walberg held the Griffmen to five hits.

PONTYPOOL WINS TWO BALL GAMES

Defeats Honeydale and Yelverton During Week. Play Errorless Ball.

PONTYPOOL, June 22.—Local fans have been treated to some real baseball during the past week. On Monday evening Honeydale made their initial appearance on the local diamond. It turned out to be a slugging bee; the local team being winners 12 to 9 runs. Walker, a southpaw, and Bann, formerly of Peterborough, were the batter for the home team. The features of this game were the heavy hitting of Bann and a running catch by Taylor in right field.

On Friday evening Yelverton played their return league game on the local diamond and were confident to repeat the victory they had in the previous game. But such was not to be the case, as Pontypool team played errorless ball and stood behind the splendid pitching of Clarke, who had nine strike-outs, making a total of 23 strike-outs in 13 innings in the two games. The games was won in the last half of the first inning. Payne, first man up, drove one to the bushes and by quick fielding was held to a two-base hit. Mitchell sacrificed and Payne scored when Capstick threw it over the third baseman's head. Clark, next up, drove one to the pond for a home run, which made enough runs to win the game. Wilson, pitching for Yelverton, was not as strong as usual and a couple of errors resulted in a couple of runs later in the game. Kerr and McGill also had a try out in the final innings. ARMY DEFEAT SEVEN OAKS

"Scotty" Mongraw Features in Work Behind Bat For Tail Enders.

GOOD FIELDING.

The 4th Battery shoved over a win on the Seven Oaks by beating them 9 to 5 at Central Park last night. It was only a fair exhibition of ball, both teams contributing some bad errors and indifferent playing.

Anthony twirled for 4th Battery and LeBarr for Seven Oaks. Both heavers turned in a fair exhibition of pitching.

"Scotty" Mongraw was the fielding star of the game. He caught a beautiful game, snaring foul flies and holding LeBarr up in great style. He shone particularly in picking foul flies of the boards, grabbing at least four that seemed almost impossible to handle. Mongraw also helped his team along by scoring three runs when he hit a tremendous triple to centre, in the sixth inning. Cheu also turned in a nice game at first, and collected a three bagger. His hit went to waste for he died on third, when the next three batters were retired.

French and Legros turned in good fielding games for the Battery while all the team hit well.

The line ups follow:

Seven Oaks—Mongraw, c.; Corkery, 3b; Board, ss; Cheu, 1b; Ted LeBarr, p; McDonough, 2b; Burnett, rf; LeBarr, cf; Dwyer, lf.

Umpires—Jackson and Scates.

SINGLE IN 10TH FOR 7 TO 6 WIN

Scored Allen For Run To Reds Victory Over the Pirates.

GIANTS LOSE OUT.

NEW YORK, June 22 (Canadian Press). — Critz single in the tenth inning scored Allen with the run that gave Cincinnati a 7 to 6 victory at Pittsburgh yesterday. Joe Dawson, making his first start for the Pirates, was batted hard. Pittsburgh drove Luque from the box in the ninth with a four-run rally that tied the score. Morrison relieved Dawson in the tenth and the winning run was made off him. Wright hit a homer with one on in the seventh.

After one home run by Frank Hogan, Boston heavyweight catcher, helped the Braves tie the score in the ninth. Hogan banged another for the circuit on his next appearance in the tenth with one on base, giving Boston the decision at New York, 7 to 5.

The game was a nip and tuck affair, full of arguments, with both managers employing three pitchers. Mueller and Roush, of the Giants, also hit home runs.

Hogan and Mueller exchanged a few punches in the eighth when Mueller was caught off third, and they were promptly separated.

The Robins easily defeated the Phillies yesterday in the first game of the series at Brooklyn by 7 to 3, Dazzy Vance yielding only five hits and fanning nine batters. Cy Williams 'twelfth homer of the season came in the fourth inning, and was one of two hits made off Vance up to the ninth. The Robins collected nine safeties off the combined efforts of Pruett and Decatur.

The Cardinals pushed Chicago out of second place at St. Louis yesterday by taking a double bill from the Cubs, 6 to 5 and 12 to 3. The Cardinals' victory reduced the lead of Pittsburgh, league leaders, to two and a half games. Tommy Thevenow, St. Louis shortstop, and star of the 1926 world series, suffered a fractured ankle when he slid into second in the fourth inning of the second game, and probably will be out of the game for the remainder of the season. Hack Wilson, centre filder, and Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, were put off the field in the second inning of the second game when Wilson argued because he was called out on strikes and McCarthy took his part.

BACTERIA MULTIPLY BY DIVIDING

The various forms of bacteria are all of a vegetable origin and can only reproduce themselves by division. There is no male or female, as you may have supposed, and they have no more power to fly from one place to another than a potato.

Bacteria are found in three chief forms—round, rod shaped and spirally rod shaped. It is impossible for the naked eye to see bacteria. They are so small that the finest needle compared with a bacterium would look like the width of a man's thumb beside a speck of dust.

Bacteria is almost omnipresent in every micro-organism, and a single active specimen left undisturbed will divide again and again, so that within twenty-four hours millions of bacteria are produced.

All of the mucous membranes of the body are literally swarming with various forms of bacteria, some of which are vitally necessary to life. The only reason that the bad bacteria develop is because suitable soil is furnished for their development. A body in perfect health will not permit the growth of any putrefactive bacteria.

Certain of these microscopic forms of vegetable life, however, assist in the digestion of food and are also used in a chemical way to produce butter and cheese. Lactic acid bacteria are used by dairymen to ripen cream so that it is ready for churning. About one-thousand million of the lactic acid bacteria are allowed to every square inch of cream.

Bacteria may be dangerous to life, if allowed to develop in food substance. The bacillus botulinus is the one which produces such a fatal poisoning when it is allowed to grow on string beans, which have been improperly canned.

All kinds of food should be kept clean and the temperature controlled by refrigeration until it is ready for use. If your body is kept clean on the inside as well as the outside, you do not have to be afraid of any bad bacteria developing any more than a potato can grow on a concrete pavement.

BETHANY LOSES TO RAYBESTOS

Maudsley Goes Well, Giving the "Rays" a 7 to 1 Verdict.

HITTING IS LIGHT.

Bethany started Jackson, who had worked in an exhibition game on Monday, and the big fellow failed to hold Raybestos in an East Peterborough League game at Bethany last evening, the visitors winning by 7 to 1. Raybestos won the contest in the first two frames by their hitting and the homesters' misplays.

Scotty Maudsley had another good night holding Bethany to three hits, two of them being two baggers by Ryley and Tom Staples. Raybestos collected a quartet of hits.

A big crowd saw the game.

SCOTT GRANTED LEASE OF LIFE

Supreme Court Orders New Trial of Russel Scott.

ONCE MILLIONAIRE.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 22 (Canadian Press). — Russell T. Scott, thrice sentenced to hang for slaying of a drug clerk, in a hold-up, was granted a new lease of life to-day when the Illinois Supreme Court reversed and remanded his case for a new trial in the Criminal Court of Cook County.

Now in his early thirties, at twenty Scott was an actor. Ten years later he was a millionaire and heading a Canadian firm planning to erect a $30,000,000 bridge from Detroit to Windsor. One of his associates disagreed with him and forced him from the company. His personal fortune vanished in the settlement of his affairs.

Since his arrest his parents have made many pilgrimages in his behalf, dissipating their means in his defence. His wife, mother of his three children, publicly starved herself in Detroit to raise funds for his fight for life.

Detroit club women raised $50,000 for Russell's defence, and the Mayor and business men of Windsor interceded with President Coolidge.

"JIM THE CONQUEROR" IS FINELY SCREENED.

Fight between Cattle and Sheep Barons Realistically Pictured.

One of Peter B. Kyne's greatest stories will be seen on the screen when "Jim the Conqueror," featuring William Boyd, Edinor Fair, Walter Long, Tully Marshall and Tom Santschi, comes to the Regent Theatre to-morrow.

The author of "Cappy Ricks" seems to have the happy faculty of writing stories that retain all their vitality and picturesque characterization when put into the silent drama, and "Jim, the Conqueror" is no exception. The dramatic theme of the picture is the bitter fight for the possession of water hole rights on the great western plains, waged by the sheepmen and cattle barons of the wide open spaces.

Jim Burgess, the son of a rich sheep owner of the west, sojourning in Italy, meets the daughter of a cattle baron, and the romance begins. When Jim receives word that his father has been shot in a feud between the cattlemen and sheep owners of his native state, he returns post haste to take up the fight. With his advent, the affray takes on a hectic hue, and the plains resound with the thuds of bronco hoofs as the feudists clash in mortal combat. Six shooters puncture the air and bullets beat a tattoo on the anatomies of bad men and good horses.

At the height of the combat, Jim discovers that the girl whom he had met and loved in far away Italy is identified with the opposite side, and the situation is thus complicated. In the end however, Jim settles the feud—conquers the "bad men," and wins the heart of the girl he loves.

The picture was made under the direction of George B. Seitz, who was responsible for such successes as "The Vanishing American," "The Last Frontier," and "Pals in Paradise." Will M. Ritchey adapted the story and also supervised the production.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

LITTLE MATTERS.

What matters if some little thing
Goes wrong a little while?
Is that enough a tear to bring
To eyes that ought to smile?
The things that often make us fret,
That often make us sigh,
Are little things we soon forget,
And then we wonder why—

We wonder why a thing so brief;
And now remembered not,
Had ever filled the heart with grief,
A thing so soon forgot.
One little cloud the whole sky fills,
One little word annoys;
We're always counting little ills
And missing larger joys.

A dollar lost, a broken dish;
A train awhile delayed,
A morning colder than we wish;
A sleeve a little frayed,
A word unkind we may recall,
The dark days in our springs,
Are little matters, after all,
And not the great, big things.

STARR STERLING'S PROBLEM

A Serial for Boys - By BERT REED

Sterling watched the canoe disappear around the bend in the river, then slowly retraced his steps. He did not feel elated over the outcome of the fight. Fighting to him was disgusting at best. There were times when he had found it necessary to defend his honor and while he had, on each occasion, given a good account of himself, there was always a feeling that he had lowered himself to the level of the man who had forced the fight.

For a long time after reaching camp Sterling pondered over the last words of Bascombe. What had he meant when he said that he would get even to-morrow. Finally, with a light laugh, he dismissed the thought and went down to meet the boys.

A faint crimson was flooding the Eastern sky. The cool invigorating breath of a new day was rustling through the wooded slopes and rippling the still surface of the river. Three boys with eager faces and lithe, muscular bodies were sending a canoe skimming noiselessly through the water.

"Almost there, fellows," came from Sterling, who, with Larkspur and Holloway, had planned an early morning trip. "Just to surprise the rest of the fellows," explained Starr, "we'll slip out about five without disturbing the others and bring in a few fish for breakfast. It was just around the point ahead that Beaver said black bass were so thick——"

"That they just came 'round the canoe and begged to be taken in," concluded Larkspur, grinning.

"That's just about it, Lark," smiled Starr. "We'll surprise the boys back at camp to-day all right."

Holloway, on hearing this, immediately shipped his paddle and became very busy with a fishing rod.

"Maybe you're right, Lark—maybe they will just beg to be taken in, but just the same I'm going to get this old pole ready in case this is their day off."

"They say," said Starr, winking back at Larkspur, "that the fish here are so large that they have been known to pull the fishermen in."

Larkspur began to sing:

"Oh, a canny young fisher named Fisher
Once fished from the edge of a fissure;
A fish with a grin
Pulled the fisherman in—
Now they're fishing the fissure for Fisher"

"I say, Hiram, did I ever tell you of the time I went fishing with Dad?" Larkspur went on. "Well, we went out to a little stream about seven miles from Riverview. We'd been fishing for about half an hour when along came a man down to the edge of the water. Dad, thinking he owned the stream, asked him if the place was private property. 'Nope,' the man answered. 'Then it won't be any crime if I land a fish?' said Dad. 'Nope,' replied the man; 'it will be a miracle'."

Hiram looked vacantly at Larkspur—he had not seen the point. "That's right, Hi, old man, show some consideration for the fish—don't laugh, you might make them nervous."

"I say," asked Lark, turning to Starr, "do you think you'll have any more trouble with Bascombe or Beaver?"

"I hope not," replied Starr slowly, "but I imagine both those fellows are inclined to be vindictive. Bascombe threatened me yesterday and he may attempt something else. We don't look for trouble but at the same time we can keep our eyes open."

"Here's the point, fellows. If you'll let that anchor out, Lark, we'll get down to business."

Quietly the anchor was lowered and Holloway, who was quite ready, tossed his line over. Before he could settle back in his seat a quick sharp tug told him that some hungry fish had been hooked.

"I've got him, fellows," shouted Holloway. "I've got him!"

His taut line was cutting the water like a jack knife.

"Keep a tight line, Hiram," came quietly from Starr. "Don't give him any slack. Play him, Hiram, play him."

But Hiram, disregarding the ethics of fishing, had flung his pole into the bottom of the canoe and with both hands was pulling on his line. "What are you trying to do?" cried Larkspur. Why don't you jump in and give him the half Nelson or the rabbit punch and finish him outright?"

But Hiram was deaf to everything. The scent of victory was in his nostrils. Hand over hand he hauled the line in. Suddenly, without a warning, a dark shape left the water, flung itself into the air, and, with a series of remarkable twists, disappeared with a splash.

"Fou'r pounds if he was an ounce!" gasped Sterling. "Well, you've lost him, Hi," Hiram was grazing blankly at an empty hook and a mass of tangled line.

"Come out of it, Hiram, old man. He's gone back to his family. Toss in your visiting card, and perhap he'll come again.

With a disgusted snort Hiram began to untangle his line, muttering to himself as he did so.

"Fishing is just like everything else, Hiram," volunteered Sterling. "It's the man who keps his head that's the winner."

"How's that?" asked Sterling.

"Lost his head," replied Lark. 'Don't throw the worms, please."

For the next half hour luck varied, Starr caught a couple, Holloway two or three and Larkspur one. Then Starr, who had been slowly trolling his line, got a strike. For a moment it seemed as if his rod would be wrenched from his hand. Its thin steel lip bent almost double, each moment threatening to snap. He could not reel in. The fish darted under the canoe and Sterlings ability was being taxed to its utmost to keep it free from the anchor rope.

Starr had caught bass before. He knew the fighting qualities which had given them the name of being the gamest fish under water, but never had he experienced anything like this.

Then, in a flash, the fish darted from under the boat and to the surface. Sterling worked fast to keep his line taught— but the fish was faster. The next moment it had flung itself clear of the water, rising to a height of at least four feet. It was no bass. For an instant its twisting sides sparkled in the sunlight, its writing body lashed the air. Then, with an extra flirt, it shook itself free and with a splash it was gone. Sterling had lost a twelve to fifteen-pound "lunge."

Slowlyl Starr reeled in his limp line. "Too bad, fellows, he was a beaut—" but he got no farther. At that moment the report of a rifle echoed across the water and simultaneously something faintly resembling the whining buzz of a bee whizzed past Sterling's ear.

Starr dropped his line. "That's more than careless shooting," he cried. "Up with your anchor, Lark!" Quickly they reeled in their lines and pulled up the anchor.

From the far shore a thin cloud of smoke was fast disappearing. Sterling was angry. Without thought of the possible consequence, he headed the canoe toward the spot and with long, sweeping strokes he and Larkspur sent it racing across the river.

As the canoe nosed its way in through some brushwood close to an old log, Sterling, without waiting for the others, sprang on to the log and was ashore in a moment.

There was no sign of life. High up on the limb of a tree a saucy chipmunk chattered. Over his head a noisy crow was cawing. He was about to retrace his steps, when the crackling of a twig from behind him caused him to turn quickly — Joe Beaver, the Indian guide, was standing with his gun three feet from him. So it was Beaver who fired the shot. He was about to shout to the others when his head and shoulders were enveloped in the folds of a coat and he was thrown roughly to the ground. Instantly some one was on him and, although it came but faintly through the folds of the coat, he recognized the voice. He was a prisoner in the hands of Joe Beaver and Chip Bascombe and he was scheduled to pitch that afternoon in the opening game of the Silver River League.

Jungle Breath

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl who owns and lives on property adjoining the queer little jungle bordered town of PORTO VERDE in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of one of her foremen. Her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped but is found again, largely through the efforts of VILAK, her cousin and protector, who is known in Porto Verde as ATTORNEY DAVIS. Elise's lawyer, Vilak has sent for LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, to help him get at the bottom of the mystery.

They are ignorant of the cause of this hostility toward Elise but suspect that a man named GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding character, is somehow involved.

Word is brought to Elise that the manager of her property at VILLAPA is desperately ill and must see her at once. Vilak suspects a trick and insists that he and Nunnally accompany her.

On the road to Villapa they are ambushed by a band of ruffians in the uniforms of soldiers. They tell Vilak that he and his companions are wanted for murder. The charge is obviously a fake. Vilak is convinced their captors are in the pay of Elise's enemies and that they will be shot. Vilak and Nunally are trussed up and thrown into a damp room crawling with termite ants. Elise is made prisoner in another room.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIII.

"After all, they are only ants." Vilak replied, his lips barely moving. "They're not interested in us. They're merely looking for a meal—sugar, leather, or a leaf they can use in their houses. Interesting little brutes. They could tear down this house in a day or two if it were made of wood they fancied. Lucky for us they are not tarantulas, which are thick in so many of these old deserted houses. Look out for that corner over there near the window. I think I saw the hairy foot of one of them a minute ago. Maybe a nest of them there, but I don't think they'll bother us, unless we bother them."

He stopped short as he heard Elise's voice in the other room. But the wooden door effectually kept out most of the sound; he could not distinguish what she said.

The two men became silent again, motionless except for their regular crushing of the inquisitive crawling visitors. There was a crackling noise in a hole near the bed. A small rat-like animal, with bristling whiskers, and bright bullet-like eyes, emerged from the orifice, looked at the two men curiously, then retreated to his black home.

A few moments later a swarm of brilliant purple butterflies swept down through the broken roof and, settling on tables, walls, bed, and men, for an instant, left nothing to be seen but their vivid flaming wings. Then they flew away.

Vilak shot a glance at a shallow pool of water formed in the middle of the room where the ground was lowest. "I have an idea," he whispered to the old man beside him.

"To escape!" Nunnally's eyes eager.

"Yes. But don't be too hopeful. It's just an idea. It may not work, but I hope it will. These ropes with which we are tied are hide, like most of the ropes in this part of the country. They ought to expand considerably in water if they haven't been cured too much and allow us to squirm out of them. You remember the story in your primer of the girl who was captured by the Indians and escaped because a heavy rain fell and swelled the cords of deerhide that bound her? This is the same principle."

He rolled to the edge of the pool, then into it, the water coming up almost to the buttons of his coat. Here he lay, without stirring for half an hour, which to the old man, seemed interminable. Then he rolled out again and began manipulating his long wrists, purplish now from the pressure of the cords upon the veins.

The old man watched him breathlessly. For ten minutes Vilak pulled, tugged, twisted, writhed. Now it was his wrists he was attempting to free, now it was his knees, now it was his bony ankles.

"It's no go," he said. "They've only stretched an infinitesimal fraction, if at all. They're oily, and take up practically no water. Sorry. Wish I could smoke a cigaret." He rolled out onto the dry ground again. The old man gazed at him dejectedly and let his head slump back to the mud.

A bizarre-colored toucan flitted onto the windowsill, cocked his huge billed head grotesquely, then flew away. The sound of a horse's hoofs sloughing through the road drifted through the paneless window. Vilak rolled to a crack in the wall, and peered outside. "Afother one of our soldier comrades," he announced. "Looks as if he were bringing a message. We ought to know what they are going to do with us pretty quickly now."

They heard the newcomer tramp into the other room. There was a long excited conversation which they could not hear. Then the door into their room and the bristling mustached captain entered.

"We have pondered well what is to be done with you, rooting pigs who call yourselves men," he grumbled, glancing down disgustedly at the two mud-covered prisoners and bestowing on them a well-directed kick. "And we have decided. Your woman goes with us. For she is beautiful. Yourselves shall hang like the gallows dogs that you are. My men now get ready their farinha and touchino for they have eaten little because they watch for you, and they have long to travel.

"They are hungry. When they have eaten, then they will rest. For it is not good to travel quickly after eating. Then they will take away your woman. And then you will hang. We do not hang you now for this might make sick the woman, and a sick woman is a burden . . . As are all women . . ."

He glanced outside the window over a steaming black pot. "By the way the touchino boils I will say you have perhaps one, maybe two hours in which to live and cleanse your foul souls. If this is not enough, so will it be the better. Inform Senhor the Devil that it is the fault of Capitaz Jose Imperial Chapada. Until an hour, goodby." He kicked them pain stakingly again and slammed the door.

The sudden darkness of the equatorial regions began to clutch house, field and forest in its ebony embrace. Peering outside again through the crack in the wall, Vilak saw Elise led to a log on which two soldiers were sitting. A third who was guarding her ordered her to sit down between them. She was slow in obeying. The guard jerked her arm cruelly. She struck violently against the wood, then stared up at her captors, helpless but defiant.

Vilak bit his lip fiercely. He watched a moment longer, then rolled back to the edge of the pool and once more immersing himself for an instant, rolled out and again began tugging at his shackles. It was useless. Though his powerful muscles strained until it seemed they must burst, the leathern sinews held.

He ceased his futile efforts and lay on the ground, breathing heavily, too exhausted for the moment to protect himself from the greenish termites crawling in swarms all over his long body.

Suddenly he began to laugh, a low, chuckling laugh. The old man looked at him in amazement, unwilling to believe that the sound had come from between his friend's lips. But there could be no doubt. Vilak was still chuckling. He turned his head smilingly to the old man, then began rubbing his thonged body against the wall. "No, I'm not crazy, Nanny," he murmured, "I'm merely chuckling because I have been crazy ever since we've been in here. Or stupid, whichever you prefer to call it. We've had a way of escape here all the time."

"These termites." He lay upon the ground again, and let the insects swarm over him. "They're wild about leather and hides of any sort. I've had the soles of far too many shoes eaten up over night down here not to know that. They want to eat these hide ropes with which we're tied. That's undoubtedly what's drawn them to us. The ropes have probably been soaked in oil besides, and that's made them doubly attractive. They've been trying to save us and we wouldn't let them.

"Don't beat them off any longer. At the expense of a few stray nips they'll have us cut loose in half an hour or less."

He put his eye to the crack in the wall again and watched, while the insects, finding themselves unmolested, crawled upon him in increasing numbers until his body seemed a trembling greenish carpet. Some hurled themselves upon his leather puttees and shoes and, digging their razor-like pincers deep into the fiber, began carrying off tiny morsels to their unseen hill not far off in the jungle. Others began to attack the thick, squarish ropes that bound his limbs.

It had now become completely dark and by the firelight he could see the soldiers gather round for their steaming meal. Elise still sat on the log, patient, immobile. Each moment Vilak's fingers groped along the hide for the few inches they could reach to see how the work of destruction was progressing. At length he felt a notch where the insects had bitten more deeply than the rest. Concentrating all his energies in one tremendous impulse, he thrust his arms forward from his chest. Half the effort would have sufficed, for the cord, almost severed, snapped as though it had been a thread. He was free.

ONE PERSON IS TO BE BLAMED FOR SMUGGLING

Is Suggested To Customs Commission Sitting in Probe at St. John.

SEIZURES MADE.

Cars Are Allowed To Cross Border Without Being Inspected, Says Officer.

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 22.—(Canadian Press.)—That the smuggling of liquor into, and its distribution throughout, the Maritime provinces, is controlled by one person, was suggested to the Royal Customs Commission this morning by R. L. Calder, K.C., counsel. Mr. Calder did not give the name of this person. Again this morning, smuggling of liquor into the Maritime provinces figured prominently in the evidence, which came from various sources. Yesterday the Commission heard about seizures from Customs officers.

To-day persons from whom seizures were made took the stand.

John M. Morrow, of Moncton, told of being hired to transport liquor by automobile from a point between Tormentine and Port Elgin to a point near Edmundston. His employer was named Carson or Garson and the witness said he had met him in Halifax. Garson described the stuff to be transported as whale oil from Prince Edward Island but he had his suspicions.

The commodity was liquor, Mr. Morrow said. The liquor and automobiles were seized.

Thos. Nolan of Buctouche was another witness who figured in the list of liquor seizures. Customs officers found liquor stored in his barn but Mr. Nolan told the Commission today that it was put there by some Americans. He disclaimed ownership of the liquor and he also did not know as suggested by Mr. Calder, that he was regarded as one of the largest liquor smugglers on the New Brunswick coast. Mr. Nolan's bank accounts in Moncton and Buctouche will be investigated. Evidence of the laxity in the examination of automobile and stree car passengers at St. Stephen was furnished by Constable Thomas Moore, of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who conducted an investigation into conditions of the Maine-New Brunswick border. At St. Stephen, he said, 26 cars had crossed the International bridges without examination. Parcels carried by street car passengers were not opened. At St. Leonard's he said conditions were similar, 45 cars crossing without examination in three hours. At Edmundston he found laxity in examining motor cars.

Constable Moore told of a seizure of alcohol which was made at a railroad point near St. Hilaire. There the station agent had refused to allow him and his associates to enter the place where the alcohol was stored ,even though they gave their authority as customs officers. They had been forced to break into the building.

INSTITUTE WORK IS SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Provincial Organizer, Mrs. M. E. Lowe, Speaks To Havelock Women.

HAVELOCK, June 22.—The June meeting of the Belmont Women's Institute was held on Friday afternoon in the Belmont Town Hall with a large attendance including quite a number of visitors from Havelock.

The meeting opened by singing the Institute ode, "A Goodly Thing It Is to Meet in Friendship's circle bright," followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison, a reading by Mrs. William Smith, a community song, "The Maple Leaf for Ever," and a vocal solo by Mrs. Arthur Russell.

Mrs. M. E. Lowe, a representative from the Department at Toronto, gave a very interesting address on Institute work and self control. In speaking of the celebration soon to take place throughout the Dominion of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, Mrs. Lowe said that it was worthy of note that the Institute was an organization whose history dated back thirty years, just half the period of Confederation.

The creed of the Institute, the speaker outlined as follows: First, To maintain the highest ideals of home life, children being the first consideration. The minds of the children to be kept clean and spirits happy and to give consideration to service and comfort in the home. Second, To never be discouraged. Third, To be always ready to offer a helping hand. Fourth, To have what is best of all, contentment.

Fifth, To be punctual at home, at meetings, and to do everything well.

Sixth, To never get slack. To be busy helps the nerves, health and character. Seventh, To always be cheerful. Laughter is better than medicine. Eighth, To never get in a temper.

Mrs. Lowe advocated a travelling library for use of the Institute and pointed out several ways that they could be of assistance to the school in their district, namely: By appointing a sick committee, a floral committee, a glee club, a home and school committee; visits to the school at regular intervals and assisting with the school fair. The speaker then dealt with the training of the children in the home. Children should respect their mothers first, she continued, and children who receive proper training and are taught obedience in everything will be happy. "There are two creators," she said, "Our God and ourselves."

Mrs. Lowe concluded her address with an ancient prayer which was found in the old Chester Cathedral in England:

Give me a good digestion, Lord and also something to digest:
Give me a health body, Lord, with strength to keep it at its best.
Give me a healthy mind, good Lord, to keep the good and pure in sight.
While seeing sin be not appaled, but guide a way to set it right.
Give me a mind that is not bored; that does not whimper, whine or sigh.
Don't let me worry overmuch about the funny thing called I.
Give me a sense of humor, Lord, and give me the grace to see a joke
To get some happiness from life and pass it on to other folk."

An address was also given by Mrs. William Vance of Havelock on Confederation Bells and their different uses.

The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem.

SUFFERS FROM AN EPIDEMIC OF MINOR POETS

Adrian Macdonald Tells Rotary Club That Canada Is So Affected.

A SPARKLING TALK.

Self-Conscious Nonsense About a Canadian Literature Condemned.

What he characterized "the self-conscious nonsense" of attempting to create a distinctly Canadian literature, was denounced by Adrian Macdonald of the local Normal staff, in a sparkling talk on Canadian Literature to the Peterborough Rotary Club today at its weekly luncheon.

Canada, the speaker, declared, was suffering from an epidemic, not of typhoid or smallpox, but something more deadly. An epidemic of minor poets. There were more poets per capita in Canada than in any other country in the world, and Mr. Macdonald thought that this condition was due to the fact that Canadians were suffering from an inferiority complex which explained the attempt to create a Canadian literature.

"A Canadian literature," declared the speaker, "will never be brought about by shouting from the house-tops that we have one." The danger was that so much emphasis was being placed on inferior Canadian literary products that the really worth while things that had been done by Canadian writers would be overlooked.

What was needed was sanity and balance among Canadians in regard to Canadian literature.

Mr. Macdonald made an entertaining analysis of the work of what he termed second-rate Canadian poets and then reviewed high lights among Canadian writers. Among the poets he mentioned Bliss Carman, Roberts and most particularly Dr. Drummond, while the novelists singled out were Sir Gilbert Parker, Ralph Connor and Stephen Leacock.

The speaker said that the Canadian writers had a right to expect from the Canadian public a fair trial of their products while the Canadian public on the other hand had a right to expect from Canadian writers that they should write what was in them, that they should write because they had something to say, not merely because they wanted to say something.

Mr. Macdonald was introduced by Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner, who referred to him as one of the rising young men in Ontario literature.

IN POLICE COURT.

W. Jeffries was fined five dollars without costs in police court this morning for failing to come to a stop at the corned of Hunter and Water Streets, where a "stop" sign is erected.

Vagrancy Charge

Albert Daley of Toronto was charged with vagrancy. Sergeant Wigg when called on by Magistrate Langley to state the cause of arrest said that on information received from Dr. Wood, he had gone to Stewart Street and had found Daley coming out of the doctor's office. When asked what he was doing by the sergeant, the man remarked that he had taken the wrong train from Port Hope landing in Peterborough instead of his destination, which was Montreal. He also said that people persecuted him and put a spray on him that made him shrivel up into nothing.

The accused was then called to the stand and in a clear voice told of missing the train and arriving in Peterborough. "My lungs are bad," said the prisoner," and I went to Dr. Wood, who is the D.S.C.R. doctor here, for treatment, and I guess the two grains of drugs that I had taken earlier in the day made me act foolish and cause Dr. Wood to phone for the police."

When asked his occupation, Daley told the magistrate that he was a jockey, and was on the way to a job in Montreal in this profession that would give him enough money to go to Arizona in the winter to clear his lungs.

Inspector Reid stated that Daley had been charged before in Montreal and Chicago with vagrancy and illegal possession of narcotic drugs, and that at the present time he was out on parole. Magistrate Langley told Inspector Reid to get in touch with Guelph to see if Daley was still wanted and to report in two days. "If he is not wanted on any charge," remarked the magistrate, "he will probably be given his liberty."

House-Breaking

Ross Davis, who is accused of house-breaking in different parts of the city was remanded this morning till the twenty-eighth of June. He was charged this morning with breaking into the residence of Harold Wilson, 435 Sherbourne Street, and stealing a small sum of money, and into the residence of H. E. Tillcock, 525 Bolivar Street and stealing a sum of money amounting to $11.50.

Told Wife He Was Dead

A serious case was brought up this morning of Harold W. Smith, alias W. J. Carter, of Toronto, who yesterday sent a telegram to his wife, Isobel Smith of Toronto, under the name of Carter, stating that her husband, Harold W. Smith, had been killed in the village of Hastings.

When asked for an explanation, Smith remarked that he was subject to fits, caused by shell-shock overseas, and that he had no idea that he sent this cruel message to his wife. Smith had been away from his wife for about three weeks and not supporting either his wife or four children.

In addressing the prisoner, Magistrate Langley stated that he had nearly killed his wife by this cruel message, and that he couldn't see how the man could send such a straight telegram and to the right address if he was under the influence of a fit. Smith showed extreme nervousness in the box, his hands shaking as he tried to clutch the rail.

The accused was sentenced to one month's imprisonment in the common jail. Smith is also a cripple.

A London cat has had 120 kittens in less than ten years.

A German ship loaded with beans sprang a leak on the Yangste River. The beans swelled, bulged the decks of the boat and finally burst the seams.

Nickel Revives On Market Other Stocks Follow Suit

TORONTO, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Some measure of recovery from the weakness of the past few days occurred on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning in fairly active trading. International Nickel, Massey Harris and Brazilian shared in this revival, each gaining about a point. Nickel moved to 64⅝, Brazilian to 158, and Massey to 36½. Brantford Preferred, Cosmos and Arnolds all improved slightly. Distillery and brewery stocks were soft, Gooderham and Worts, the easiest, losing a point at 54.

Weak Liverpool Quotations Forces Drop In Wheat

CHICAGO, June 22 (Canadian Press). — Unexpected weakness of Liverpool quotations, together with better weather over domestic harvest territory, led to an early down-turn to-day in wheat values here. Liverpool reported increased arrivals, and also told of prospective larger shipments from Argentina next week.

Opening at ¼ to ⅝ off, Chicago wheat underwent a further sag before beginning to react. Corn started unchanged to ⅝ down and subsequently averaged lower all around. Oats were easy. Provisions tended upward.

Leaders Take Drop In Active Dealings

TORONTO, Ont., June 22 (Canadian Press). — A number of leaders were sold down in active dealings on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Argonaut lost one at 28, Canadian Lorraine five at 20, Duprat one at 8, and Nipissing five at 6.25. Firm features were Tough Oakes, advancing 3½ at 43½. Amulet also advanced selling up two at 247. Ares improved slightly at 49¾.

Rails Set New Record.

NEW YORK, June 22 (Canadian Press). — Speculators for the advance continued in control of the price movement in to-day's stock market, but trading was relatively dull. A few soft spots cropped out, particularly in the oils and motors, but they failed to halt bullish demonstrations in the rails and specialties, nearly a score of which attained new peak prices. North-Western Rails featured the carrier group, St. Paul, "Soo" Common and Preferred, and Western Pacific Common all reaching new high ground, as Canadian Pacific, Atchison, and New York Central also recorded moderate gains.

WEDDING BELLS.

MAGEE—PARNELL.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at All Saints' Church at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when Violet Isabel Parnell, of this city, became the bride of John H. Magee, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. D. Paterson. The bride wore a lovely frock of white georgette, trimmed with Spanish lace and rhinestones. Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. W. Boucher, sister and brother-in-law of the bride.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Magee left on the early train for Buffalo and Niagara Falls. On their return, they will reside in Toronto. The bride travelled in a taupe coat, with silver hat.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a gold wrist watch, to Mrs. Boucher a silver bracelet, and to Mr. Boucher a pair of gold cuff links. A large number of useful and pretty gifts were received by the young people.

GUTHRIE SPEAKS AT PICNIC IN STIRLING

Hon. Guthrie Looks Westward Seeking Ground To Retrieve Conservative Party Fortunes

Meighen's Temporary Successor Suggests Wooing of Prairie Provinces With Offer of Preferential Freight Rates on Grain, Cattle and Coal.

DEPRECATES USE OF KNOCKING TACTICS; NO ADMINISTRATION CAN RUIN CANADA

Severe Criticism of Government's Attitude Toward Application for Renewal of Georgian Bay Canal Charter--Says King Was Committed to Project.

"The hope of the Conservative Party lies in the three Prairie Provinces of the West." Thus Hugh Guthrie, presently temporary and a probable permanent leader of the Conservative Party foreshadowed a concentration of effort to strengthen the party position by the capturing of seats in the West. Wearied by the continued lack of response from the coy habitant to the wooing so sedulously practised from the day Arthur Meighen took over the reins of the party, Mr. Guthrie points to rolling prairies of Manitoba, Sasaktchewan, and Alberta, rather than the villages and farms of Quebec, as the battlefields on which will be gained the electoral triumphs that will make possible the return of the party to the seats on the right hand side of the Speaker's chair in the House at Ottawa. Mr. Guthrie obviously recalling the somewhat pessimistic undercurrent that tinged the speeches of Arthur Meighen and other Conservative leaders during the most recent general election, deprecated the use of language that suggested "knocking" as part of electoral ammunition.

These suggestions were thrown out in a speech made by the Conservative chief yesterday at a picnic of the South Hastings Conservative Association held at the Exhibition Grounds in Stirling.

About 300 people were assembled in all parts of the field when Mr. Guthrie arrived from Belleville. Beside their leader on the platform were five Federal members, W. E. Tummon, South Hastings, E. A. Peck, of West Peterborough, Dr. A. T. Embury, Hastings-Peterborough, F. W. Bowen, Durham, and M. E. Maybee, Northumberland.

Conservative members of the Legislature of Ontario on the platform were Hon. Jfl Rfl Cooke, Minister without portfolio in the Ontario Government, W. H. Ireland, West Hastings, and J. F. Hills, East Hastings.

Mr. Tummon made a brief speech of welcome to the members and visitors. George Stokes, chairman of the Association, presided at the executive meeting and introduced the speakers at the general meeting.

The local members were limited to five-minute addresses. Mr. Cooke humorously suggested that Mr. Tummon, who had made the arrangement, had earned the gratitude of the constituency, and should be returned on that ground alone, even if no others existed.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

Mr. Guthrie, who was greeted by three rousing cheers from the crowd, led by Mr. Tummon, expressed thanks to the Association for giving him his first opportunity to visit Hastings on political matters. Hastings had been one of the few counties which he had never been privileged to see except from the windows of the train in passing. He was glad to have with him on the platform five of the stalwarts of the Conservative Party in the House of Commons and several members of the local Legislature, among them being one to whom he owed a deep debt of gratitude for help rendered in fighting election battles in his own constituency. During the elections of 1925 and 1926, the Hon. J. R. Cooke had been a source of strength to him in the campaign in South Wellington.

Last Year's Defeat.

There was no doubt that on the fourteenth of September last year, the Conservative Party suffered a terrible disaster. The disaster appeared all the greater because they had been so confident of the result. On the morning of the fifteenth the party was somewhat dilapidated. Among their losses was that of the talented leader, the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen.

"I have sat for 29 consecutive sessions in the House of Commons, and I have never yet seen his equal as a Parliamentarian. He was the ablest Canada ever produced," was Mr. Guthrie's striking tribute to his predecessor and former chief. "We lost him and many others of our best and bravest," continued the Conservative leader, "and we hardly knew what to do." Mr. Meighen immediately announced his intention to retire for some time and he summoned a meeting of elected and defeated candidates to consider future action. They met on October 12. It was rather a gloomy meeting. Mr. Meighen resigned. Then the defeated candidates withdrew, leaving only the elected members to continue the deliberations. These decided to elect a temporary leader for the session. Whether it was because he had a longer consecutive Parliamentary experience than any other member in the room, or whether it was because he was the only individual present who had served on three successive Governments, he could not say; whatever the reason, the choice fell upon him and he was asked to guide the party. He was averse to accepting. He knew his limitations. But the matter was presented to him in the light of a duty, and viewing from that standpoint he agreed to accept. If they had met with any success, that was due to the loyal 90 behind and around him, who gave him loyal and unswerving support. Their own member was one of the best supporters a leader ever had, and the same applied to all the other members on the platform. They were always in the House when they were wanted; they were always ready to speak, ready to vote and available for the more serious work in committee in which the most important business of Parliament was transacted. A more loyal band no leader ever had!

Convention Called.

Another thing that was decided at the party meeting was to call a Dominion wide Conservative convention to elect a permanent leader. It was to be organized by an executive of 40, containing representatives from places between Halifax and Vancouver. It was decided to hold this convention at Winnipeg on October 12.

He was going to mention a matter in which he was misunderstood when he made reference to it at Prescott a short time before. It had been decided that the executive would meet again on the fourth of July. It had been proposed to change the date of the convention from October 11 to September 27. This would be considered by the executive. It was quite possible that the second date would be accepted but so far no change had been authorized. That was as far as one could go at present.

There were other demands One was that the number of delegates should be increased. A proposal had been made that all Conservative members of the local legislatures should be eligible to attend as delegates. This might suit Ontario all right but it could hardly seem so attractive to other provinces. Quebec had fifteen members as against Ontario's 80 in the Legislative Assemblies. Another proposal was that all the defeated Conservative candidates in the general election of 1926 should be invited. There was certain to be strong opposition to that proposal. Each riding was entitled to send as many delegates as it saw fit. Toronto could send twenty-five but it was doubtful if Prince Edward Island could send one. He doubted if the right of voting would be changed. Whatever number of delegates sent fro man association he did not think there would be any change from the rule that five and no more from one body could vote. It was only right that voting should be thus restricted in order that all votes might be on an equal basis.

New Departure.

This convention would be the first in the history of the Conservative party. Sir John A. Macdonald was appointed leader of the party so long ago that nobody remembered the date. He became leader by unanimous consent. Sir John Abbott was chosen by a caucus of Conservative member of the House of Commons. Sir John Thompson was elected similarly. So were Sir McKenzie Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Robert Borden and Arthur Meighen. This was a new departure. It was good that they from the East should meet the people in the West. They would consult the interests of all parts from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Wife Left Years Ago; Husband Seeks Divorce

CHICAGO, Ill., June 23.—(United Press).—Fred Hessler finally is convinced his wife has left him for good and he has asked for a divorce. He appeared in court and said he and Barbara, his wife were married in 1889 and that she left him in 1895.

"Why did you wait so long to ask for a divorce" the judge asked. "I never lost hope that she would return. But the last couple of years my hopes have dimmed" he replied.

The court indicated he would be granted a divorce.

AGREEMENT IS STILL DISTANT AT CONFERENCE

British and American Chief Delegates Hold Private Meeting.

DISCUSS PROPOSALS.

Confine Themselves To Explaining and Defending Their Respective Plans.

GENEVA, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Lord Robert Cecil, British delegate to the tri-partite naval conference, and Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the United States delegation, today held a private meeting to discuss the proposals of their respective countries for further naval limitation.

No advance toward an eventual agreement was made at the conference, the most reliable information being that both confined themselves to an explanation and defence of their respective proposals. Mr. Gibson, who was accompanied by Allen W. Dulles, juridicial expert for the United States delegation, emerging from the meeting said that the peoples of Great Britain, the United States and Japan were all anxious to find an agreement and were convinced that only patience and goodwill among the delegates were needed finally to work out a common basis for an accord.

"It is natural to encounter discouragement in the solution of individual problems," he said, "but without this existing there would have been no need to call the conference," Mr. Gibson emphasized that he and Viscount Cecil had examined the British and United States proposals in an attempt to understand their mutual positions and added that nothing had occurred thus far which would justify less hopefulness in achieving a final agreement.

"Some difficulties lay in the fact that our three navies have different missions and different problems," he

HUGE PETITION IN SACCO CASE

Signed Document Mile Long Bears Over 500,000 Names.

DEMAND INVESTIGATION.

BOSTON, June 23. United Press. — Nearly a mile long and containing approximately half a million names, an international petition asking a public investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti murder case was presented to Governor Alvan T. Fuller's office yesterday.

The petition, consisting of two paper rolls each about two and one-half feet in diameter, was taken to the state house in an automobile by Gardner Jackson and Joseph Moro, of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee.

Signers of the petition included almost every class of person from the humblest to the highest the names of eminent educators and captains of industy being sandwiched among those of common laborers.

Governor Fuller is now reviewing the sensational seven-year-old case of Sacco and Vanzetti, who, unless he intervenes probably will die in the electric chair the week of July 10, for two murders committed more than seven years ago.

PROPOSAL TO PAVE HAVELOCK STREETS REJECTED BY COUNTY

No Action As In Hastings Village This Year.

TOWN VS. COUNTY.

Slight Encouragement Given By the Townships.

The paving of those streets in Norwood, Havelock and Lakefield which are designated as links in the county roads system was discussed by the County Roads committee of the County Council this morning. On division, however, only the village reeves supported the proposal.

"Another case of disagreement between the town and country," remarked Reeve Morley Smithson, who presided.

A. M. Fellowes, district engineer of the Highways Department, explained the provisions of the legislation which covers the cost of constructing a twenty foot strip of pavement on streets in towns and villages that are connecting links in the county roads system.

Hastings Example.

Recently the council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham agreed to spend $25,000 on a pavement for the streets of Hastings village, which connect the county road systems of Northumberland and Peterborough. The county pays half the cost and the government the other half, while the village assumes the cost of the rest of the pavement outside the central strip of twenty feet.

"You are bound to come to it eventually, so why not make a start this year," Mr. Fellowes suggested. He reviewed what had been done for Hastings. The village decides upon the standard of pavement it can afford, and proceeds with the work. Hastings will likely sign its agreement with the Department on Friday. Mr. Fellowes said that Havelock could be done more cheaply now than Norwood and Lakefield.

"We want to get away from the idea that the towns and vilages get something for nothing. They are paying into the fund the same as the townships."

Reeve Curtis said Havelock had a connecting link of about a mile, but was not eager to pave the whole mile now.

Mr. Smithson commented that if the government would not build any more provincial highways in the county the council could go ahead with village pavements.

A Rather Broad Hint.

Mr. Fellowes replied that there was not much chance of further commitments in that direction, which might be interpreted as an opinion that the much mooted Belleville-Peterborough highway is a matter of concern of the Department, if indeed it is being at all considered.

Warden Middleton pointed out that the villages had been in the county roads system only one year. "It seems a little early to talk of pavement for the villages when you think of that fact. If all three were paved together we would at once assume a debenture debt of about $50,000.

Villages "Thrown Out."

Reeve Curtis—The villages were the first to urge the adoption of the county road system. The reeves of Havelock and Norwood moved that Peterborough go into the system. Then they were thrown out.

Reeve Breckenridge —I heard the villages backed down when the time came for them to sign.

Reeve Tanner—While Lakefield was not in the system, we were keeping up the connecting link in our village. In fact we were proud of our roads. The fact that the province designates it as a link doesn't change the fact that we maintained it. We're not barnacles living on the county."

John Scott's Motion.

Reeve Scott, of Asphodel moved, with Reeve Leahy of Douro, as seconder, that no action be taken this year toward paving any of the villages.

"I'd rather see an extra mill spent on our county roads,' Mr. Scott said. "We could drop the pavement until next year. We have some narrow spots on our county roads, and had an accident close to Norwood this year. That's where I'd like to see further improvement.

Reeve Tanner moved an amendment ,seconded by Reeve Montgomery, of Norwood, that Havelock be granted $20,000 to pave its connecting link and extension this year.

The motion carried by a majority that nearly knocked Mr. Fellowes out of his seat.

Neither Norwood or Lakefield's reeves were urgent for pavements in their villages this year, and Reeve Curtis wasn't exactly clamorous, either. He believed that his municipality would go ahead with the project if the county council gave their assent.

Mr. Fellowes' invitation to the county was conveyed in his statement— "We're willing to spend our money ,if you're willing to spend yours."

However, Mr. Scott's motion indefinitely deferred paving in any of the Peterborough villages.

COSGRAVE IS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

Republican Deputies Refuse To Take Oath of Allegiance To King.

UNABLE TO ENTER.

Streets Are Thronged With Citizens Expecting Trouble Over Political Situation.

DUBLIN, June 23 Canadian Press. —William T. Cosgrave was re-elected president of the Irish Free State Executive Council by the new Dail Eireann at its first session to-day held without the participation of Republican deputies

Patrick Hagster, chairman of the Farmers' Party, declared his party would support the government provisionally, while Captain W. A. Redmond, national group chief, said the largest party should form the government. Michael Hayes, the former Speaker of the Dail, was also re-elected.

Eamon de Valera and the other deputies elected on the Fianna Fail ticket, refused to take the oath of allegiance to the King at the opening of the new Dail Eireann to-day and were refused admission to the chamber.

The Dail began its sitting without them. The streets were thronged with anxious crowds and the sole topic of conversation was the political situation created by the recent elections. Hundreds of civic guards were posted in the vicinity of Leinester House where the Dail sits and the streets adjacent were closed to traffic.

Mr. De Valera and his deputies marched to Leinster House where the Dail sits at 2.30 p.m. They were admitted to the house on showing their invitations and were conducted to one of the committee rooms. The Clerk and Deputy Clerk of the Dail entered the room to hear the Fianna Fail members take the oath of allegiance, but the later refused Thereupon they were refused admission to the Dail Chamber

Mr. Cosgrave in a long speech before the Dail declared he did not seek the office and would accept it only if

MAN CHARGED WITH BREACH OF LIQUOR ACT

First Local Case Involving "Possession" Without Government Control Permit.

TWO VAGRANTS.

Interpreter Plays Part of Good Samaritan To Distressed Compatriot.

The first local case involving the illegal possession of liquor under the new Government Control Act came up before Magistrate O. A. Langley in the Police Court this morning, when a city resident was charged with having a bottle of liquor without his having first obtained a permit, thus committing a breach of Section 90 of the Liquor Control Act.

The accused asked for an adjournment of three days. His lawyer was out of town, he said, and would not return to the city until Monday. He was a stranger to the courts, and felt he would get along better if he had legal advice.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., was ready to proceed with the case. "Can't you get another lawyer?" he asked. Accused declared he wanted his own lawyer and no other.

"Are you sure he is alive?" asked Mr. Hatton. "He was, last night," responded accused.

The case was adjourned.

A teamster who purchased some gin and beer yesterday at the store got into trouble and was arrested by Inspector Joseph Stewart. In extenuation of his offence, he pleaded this morning that he had not been used to liquor for some time and misjudged his capacity to withstand it.

He paid a fine of $15 and costs.

John Edwards, 18 years old, arrested as a vagrant, was described as a "professional hobo," who boasted of the fact, by C.P.R. Constable John Evans, who gave evidence of having arrested him on the C.P.R. line at Havelock. He will enjoy His Majesty's hospitality for the next week.

L. Obeah, a Russian, who was also brought up on a vagrancy charge, was rescued from his awkward predicament, largely through the generous intervention of a fellow-countryman, A. Lowe. Obeah could neither read

COURT ACTION FOR DAMAGES AGAINST CITY

Judge McGlade Gives Judgment Against Defendant in Both Cases.

STREET ACCIDENTS.

His Honour Grants Mrs. E. R. Richardson $1,800 and Costs in Damage Action.

His Honour Judge McGlade gave judgment for Mrs. E. R. Richardson, of 284 George street south, wife of A. R. Richardson, for $1800, and costs, against the City of Peterboro, at the June Sessions of the Peace, held at the Court House yesterday.

Mrs. Richardson fell on the icy sidewalk on the second of February last, in front of the home of Wellington Henthorne, on Maud street, and broke her hip.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cooney of Lansdowne street, picked her up, and evidence was given by Dr. Scott, Dr. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Finnie, Mr. Henthorne, Mrs. Cooney and Mr. Thomas Miller, of the dangerous condition of the sidewalk on Maud street during the latter part of January and February.

Mrs. Richardson's heavy verdict against the city was given on account of Judge McGlade finding that the city was guilty of gross negligence in permitting water to accumulate on Maud street and freeze, and no precautions were taken of putting sand on the street to remove the danger.

The judgment indicates that using sand is very important, and that on the outlying streets of the city, if the city fails to put sand upon the streets when the streets have been icy for a time, that the city is guilty of gross negligence, and liable to pay damages.

In the case of Mrs. E. R. Richardson against the City of Peterborough, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for Mrs. Richardson, with F. J. Hughes and Jos. Wearing defending the city.

Mann Case.

The case of Mann versus the City of Peterborough was yesterday tried before His Honor Judge McGlade. J. A. O'Brien acted for Mrs. Mann.

The action on behalf of Mrs. Mann was brought against the City of Peterborough by reason of the failure of the city to clean snow and ice from the sidewalk on Dalhousie street just west of the intersection of Dalhousie and Rubidge streets. Snow and ice had been allowed to accumulate here for months, so that it formed a very rough ridge of ice. Mrs. Mann

New York Mayor Launches Investigation Into Alleged Persecutions Of Jews In City Institutions

NEW YORK, June 23 (United Press).—An investigation into the alleged persecution of Jews in the city institutions has been launched by Mayor Jimmy Walker. After a visit to the King's County Hospital where six Gentile internes were arrested for "hazing" three Jewish internes, Walker declared "It is impossible to couple benevolence with bigotry."

The Mayor said that the six offending Gentiles would remain suspended from the Charity Hospital Service until the courts of Brooklyn have disposed of their cases. They are charged with assault for "ducking" the Jewish medicos in cold water and then lashing them to bed posts.

"I have begun what is to be a city-wide investigation." said Walker, "to determine to what extent religious and racial intolerance is prevalent in city hospitals."

FIVE DEPUTATIONS APPLY FOR GRANTS FROM COUNTY COUNCIL

Large Representation of Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board.

NEED CATTLE BARN

Children's Aid Society Makes Special Appeal for Assistance.

Requests for grants were made to the County Council Wednesday afternoon by the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, Lakefield Agricultural Society, Peterborough Poultry Association and the Norwood Fair Board. They were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Roland Denne introduced the large deputation of directors of the Peterborough Exhibition. He especially congratulated the council upon its sound financial condition, and paid a tribute to Warden Middleton upon attaining the high position which his faithful service had well earned.

"You've been very good to us in the past," Mr. Denne said, "and we hope you will be disposed to us in the same way again. We had a bee for a week this spring, and the Warden was one of those who brought out his team. The city council gave us $3500 to cover the grand stand, and we look to you for help in building another cattle barn."

Town and Country.

"We would ask you to look at this deputation," Tom McIndoo requested. "You see men who left their shops and offices, sacrificing their time to make this petition. And look at the large number of farmers with us. You know how busy farmers are at this season. And why do so many of our directors join in this deputation? Because we believe we are interested in one of the greatest institutions for the development of agriculture in this district. I wish I could tell you what the Peterborough, Norwood and Lakefield fairs have done for agriculture."

Mr. McIndoo explained the advantage that had been safeguarded for amateur exhibitors at Peterboro, and of the plans for the continued progress of the exhibition.

"It is a cattle barn we need, and if you will give us $1500 we'll put $500 free labor to build a barn that will be a credit to this county and its council. And I would advocate that we put on that barn a record of the 1927 county council's gift.

"You have 16,000 assessed ratepayers. To raise $1500 would take very few cents from each ratepayer. In fact the price of three eggs from each ratepayer would build us a barn."

William Knox and Vincent Eastwood also spoke briefly for the deputation. Mr. Eastwood made a point of the county's previous grants which he preferred to regard as a sound investment, which the councillors in their wisdom had properly made. It was an investment which had already borne fruit and had great promise for the future.

"I feel sure you will not fail to back up this investment, which in your previous judgment was worthy of your support" said Mr. Eastwood, "and this money is all turned back into the county."

Mr. Eastwood spoke of the importance of agriculture as a national industry, and remarked that the banks maintained research bureaus to bring out facts pertaining to the industry from the financial and investment standpoint.

Lakefield's Petition.

Ed Galvin and Thompson Bradin, represented the Lakefield Fair Board. The Lakefield fair, said Mr. Galvin, was the oldest in the county. Its first fair was held in the streets of Bridgenorth 66 years ago. Improvements were needed to the grounds and the county's assistance would be an encouragement to the Board.

Rev. Dr. Biagrave and John Edgar reviewed the service of the Children's Aid Society in asking for a substantial grant. The officers hesitated to invoke the legislation which provided for obtaining the necessary funds by a tax levy. From the aspect of economy it was better for the country to continue the contribution plan.

Mr. Edgar declared that no money was spent unnecessarily, and cited specific cases of the society's protection of children.

Poultry Association.

Frank Dawson, president of the Peterborough Poultry Association, sought a grant of $150.

"The city has given us $200 this year," said Mr. Dawson, "and the poultry industry is of greater interest to the farmers. We are trying to maintain the standard of poultry, and also the prices of poultry and eggs."

Ambrose Coughlin's request for payment of his claim of $60 for forty yards of gravel, was referred to the Finance Committee with a favorable recommendation.

Reeve Smithson recalled the circumstances of the delivery of the gravel, and said he believed the county should pay the account.

Reeve John Scott of Asphodel completed the financial appeals by asking for a grant for the Norwood fair.

Freighter Beached Following Collision

LIMA, Peru, June 23 (Canadian Press).—The United States freighter Crastor Hall of the Isthmian Steamship Line, which left New York on June 4, carrying a general cargo, has been beached in the port of Talara as a result of a collision with the British oil carrier, Reginolite, which left Halifax, May 10.

The Crastor Hall sank rapidly after the collision, but the crew was saved, while the Reginolite suffered considerable damage. The port authorities are making an investigation to determine responsibility for the collision.

JUBILEE PLANS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

J. O'Connor Granted Permission To Sell Badges on July 1st and 2nd.

"Y" CLUB DRILL.

Would Fire Two Guns Off in Salute on Morning of First.

A meeting of the Central Committee to practically complete plans for the celebration to be held here on July 1st was held in the Council Chamber last night.

J. O'Connor, a local printer, made application to the committee for the right to sell Jubilee badges on Friday and Saturday, or the 1st and 2nd of July. It was decided that Mr. O'Connor go ahead and get out such a badge for sale to the visitors on the streets and in the Exhibition Grounds on these two dates.

On the suggestion of J. M. Greene, it was also decided that the Advertising Committee arrange for committee badges to aid visitors in parking or directions.

Dr. Craig, chairman of the Parade Committee, reported that everything connected with the parade was all set to begin the building of the floats.

Mrs. Stevenson, in charge of the community singing, and T. Donaldson, chairman of the Fireworks Committee, also reported that all was in readiness for the celebration with their ends of the programme.

In regard to parking accommodation, all the east side of the Exhibition Grounds, and King Edward Park and school grounds have been arranged for, for the three days of the celebration.

Mrs. Stevenson stated that a club drill will be staged by some of the "Y" girls, under the direction of Miss Littlefield.

Mayor Holloway told the committee that he had arranged for two guns in charge of a Government expert would be fired off early in the morning as a salute to the day from some point on Armour's Hill.

Eight Bands in Parade.

J. M. Greene, chairman of the Music Committee, reported that in the parade would be eight bands, the massed music to play "O Canada" before leaving Central Park at one o'clock. Continuous music will be played in the afternoon on Friday and at night another parade will go to the grounds, consisting of the Salvation Army and the Rangers Bands.

Mr. Greene also stated that two dozen torches had also been ordered for the bands in putting on the "tattoo." Music on Saturday and Sunday afternoon and evening has also been provided for, and elaborate arrangements have been made for the choir singing on Sunday night in the Park.

Mr. Manning, chairman of the Decoration Committee, reported all O.K. in connection with the arches to be erected, and Dr. Craig stated that provision would be made for all the older residents of the city to see the parade.

The meeting then adjourned.

NOT PREJUDICE AGENDA IN 1931

Conciliation Taking Shape Among Divergencies of Powers Studying Disarmament.

MAY MAKE RATIO 5-3-4.

GENEVA, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Conciliation is taking shape among the divergences of the powers studying naval disarmament here. Great Britain's desire to re-open affairs arranged at the Washington naval conference may be partially appeased by a proposal from the United States delegation to adopt a resolution agreeing that any arrangement made at Geneva will not prejudice the agenda of the second Washington conference to be held in 1931.

There emerged from a discussion between Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, and Admiral Saito of Japan, the possibility that the Japanese sensitiveness on the point of inferiority in cruiser strength might be soothed by a proposition to make the relative strengths of the United States and Japanese 5-3-4, rather than 5-3.

Indications are that the Americans expect no insuperable difficulty in establishing the proportion. The scheme for readjustment grew out of statistics which were based on the Japanese interpretation of the effects of the operation of a project which Admiral Saito submitted to the conference.

In the British-United States matter of re-opening the affairs of the Washington conference, it is pointed out that by the very terms of the Washington treaty the nations must convene to determine whether the developments of science justify any modification of the Washington decisions as to the size of battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers.

Air Communication.

This incidentally would bear on the recent trans-Atlantic flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlain, which have raised the question whether aircraft carriers should not be increased in size and number to meet the rapidly developing speed of inter-continental air communication.

The United States delegation is clearly opposed to any direct reconsideration of the Washington agreements with France and Italy, the two signatories not parties to the present parleys, but may attempt to meet British ambitions half way by suggesting a resolution with the idea that a building programme on which no immediate speed was necessary could be held in abeyance until the second Washington conference.

Fix Size of Warships.

Another primal difficulty raised by the British plan has yet found no likely solution, that is, British repugnance to establishing total tonnage for auxiliary warcraft, the British merely wishing to fix the size of individual warships and their total number.

If the Japanese plan were accepted it would give Great Britain a considerably higher percentage of warcraft than the United States, and some way must be found in juggling all three plans to establish parity on paper at least between the two Anglo-Saxon nations, leaving the United States people to decide whether they wish to build up to the treaty declared parity.

If the danger seems to have been momentarily avoided concerning the fixation of a fairly satisfactory cruiser ratio as between the United States and Japan, great difficulties remain concerning the concluding part of the Japanese project, acceptance of which would permit Japan to construct all submarines without limit, as well as aircraft carriers under 10,000 tons and surface ships having a speed of under twenty knots, the guns of which would not exceed six inches.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was a close and sultry day, with a temperature of 83 degrees in the shade. It was an answer to those pessimistic and cheerless folk who thought we were due for a summerless summer Yesterday, however, was not as warm as a very warm Sunday a month ago (May 22) when the temperature reached 87 degrees. The rainfall last night was .35, very much greater than the two recent showers.—W. P.

GUARD AGAINST DEMONSTRATION

Difference of Opinion Develops Over Exclusion of Deputies From Fail.

WILL REFUSE OATH.

DUBLIN, June 23 (Canadian Press).—While police yesterday were completing arrangements to prevent any public demonstration at today's opening of the Dail Eireann, a difference of opinion developed as to the legal aspect of the exclusion of the selected deputies of the Fianna Fail, Eamon de Valera party, who will refuse to take the oath of allegiance to the King.

Three members of the Bar, Arthur C. Meredith, Albert Wood and Gavin Duffy, yesterday expressed the opinion that there was no authority under the Irish Treaty or the constitution for excluding any member from any part of the House whether he had taken the oath or not before the House had been duly constituted and the Speaker elected.

In fact, they declared that the Speaker could not be validly elected in the absence of such excluded member or members of the House.

The election of a Speaker is the first item on the Dail's program.

Under the police plans announced yesterday afternoon crowds will be prohibited from gathering in the streets near parliament house and great care will be exercised in admitting only properly accredited persons into the court yard.

Able to Pass Gateway

Like the other elected deputies, Mr. De Valera and the members of his party will be able to pass the gateway, but will not be admitted to the House without taking the oath of allegiance, an act which they have announced they will not perform. Many supporters of the party came to Dublin yesterday from all parts of the country and it is expected that Mr. De Valera will address these in open air demonstration.

It is expected that no motion for the re-election of President William T. Cosgrave to the executive council, a position which corresponds to that of Premier, will be made by any member of his party, but that this problem will be left to the initiative of some one of other groups. Mr. Cosgrave himself is expected to accept re-election only on his own terms.

The lineup of parties in the new Dail on the basis of the recent elections, is as follows:

Government party (excluding the Speaker	46
Fianna Fail	44
Labor	22
Independents	14
Farmers	11
National League	8
Sinn Fein	6
Indpendent Republican	1

The oath of allegiance to which the members of the Dail must ascribe is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State, as by law established, and that I will be faithful to His Majesty King George V., his heirs and successors by law in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of nations."

HON. GUTHRIE LOOKS WESTWARD

sion was the absolute necessity of a strong Conservative party. There were only 88 of the Conservatives out of a House which comprised 245 members. The Government by calling in all the forces of their allies could command a majority of 63, but the Conservative party formed an Opposition for which the Administration had a great respect. The Government had tried some tricks, but had been frustrated in them. One matter for which the Conservatives deserved credit was its saving of millions for the provinces of Ontario and Quebec in regard to the Georgian Bay scheme. "Scheme," he thought, was the proper word to apply to the affair. Had it not been for the Conservative party, Sir Clifford Sifton and his friends— allies of the King government—would now have owned some of Canada's most important national resources.

Georgian Bay Canal.

It was true that 33 years ago a charter was granted to some English capitalists to construct a canal from Georgian Bay, following the Ottawa river to Montreal. This was to be done in order to cheapen the moving of grain from the west.

In those days very little was known of electrical power and nothing at all about power transmission. The canal was merely for shipping. A few years later, the company secured permission to get power for the purposes of the undertaking—to light the banks of the canal and to move the locks. Time went on and a further clause was inserted, giving the holders of the charter the right to develop all that 200 miles of waterway, with the further prerogative of disposing of all power over and above what was needed for the canal. The charter had to come up for renewal by the House, for it expired on May first of this year. They got busy in the House of Commons. Sifton and his son were now in absolute control of the enterprise. A bill was brought in, nominally to construct a canal, but in reality to give to the Siftons 12,000,000 horse power to sell as they saw fit and for their own profit. One needed only to state the case to show its monstrosity.

This bill got its first reading. It had to. The first readings of bills were always without debate. The second reading showed that the government had committed itself to the measure. "Man after man on the Government side of the House spoke in favor of the bill," said Mr. Guthie, who stated that he had moved an amendment to kill the bill, but was defeated on a vote. Premier King spoke in favor of the bill; so did Mr. Euler of Waterloo, Mr. Dunning and another member of the Government whose name has slipped his memory for the moment. Altogether 20 Liberal members spoke in favor of this bill and not one Conservative said a word on its behalf. Speaking for a bill in its second reading, said Mr. Guthrie, meant that one was in favor of the principle it contained. The Conservatives raised a big storm. Day and night they fought the measure. Some newspapers then spoke out against the proposal. The Conservatives forced a division. Every Liberal except one voted to hand over this heritage to the Siftons and every Tory said, "No, kill the bill." The bill passed the second reading. The Government had committed itself to the bill.

But the opposition had done some good. Every paper took the side taken by the Conservatives. From Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce ,and township councils, came telegrams by the score every day urging them to throw it out and when the measure reached the committee it was thrown out on the second day.

Tax Reduction.

To take another instance. The Liberal party were very fond of boosting Mr. Robb, the Minister of Finance. Mr. Robb was a fine man, a very genial man who had few enemies. But when he made a statement the Liberals regarded it as gospel. When he said he had reduced taxation, they got up and cheered their heads off. But Mr. Robb omitted to say that the reductions he had made were in taxes which he had himself put on and not those of Mr. Meighen. They had made a reduction in the case of the Stamp Act. They reduced the stamps on checks to 2 cents. "But that was all the tax amounted to when I was in the government in 1921," said Mr. Guthrie. The Sales Tax was another case in point. When the Meighen government left office in 1921, there was a sales tax of one and a half per cent on manufacturers and one and a half on jobbers, making a total of three per cent. on all goods. This was a war tax. Mr. Fielding raised this tax to four and a half per cent. Mr. Robb later raised it to six per cent. They found this was interfering with trade, so they lowered it, first to five per cent. amid loud cheers from the Liberal following in the House and then to four per cent. But under the Meighen government this tax was at its peak at three per cent.

Income Tax.

They made a cut in the Income Tax. This no doubt pleased certain men in Toronto and Montreal. It was a liberal cut to the very wealthy man, but did not mean one cent to any of those in the audience. The big fellows in Toronto and Montreal with the big incomes got a substantial reduction. A reduction from five to four per cent. in the Sales Tax was all that the ordinary man or woman got out of the changes of the government.

Did they realize that four dollars out of every hundred of their house purchases went into the treasury of Mr. Robb? Would it not have been better to take off the tax on clothing or boots and shoes and give some relief to the poorer classes than to waste half a million dollars in Washington? But the Liberals voted to maintain that tax. Every Conservative voted to blot it out. The cost of clothing was an important item in the family of a man who had five children. It would have cost the country less to take off the tax on clothing than they were paying for the upkeep of Massey in his palatial building in Washington. The government took that course and let the people foot the bill.

Mr. Robb's claims as to debt reduction were equally peculiar. In 1925 he announced he had made a cut of 20 millions in the national debt. In the following year he claimed to have reduced the debt by 35 millions. In 1927 he declared the reduction was 27 millions.

This made a total of 82 millions which Mr. Robb claimed represented the reduction in the national debt. But the report of the Auditor General showed a reduction of 76 millions. Where did the difference go? Nobody suggested that it was stolen. But, declared Mr. Guthrie it was clear that either the book keeping was wrong or Mr. Robb was wrong.

The real debt of the country was the net debt. According to the report of the Auditor-General, the net debt was larger by 57 millions than under the government of Arthur Meighen. There was something rotten in the system. The cost of living was now the highest since January, 1922. From the reports of the government it could be seen that in January of this year, the cost of maintaining a family of five was the same as in 1922. It was a little higher in February. Where was the reduction?

Fiscal Changes.

The fiscal policy of this country was fixed by Sir John A. Macdonald when he inaugurated the National Policy in 1897. This was maintained by his successors until they were defeated in 1896. Laurier and Fielding carried on for fifteen years. Any addition made to the country's prosperity during their term was due to their maintenance of that policy. Borden continued it. Meighen did the same. Not until King came into power was any serious attempt made to alter the fiscal policy. In obedience to the claims of some of his supporters ,notably the Progressives, King lowered the tariff on agricultural implements. Then a howl went up, and the greatest came from Vincent Massey. King reduced the tariff from 12½ p.c. to 6. In this case there was no sales tax. The five per cent. was wiped out. All raw material imported for the industry was allowed to enter free of duty. That was what won Massey over. The Progressives and Grits were jubilant. But, declared Mr. Guthrie, it had been shown from the sales books of the implement makers that the reductions in tariff were no help to the farmer, who had to pay more than the original price for his requirements. In 1921, a 6 foot tractor with a carrier and truck sold for $252. After the cut, the price of the same implement was $255. A 7 foot binder with carrier and truck cost $258 in 1921. In May, 1922, the farmer had to pay $260. And there was no 5 p.c. going to the government. All the difference went into the pockets of the manufacturer. The government supporters had cheered vociferously when the cuts were announced. Now there were only two firms engaged in the manufacture of agricultural implements—the Massey and the Harvester. There used to be 24. It was much easier for two competitors to get together and to fix a price than for 24 competitors to do so. He did not say they had actually done this, but there was no doubt that the government's action had made such a thing possible.

How was the reduction in taxation effected? When there was a shortage of finance in the country, the government issued treasury notes, not backed by gold or silver. These were used to pay for the wheat of the country during transportation. The government had issued more than were needed of these, and notes representing face value of 56 millions were called in, torn up and burned, or as the statute said, "cremated." This was simple flat money that was burned up and did not show any real reduction.

Immigration.

With regard to immigration, Mr. Guthrie declared that the King Government was ashamed of the results it had attained. Manitoba in 1921 had a population of 610,000. After five years and an expenditure of 4 million dollars a year on immigration, the population of this province had increased by only 28,000, which showed that Manitoba was not retaining even her natural increase. The large province of Saskatchewan had a little better showing. In 1921 the population was 758,000, and in 1926 821,000—63,000 more, an increase of 9 per cent. Alberta with all its advantages of climate and resources, had only increased from 588,000 to 607,000. The immigration policy of the King Government had been a ghastly failure.

No Knocking.

Declaring that he was now proceeding to discuss more personal matters, Mr. Guthrie said that if he had a criticism to make of the policy of the Conservative party of recent years, it was that the old spirit of optimism of the party was not so much in evidence. No matter how bad conditions or governments were, and he knew that the King Government was bad enough, they as a party should refrain from anything that had the appearance of knocking. He did not believe that the King Government had the power to ruin this country. The foundations of the prosperity of this country were laid by the Conservatives. Confederation was achieved by the vision of their great Conservative chief Sir John A. Macdonald. It was Conservative optimism and courage that made possible the linking up of the country by rail, and no government could undo the work that had been done to put Canada in the front rank of nations.

Hope In West.

He believed that the hope of the Conservative party lay in the West. They had labored indefatigably and had expended much labor and thought in campaigns to bring in Quebec but what had been the result? They had four seats out of 464. In the three Prairie Provinces lay the hope of the party. In the last election, the Conservatives polled 200,000 votes, while all their opponents among them secured 400,000 votes. Yet the Conservatives had only one seat out of 54 in these areas. Had they devoted to these provinces some of the effort which they had expended on Quebec, there might have been a different tale to tell to-day. The people in the West had different interests from those in Ontario. Their produce was cattle and grain. Their difficulties arose from freight rates. Could the freight rates from the West not be adjusted in the same way as those of the Maritimes were adjusted?

Ontario and Quebec were without coal. Alberta produced coal in abundance, and only an occasional car load reached Ontario. Nova Scotia was built on a coal bed, and seldom did a consignment of coal from Nova Scotia get beyond Montreal. Why should not the freight rates be adjusted to permit of Ontario being supplied with Alberta coal and Quebec with coal from Nova Scotia and thus keep within the country one hundred millions of dollars which went into the pockets of coal operators south of the boundary line?

St. Lawrence.

One other question, probably more serious than any of the others would soon have to come up for decision. This was the development of the St. Lawrence. He pledged himself to maintain the rights of the people in any contract that would be made and assured his hearers that Ontario's claims would not be overlooked.

He had tremendous faith in the party. He had tremendous faith in the future of his country. There was no country under the sun that had the resources and the future prospects of Canada. To find an adequate description of Canada he had to fall back on the words of an old seer, the words of Moses as recorded in the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy; "For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley and vines, a land of oil, olive and honey; a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass. When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee."

F. W. Bowen.

Mr. Bowen made it very clear that he was not in favor of the new Embassy at Washington. "Spending half a million for Massey," was how he expressed it. Declaring that the exodus to the United States was still continuing, Mr. Bowen said there were Canadian citizens, living in U.S., who had been forced to emigrate in numbers sufficient to create 50 cities with 10,000 inhabitants each.

E. A. Peck.

Mr. Peck congratulated the Stirling people on living in a beautiful little village situated in a lovely township. At the election of 1925, they had been somewhat worried about South Hastings. They had always looked on South Hastings as standing out for good Tory principles. It had come as a shock to them when, in a by-election which they had confidently expected to win, they found that South Hastings had gone back. It was a shock because it seemed to be an evidence of the sliding away of the whole district which had so long been predominantly Conservative. When they heard that a gentleman who was not then very well known outside the constituency had been offered the nomination they hoped but doubted. They in West Peterborough worried more about South Hastings than they did about their own riding. But the results showed their doubts to have been unnecessary. Mr. Tummon was returned by a larger majority than West Peterborough rolled up. All the ridings in the neighborhood returned large majorities. At the last election this part of the county had remained true to its colors and had returned members to support Mr. Guthrie. He was sure they had been a happy family in the Commons, although they were not in the majority.

Dr. Embury.

Dr. Embury prefaced his remarks by explaining that previous arrangements made by the Hastings - Peterborough Association for the holding of its convention rendered it impossible to accept the invitation of his hosts, to hold a joint South Hastings and Hastings-Peterborough convention at Stirling. Canada, he said, had returned to the two-party system, and it was up to every organization to strengthen itself to bring about a return to Conservative leadership of the country within a few years.

J. R. Cooke.

"In a democratic country like this," said Mr. Cooke, "it is only natural that governments should come and go." Patriotism was not the monopoly of any one party, and it was not in any spirit of party prejudice that in this Diamond Jubilee year, they looked over the history of the past sixty years. Surrounded as they were by every evidence of luxury and wealth, they were apt to forget the difficulties that lay ahead of these old pioneers, who labored with strength and diligence to build up in Canada a nation that would be the equal of any in the world.

J. F. Hills.

That the Conservative Opposition had placed the country under a heavy debt of gratitude to it, for having saved the Dominion the loss of many millions of dollars, was the claim put forward by Mr. Hills, who also eulogized Mr. Guthrie as one who had led the party with great skill after his appointment as temporary leader in the Commons.

M. E. Maybee.

Mr. Maybee praised Mr. Guthrie for his skillful leadership. Mr. Guthrie, he said, had taken charge of them when they were sheep without a shepherd. He filled the breach in a time of emergency. While the number of Liberals in the House was 116, and that of the Conservatives was only 91, they polled 100,000 more votes than did their opponents. So that the Conservative party was not dead by any means. Any prosperity this country had ever enjoyed was due to the national policy laid down by Sir John A. Macdonald and carried out by all succeeding Conservative governments.

W. H. Ireland.

Mr. Ireland said someone had referred to the extravagant home that had been provided for Vincent Massey in Washington. For his part, he considered the money well spent. It was worth half a million to get rid of Massey, and he suggested that they might well spend a million for the purpose of shipping off Premier King.

The following telegram from T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P. for Victoria, was received by Mr. Tummon:

"Sorry, impossible for me to be with you to-day. Best wishes for a successful picnic.—T. H. Stinson."

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

George Stokes, Tweed, re-elected as chairman.

Secretary-Treasurer—R. H. Ketcheson, Belleville.

Vice-Presidents—J. W. Carleton, Hungerford; C. Goodman, Tyndyags; W. H. Harvey, Desoronto; H. F. Ketcheson, Belleville; J. Bingham, Frankford; F. Campbell, Sidney; J. Galna, Trenton; W. S. Martin, Stirling.

Delegates to Winnipeg—Mrs. Kinnear, Belleville; H. F. Ketcheson, Belleville; C. Weese, Thurlow; J. E. Garratt, Trenton.

At the executive meeting held in the early afternoon before the speeches, sympathetic reference was made to the death of Anthony M. Rankin, ex-M.L.A. for Frontenac County, by W. H. Ireland, who spoke in commendation of his former associate in the Assembly at Toronto.

In response to a communication from Kingston Conservative Association, it was decided to grant $50 for the purchase of a wreath to be placed on the grave of Sir John A. Macdonald at Kingston.

After the speeches, the crowd rallied around the grounds, watching the ball games, or listening to the music of the Frankford Band.

NEW TRIAL IS SET FOR RUSSELL SCOTT

Supreme Court Remanding Case Criticize Officials of Cook County.

CHICAGO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Six times within the shadow of the gallows and four times saved by last minute reprieves, Russell T. Scott, sentenced to death for murder, gained a new trial yesterday when the State Supreme Court remanded his case with severe criticism of Judge Marcus Kavanaugh and the office of Robert E. Crowe, Cook County State's attorney. Scott is a former Canadian millionaire.

"We wish it distinctly understood we have not even considered the question of whether the defendant was shown by legitimate evidence in this case to be sane or insane within the meaning of the statute," said the court.

The last phase of Scott's case went before the high court upon an appeal from a decision that he had recovered sanity and was subject to hanging after his life once had been saved by a last minute finding that he was insane and after he had served many months in the state prison for the criminal insane.

Not Had Fair Trial

"It is apparent that the defendant has not had a fair and impartial trial," read the decision. Judge Kavanaugh was held incompetent because of prejudice, and the jury was held to have been incompetent because it was "unduly prejudiced by the conduct of the judge and the misconduct of the prosecutor."

"We have had to reverse many cases coming from the criminal court of Cook County for similar unprofessional conduct of the prosecutors there, and we have recently indicated that we will not hesitate to reverse judgment so obtained," said the court in its decision handed down at Springfield.

Scott yesterday heard dully and without emotion that he again would be tried for the crime for which his brother, Robert, now is serving a life sentence—the slaying of young Joseph Maurer, clerk, in a drug store robbery opposite Chicago's City Hall nearly four years ago.

In the last 21 months British air liners have flown nearly 2,000,000 miles and carried 25,000 passengers without a single mishap involving injury to either passenger or crew.

Greater London has 2,300 miles of streets and their upkeep costs about 3,000,000 pounds a year.

CAMPBELLFORD LEADS LEAGUE

Defeats Warkworth in Baseball Game Which is Full of Disputes.

SCORE 10-5.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23. — The Campbellford vs. Warkworth baseball game at Warkworth yesterday afternoon was a verbal combat from start to finish. The oldest ball players claim that it surpassed anything they had ever listened to by way of a growling match. Strikes and balls seem to have got horribly mixed up, and Warkworth sought to undo the tangle by demanding the removal of the plate umpire, although one of their own men. Between the angles the teams indulged in baseball, and at the end of the wrangle and the game, the score was 10-5 in favour of Campbellford.

The line-up:

Umpires — Curtis, plate; Christie, bases.

Zufelt got in some good pitching, at times hitting the Ivey pace. Holmes hit a nice three-bagger, and also made a nice double play (Blute to Holmes at second) and Holmes to Christie at first).

Quite a number of cars went over to Warkworth for the game.

The winning of this game puts Campbellford at the head of the Northumberland League. The standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost
Campbellford	3	0
Hastings	3	1
Keene	1	2
Warkworth	0	4

CANADA HONORED

The selection of Canada as the country in which the third World's Poultry Congress will be held is a marked tribute to the prominence which this Dominion is attaining among the nations of the world. Only two previous Congresses have been held; one at The Hague, and one at Barcelona, Spain. The showing of Canadian poultry at the Barcelona Congress was so outstanding that the invitation extended by the Canadian Government to hold the next Congress in Canada was accepted, notwithstanding keen competition for the honor by other countries.

The preliminary announcement of the Third World's Poultry Congress has just been issued from headquarters at Ottawa. It is a very attractively prepared and illustrated booklet which will carry into all civilized countries not only the congress announcement, but a better conception of Canada and things Canadian. The information contained is concise but complete, and the illustrations reflect the various aspects of Canadian life. Agriculture, naturally, plays a large part, but the scenic beauties of the country, and glimpses of its industrial and artistic development, have not been overlooked.

The Third World's Poultry Congress will be held at Ottawa, July 27th to August 4th, 1927. Full information may be obtained from the Minister of Agriculture in each Province, who is chairman of the congress provincial committee, or from Ernest Rhoades, Congress Secretary, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

New postage stamps issued during the last twelve months number 2,099, bringing the world's total up to 45,378 standard varieties, exclusive of shades, perforations, and so on.

SEND CHILDREN TO THE SOVIET

British Government Was Defeated in Attempt To Prevent Step.

PASSPORTS REFUSED.

LONDON, June 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The Daily Mail says that six children of British communists left London last night for Leningrad aboard the soviet steamer Youshar, notwithstanding the home secretary's refusal to grant them passports.

The determination of the communist organization to get the children to Russia and the resolve of the authorities to prevent them going has filled much space in the newspapers lately. Now, according to the Mail, the communists have won the struggle ,and five boys ,about 12 years of age, and a girl of the same age, are voyaging to Russia in response to the invitation of Moscow, apparently for purposes of education. The paper says two of them had passports, but how they obtained them is a mystery.

Precedent Established.

Moscow's invitation was announced on May 13, and after a discussion in the papers, it was stated on June 13 that the government had decided to refuse passports ,thus establishing a precedent, as heretofore passports have not been refused unless the applicant has been convicted of a crime.

The next step was a declaration by A. J. Cook ,secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, that a way woud be found to send the children, despite the government This seems to have been done.

LINDBERGH WILL VISIT DOMINION

Accepts Invitation To Attend July 1st Celebration at Ottawa.

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press).—A special dispatch to the New York American from St. Louis, Mo., says that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the trans-Atlantic flier, has accepted the invitation of the Canadian government to visit the Dominion on the occasion of the celebration of the Jubilee of Confederation.

To-day is 33rd Birthday of the Prince of Wales.

LONDON, June 23 (Canadian Press).— Government buildings and West end clubs flew flags today in honor of the 33rd birthday of the Prince of Wales. Apart from the time-honored custom of so recognizing birthdays of the King and the heir to the throne, there was no public recognition of the event.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SURPRISE

It was a very hot day in Woodland where Uncle Wiggily lived in his hollow stump bungalow. Not even the Orange Ice mountains in the distance seemed to make it cooler.

"Of course we'll have hotter weather than this in July," said Mrs. Longears, fanning herself with a big leaf off the grape vine.

"I suppose so, but I don't like to think about it," sighed Uncle Wiggily.

"There's a little more ice-cream left," remarked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who had taken a swim down the brook to the store and had come back with some of the cool, sweet stuff. Keeping in the water as she did, made her rather comfortable.

"I wish some of the children in the Hollow Stump School could have some of this," said Mrs. Longears as she fed herself some ice-cream.

"I don't believe they give lessons in anything like this, more is the pity," Uncle Wiggily said, as he, also, put some ice-cream on his tongue. "It must be very hot in school!"

"And coming on toward vacation time, it is all the harder to stand it," squeaked Nurse Jane. "I know our little bunnies just didn't want to go at all this morning when they found out how hot it was going to be."

Uncle Wiggily jumped up so suddenly that he knocked his ice cream dish to the floor. But that didn't matter for he had eaten all there was in it.

"What are you going to do?" asked his wife in surprise. "You shouldn't move so quickly in hot weather. You may lose some of your fur!"

"I am going to give the Lady Mouse Teacher, our little bunnies and all the other children in the Hollow Stump School a surprise," said Mr. Longears with a chuckle. "It doesn't seem right for us to be sitting here eating refreshing ice cream while they are sweltering in the heat.

"I don't see how you can take enough ice cream to feed all the children in school," objected his wife.

"I'm not going to take them ice cream," replied Mr. Longears. "My surprise is going to be a lemonade one. You squeeze some lemons, Nurse Jane, if you please. My dear," added the Bunny gentleman to his wife, "you get the sugar and water. I'll get a piece of ice in a big pail from Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman, and I'll borrow the little express wagon I saw Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow playing with yesterday."

No sooner said than done! In a short time Uncle Wiggily, with a big pail filled with cool, sweet lemonade on the express wagon, was drawing it toward the Hollow Stump School, keeping on the shady side of the street.

"What have you there?" bleated Uncle Butter the goat, who was resting in the shade of a big fence on which were pasted circus posters.

"I have a surprise here," answered Uncle Wiggily, and when he gave Uncle Butter a sip of lemonade the goat cried:

"Well, I am agreeably surprised!"

"I hope Miss Mouse and the children will be," chuckled Uncle Wiggily.

He hopped on with his express wagon of lemonade and was almost at the Hollow Stump School when, all of a sudden, the Wolf jumped out from behind a lamp post. The Wolf saw that the Police Dog had gone to sleep on account of the heat and the Wolf, said to himself:

"I'll have an easy time catching Uncle Wiggily!" So when the bad chap jumped out in front of the rabbit and cried: "What have you there?"

Mr. Longears replied: "I have a surprise!"

"For whom?" asked Wolf, for once in his life speaking correctly.

"For you!" shouted Mr. Longears. With that he took the big chunk of ice out of the pail of lemonade, for it was now cool enough, and the rabbit let the ice fall right on the toes of the Wolf.

"Wow! Ouch! Hi! Yi! What's the meaning of that?" howled the Wolf.

"I told you it was a surprise!" chuckled the rabbit. And before the Wolf could limp along after him, the rabbit gentleman ran fast with the pail of cool, sweet lemonade to school. And Miss Mouse and all the animal children were most happily surprised.

"We were hot, but now we are cool. Thank you, Mr. Longears!" squeaked Miss Mouse, and the bunny felt very happy.

EDUCATION IS NECESSARY FOR HAPPY COUNTRY

Good Schools Tend To Make Country Prosperous and Happy.

A COMPARISON.

Young People Will Not Remain if the Conditions Are Not Good.

BY RURALITE

There are two townships lying not far from Peterborough in which agricultural conditions are very different. Education is also on a totally different footing. And it appears that the educational condition directly affects the agricultural.

In one of those townships a high school was established several years ago. With a high school conveniently situated, making education cheaper, parents made mighty efforts to educate their children. Even before they had a local school they sent as many as possible of their children to other centres to be educated, often making great sacrifices to do so. For many years now almost every child has had at least a year or two in high school. And what is the result? Dozens of the daughters of the township are teaching in Eastern and Western Canada. Many of the sons are teaching high and public school, are dentists, clergymen, or are well up in the business world. Those young people are making good wherever they are locate.

And what of the farms they left? Several are left untilled, some that are tilled have insufficient help. Everywhere farms are for rent and for sale. The soil is good, prices for most produce are fair but farms are unworked. Why?

Some people explain by saying that high school makes young people lazy, but in fairness it must be said that this is untrue. Farm young people at high school are almost always industrious and make the most of their school time. We have to look further to find the reason why young people (boys especially) refuse to stay on the farm once they are educated. Everyone is entitled to his opinion. The writer's opinion is that the remuneration received from the farm, considering the hours of labor, is entirely too small.

Farmers arise anywhere from four to six o'clock, not many as late as six, for many months of the year and some of them work as long as they can see and expect their sons to do likewise. From thirteen to sixteen hours, except for the short time devoted to meals, is the usual routine. And what is the remuneration? It is a lucky farmer who makes six hundred or seven hundred dollars above expenses for a year's labor. Many do not clear half that much, and this is the wages of the farmer and his wife and whatever children are old enough to be put to work! Those are the wages for two eight-hour days out of the twenty-four! In lean years it is a hard pull to make ends meet!

In recent years many farmers have automobiles (many too, have none) and most have telephones and daily mail. Scarcely any have modernhomes or any labor-saving devices such as gasoline engines, to pump, churn, wash, separate milk or grind feed. Very few have furnaces to make the home comfortable and many would hold up their hands in holy horror at the extravagance of burning coal. As for running water, bath fixtures, electric light and other electric appliances such as farm homes elsewhere on the continent have, they are non-existent in this particular portion of Ontario. Many women still use the back-breaking wash-tub to do the family wash and many farmers (sometimes it is the farmer's wife) get up and with chattering teeth light the cook-stove to provide the home with heat.

Is it to be wondered at that young people do not stay under such conditions?

And what of the other township? Land is at a premium! Very little is for sale and scarcely any for rent. Many of the young people must leave home to seek a livelihood elsewhere. They go to factories in Eastern U.S. cities, they go to Western Canada or, in the case of the girls they go to the cities to be domestic servants, or to work in factories or stores. They are uneducated, so the professional and business world is closed to them. Until the last three or four years not one per cent of the young people have been to high school. There is no high school close and parents think it costs too much to send them away. Thus it looks as if farm prosperity is obtained at too great a price, i.e., by depriving young people of higher education, which most people who know, will admit, is very necessary today for success in life.

Why cannot a decent margin of profit be made on a farm without such unreasonably long hours? Crops mostly are good. The answer, in the writer's opinion is lack of organization and co-operation. The middle-man controls every product of the farm and the toll he takes is a heavy one. He lives in luxury and comfort at the expense of the farmer, and, either the farmer doesn't realize the cause of his condition or his want of education makes him suspicious of his more progressive neighbor who advocates organization. Farmers are the only unorganized class in the world and hence they are always "hewers of wood and drawers of water" for people who handle the products of their toil and for persons who manufacture their implements of production and their other needs.

And what is the cure for the ills of the farmer? Undoubtedly, education is, which seems a contradiction, when earlier it was stated that education sends young people away from the farms.

If a course in co-operation were taught in the high schools what a revolution would take place on the farms of the land!

As it is, the educated minds are all drawn to the city to support the industrial and business structure of the country and this structure is becoming top-heavy because its agricultural base is unsound. If only those brains could be put to work for the good of the farmer! For no one will ever lift the farmer to a better condition unless he does it for himself. Farmers of Western Canada found this out and now, with their own efforts they have built up marketing organizations that are the wonder of the world! But all this did not come to pass in a day! For years the members of the "Grain Growers" or "United Farmers" had been attending the twice-a-week meetings of their "locals." There they exchanged opinions and gradually the more intelligent led the others on to see where salvation for the industry lay.

Although the birth rate in England during 1926 was lower than the previous year, the decrease in infant mortality more than made up for the deficit.

To the Savoy in London has gone the story of a never-to-be-forgotten flavor

THE witchery of a wonderful flavor has made "Canada Dry" the outstanding beverage success of all time.

For many, many years, this fine old ginger ale has been a famous and an honored drink in Canada. In recent years it has also become the sensation of the United States and the accepted choice of connoisseurs in many foreign capitals.

It is served at the embassies in Washington; at the famous Savoy Hotel in London; at the Ritz in Paris; at the magnificent Suvretta Haus in St. Moritz; and even at the trading post of Horton & Moore in Fort Yukon, Alaska—eighteen miles inside the Arctic Circle!

The minute you taste "Canada Dry" you will understand why it has won such world-wide favor.

"Dry," like an old wine, piquant yet mellow, agleam with sparkling champagne-like vitality, it is undoubtedly the finest ginger ale you have ever lifted to your lips.

Serve it tonight at dinner and note the zest it adds to even the simplest meal. The very sparkle of it in the tinkling glasses is a lure to lagging appetites. The Jamaica ginger in it is really good for you.

GUTHRIE SPEAKS AT PICNIC IN STIRLING

Hon. Guthrie Looks Westward Seeking Ground To Retrieve Conservative Party Fortunes

Meighen's Temporary Successor Suggests Wooing of Prairie Provinces With Offer of Preferential Freight Rates on Grain, Cattle and Coal.

DEPRECATES USE OF KNOCKING TACTICS; NO ADMINISTRATION CAN RUIN CANADA

Severe Criticism of Government's Attitude Toward Application for Renewal of Georgian Bay Canal Charter--Says King Was Committed to Project.

"The hope of the Conservative Party lies in the three Prairie Provinces of the West." Thus Hugh Guthrie, presently temporary and a probable permanent leader of the Conservative Party foreshadowed a concentration of effort to strengthen the party position by the capturing of seats in the West. Wearied by the continued lack of response from the coy habitant to the wooing so sedulously practised from the day Arthur Meighen took over the reins of the party, Mr. Guthrie points to rolling prairies of Manitoba, Sasaktchewan, and Alberta, rather than the villages and farms of Quebec, as the battlefields on which will be gained the electoral triumphs that will make possible the return of the party to the seats on the right hand side of the Speaker's chair in the House at Ottawa. Mr. Guthrie obviously recalling the somewhat pessimistic undercurrent that tinged the speeches of Arthur Meighen and other Conservative leaders during the most recent general election, deprecated the use of language that suggested "knocking" as part of electoral ammunition.

These suggestions were thrown out in a speech made by the Conservative chief yesterday at a picnic of the South Hastings Conservative Association held at the Exhibition Grounds in Stirling.

About 300 people were assembled in all parts of the field when Mr. Guthrie arrived from Belleville. Beside their leader on the platform were five Federal members, W. E. Tummon, South Hastings, E. A. Peck, of West Peterborough, Dr. A. T. Embury, Hastings-Peterborough, F. W. Bowen, Durham, and M. E. Maybee, Northumberland.

Conservative members of the Legislature of Ontario on the platform were Hon. Jfl Rfl Cooke, Minister without portfolio in the Ontario Government, W. H. Ireland, West Hastings, and J. F. Hills, East Hastings.

Mr. Tummon made a brief speech of welcome to the members and visitors. George Stokes, chairman of the Association, presided at the executive meeting and introduced the speakers at the general meeting.

The local members were limited to five-minute addresses. Mr. Cooke humorously suggested that Mr. Tummon, who had made the arrangement, had earned the gratitude of the constituency, and should be returned on that ground alone, even if no others existed.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie.

Mr. Guthrie, who was greeted by three rousing cheers from the crowd, led by Mr. Tummon, expressed thanks to the Association for giving him his first opportunity to visit Hastings on political matters. Hastings had been one of the few counties which he had never been privileged to see except from the windows of the train in passing. He was glad to have with him on the platform five of the stalwarts of the Conservative Party in the House of Commons and several members of the local Legislature, among them being one to whom he owed a deep debt of gratitude for help rendered in fighting election battles in his own constituency. During the elections of 1925 and 1926, the Hon. J. R. Cooke had been a source of strength to him in the campaign in South Wellington.

Last Year's Defeat.

There was no doubt that on the fourteenth of September last year, the Conservative Party suffered a terrible disaster. The disaster appeared all the greater because they had been so confident of the result. On the morning of the fifteenth the party was somewhat dilapidated. Among their losses was that of the talented leader, the Right Honourable Arthur Meighen.

"I have sat for 29 consecutive sessions in the House of Commons, and I have never yet seen his equal as a Parliamentarian. He was the ablest Canada ever produced," was Mr. Guthrie's striking tribute to his predecessor and former chief. 'We lost him and many others of our best and bravest," continued the Conservative leader, "and we hardly knew what to do." Mr. Meighen immediately announced his intention to retire for some time and he summoned a meeting of elected and defeated candidates to consider future action. They met on October 12. It was rather a gloomy meeting. Mr. Meighen resigned. Then the defeated candidates withdrew, leaving only the elected members to continue the deliberations. These decided to elect a temporary leader for the session. Whether it was because he had a longer consecutive Parliamentary experience than any other member in the room, or whether it was because he was the only individual present who had served on three successive Governments, he could not say; whatever the reason, the choice fell upon him and he was asked to guide the party. He was averse to accepting. He knew his limitations." But the matter was presented to him in the light of a duty, and viewing from that standpoint he agreed to accept. If they had met with any success, that was due to the loyal 90 behind and around him, who gave him loyal and unswerving support. Their own member was one of the best supporters a leader ever had, and the same applied to all the other members on the platform. They were always in the House when they were wanted; they were always ready to speak, ready to vote and available for the more serious work in committee in which the most important business of Parliament was transacted. A more loyal band no leader ever had!

Convention Called.

Another thing that was decided at the party meeting was to call a Dominion wide Conservative convention to elect a permanent leader. It was to be organized by an executive of 40, containing representatives from places between Halifax and Vancouver. It was decided to hold this convention at Winnipeg on October 12.

He was going to mention a matter in which he was misunderstood when he made reference to it at Prescott a short time before. It had been decided that the executive would meet again on the fourth of July. It had been proposed to change the date of the convention from October 11 to September 27. This would be considered by the executive. It was quite possible that the second date would be accepted but so far no change had been authorized. That was as far as one could go at present.

There were other demands One was that the number of delegates should be increased. A proposal had been made that all Conservative members of the local legislatures should be eligible to attend as delegates. This might suit Ontario all right but it could hardly seem so attractive to other provinces. Quebec had fifteen members as against Ontario's 80 in the Legislative Assemblies. Another proposal was that all the defeated Conservative candidates in the general election of 1926 should be invited. There was certain to be strong opposition to that proposal. Each riding was entitled to send as many delegates as it saw fit. Toronto could send twenty-five but it was doubtful if Prince Edward Island could send one. He doubted if the right of voting would be changed. Whatever number of delegates sent fro man association he did not think there would be any change from the rule that five and no more from one body could vote. It was only right that voting should be thus restricted in order that all votes might be on an equal basis.

New Departure.

This convention would be the first in the history of the Conservative party. Sir John A. Macdonald was appointed leader of the party so long ago that nobody remembered the date. He became leader by unanimous consent. Sir John Abbott was chosen by a caucus of Conservative member of the House of Commons. Sir John Thompson was elected similarly. So were Sir McKenzie Bowell, Sir Charles Tupper, Sir Robert Borden and Arthur Meighen. This was a new departure. It was good that they from the East should meet the people in the West. They would consult the interests of all parts from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Conservatives Needed.

Wife Left Years Ago; Husband Seeks Divorce

CHICAGO, Ill., June 23.—(United Press).—Fred Hessler finally is convinced his wife has left him for good and he has asked for a divorce. He appeared in court and said he and Barbara, his wife were married in 1889 and that she left him in 1895.

"Why did you wait so long to ask for a divorce" the judge asked. "I never lost hope that she would return. But the last couple of years my hopes have dimmed" he replied.

The court indicated he would be granted a divorce.

AGREEMENT IS STILL DISTANT AT CONFERENCE

British and American Chief Delegates Hold Private Meeting.

DISCUSS PROPOSALS.

GENEVA, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Lord Robert Cecil, British delegate to the tri-partite naval conference, and Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the United States delegation, today held a private meeting to discuss the proposals of their respective countries for further naval limitation.

No advance toward an eventual agreement was made at the conference, the most reliable information being that both confined themselves to an explanation and defence of their respective proposals. Mr. Gibson, who was accompanied by Allen W. Dulles, juridicial expert for the United States delegation, emerging from the meeting said that the peoples of Great Britain, the United States and Japan were all anxious to find an agreement and were convinced that only patience and goodwill among the delegates were needed finally to work out a common basis for an accord.

"It is natural to encounter discouragement in the solution of individual problems," he said, "but without this existing there would have been no need to call the conference." Mr. Gibson emphasized that he and Viscount Cecil had examined the British and United States proposals in an attempt to understand their mutual positions and added that nothing had occurred thus far which would justify less hopefulness in achieving a final agreement.

"Some difficulties lay in the fact that our three navies have different missions and different problems," he

HUGE PETITION IN SACCO CASE

Signed Document Mile Long Bears Over 500,000 Names.

DEMAND INVESTIGATION.

BOSTON, June 23. United Press. — Nearly a mile long and containing approximately half a million names, an international petition asking a public investigation of the Sacco-Vanzetti murder case was presented to Governor Alvan T. Fuller's office yesterday.

The petition, consisting of two paper rolls each about two and one-half feet in diameter, was taken to the state house in an automobile by Gardner Jackson and Joseph Moro, of the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee.

Signers of the petition included almost every class of person from the humblest to the highest the names of eminent educators and captains of industy being sandwiched among those of common laborers.

Governor Fuller is now reviewing the sensational seven-year-old case of Sacco and Vanzetti, who, unless he intervenes ,probably will die in the electric chair the week of July 10, for two murders committed more than seven years ago.

PROPOSAL TO PAVE HAVELOCK STREETS REJECTED BY COUNTY

No Action As In Hastings Village This Year.

TOWN VS. COUNTY.

Slight Encouragement Given By the Townships.

The paving of those streets in Norwood, Havelock and Lakefield which are designated as links in the county roads system was discussed by the County Roads committee of the County Council this morning. On division, however, only the village reeves supported the proposal.

"Another case of disagreement between the town and country," remarked Reeve Morley Smithson, who presided.

A. M. Fellowes, district engineer of the Highways Department, explained the provisions of the legislation which covers the cost of constructing a twenty foot strip of pavement on streets in towns and villages that are connecting links in the county roads system.

Hastings Example.

Recently the council of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham agreed to spend $25,000 on a pavement for the streets of Hastings village, which connect the county road systems of Northumberland and Peterborough. The county pays half the cost and the government the other half, while the village assumes the cost of the rest of the pavement outside the central strip of twenty feet.

"You are bound to come to it eventually, so why not make a start this year," Mr. Fellowes suggested. He reviewed what had been done for Hastings. The village decides upon the standard of pavement it can afford, and, proceeds with the work. Hastings will likely sign its agreement with the Department on Friday. Mr. Fellowes said that Havelock could be done more cheaply now than Norwood and Lakefield.

"We want to get away from the idea that the towns and villages get something for nothing. They are paying into the fund the same as the townships."

Reeve Curtis said Havelock had a connecting link of about a mile, but was not eager to pave the whole mile now.

Mr. Smithson commented that if the government would not build any more provincial highways in the county the council could go ahead with village pavements.

A Rather Broad Hint.

Mr. Fellowes replied that there was not much chance of further commitments in that direction, which might be interpreted as an opinion that the much mooted Belleville-Peterborough highway is a matter of concern of the Department, if indeed it is being at all considered.

Warden Middleton pointed out that the villages had been in the county roads system only one year. "It seems a little early to talk of pavement for the villages when you think of that fact. If all three were paved together we would at once assume a debenture debt of about $50,000.

Villages "Thrown Out."

Reeve Curtis—The villages were the first to urge the adoption of the county road system. The reeves of Havelock and Norwood moved that Peterborough go into the system. Then they were thrown out.

Reeve Breckenridge —I heard the villages backed down when the time came for them to sign.

Reeve Tanner—While Lakefield was not in the system, we were keeping up the connecting link in our village. In fact we were proud of our roads. The fact that the province designates it as a link doesn't change the fact that we maintained it. We're not barnacles living on the county."

John Scott's Motion.

Reeve Scott, of Asphodel moved, with Reeve Leahy of Douro, as seconder, that no action be taken this year toward paving any of the villages.

"I'd rather see an extra mill spent on our county roads,' Mr. Scott said. "We could drop the pavement until next year. We have some narrow spots on our county roads, and had an accident close to Norwood this year. That's where I'd like to see further improvement.

Reeve Tanner moved an amendment seconded by Reeve Montgomery, of Norwood, that Havelock be granted $20,000 to pave its connecting link and extension this year.

The motion carried by a majority that nearly knocked Mr. Fellowes out of his seat.

Neither Norwood or Lakefield's reeves were urgent for pavements in their villages this year, and Reeve Curtis wasn't exactly clamorous, either. He believed that his municipality would go ahead with the project if the county council gave their assent.

Mr. Fellowes' invitation to the county was conveyed in his statement— "We're willing to spend our money if you're willing to spend yours."

However, Mr. Scott's motion indefinitely deferred paving in any of the Peterborough villages.

COSGRAVE IS RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT

Republican Deputies Refuse To Take Oath of Allegiance To King.

UNABLE TO ENTER.

Streets Are Thronged With Citizens Expecting Trouble Over Political Situation.

DUBLIN, June 23 Canadian Press. —William T. Cosgrave was re-elected president of the Irish Free State Executive Council by the new Dail Eireann at its first session to-day held without the participation of Republican deputies

Patrick Hagster, chairman of the Farmers' Party, declared his party would support the government provisionally, while Captain W. A. Redmond, national group chief, said the largest party should form the government. Michael Hayes, the former Speaker of the Dail, was also re-elected

Eamon de Valera and the other deputies elected on the Fianna Fail ticket, refused to take the oath of allegiance to the King at the opening of the new Dail Eireann to-day and were refused admission to the chamber.

The Dail began its sitting without them. The streets were thronged with anxious crowds and the sole topic of conversation was the political situation created by the recent elections. Hundreds of civic guards were posted in the vicinity of Leinester House where the Dail sits and the streets adjacent were closed to traffic.

Mr. De Valera and his deputies marched to Leinster House where the Dail sits at 2.30 p.m. They were admitted to the house on showing their invitations and were conducted to one of the committee rooms. The Clerk and Deputy Clerk of the Dail entered the room to hear the Fianna Fail members take the oath of allegiance, but the later refused. Thereupon they were refused admission to the Dail Chamber

Mr. Cosgrave in a long speech before the Dail declared he did not seek the office and would accept it only if

MAN CHARGED WITH BREACH OF LIQUOR ACT

First Local Case Involving "Possession" Without Government Control Permit.

TWO VAGRANTS.

Interpreter Plays Part of Good Samaritan To Distressed Compatriot.

The first local case involving the illegal possession of liquor under the new Government Control Act came up before Magistrate O. A. Langley in the Police Court this morning, when a city resident was charged with having a bottle of liquor without his having first obtained a permit, thus committing a breach of Section 90 of the Liquor Control Act.

The accused asked for an adjournment of three days. His lawyer was out of town, he said, and would not return to the city until Monday. He was a stranger to the courts, and felt he would get along better if he had legal advice.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., was ready to proceed with the case. "Can't you get another lawyer?" he asked. Accused declared he wanted his own lawyer and no other.

"Are you sure he is alive?" asked Mr. Hatton. "He was, last night," responded accused.

The case was adjourned.

A teamster who purchased some gin and beer yesterday at the store got into trouble and was arrested by Inspector Joseph Stewart. In extenuation of his offence, he pleaded this morning that he had not been used to liquor for some time and misjudged his capacity to withstand it.

He paid a fine of $15 and costs.

John Edwards, 18 years old, arrested as a vagrant, was described as a "professional hobo," who boasted of the fact, by C. P. R. Constable John Evans, who gave evidence of having arrested him on the C. P. R. line at Havelock. He will enjoy His Majesty's hospitality for the next week.

L. Obeah, a Russian, who was also brought up on a vagrancy charge, was rescued from his awkward predicament, largely through the generous intervention of a fellow-countryman, A. Lowe. Obeah could neither read

COURT ACTION FOR DAMAGES AGAINST CITY

Judge McGlade Gives Judgment Against Defendant in Both Cases.

STREET ACCIDENTS.

His Honour Grants Mrs. E. R. Richardson $1,800 and Costs in Damage Action.

His Honour Judge McGlade gave judgment for Mrs. E. R. Richardson, of 284 George street south, wife of A. R. Richardson, for $1800, and costs, against the City of Peterboro, at the June Sessions of the Peace, held at the Court House yesterday.

Mrs. Richardson fell on the icy sidewalk on the second of February last, in front of the home of Wellington Henthorne, on Maud street, and broke her hip.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cooney of Lansdowne street, picked her up, and evidence was given by Dr. Scott, Dr. Young, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Finnie, Mr. Henthorne, Mrs. Cooney and Mr. Thomas Miller, of the dangerous condition of the sidewalk on Maud street during the latter part of January and February.

Mrs. Richardson's heavy verdict against the city was given on account of Judge McGlade finding that the city was guilty of gross negligence in permitting water to accumulate on Maud street and freeze, and no precautions were taken of putting sand on the street to remove the danger.

The judgment indicates that using sand is very important, and that on the outlying streets of the city, if the city fails to put sand upon the streets when the streets have been icy for a time, that the city is guilty of gross negligence, and liable to pay damages.

In the case of Mrs. E. R. Richardson against the City of Peterborough, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., appeared for Mrs. Richardson, with F. J. Hughes and Jos. Wearing defending the city.

Mann Case.

The case of Mann versus the City of Peterborough was yesterday tried before His Honor Judge McGlade. J. A. O'Brien acted for Mrs. Mann.

The action on behalf of Mrs. Mann was brought against the City of Peterborough by reason of the failure of the city to clean snow and ice from the sidewalk on Dalhousie street just west of the intersection of Dalhousie and Rubidge streets. Snow and ice had been allowed to accumulate here for months, so that it formed a very rough ridge of ice. Mrs. Mann

New York Mayor Launches Investigation Into Alleged Persecutions Of Jews In City Institutions

NEW YORK, June 23 (United Press).—An investigation into the alleged persecution of Jews in the city institutions has been launched by Mayor Jimmy Walker. After a visit to the King's County Hospital where six Gentile internes were arrested for "hazing" three Jewish internes, Walker declared "It is impossible to couple benevolence with bigotry."

The Mayor said that the six offending Gentiles would remain suspended from the Charity Hospital Service until the courts of Brooklyn have disposed of their cases. They are charged with assault for "ducking" the Jewish medicos in cold water and then lashing them to bed posts.

"I have begun what is to be a city-wide investigation," said Walker, "to determine to what extent religious and racial intolerance is prevalent in city hospitals."

FIVE DEPUTATIONS APPLY FOR GRANTS FROM COUNTY COUNCIL

Large Representation of Peterborough Industrial Exhibition Board.

NEED CATTLE BARN

Children's Aid Society Makes Special Appeal for Assistance.

Requests for grants were made to the County Council Wednesday afternoon by the Children's Aid Society, Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, Lakefield Agricultural Society, Peterborough Poultry Association and the Norwood Fair Board. They were referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. Roland Denne introduced the large deputation of directors of the Peterborough Exhibition. He especially congratulated the council upon its sound financial condition, and paid a tribute to Warden Middleton upon attaining the high position which his faithful service had well earned.

"You've been very good to us in the past," Mr. Denne said, "and we hope you will be disposed to us in the same way again. We had a bee for a week this spring, and the Warden was one of those who brought out his team. The city council gave us $3500 to cover the grand stand, and we look to you for help in building another cattle barn."

Town and Country.

"We would ask you to look at this deputation," Tom McIndoo requested. "You see men who left their shops and offices, sacrificing their time to make this petition. And look at the large number of farmers with us. You know how busy farmers are at this season. And why do so many of our directors join in this deputation? Because we believe we are interested in one of the greatest institutions for the development of agriculture in this district. I wish I could tell you what the Peterborough, Norwood and Lakefield fairs have done for agriculture."

Mr. McIndoo explained the advantage that had been safeguarded for amateur exhibitors at Peterboro, and of the plans for the continued progress of the exhibition.

"It is a cattle barn we need, and if you will give us $1500 we'll put $500 free labor to build a barn that will be a credit to this county and its council. And I would advocate that we put on that barn a record of the 1927 county council's gift.

"You have 16,000 assessed ratepayers. To raise $1500 would take very few cents from each ratepayer. In fact the price of three eggs from each ratepayer would build us a barn."

William Knox and Vincent Eastwood also spoke briefly for the deputation. Mr. Eastwood made a point of the county's previous grants which he preferred to regard as a sound investment, which the councillors in their wisdom had properly made. It was an investment which had already borne fruit and had great promise for the future.

"I feel sure you will not fail to back up this investment, which in your previous judgment was worthy of your support" said Mr. Eastwood, "and this money is all turned back into the county."

Mr. Eastwood spoke of the importance of agriculture as a national industry, and remarked that the banks maintained research bureaus to bring out facts pertaining to the industry from the financial and investment standpoint.

Lakefield's Petition.

Ed Galvin and Thompson Bradin, represented the Lakefield Fair Board. The Lakefield fair, said Mr. Galvin, was the oldest in the county. Its first fair was held in the streets of Bridgenorth 66 years ago. Improvements were needed to the grounds and the county's assistance would be an encouragement to the Board.

Rev. Dr. Blagrave and John Edgar reviewed the service of the Children's Aid Society in asking for a substantial grant. The officers hesitated to invoke the legislation which provided for obtaining the necessary funds by a tax levy. From the aspect of economy it was better for the country to continue the contribution plan.

Mr. Edgar declared that no money was spent unnecessarily, and cited specific cases of the society's protection of children.

Poultry Association.

Frank Dawson, president of the Peterborough Poultry Association, sought a grant of $150.

"The city has given us $200 this year," said Mr. Dawson, "and the poultry industry is of greater interest to the farmers. We are trying to maintain the standard of poultry, and also the prices of poultry and eggs."

Ambrose Coughlin's request for payment of his claim of $60 for forty yards of gravel, was referred to the Finance Committee with a favorable recommendation.

Reeve Smithson recalled the circumstances of the delivery of the gravel, and said he believed the county should pay the account

Reeve John Scott of Asphodel completed the financial appeals by asking for a grant for the Norwood fair.

Freighter Beached Following Collision

LIMA, Peru, June 23 (Canadian Press).—The United States freighter Craistor Hall of the Isthmian Steamship Line, which left New York on June 4, carrying a general cargo, has been beached in the port of Talara as a result of a collision with the British oil carrier, Reginolite, which left Halifax, May 10.

The Craistor Hall sank rapidly after the collision, but the crew was saved, while the Reginolite suffered considerable damage. The port authorities are making an investigation to determine responsibility for the collision.

JUBILEE PLANS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

J. O'Connor Granted Permission To Sell Badges on July 1st and 2nd.

"Y" CLUB DRILL.

Would Fire Two Guns Off in Salute on Morning of First.

A meeting of the Central Committee to practically complete plans for the celebration to be held here on July 1st was held in the Council Chamber last night.

J. O'Connor, a local printer, made application to the committee for the right to sell Jubilee badges on Friday and Saturday, or the 1st and 2nd of July. It was decided that Mr. O'Connor go ahead and get out such a badge for sale to the visitors on the streets and in the Exhibition Grounds on these two dates.

On the suggestion of J. M. Greene, it was also decided that the Advertising Committee arrange for committee badges to aid visitors in parking or directions.

Dr. Craig, chairman of the Parade Committee, reported that everything connected with the parade was all set to begin the building of the floats.

Mrs. Stevenson, in charge of the community singing, and T. Donaldson, chairman of the Fireworks Committee, also reported that all was in readiness for the celebration with their ends of the programme.

In regard to parking accommodation, all the east side of the Exhibition Grounds, and King Edward Park and school grounds have been arranged for, for the three days of the celebration.

Mrs. Stevenson stated that a club drill will be staged by some of the "Y" girls, under the direction of Miss Littlefield.

Mayor Holloway told the committee that he had arranged for two guns in charge of a Government expert would be fired off early in the morning as a salute to the day from some point on Armour's Hill.

Eight Bands in Parade.

J. M. Greene, chairman of the Music Committee, reported that in the parade would be eight bands, the massed music to play "O Canada" before leaving Central Park at one o'clock. Continuous music will be played in the afternoon on Friday and at night another parade will go to the grounds, consisting of the Salvation Army and the Rangers Bands.

Mr. Greene also stated that two dozen torches had also been ordered for the bands in putting on the "tattoo." Music on Saturday and Sunday afternoon and evening has also been provided for, and elaborate arrangements have been made for the choir singing on Sunday night in the Park.

Mr. Manning, chairman of the Decoration Committee, reported all O.K. in connection with the arches to be erected, and Dr. Craig stated that provision would be made for all the older residents of the city to see the parade.

The meeting then adjourned.

NOT PREJUDICE AGENDA IN 1931

Conciliation Taking Shape Among Divergencies of Powers Studying Disarmament.

MAY MAKE RATIO 5-3-4.

GENEVA, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Conciliation is taking shape among the divergences of the powers studying naval disarmament here. Great Britain's desire to re-open affairs arranged at the Washington naval conference may be partially appeased by a proposal from the United States delegation to adopt a resolution agreeing that any arrangement made at Geneva will not prejudice the agenda of the second Washington conference to be held in 1931.

There emerged from a discussion between Hugh S. Gibson, head of the United States delegation, and Admiral Saito of Japan, the possibility that the Japanese sensitiveness on the point of inferiority in cruiser strength might be soothed by a proposition to make the relative strengths of the United States and Japanese 5-3-4, rather than 5-3.

Indications are that the Americans expect no insuperable difficulty in establishing the proportion. The scheme for readjustment grew out of statistics which were based on the Japanese interpretation of the effects of the operation of a project which Admiral Saito submitted to the conference.

In the British-United States matter of re-opening the affairs of the Washington conference, it is pointed out that by the very terms of the Washington treaty the nations must convene to determine whether the developments of science justify any modification of the Washington decisions as to the size of battleships, cruisers and aircraft carriers.

Air Communication.

This incidentally would bear on the recent trans-Atlantic flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlain, which have raised the question whether aircraft carriers should not be increased in size and number to meet the rapidly developing speed of inter-continental air communication.

The United States delegation is clearly opposed to any direct reconsideration of the Washington agreements with France and Italy, the two signatories not parties to the present parleys, but may attempt to meet British ambitions half way by suggesting a resolution with the idea that a building programme on which no immediate speed was necessary could be held in abeyance until the second Washington conference.

Fix Size of Warships.

Another primal difficulty raised by the British plan has yet found no likely solution, that is, British repugnance to establishing total tonnage for auxiliary warcraft, the British merely wishing to fix the size of individual warships and their total number.

If the Japanese plan were accepted it would give Great Britain a considerably higher percentage of warcraft than the United States, and some way must be found in juggling all three plans to establish parity on paper at least between the two Anglo-Saxon nations, leaving the United States people to decide whether they wish to build up to the treaty declared parity.

If the danger seems to have been momentarily avoided concerning the fixation of a fairly satisfactory cruiser ratio as between the United States and Japan, great difficulties remain concerning the concluding part of the Japanese project, acceptance of which would permit Japan to construct all submarines without limit, as well as aircraft carriers under 10,000-tons and surface ships having a speed of under twenty knots, the guns of which would not exceed six inches.

GUARD AGAINST DEMONSTRATION

Difference of Opinion Develops Over Exclusion of Deputies From Fail.

WILL REFUSE OATH.

DUBLIN, June 23 (Canadian Press).—While police yesterday were completing arrangements to prevent any public demonstration at today's opening of the Dail Eireann, a difference of opinion developed as to the legal aspect of the exclusion of the selected deputies of the Fianna Fail, Eamon de Valera party, who will refuse to take the oath of allegiance to the King.

Three members of the Bar, Arthur C. Meredith, Albert Wood and Gavin Duffy, yesterday expressed the opinion that there was no authority under the Irish Treaty or the constitution for excluding any member from any part of the House whether he had taken the oath or not before the House had been duly constituted and the Speaker elected.

In fact, they declared that the Speaker could not be validly elected in the absence of such excluded member or members of the House.

The election of a Speaker is the first item on the Dail's program.

Under the police plans announced yesterday afternoon crowds will be prohibited from gathering in the streets near parliament house and great care will be exercised in admitting only properly accredited persons into the court yard.

Able to Pass Gateway

Like the other elected deputies, Mr. De Valera and the members of his party will be able to pass the gateway, but will not be admitted to the House without taking the oath of allegiance, an act which they have announced they will not perform. Many supporters of the party came to Dublin yesterday from all parts of the country and it is expected that Mr. De Valera will address these in open air demonstration.

It is expected that no motion for the re-election of President William T. Cosgrave to the executive council, a position which corresponds to that of Premier, will be made by any member of his party, but that this problem will be left to the initiative of some one of other groups. Mr. Cosgrave himself is expected to accept re-election only on his own terms.

The lineup of parties in the new Dail on the basis of the recent elections, is as follows:

Government party (excluding the Speaker	46
Fianna Fail	44
Labor	22
Independents	14
Farmers	11
National League	8
Sinn Fein	6
Indpendent Republican	1

The oath of allegiance to which the members of the Dail must ascribe is as follows:

"I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State, as by law established, and that I will be faithful to His Majesty King George V., his heirs and successors by law in virture of the common citizenship of Ireland with Great Britain and her adherence to and membership of the group of nations forming the British Commonwealth of nations.'

sion was the absolute necessity of a strong Conservative party. There were only 88 of the Conservatives out of a House which comprised 245 members. The Government by calling in all the forces of their allies could command a majority of 63, but the Conservative party formed an Opposition for which the Administration had a great respect. The Government had tried some tricks, but had been frustrated in them. One matter for which the Conservatives deserved credit was its saving of millions for the provinces of Ontario and Quebec in regard to the Georgian Bay scheme. "Scheme," he thought, was the proper word to apply to the affair. Had it not been for the Conservative party, Sir Clifford Sifton and his friends— allies of the King government—would now have owned some of Canada's most important national resources.

Georgian Bay Canal.

It was true that 33 years ago a charter was granted to some English capitalists to construct a canal from Georgian Bay, following the Ottawa river to Montreal. This was to be done in order to cheapen the moving of grain from the west.

In those days very little was known of electrical power and nothing at all about power transmission. The canal was merely for shipping. A few years later, the company secured permission to get power for the purposes of the undertaking—to light the banks of the canal and to move the locks. Time went on and a further clause was inserted, giving the holders of the charter the right to develop all that 200 miles of waterway, with the further prerogative of disposing of all power over and above what was needed for the canal. The charter had to come up for renewal by the House, for it expired on May first of this year. They got busy in the House of Commons. Sifton and his son were now in absolute control of the enterprise. A bill was brought in, nominally to construct a canal, but in reality to give to the Siftons 12,000,000 horse power to sell as they saw fit and for their own profit. One needed only to state the case to show its monstrosity.

This bill got its first reading. It had to. The first readings of bills were always without debate. The second reading showed that the government had committed itself to the measure. "Man after man on the Government side of the House spoke in favor of the bill," said Mr. Guthie, who stated that he had moved an amendment to kill the bill, but was defeated on a vote. Premier King spoke in favor of the bill; so did Mr. Euler of Waterloo, Mr. Dunning and another member of the Government, whose name has slipped his memory for the moment. Altogether 20 Liberal members spoke in favor of this bill and not one Conservative said a word on its behalf. Speaking for a bill in its second reading, said Mr. Guthrie, meant that one was in favor of the principle it contained. The Conservatives raised a big storm. Day and night they fought the measure. Some newspapers then spoke out against the proposal. The Conservatives forced a division. Every Liberal except one voted to hand over this heritage to the Siftons and every Tory said, "No, kill the bill." The bill passed the second reading. The Government had committed itself to the bill.

But the opposition had done some good. Every paper took the side taken by the Conservatives. From Boards of Trade, Chambers of Commerce ,and township councils, came telegrams by the score every day urging them to throw it out and when the measure reached the committee it was thrown out on the second day.

Tax Reduction.

To take another instance. The Liberal party were very fond of boosting Mr. Robb, the Minister of Finance. Mr. Robb was a fine man, a very genial man who had few enemies. But when he made a statement the Liberals regarded it as gospel. When he said he had reduced taxation, they got up and cheered their heads off. But Mr. Robb omitted to say that the reductions he had made were in taxes which he had himself put on and not those of Mr. Meighen. They had made a reduction in the case of the Stamp Act. They reduced the stamps on checks to 2 cents. "But that was all the tax amounted to when I was in the government in 1921," said Mr. Guthrie. The Sales Tax was another case in point. When the Meighen government left office in 1921, there was a sales tax of one and a half per cent on manufacturers and one and a half on jobbers, making a total of three per cent. on all goods. This was a war tax. Mr. Fielding raised this tax to four and a half per cent. Mr. Robb later raised it to six per cent. They found this was interfering with trade, so they lowered it, first to five per cent. amid loud cheers from the Liberal following in the House and then to four per cent. But under the Meighen government this tax was at its peak at three per cent.

Income Tax.

They made a cut in the Income Tax. This no doubt pleased certain men in Toronto and Montreal. It was a liberal cut to the very wealthy man, but did not mean one cent to any of those in the audience. The big fellows in Toronto and Montreal with the big incomes got a substantial reduction. A reduction from five to four per cent. in the Sales Tax was all that the ordinary man or woman got out of the changes of the government.

Did they realize that four dollars out of every hundred of their house purchases went into the treasury of Mr. Robb? Would it not have been better to take off the tax on clothing or boots and shoes and give some relief to the poorer classes than to waste half a million dollars in Washington? But the Liberals voted to maintain that tax. Every Conservative voted to blot it out. The cost of clothing was an important item in the family of a man who had five children. It would have cost the country less to take off the tax on clothing than they were paying for the upkeep of Massey in his palatial building in Washington. The government took that course and let the people foot the bill.

Mr. Robb's claims as to debt reduction were equally peculiar. In 1925 he announced he had made a cut of 30 millions in the national debt. In the following year he claimed to have reduced the debt by 35 millions. In 1927 he declared the reduction was 27 millions.

This made a total of 92 millions which Mr. Robb claimed represented the reduction in the national debt. But the report of the Auditor General showed a reduction of 76 millions. Where did the difference go? Nobody suggested that it was stolen. But, declared Mr. Guthrie it was clear that either the book keeping was wrong or Mr. Robb was wrong.

The real debt of the country was the net debt. According to the report of the Auditor-General, the net debt was larger by 57 millions than under the government of Arthur Meighen. There was something rotten in the system. The cost of living was now the highest since January, 1922. From the reports of the government it could be seen that in January of this year, the cost of maintaining a family of five was the same as in 1922. It was a little higher in February. Where was the reduction?

Fiscal Changes.

The fiscal policy of this country was fixed by Sir John A Macdonald when he inaugurated the National Policy in 1897. This was maintained by his successors until they were defeated in 1896. Laurier and Fielding carried on for fifteen years. Any addition made to the country's prosperity during their term was due to their maintenance of that policy. Borden continued it. Meighen did the same. Not until King came into power was any serious attempt made to alter the fiscal policy. In obedience to the claims of some of his supporters ,notably the Progressives, King lowered the tariff on agricultural implements. Then a howl went up, and the greatest came from Vincent Massey. King reduced the tariff from 12½ p.c. to 6. In this case there was no sales tax. The five per cent. was wiped out. All raw material imported for the industry was allowed to enter free of duty. That was what won Massey over. The Progressives and Grits were jubilant. But, declared Mr. Guthrie, it had been shown from the sales books of the implement makers that the reductions in tariff were no help to the farmer, who had to pay more than the original price for his requirements. In 1921, a 6 foot tractor with a carrier and truck sold for $252. After the cut, the price of the same implement was $255. A 7 foot binder with carrier and truck cost $258 in 1921. In May, 1922, the farmer had to pay $260. And there was no 5 p.c. going to the government. All the difference went into the pockets of the manufacturer. The government supporters had cheered vociferously when the cuts were announced. Now there were only two firms engaged in the manufacture of agricultural implements—the Massey and the Harvester. There used to be 24. It was much easier for two competitors to get together and to fix a price than for 24 competitors to do so. He did not say they had actually done this, but there was no doubt that the government's action had made such a thing possible.

How was the reduction in taxation effected? When there was a shortage of finance in the country, the government issued treasury notes, not backed by gold or silver. These were used to pay for the wheat of the country during transportation. The government had issued more than were needed of these, and notes representing face value of 56 millions were called in, torn up and burned, or as the statute said, "cremated." This was simple fiat money that was burned up and did not show any real reduction.

Immigration.

With regard to immigration, Mr. Guthrie declared that the King Government was ashamed of the results it had attained. Manitoba in 1921 had a population of 610,000. After five years and an expenditure of 4 million dollars a year on immigration, the population of this province had increased by only 28,000, which showed that Manitoba was not retaining even her natural increase. The large province of Saskatchewan had a little better showing. In 1921 the population was 758,000, and in 1926 821,000—63,000 more, an increase of 9 per cent. Alberta with all its advantages of climate and resources, had only increased from 588,000 to 607,000. The immigration policy of the King Government had been a ghastly failure.

No Knocking.

Declaring that he was now proceeding to discuss more personal matters, Mr. Guthrie said that if he had a criticism to make of the policy of the Conservative party of recent years, it was that the old spirit of optimism of the party was not so much in evidence. No matter how bad conditions or governments were, and he knew that the King Government was bad enough, they as a party should refrain from anything that had the appearance of knocking. He did not believe that the King Government had the power to ruin this country. The foundations of the prosperity of this country were laid by the Conservatives. Confederation was achieved by the vision of their great Conservative chief Sir John A. Macdonald. It was Conservative optimism and courage that made possible the linking up of the country by rail, and no government could undo the work that had been done to put Canada in the front rank of nations.

Hope In West.

He believed that the hope of the Conservative party lay in the West. They had labored indefatigably and had expended much labor and thought in campaigns to bring in Quebec but what had been the result? They had four seats out of 464. In the three Prairie Provinces lay the hope of the party. In the last election, the Conservatives polled 200,000 votes, while all their opponents among them secured 400,000 votes. Yet the Conservatives had only one seat out of 54 in these areas. Had they devoted to these provinces some of the effort which they had expended on Quebec, there might have been a different tale to tell to-day. The people in the West had different interests from those in Ontario. Their produce was cattle and grain. Their difficulties arose from freight rates. Could the freight rates from the West not be adjusted in the same way as those of the Maritimes were adjusted?

Ontario and Quebec were without coal. Alberta produced coal in abundance, and only an occasional car load reached Ontario. Nova Scotia was built on a coal bed, and seldom did a consignment of coal from Nova Scotia get beyond Montreal. Why should not the freight rates be adjusted to permit of Ontario being supplied with Alberta coal and Quebec with coal from Nova Scotia and thus keep within the country one hundred millions of dollars which went into the pockets of coal operators south of the boundary line?

St. Lawrence.

One other question, probably more serious than any of the others would soon have to come up for decision. This was the development of the St. Lawrence. He pledged himself to maintain the rights of the people in any contract that would be made and assured his hearers that Ontario's claims would not be overlooked.

He had tremendous faith in the party. He had tremendous faith in the future of his country. There was no country under the sun that had the resources and the future prospects of Canada. To find an adequate description of Canada he had to fall back on the words of an old seer, the words of Moses as recorded in the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy, "For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley and vines, a land of oil, olive and honey; a land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass. When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he hath given thee."

F. W. Bowen.

Mr. Bowen made it very clear that he was not in favor of the new Embassy at Washington. "Spending half a million for Massey," was how he expressed it. Declaring that the exodus to the United States was still continuing, Mr. Bowen said there were Canadian citizens, living in U.S., who had been forced to emigrate in numbers sufficient to create 50 cities with 10,000 inhabitants each.

E. A. Peck.

Mr. Peck congratulated the Stirling people on living in a beautiful little village situated in a lovely township. At the election of 1925, they had been somewhat worried about South Hastings. They had always looked on South Hastings as standing out for good Tory principles. It had come as a shock to them when, in a by-election which they had confidently expected to win, they found that South Hastings had gone back. It was a shock because it seemed to be an evidence of the sliding away of the whole district which had so long been predominantly Conservative. When they heard that a gentleman who was not then very well known outside the constituency had been offered the nomination they hoped but doubted. They in West Peterborough worried more about South Hastings than they did about their own riding. But the results showed their doubts to have been unnecessary. Mr. Tummon was returned by a larger majority than West Peterborough rolled up. All the ridings in the neighborhood returned large majorities. At the last election this part of the county had remained true to its colors and had returned members to support Mr. Guthrie. He was sure they had been a happy family in the Commons, although they were not in the majority.

Dr. Embury.

Dr. Embury prefaced his remarks by explaining that previous arrangements made by the Hastings - Peterborough Association for the holding of its convention rendered it impossible to accept the invitation of his hosts, to hold a joint South Hastings and Hastings-Peterborough convention at Stirling. Canada, he said, had returned to the two-party system, and it was up to every organization to strengthen itself to bring about a return to Conservative leadership of the country within a few years.

J. R. Cooke.

"In a democratic country like this," said Mr. Cooke, "it is only natural that governments should come and go." Patriotism was not the monopoly of any one party, and it was not in any spirit of party prejudice that in this Diamond Jubilee year, they looked over the history of the past sixty years. Surrounded as they were by every evidence of luxury and wealth, they were apt to forget the difficulties that lay ahead of these old pioneers, who labored with strength and diligence to build up in Canada a nation that would be the equal of any in the world.

J. F. Hills.

That the Conservative Opposition had placed the country under a heavy debt of gratitude to it, for having saved the Dominion the loss of many millions of dollars, was the claim put forward by Mr. Hills, who also eulogized Mr. Guthrie as one who had led the party with great skill after his appointment as temporary leader in the Commons.

M. E. Maybee.

Mr. Maybee praised Mr. Guthrie for his skilful leadership. Mr. Guthrie, he said, had taken charge of them when they were sheep without a shepherd. He filled the breach in a time of emergency. While the number of Liberals in the House was 116, and that of the Conservatives was only 91, they polled 100,000 more votes than did their opponents. So that the Conservative party was not dead by any means. Any prosperity this country had ever enjoyed was due to the national policy laid down by Sir John A. Macdonald and carried out by all succeeding Conservative governments.

W. H. Ireland.

Mr. Ireland said someone had referred to the extravagant home that had been provided for Vincent Massey in Washington. For his part, he considered the money well spent. It was worth half a million to get rid of Massey, and he suggested that they might well spend a million for the purpose of shipping off Premier King.

The following telegram from T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P. for Victoria, was received by Mr. Tummon:

"Sorry, impossible for me to be with you to-day. Best wishes for a successful picnic.—T. H. Stinson."

Officers Elected.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

George Stokes, Tweed, re-elected as chairman.

Secretary-Treasurer—R. H. Ketcheson, Belleville.

Vice-Presidents—J. W. Carleton, Hungerford; C. Goodman, Tyndyaga; W. H. Harvey, Desoronto; H. F. Ketcheson, Belleville; J. Bingham, Frankford; F. Campbell, Sidney; J. Gaina, Trenton; W. S. Martin, Stirling.

Delegates to Winnipeg—Mrs. Kinnear, Belleville; H. F. Ketcheson, Belleville; C. Weese, Thurlow; J. E. Garratt, Trenton.

At the executive meeting held in the early afternoon before the speeches, sympathetic reference was made to the death of Anthony M. Rankin, ex-M.L.A. for Frontenac County, by W. H. Ireland, who spoke in commendation of his former associate in the Assembly at Toronto.

In response to a communication from Kingston Conservative Association, it was decided to grant $50 for the purchase of a wreath to be placed on the grave of Sir John A. Macdonald at Kingston.

After the speeches, the crowd sallied around the grounds, watching the ball games, or listening to the music of the Frankford Band.

NEW TRIAL IS SET FOR RUSSELL SCOTT

Supreme Court Remanding Case Criticize Officials of Cook County.

CHICAGO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Six times within the shadow of the gallows and four times saved by last minute reprieves, Russell T. Scott, sentenced to death for murder, gained a new trial yesterday when the State Supreme Court remanded his case with severe criticism of Judge Marcus Kavanaugh and the office of Robert E. Crowe, Cook County State's attorney. Scott is a former Canadian millionaire.

"We wish it distinctly understood we have not even considered the question of whether the defendant was shown by legitimate evidence in this case to be sane or insane within the meaning of the statute," said the court.

The last phase of Scott's case went before the high court upon an appeal from a decision that he had recovered sanity and was subject to hanging after his life once had been saved by a last minute finding that he was insane and after he had served many months in the state prison for the criminal insane.

Not Had Fair Trial

"It is apparent that the defendant has not had a fair and impartial trial," read the decision. Judge Kavanaugh was held incompetent because of prejudice, and the jury was held to have been incompetent because it was "unduly prejudiced by the conduct of the judge and the misconduct of the prosecutor."

"We have had to reverse many cases coming from the criminal court of Cook County for similar unprofessional conduct of the prosecutors there, and we have recently indicated that we will not hesitate to reverse judgment so obtained," said the court in its decision handed down at Springfield.

Scott yesterday heard dully and without emotion that he again would be tried for the crime for which his brother, Robert, now is serving a life sentence—the slaying of young Joseph Maurer, clerk, in a drug store robbery opposite Chicago's City Hall nearly four years ago.

CAMPBELLFORD LEADS LEAGUE

Defeats Warkworth in Baseball Game Which is Full of Disputes.

SCORE 10-5.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23. — The Campbellford vs. Warkworth baseball game at Warkworth yesterday afternoon was a verbal combat from start to finish. The oldest ball players claim that it surpassed anything they had ever listened to by way of a growling match. Strikes and balls seem to have got horribly mixed up, and Warkworth sought to undo the tangle by demanding the removal of the plate umpire, although one of their own men. Between the angles the teams indulged in baseball, and at the end of the wrangle and the game, the score was 10-5 in favour of Campbellford.

The line-up:

Warkworth — A. Zufelt, p; Wilson, c; C. Zufelt, 1b; Hoolihan, 2b; Samis, 3b; Driver, ss; Jones, rf; Duncan, cf; Dawson, lf; subs., Dawkins, Sommers.

Umpires — Curtis, plate; Christie, bases.

Zufelt got in some good pitching, at times hitting the Ivey pace. Holmes hit a nice three-bagger, and also made a nice double play (Blute to Holmes at second) and Holmes to Christie at first).

Quite a number of cars went over to Warkworth for the game.

The winning of this game puts Campbellford at the head of the Northumberland League. The standing is as follows:

	Won.	Lost
Campbellford	3	0
Hastings	3	1
Keene	1	2
Warkworth	0	4

CANADA HONORED

The selection of Canada as the country in which the third World's Poultry Congress will be held is a marked tribute to the prominence which this Dominion is attaining among the nations of the world. Only two previous Congresses have been held; one at The Hague, and one at Barcelona, Spain. The showing of Canadian poultry at the Barcelona Congress was so outstanding that the invitation extended by the Canadian Government to hold the next Congress in Canada was accepted, notwithstanding keen competition for the honor by other countries.

The preliminary announcement of the Third World's Poultry Congress has just been issued from headquarters at Ottawa. It is a very attractively prepared and illustrated booklet which will carry into all civilized countries not only the congress announcement, but a better conception of Canada and things Canadian. The information contained is concise but complete, and the illustrations reflect the various aspects of Canadian life. Agriculture, naturally, plays a large part, but the scenic beauties of the country, and glimpses of its industrial and artistic development, have not been overlooked.

The Third World's Poultry Congress will be held at Ottawa, July 27th to August 4th, 1927. Full information may be obtained from the Minister of Agriculture in each Province, who is chairman of the congress provincial committee, or from Ernest Rhoades, Congress Secretary, Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

SEND CHILDREN TO THE SOVIET

British Government Was Defeated in Attempt To Prevent Step.

PASSPORTS REFUSED.

LONDON, June 23. — (Canadian Press.)—The Daily Mail says that six children of British communists left London last night for Leningrad aboard the soviet steamer Youshar, notwithstanding the home secretary's refusal to grant them passports.

The determination of the communist organization to get the children to Russia and the resolve of the authorities to prevent them going has filled much space in the newspapers lately. Now, according to the Mail, the communists have won the struggle ,and five boys ,about 12 years of age, and a girl of the same age, are voyaging to Russia in response to the invitation of Moscow, apparently for purposes of education. The paper says two of them had passports, but how they obtained them is a mystery.

Precedent Established.

Moscow's invitation was announced on May 13, and after a discussion in the papers, it was stated on June 13 that the government had decided to refuse passports ,thus establishing a precedent, as heretofore passports have not been refused unless the applicant has been convicted of a crime.

The next step was a declaration by A. J. Cook ,secretary of the Miners' Federation of Great Britain, that a way woud be found to send the children, despite the government This seems to have been done.

LINDBERGH WILL VISIT DOMINION

Accepts Invitation To Attend July 1st Celebration at Ottawa.

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press).—A special dispatch to the New York American from St. Louis, Mo., says that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the trans-Atlantic flier, has accepted the invitation of the Canadian government to visit the Dominion on the occasion of the celebration of the Jubilee of Confederation.

The dispatch says: 'Colonel Lindberg has accepted the invitation of the Canadian Government to visit the Dominion, July 1, it was announced here just before the "Lone Eagle" hopped off on a flight for Dayton, Washington and New York.

"Lindbergh will spent the night at Dayton."

FLAGS FLYING.

To-day is 33rd Birthday of the Prince of Wales.

LONDON, June 23 (Canadian Press).— Government buildings and West end clubs flew flags today in honor of the 33rd birthday of the Prince of Wales. Apart from the time-honored custom of so recognizing birthdays of the King and the heir to the throne, there was no public recognition of the event.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SURPRISE

It was a very hot day in Woodland where Uncle Wiggily lived in his hollow stump bungalow. Not even the Orange Ice mountains in the distance seemed to make it cooler.

"Of course we'll have hotter weather than this in July," said Mrs. Longears, fanning herself with a big leaf off the grape vine.

"I suppose so, but I don't like to think about it," sighed Uncle Wiggily.

"There's a little more ice-cream left," remarked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, who had taken a swim down the brook to the store and had come back with some of the cool, sweet stuff. Keeping in the water as she did, made her rather comfortable.

"I wish some of the children in the Hollow Stump School could have some of this," said Mrs. Longears as she fed herself some ice-cream.

"I don't believe they give lessons in anything like this, more is the pity," Uncle Wiggily said, as he, also, put some ice-cream on his tongue. "It must be very hot in school!"

"And coming on toward vacation time, it is all the harder to stand it," squeaked Nurse Jane. "I know our little bunnies just didn't want to go at all this morning when they found out how hot it was going to be."

Uncle Wiggily jumped up so suddenly that he knocked his ice cream dish to the floor. But that didn't matter for he had eaten all there was in it.

"What are you going to do?" asked his wife in surprise. "You shouldn't move so quickly in hot weather. You may lose some of your fur!"

"I am going to give the Lady Mouse Teacher, our little bunnies and all the other children in the Hollow Stump School a surprise," said Mr. Longears with a chuckle. "It doesn't seem right for us to be sitting here eating refreshing ice cream while they are sweltering in the heat.

"I don't see how you can take enough ice cream to feed all the children in school," objected his wife.

"I'm not going to take them ice cream," replied Mr. Longears. "My surprise is going to be a lemonade one. You squeeze some lemons, Nurse Jane, if you please. My dear," added the Bunny gentleman to his wife, "you get the sugar and water. I'll get a piece of ice in a big pail from Mr. Whitewash, the polar bear gentleman, and I'll borrow the little express wagon I saw Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow playing with yesterday."

No sooner said than done! In a short time Uncle Wiggily, with a big pail filled with cool, sweet lemonade on the express wagon, was drawing it toward the Hollow Stump School, keeping on the shady side of the street.

"What have you there?" bleated Uncle Butter the goat, who was resting in the shade of a big fence on which were pasted circus posters.

"I have a surprise here," answered Uncle Wiggily, and when he gave Uncle Butter a sip of lemonade the goat cried:

"Well, I am agreeably surprised!"

"I hope Miss Mouse and the children will be," chuckled Uncle Wiggily.

He hopped on with his express wagon of lemonade and was almost at the Hollow Stump School when, all of a sudden, the Wolf jumped out from behind a lamp post. The Wolf saw that the Police Dog had gone to sleep on account of the heat and the Wolf, said to himself:

"I'll have an easy time catching Uncle Wiggily!" So when the bad chap jumped out in front of the rabbit and cried: "What have you there?"

Mr. Longears replied: "I have a surprise!"

"For whom?" asked Wolf, for once in his life speaking correctly.

"For you!" shouted Mr. Longears. With that he took the big chunk of ice out of the pail of lemonade, for it was now cool enough, and the rabbit let the ice fall right on the toes of the Wolf.

"Wow! Ouch! Hi! Yi! What's the meaning of that?" howled the Wolf.

"I told you it was a surprise!" chuckled the rabbit. And before the Wolf could limp along after him, the rabbit gentleman ran fast with the pail of cool, sweet lemonade to school. And Miss Mouse and all the animal children were most happily surprised.

"We were hot, but now we are cool. Thank you, Mr. Longears!" squeaked Miss Mouse, and the bunny felt very happy.

EDUCATION IS NECESSARY FOR HAPPY COUNTRY

Good Schools Tend To Make Country Prosperous and Happy.

A COMPARISON.

Young People Will Not Remain if the Conditions Are Not Good.

BY RURALITE

There are two townships lying not far from Peterborough in which agricultural conditions are very different. Education is also on a totally different footing. And it appears that the educational condition directly affects the agricultural.

In one of those townships a high school was established several years ago. With a high school conveniently situated, making education cheaper, parents made mighty efforts to educate their children. Even before they had a local school they sent as many as possible of their children to other centres to be educated, often making great sacrifices to do so. For many years now almost every child has had at least a year or two in high school. And what is the result? Dozens of the daughters of the township are teaching in Eastern and Western Canada. Many of the sons are teaching high and public school, are dentists, clergymen, or are well up in the business world. Those young people are making good wherever they are locate.

And what of the farms they left? Several are left untilled, some that are tilled have insufficient help. Everywhere farms are for rent and for sale. The soil is good, prices for most produce are fair but farms are unworked. Why?

Some people explain by saying that high school makes young people lazy, but in fairness it must be said that this is untrue. Farm young people at high school are almost always industrious and make the most of their school time. We have to look further to find the reason why young people (boys especially) refuse to stay on the farm once they are educated. Everyone is entitled to his opinion. The writer's opinion is that the remuneration received from the farm, considering the hours of labor, is entirely too small.

Farmers arise anywhere from four to six o'clock, not many as late as six, for many months of the year and some of them work as long as they can see and expect their sons to do likewise. From thirteen to sixteen hours, except for the short time devoted to meals, is the usual routine. And what is the remuneration? It is a lucky farmer who makes six hundred or seven hundred dollars above expenses for a year's labor. Many do not clear half that much, and this is the wages of the farmer and his wife and whatever children are old enough to be put to work! Those are the wages for two eight-hour days out of the twenty-four! In lean years it is a hard pull to make ends meet!

In recent years many farmers have automobiles (many too, have none) and most have telephones and daily mail. Scarcely any have modernhomes or any labor-saving devices such as gasoline engines, to pump, churn, wash, separate milk or grind feed. Very few have furnaces to make the home comfortable and many would hold up their hands in holy horror at the extravagance of burning coal. As for running water, bath fixtures, electric light and other electric appliances such as farm homes elsewhere on the continent have, they are non-existent in this particular portion of Ontario. Many women still use the back-breaking wash-tub to do the family wash and many farmers (sometimes it is the farmer's wife) get up and with chattering teeth light the cook-stove to provide the home with heat.

Is it to be wondered at that young people do not stay under such conditions?

And what of the other township? Land is at a premium! Very little is for sale and scarcely any for rent. Many of the young people must leave home to seek a livelihood elsewhere. They go to factories in Eastern U.S. cities, they go to Western Canada or, in the case of the girls they go to the cities to be domestic servants, or to work in factories or stores. They are uneducated, so the professional and business world is closed to them. Until the last three or four years not one per cent of the young people have been to high school. There is no high school close and parents think it costs too much to send them away. Thus it looks as if farm prosperity is obtained at too great a price, i.e., by depriving young people of higher education, which most people who know, will admit, is very necessary today for success in life.

Why cannot a decent margin of profit be made on a farm without such unreasonably long hours? Crops mostly are good. The answer, in the writer's opinion is lack of organization and co-operation. The middle-man controls every product of the farm and the toll he takes is a heavy one. He lives in luxury and comfort at the expense of the farmer, and, either the farmer doesn't realize the cause of his condition or his want of education makes him suspicious of his more progressive neighbor who advocates organization. Farmers are the only unorganized class in the world and hence they are always "hewers of wood and drawers of water" for people who handle the products of their toil and for persons who manufacture their implements of production and their other needs.

And what is the cure for the ills of the farmer? Undoubtedly, education is, which seems a contradiction, when earlier it was stated that education sends young people away from the farms.

If a course in co-operation were taught in the high schools what a revolution would take place on the farms of the land!

As it is, the educated minds are all drawn to the city to support the industrial and business structure of the country and this structure is becoming top-heavy because its agricultural base is unsound. If only those brains could be put to work for the good of the farmer! For no one will ever lift the farmer to a better condition unless he does it for himself. Farmers of Western Canada found this out and now, with their own efforts they have built up marketing organizations that are the wonder of the world! But all this did not come to pass in a day! For years the members of the "Grain Growers" or "United Farmers" had been attending the twice-a-week meetings of their "locals." There they exchanged opinions and gradually the more intelligent led the others on to see where salvation for the industry lay.

Although the birth rate in England during 1926 was lower than the previous year, the decrease in infant mortality more than made up for the deficit.

"Surprises on Ice"

To the Savoy in London has gone the story of a never-to-be-forgotten flavor

THE witchery of a wonderful flavor has made "Canada Dry" the outstanding beverage success of all time.

For many, many years, this fine old ginger ale has been a famous and an honored drink in Canada. In recent years it has also become the sensation of the United States and the accepted choice of connoisseurs in many foreign capitals.

It is served at the embassies in Washington; at the famous Savoy Hotel in London; at the Ritz in Paris; at the magnificent Suvretta Haus in St. Moritz; and even at the trading post of Horton & Moore in Fort Yukon, Alaska—eighteen miles inside the Arctic Circle!

The minute you taste "Canada Dry" you will understand why it has won such world-wide favor.

"Dry," like an old wine, piquant yet mellow, agleam with sparkling champagne-like vitality, it is undoubtedly the finest ginger ale you have ever lifted to your lips.

Serve it tonight at dinner and note the zest it adds to even the simplest meal. The very sparkle of it in the tinkling glasses is a lure to lagging appetites. The Jamaica ginger in it is really good for you.

THE JUBILEE BROADCAST.

The broadcasting of the music of the carillon of bells in the Victory Tower at Ottawa on Dominion Day will be one of the outstanding features of the national celebration of Confederation.

By the linking up of all Canada's radio stations and the use of thousands of miles of telegraph wire and other equipment, it is hoped to carry the sound of Canada's celebration around the world, one of the most ambitious broadcasting schemes yet attempted.

Unfortunately, however, the broadcast is scheduled for 1 o'clock on Dominion Day, an hour which will make it almost impossible for Canadians outside of Ottawa who will be busy with their own local celebrations, to "listen in" on the programme from the capital.

If it were possible for the National Committee to arrange another broadcast late in the evening of Dominion Day when the people of Canada would have a better chance to here the new bells, the arrangement would be appreciated in all parts of the Dominion.

THE JUBILEE DECORATIONS.

Citizens of Peterborough generally are urged to do their part in regard to the decorating of the city for the Diamond Jubilee.

The business streets are being well looked after, and thanks to the efforts of the Decoration Committee, various societies and the merchants, the decoration of the down-town section will surpass anything of this nature seen here.

But we don't want to stop at that.

The residential streets should also be decorated.

There should not be a house in the city without some sign that the Diamond Jubilee is being celebrated by everybody in the community.

Every home should have a flag flying—even if it is only a 15c cotton ensign.

It is not the cost that will count, but the spirit, and there is not a family in Peterborough that has not good reason for loving Canada and for showing that love by a whole-hearted participation in the jubilee.

In preparing for the celebration don't forget your decorations—fly the flag.

LEARN TO SWIM.

With a qualified swimming instructor giving free lessons daily, there is no valid reason why the non-swimmers of Peterborough should not soon master the art and have the satisfaction of knowing that they are better equipped against accidents and able to enjoy one of the most enjoyable of recreations.

The Peterborough Rotary Club, as a contribution to a safer city and in the hope of doing something to lessen the yearly toll of lives lost through drowning, have secured for the summer the services of an expert swimmer, and he will be on duty daily at Inverlea Park ready to help anybody who wants to learn how to swim.

Despite the fact that marked progress has been made in recent years, and that the percentage of swimmers in the city's population is higher than it ever was, there are still many people who have never learned to swim.

The chance is now their's.

Mr. Taylor, the Rotary instructor, is at their service, and his presence here for the summer should result in a large increase in the number of swimmers.

The enterprise of the Rotary Club in this community service should be rewarded by a large turn-out of pupils.

The lessons are free.

FATHER HAS HIS DAY.

Last Sunday, being the third Sunday in June, was "Father's Day," having been set aside for that purpose by the United States Congress. The New York Times says the parentage of Father's Day is "swathed in the mists of doubt," but it chronicles the claims of one Mrs. John B. Dobb, of Spokane, to have been its originator. At any rate in the beginning there was a lack of uniformity, and the States paid tribute to Father on varying dates. Then in 1914, according to The Times, Congress took a hand and said the first Sunday in June should be Father's Day throughout the United Sttaes. Later it was shifted from the first Sunday of June to the third Sunday, and there it stands with all the authority of Congress, the tobacco dealers, the haberdashers and the florists. Father has his special flower, The Times reveals, the florists having agreed that a red rose is the proper symbol of his day.

Not all the arts of propaganda have succeeded in making Father's Day popular even in the United States, which is the home of many sentimental causes. The Times interviewed three men at random, and publishes their opinions. "I think it's a lot of bunk," said one; "Some one is trying to work those 'Lindy' ties off on us," said another; while the third expressed a preference for buying his own cigars. "Fathers aren't whooping it up," comments The Times, "for they realize they will have to pay the bills."

Apparently even the United States Father does not want his day, and the Canadian Father is not likely to be thrilled particularly by a celebration of his virtues authorized by the Parliament of a foreign country. But if those forces which organize our ways wish it to be so, we fear Father will have to put up with his day and dutifully pay the bills for the cigars and neckties which come to him on the third Sunday of June.—Ottawa Journal.

HOW TO CURE INSOMNIA.

Sir Alfred Yarrow, a British scientist, was troubled with insomnia. The orthodox cures were of no avail. No doubt he counted imaginary sheep leaping over an imaginary hedge, or drank a glass of hot milk, or got out of bed to tire himself with physical exercise, but it was all to little purpose. He used to listen to the midnight taxis, to hear the milkman on his rounds, and "Tired Nature's sweet restorer, balmy sleep," eluded his pursuit as if she were the woman of whom it was written in her memory:

"For if she will, she will, you may depend on 't;
"And if she won't, she won't: so there's an end on 't."

Then Sir Alfred came to Canada—and his long search was at an end. It was not in the great open spaces that he found surcease, nor did the salt breezes of the coast cities or the soft zephyrs of the lakes and prairies lull him to sweet forgetfulness of mundane things. The softest hotel bed was but another bed, and there he still counted sheep on into the dawn. But on a journey from Vancouver to Montreal the scientist found, to his astonishment and delight, that he could sleep. His insomnia fled before the delightful rocking motion of the train and "cabin'd, cribb'd, confin'd" in his berth—upper or lower, we are not told—he slept through mountains and prairies, by lakes and farms, into a new conception of the charm of Canadian transportation and hospitality.

Sir Alfred, being a scientist, went home full of his discovery. It was not practicable that he should spend the remainder of his life commuting between Montreal and Vancouver, but if he could duplicate in his own home the particular effects which caused him to sleep in Canada life would offer him much more of comfort and pleasure. He had the National Physical Laboratory construct him a bed to reproduce all the motions of a train and there he sleeps like a baby. To secure the exact effect Sir Alfred should undress on a shelf in his clothes closet, set a large whistle to go off at intervals during the night, provide the counterpart of a freight engineer's bump once every hour and through some artificial means reproduce the sustained roar of the car wheels, but it is probable he does not carry quite to that extent the verisimilitude of his patent couch. He turns on the rocking device, thinks a few gentle thoughts of Canadian scenery—and, Presto! The alarm clock rouses him and it's another day.—Ottawa Journal.

THE NAVAL CONFERENCE.

President Coolidge's naval limitations conference, now under way in Geneva, should not be confused with the idea of a disarmament conference. Such a thing was not intended. As forecast in these columns some time ago, the principal idea is to establish a fixed relationship between the leading powers. The first day's proceedings have shown how that objective is to be sought.

The programmes of Great Britain and the United States, while ostensibly aimed at the same thing, differ in the method of application. The United States would fix the standards on a basis of total tonnage, while Great Britain wants a definite individual limitation on each class of vessel.

Britain, in proposing a definite limit on first line ships, reveals that her idea of the future navy is in smaller and quicker vessels, that her navy is to be so designed, and that she plans to have others of the powers fall in line. The United States' idea would place no limit on the armaments or design of any one ship, so long as the total of each class is kept within stated tonnage, in the ratio of five tons each for Britain and the United States, to three for Japan. It is noteworthy that this relation will, if adopted, start the United States on a large building programme.

There is little in the programmes of either country which could be called disarmament, save the British proposal for smaller guns on warships, and for a limitation of such armament on other types of naval craft. What the conference does not reveal is a definite move to adapt the navy of the future to the dangers and the assistance of aircraft. Smaller, faster ships will be the order of the future, both by virtue of Britain's tonnage limitation, and by the United States' cruiser building programme to bring her to the strength of Britain.

The Washington conference led to more efficient navies than before, in spite of its scrapping, and the present conference will take the world a step further, toward perfection in ocean fighting machines.—Border Cities Star.

IT MAY BE AN ENGINE OF PEACE.

There has been a great deal of discussion about the airplane as an engine of war. The recent receptions accorded to Col. Lindbergh and Mr. Chamberlin in Europe are sufficient to cause thoughtful people to wonder whether the airplane will not rather be a great factor in international peace.

Distance and lack of knowledge make for distrust. Nearness and frequent communication bring understanding and sympathy. The friendship between Americans and Canadians, the peace that has endured for more than a century, are due largely to the fact that neither country looks on the other as foreign in the same sense that Russia and Germany are foreign to each other. There is constant traffic across the border, with little interference. When the recent labor rulings were brought forward, they seemed as scandalous an interference with communication to Americans as they did to Canadians.

When the time comes, as it seems bound to come, when a flight of several hundred miles is considered of no more moment than a short motor trip is today; when the license numbers of airplanes mount into the hundreds of thousands; when a trip by air across the Atlantic is no longer reckoned an adventure, but an ordinary and natural process; it seems certain that when that time comes, international boundaries are going to diminish in importance. In the air, we shall all be one people.

Even now, in aviation's infancy, no nation purposes to make foreign planes come down at the border and submit to passport and customs regulations. It is recognized that this would be an intolerable interference with air travel. And when it becomes possible to fly into another country for lunch or dinner, for a day's amusement or to do a little shopping, it is going to be a bold Congress or Parliament that will move to put a check on this friendly intercourse by submitting it to the same sort of restrictions which are now imposed on travel by road, rail or ship. Given the speed of the air and the freedom of the air, people probably will refuse to submit to arbitrary interference by jealous legislatures. They will begin to think in terms not of little nations, but of the whole world.

We have seen that very process in the United States. The 13 colonies were self-contained. They ran their affairs without regard to those of their neighbors. They imposed tariffs; they did many things that made a citizen of Massachusetts dislike a citizen of New York just as much as the New Yorker disliked the Virginian. But when the Constitution was adopted, and restrictions on communication were abolished, the New Yorker soon began to think of himself not as a New Yorker, but as an American, and to think of travel not in terms of his own State, but in those of a continent.—Detroit News.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Three wonderful days for Peterborough, July 1, 2 and 3. You'll always regret it if you don't celebrate the Diamond Jubilee at home.

If Canada means anything to you you'll be anxious to help in the jubilee celebration.

Motorists are beginning to find it is cheaper to stop at the corners than to pay $5 and costs in Police Court.

The slogan now is, "Every home in Peterborough decorated for the jubilee."

Nobody asks the question, "Where are you going Dominion Day?" because all Peterborough is going to celebrate here on that occasion.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, June 23.—The trading at the Union Stock Yards continued slowly yesterday with cattle receipts of 353 and a carry over of 1,100. Any reduction from Monday's prices was on the medium to common cattle.

The stall-fed cattle which were in the minority sold readily at higher prices than the grass cattle. Early sales were made at prices about 50c lower for the week on lower grades. A few choice heavy steers brought $9.00 to $9.25. Medium quality killers sold from $8 to $8.75 and some common steers as low as $7.00. Good butcher's cows brought $6.25 to $6.75 with thin cows from $4.50 to $5.50. Bulls very slow in selling. Good butcher's bulls sold $6 to $6.50 and heavy bulls at $5.00 a hundred.

A prime lot of heavy steers averaging 1,475 lbs. topped the market for the week at $10.00 a cwt.

A few baby beeves brought $10 to $11.

Calf were steady with a small supply of 350 head.

Choice vealers brought $10.50 to $11.50 with a few at $12.00 and common to medium vealers sold from $7.50 to $10.00. No grassers were offered yesterday.

The hog market was steady at the week's decline at $9.75 off cars for selects or at $8.85 f.o.b. for selects and $8.35 f.o.b. for thick smooths.

Lambs were firmer yesterday with the best springers at $16.50 to $17.50.

A few good light sheep brought $6 to $6.50 a cwt. and several heavy weight sheep sold at from $3.50 to $5 per cwt.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, June 23 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in grain continued extremely dull here yesterday owing to the absence of any demand from foreign buyers. Car lot business was also of a limited volume, but prices were unchanged.

The demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour was inactive but the undertone was firm.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were firmly maintained under a steady demand and small offerings. The undertone to the market for standard grade of rolled oats was firm with a moderate amount of business passing.

Extreme dullness marked the trade in eggs, but values were steady. The receipts were 2,019 cases.

In sympathy with the lower prices ruling for new crop American potatoes, a weaker feeling developed in the local market for old crop Canadian stock and prices scored a further decline of 10 cents per bag. The trade was quiet with car lots of Quebec white B grade quoted at $1.90 to $2.05 per bag, and Reds at $1.60 to $1.70 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The demand for butter continued of an indifferent character and the market was quiet but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 909 packages.

The cheese market was also quiet with an easier undertone and values were reduced a fraction. The receipts wre 6,731 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 22 (Canadian Press).—Much more favorable harvest conditions for domestic winter wheat, with cutting reported making progress in Kansas had a bearish effect on the wheat market yesterday. Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝ to 1¼c net lower; corn unchanged to ⅝c off; oats ¼c down, and provisions varying from 7 cents decline to 10 cents advance.

Corn and oats were relatively firm as compared with wheat. Weather in the corn belt was favorable but there were predictions of a falling off in receipts of corn after this week.

Provisions held about steady in the absence of any aggressive selling.

STERLING EXCHANGE.

MONTREAL, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Sterling exchange rates were quoted here yesterday as follows:

A Thought For To-day

Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are.—Revelation 1, 19.

Look then into thine heart and write.—Longfellow.

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

We live in a highly scientific age. But a barefoot boy with a ball and bat is the greatest analyst of us all.

We have begun to wonder what became of the old-fashioned high school graduate who had his picture taken with diploma in hand until the other day. We saw him with a banjo.

Men use only 10 per cent of their intelligence, a professor informs us. Now how are we going to go about discounting that statement, figuring that the professor was using only 10 per cent of his own when he made the discovery.

The young folk certainly are seen, if not heard, these days, especially at the bathing beaches.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

TREASURE HUNT FOR BOYS' CAMP

Harry Redfern, of Belleville, Has Been Appointed Assistant Director of Camp Rotary.

OPENS JULY 4.

Harry Redfern, a graduate of the local Normal School and a native of Belleville, has been engaged as Assistant Director of the Rotary-Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp for this season. Mr. Redfern comes to the camp with a host of experience in the realm of work with boys and is essentially an outdoor man. In Belleville he was prominent a few years ago in Collegiate basketball and rugby. Mr. Redfern holds the bronze medallion of the Royal Life Saving Society and is in all respects well qualified to give worth while leadership in the summer camp.

An unique feature of the Rotary-Y.M.C.A. Camp this season will be a treasure hunt which will last until the treasure is found, even though that event takes the entire summer Previous to the opening of the camp a series of numbers from 1 to 15 will be painted on rocks and trees in inconspicuous places over the entire camp grounds and as a boy finds a number he will record it on a sketch map of the site. When all numbers are found and properly recorded the fortunate boy will be given the clue to the treasure. It is anticipated that when a boy is going to the ball field he will be searching for the elusive numbers or when picking berries or hiking, for every tree or rock may hold infinite possibilities. The directors of 1927 camp do not claim originality in regard to this hunt but model it after one familiar to many campers on Sandy Point some years ago. In that instance when all the numbers had been located the clue led to a point on the beach where the treasure was found buried below the water line in a sealed container.

The first party of campers will go in a week from Monday. Indications go to show that this season will be the banner season in the history of Camp Rotary. In the event of a boy desiring to be transported by the committee of the camp he will have to have his application in the hands of the director by Saturday of each week for the Monday party. ... ...

COURT ACTION

was proceeding with extreme caution, the Judge found, but notwithstanding this, she fell and sustained a fracture of her left arm. After the accident, she was taken into a neighboring house, where her arm was set.

The evidence disclosed the fact that no effort had been made on the part of the city to either sand or roughen the surface of the ice, and the city had been guilty of gross negligence in not taking any precautions whatever, to clean up what was a very dangerous and treacherous spot. A light powdering of snow on the sidewalk added to the danger of pedestrians using the same.

After hearing the evidence, and the argument of J. A. O'Brien, and Mr. Hughes who appeared for the insurance company representing the city, His Honor Judge McGlade gave a verdict against the city for $450 and costs. he amount sued for was $500.

After hearing all the evidence His Honor found that no negligence could be imputed to Mrs. Mann.

Leaders Lose Ground On Mining Exchange

TORONTO, June 23.— (Canadian Press.)—Weakness set in on the standard mining exchange to-day and the leaders lost the most ground. Canadian Lorraine was sold down another four points at 10¾, and Grover Daly lost 1½ at 10½. Amulet eased one at 245. Quebec stocks shared in the easier trend, Laval losing 1¾ at 23 and Duprat an eighth at 82. Argonaut and Tough Oakes eased slightly. Ribago touched 38, but slumped again to 33, yesterday's close, while Area held a gain of a point at 51.

Aggressive Buying Resumed When Stock Market Rallies

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Rallying tendencies developed in the stock market today. Aggressive buying was resumed in Baldwin, General Railway Signal and a few other high-priced shades. Investment orders carried Adams Express, American Railway Express and Eastman Kodak up to new high prices for the year in the early afternoon, while Chicago Pneumatic tool advanced four points. In the earlier selling wave, prospects of more intense competition in the motor trade had forced Studebaker, Moon and White Motors to new low levels for the year and caused a bad break in Mack Truck.

International Nickel Strong Other Stocks Take Decline

TORONTO, June 23 (Canadian Press).—International Nickel, the active leader, was one of the comparatively few weak issues on the Toronto Stock Exchange today—it sold down 1⅛ to 62½. Massey Harris eased a quarter at 36. Brazilian and McColl, the latter the unlisted leader, were strong. Brazilian gained 1⅝ to 160⅝, and McColl 2 at 40. City Dairy advanced 2 at 123. Liquor stocks showed no appreciable change. Industrial Alcohol firmed ¼ at 28⅛, Gooderham and Worts ⅛ at 53, and Carling ⅛ at 25⅛, while Seagrams was unchanged at 22½, and Walkers lost ⅛.

Favorable Harvest Weather Forces Drop In Wheat Price

CHICAGO, June 23, Canadian Press. — With favorable harvest weather and with Liverpool quotations lower than due, wheat took a swing downward here to-day. Rains were reported in parts of Argentine which have been dry for many weeks. Opening at ⅛c to 7-8c decline Chicago wheat later underwent an additional set back. Corn started ⅛c to 7-8c off and continued downgrade. Oats were weak, and provisions continued to sag.

BYRD WILL MAKE FLIGHT TO-MORROW

Monoplane Will Be Taken From Hangar To Runway To-night.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, June 23, Canadian Press. — The tri-motored monoplane America, will be taken from its hangar to-night, and drawn to the top of the runway, preparatory to a hop off for France at 4 o'clock to-morrow morning.

"There is a general clearing up in the weather that has delayed the flight so far," Commander Richard E Byrd said to-day. Fog conditions between here and Newfoundland have improved, indicating that a take-off may be possible to-morrow morning, although nothing can be predicted with certainty by the weather bureau officials, until reports from ships at sea have been received. If we can't leave to-morrow we probably will be able to go the next day."

Could Not Sleep Heart and Nerves Were So Bad

Mr. Geo. Meek, Windsor, Ont., writes:—"I suffered with my heart and nerves and could not sleep at night for noises in my head. I managed to keep at my work somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I could not go to my work. I was afraid to go out any place, for very often I would stagger on my feet, and everything in front of me would turn black and fade away. While I was home sick a friend told me to take MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS. I got four boxes and by the time I had used them the pains and noises in my head ceased and I was able to get a good night's rest. Although that was six years ago I have never been troubled with that complaint again."

Price 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PUPILS GIVE FINAL MUSICAL RECITAL

Students Under Direction of R. Gliddon Render Splendid Programme.

A very interesting recital by pupils of Mr. R. Gliddon, director of the Conservatory of Music, was held in the Conservatory Hall last evening, with a good attendance. This is the second and concluding recital by the pupils of Mr. Gliddon's classes, and they played with the ease and skill and smooth, pleasing touch that characterizes his tuition. They were assisted by violin pupils of Miss Edwina Palmer.

The programme opened and closed with brightly played selections by the Junior Orchestra, the "Festival March" forming the commencement of the musical entertainment. Piano numbers followed. Little Graham Niven, playing from memory and in excellent style, gave the "Twilight Reverie," and Mildred Magee the Bach Invention Number Eight. Mrs. A. E. Micks played Beethoven's "Elesir," and Mrs. Gray Copping Esiepoff's "Madeleine." Hannah Botnic gave an expressive rendition of one of Greig's "Valses" from memory, and Miss Estelle Shearer was heard to much advantage in a skilful rendering of two charming selections, Greig's "Klein Hokon," and Liszt's "Salut d'Amour."

Helen Fisk played Mendelssohn's "Song Without Words." Clairment Morgan gave Clementi's "Sonatina Number Four." Vernon Armstrong, with a fetching type of music that interpreted very well the abandon of the selection, played Tellier's "Valse Caprice," and Miss Cora Smith demonstrated a graceful technique in Sinding's "Rruhlingsrauschen" (Rust-Sinding's "Pruhlingsrauschen" (Rustin "Sousbois."

Miss Marguerite Rome played Sibelius' "Romance," Miss Elizabeth Webber's fine technical ability was noticeable in Raff's "Rigaudon," and two well-played concluding piano numbers were Chopin's Nocturne in A flat, by Helen Clancy, and Pauer's "La Cascade," its rippling, delicate music nicely interpreted by Evelyn Armstrong.

Violin numbers were those by Ralph Clark, playing Gounod's "Faust" Waltz, and Max Warne, in Dancla's "Air Varie Number Six."

Other pupils of Mr. Gliddon who gave solo numbers were Jack Thackeray, in a 'cello rendition of "Le Cygny" (The Swan), with accompaniment by Mrs. W. Thackeray, and Barclay McKone playing a clarionet solo .

Accompaniments for the solo and orchestral selections were played by Miss Elizabeth Webber.

It is understood that Viscount Cecil did most of the talking at today's private conversation and that in defending the British project, he emphasized the great economies which its adoption would effect through reducing the size of individual warships. It is also understood that he characterized the U. Gold Rush Is On To Territory North of Armstrong, Ontario.

CLAIMS STAKED.

TIMMINS, June 23.—A new gold rush has started. Prospectors from Winnipeg, Tashota and points along the Transcontinental Railway are headed for a point about 25 miles north from Armstrong.

News of the new gold rush was brought to Timmins by L. H. Ferland and J. Ray O'Neill, former member for the Federal House, who staked some 15 claims in the vicinity of the new find for a syndicate composed of Ottawa and Montreal men. The rush was in evidence during the return trip of these men to Timmins While the discovery is gold, a certain amount of copper is also found.

Fortunate Prospector

The original find is said to have been made by a prospector, named Gorman and his party. Gorman, who was formerly in the Yukon, has been for some time in the section north of the Transcontinental, and close to Cariboo Lake, where the find was made. Lorne Howey of Haileybury, famous for his Red Lake connections, also led a party into the new field.

Howel and his party have been in there for some time ,and are said to have made a careful study of the situation, staked some twelve claims. It is likely the Howey party will stay there some weeks longer, and at present they are said to be following other promising leads.

Mile.Wide Zone

The mineralized zone on which the staking was done is said to be over a mile wide, and from four to five miles long. Mr. Ferland says that gold was panned in several places over four to five feet for a distance of close of 1,200 feet. Ferland and O'Neill staked their claims on both ends of those staked by the Howey party.

The new discovery is considered highly promising, and the stakers are quite enthusiastic about it. The formation is diabase and granite, and the condition is said to be much the same as in the Porcupine camp.

A Siamese kitten was recently rescued by a steamer in mid-ocean, from its perch on a floating hatch cover.

the world's greatest tire

A TIRE is a carcass and a tread. Goodyear has combined, in the new Goodyear Balloon, the greatest carcass and the greatest tread ever designed.

SUPERTWIST Cords

The carcass of a tire is there to absorb road shocks. The greatest enemies of balloon tire mileage are the blows and bumps which break the cords inside the tire. The new Goodyear Balloon is built of SUPERTWIST Cords, which are 61% more elastic than old-style cords. They will stand a 61% harder blow without breaking. Obviously, this tire carcass has longer life.

New All-Weather Tread

Balloon tires have raised many tread problems—rapid tread wear, uneven tread wear, noise. The new All-Weather Balloon Tread overcomes all these. It wears evenly and for thousands and thousands of miles. It runs smoothly and quietly—yet, on demand, grips the road hard and hangs on. It adds to the appearance of any car.

This great tire has been tested to the full—on thousands of cars and for 5,400,000 tire miles on Goodyear's test fleet. It has proved its right to the name World's Greatest Tire. It is now available, at prices no higher than you are asked for other tires, from Goodyear Selected Dealers.

PRESENTATION MADE

Keene Young People Give Departing Friend a Ring.

KEENE, Ont., June 23. — A very pleasant time was spent by the Young Peoples' Club of the United church of Keene ,at Hiawatha on Friday evening. They had their regular devotional period followed by an address and presentation to Mr. Sidney Miller, who is leaving for Scotland in the near future.

The following is the address read to Sidney:

Dear Sidney,—We are gathered together here to-night chiefly to bid you adieu, though our club really is not the least bit anxious to be rid of you. We only wish that you could stay and help with our meetings the same as you have been doing the past number of years. Also ready to take part in the games. We will always expect some letters from you to be read at some of our meetings, just so that we will know you haven't forgotten us, and they would be welcome greetings. But before you go we only ask that you kindly accept this ring not by any means for its value, but just so that memories will cling. We hope that whenever you gaze on it your conscience will make you write a letter to some of your pals here in Keene who will welcome them with great delight. And now, from one and all to-night you have our very best wishes that your highest ambitions may be reached, and that you have a smooth sail over the fishes. Signed on behalf of the Young People's Society.

Jean Knowles.
Marion Adamson.

Mr. Miller replied in a few well chosen words and hoped that the club would always be such a success.

This happy event was followed by everybody filling up on "hot dogs" toasted over a bonfire and a most enjoyable time was wound up by singing "Aud Lang Syne."

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS HOLD ANNUAL PICNIC

Campbellford Club Goes To Presqu'ile Point For Yearly Outing.

CAMPBELLFORD, June 23.— The Campbellford Holstein Breeders' Club was favored with ideal weather for the annual picnic on Tuesday. The location this year was Presqu'ile Point, and a fair number of members and their families and friends assembled there about 11 a.m. While the ladies prepared lunch, the men repaired to the ball grounds and engaged in a game of softball until the dinner gong sounded. The noonday meal was an enjoyable affair with tables spread under the trees and the lake breezes keeping the air fresh and cool. The tables were laden with the good things to eat which farmers' wives know so well how to provide, and everyone did full justice to them. After lunch some of the ladies decided to see the sights around the resort, while the rest of the fair sex accompanied the men on the regular programme, a visit to Mr. Edward Butler's Holstein herd at Brighton. Mr. Walter Smith, district representative, spoke on the very fitting topic "Successful Breeders." His audience, comfortably reclining under the shade of a spreading maple, thoroughly enjoyed the address, as well as the unaccustomed privelege of relaxing from hard labor. As the completion of his talk, Mr. Smith conducted a judging class on four of Mr. Butler's cows and this gave everyone a chance to get into the game.

Mr. Butler's fine stable came in for a good deal of favorable comment The stable fittings are all of steel with cement floors throughout. Plenty of windows let in the floods of pure sunlight and the floors are clean and wholesome, sprinkled with lime, and shavings are largely used for bedding. One item of equipment which is out of the ordinary is the milk room situated under the approach to the barn at the north side. This is entirely of cement construction, the roof of the milk house and floor of the approach being reinforced by steel rails. Open windows at each side let in a flow of pure air, while the floor drained all water to an outlet at the corner. This was greatly admired by the visitors, many of whom had never seen a barn approach utilized in any way before.

A visit to Mr. Thomas Sirrett's farm had to be cancelled to allow the club members to reach home in time to milk the cows who were the reason for the formation of the club which provided the days outing. It is needless to say that everyone heartily enjoyed the trip.

OBITUARY.

MRS. GEORGE J. TOVEY.

HANNA, Alta., June 23. — The death of Mrs. George J. Tovey, formerly of Peterborough, occurred in Hanna Hospital yesterday at the age of sixty years. Mrs. Tovey came West sixteen years ago, and settled with her family in the Youngstown district, east of here. Having been in poor health for some time, the deceased was brought to Hanna two weeks ago, but her condition gave no hope for recovery.

The late Mrs. Tovey is survived by her husband, five sons, and one daughter. Garnet, the youngest of the family, has resided on the farm with his parents. Funeral arrangements have not been announced, but interment will take place in Youngstown.

MRS. PHOEBE PRINGLE.

MADOC, June 23. — On Thursday last there passed away Mrs. Phoebe Pringle. Mrs. Pringle had been ill for several months but became suddenly worse on Sunday.

The funeral was held from her home to St. John's church on Saturday afternoon. The church was filled with friends and neighbors who had known and loved Mrs. Pringle, both in her former home on the farm in Madoc township, and since her coming to Madoc a few years ago.

The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. McConnell of Toronto, who is supplying in the Madoc pulpit, Rev. N. Stout and Rev. Mr. Sparling, of Bancroft, and Rev. A. Strother of Adolphustown, lately of Madoc.

Rev. Mr. Strother preached an appreciative and comforting address on texts taken from St. Matthew 11:28: "Come unto me all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest," and Heb. 4:9: "There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God."

Mr. Strother paid high tribute to the late Mrs. Pringle who had been a faithful member of St. John's for several years, a willing worker a friend, and one who had been a blessing and a help to many people.

Mr. Strother divided his text into three headings, the people who were invited, the invitation, and the blessing of rest. In the perfected rest of Paradise there is work, yet the people are never weary. We have many joys on this earth but they are fleeting. In Paradise all is joy and peace—no tears and no dangers. The speaker extended his deepest sympathy to Mr. Pringle and the many friends who are left, and painted a helpful beautiful picture of the joy and peace of the home prepared by Christ.

Mrs. Pringle leaves to mourn her loss, her husband, William Pringle, and one sister, Mrs. Dodge, to both of whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

Interment was made in Hazard's cemetery.

THE JUNE ROSE

HE June rose scanned the garden fair,
And wondered if 'twere true
That other roses stayed in bloom
'Most all the summer through.

She thought it was the strangest thing,
And wanted so to know
Why she should live so short a time,
When she loved living so.

A butterfly with colors gay,
Flew blithely o'er that bower;
He seemed to sip such keen delight,
Flitting from flower to flower.

He looked so happy and so gay,
The June rose hung her head;
"He must have years and years to live,
While I've a month," she said.

"I think I'll talk to him awhile,
And find out if I may,
If he knows any reason for
The shortness of my stay."

The butterfly was poised for flight,
He really must away,
But paused a moment to hear
What the June rose would say.

He heard the tale through to its close,
Then spread his wings to fly,
He looked the June rose in the face,
And thus he made reply:

"Why spend the time a-mourning?
The sun is in the sky!
By weeks you count your life, you say?—
Short hours I count mine by."

"But what's the use of sorrowing?
The world has had its share;
If time is short, let's up and do,
And leave some sunshine there.

"If I have but a few short hours,
I'll live those hours so well,
That drooping ones along the way
May feel their joyous spell.

"My life shall speak of sunny plains,
Of places wide and fair;
I'll gather some say, weary ones,
Into my garden there.

"I'll whisper courage in their ear,
I'll speak of love so true,
That pain and gloom shall drop away
And only joy shine through."

So spake the joyous butterfly
As he spread his wings for flight;
The June rose raised her head and said,
"I think—perhaps—you're right."

BOARD OF TRADE ELECTED OFFICERS

Advertising of Park is Discussed By Lakefield Members.

LAKEFIELD, June 23.—A well attended meeting of the Board of Trade of Lakefield was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, with the president, Mr. J. F. Lillicrap in the chair.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read by the secretary, Mr. A. B. Burrows and on motion confirmed.

The financial statement showed a small balance on hand after all expenses were paid.

It was moved by Messrs. P. Spence and G. G. Connel that the present officers be re-elected for another term.—Carried.

Mr. Lillicrap recalled the benefit gained by attendance at the Eastern Ontario Chamber of Commerce held last year in Belleville.

It was unanimously decided that a campaign of advertising on the part of the village would be a profitable investment.

Mr. Connell advocated a greater investment in the park before the village can expect returns.

If $1,000 was spent on the road and other much needed improvemebnts, then the park could be advertised and would be popular with campers and picnic parties. This was the verdict of the whole meeting, which put itself on record as being in favor of greater advertising and featuring the natural advantages of the village.

Car Accident.

On Sunday evening about 8 o'clock Mr. Ted Webster, who was driving down Strickland street, was about to turn south on Chippewa street, at Mr. J. Blewett's boat factory, when a car shot down Chippewa street, headed north. To avoind a collision Mr. Webster jammed on his brakes and ditched his car. The ditch is very deep at this point and a powerful truck was required to haul out the car. The damage was slight but a sizable crowd gathered to offer advice and view the scene of the accident and lend what assistance was possible.

Shower.

On Friday last, June 17th, the ladies of St. John's choir entertained the ladies of the parish at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Gwendoline Simpson, who is to be a bride of June. The shower was held in the parish hall and was attended by about fifty.

The gifts, which were varied and included china, linen and silver, were placed on a table covered with white crepe paper and centred by a bouquet of Oriental poppies and garnished with bridal wreath. When all had assembled Rev. Mr. Creighton made a brief speech, offering the best wishes of the ladies and himself to the bride elect and telling her the weather probabiliites had prognosticated a shower for this evening.

The table, loaded with gifts, was brought forward from its hiding place behind a screen, and the gifts were opened. Miss Simpson thanked her friends for their kind thought in a gracefully worded speech and assured them of her appreciation of them. This event will always remain a happy memory.

The choir served refreshments, and the ladies dispersed after having spent a pleasant social evening, and the hope was expressed in many quarters that other similar events will follow in the not too far distant future.

Social Events.

Miss Connell and Miss Curtis were joint hostesses of a jolly little bridge party on Wednesday evening of last week at Mrs. W. Sherin's house on Regent Street. Mrs. W. Sherin won the first prize, Mrs. H. G. FitzGerald won the second prize, and Mrs. F. Brown the lucky number prize.

On Thursday afternoon they entertained at afternoon tea, and a very delightful time was spent by all the ladies.

The young ladies left on Saturday for the summer vacation, but their friends hope to welcome them to the village in September again.

Junior Institute.

The Junior Institute are entertaining the members of the Warsaw Women's Institute on July 6 at the home of Mrs. J. H. Payne, Bridge Street, and will welcome any ladies who are interested in the work of the Institute. It is desirable that a branch of the Women's Institute be organized in Lakefield and any ladies who are interested in this great national organization are cordially invited to attend.

The streets are being given their first coat of oil for the season, and the dust nuisance will be allayed on the main streets.

TRUCK IS DITCHED; DRIVER ESCAPES

Campbellford Man Is Alleged To Have Cut in on Truck Driver.

OSHAWA, June 23. — Mooreley Larke, 272 Simcoe Street South, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday when the truck which he was driving was ditched on the Kingston Highway near the Oshawa Cemetery. It is alleged that Glynn Thompson of Campbellford, in passing the truck cut in short, striking the left front wheel and deflecting the truck to the ditch.

The heavy truck, westbound with a heavy load of castings from the Ontario Malleable Iron Company, landed on its side, and how Larke escaped injury remains a mystery. It is alleged that Thompson did not stop following the accident. Larke, extricating himself from the wreckage, enlisted the aid of a passing motorist, and after giving chass succeeded in catching the Campbellford car, and Thompson will face two charges, one of reckless driving, the other af failing to stop and give his address.

Gum-Dipping

A Firestone Contribution to Economical Travel

The greatest enemy to tire life is not the chopped-up road, the broken pavement or the harsh grind of rough city streets—but heat, which is created by internal friction. Heat not only weakens the fabric, but also softens the rubber and causes blowouts and tire failures.

Firestone chemists and engineers knew that if they could find a way to eliminate this destructive heat and internal friction, the mileage-giving qualities of tires would be greatly increased. Such a method was found and called Gum-Dipping."

The Gum-Dipping process is one of Firestone's contributions to economize travel—it insulates and impregnates every fibre of every cord with rubber, reducing internal friction and at the same time binding the cords together by a stronger union of rubber, thus giving greater strength and flexibility to the tire.

Firestone dealers everywhere—familiar with Gum-Dipping and its advantages—will gladly explain how thousands of extra miles are built into Firestone tires by this exclusive method. Take advantage of the Gum-Dipping process to lower your tire costs this year.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl who owns and lives on property adjoining the queer little jungle-bordered town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of one of her foremen. Her two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnapped but is found again, largely through the efforts of VILAK, her cousin and protector, who is known in Porto Verde as ATTORNEY DAVIS, Elise's lawyer. Vilak has sent for LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, to help him get at the bottom of the mystery.

They are ignorant of the cause of this hostility toward Elise but suspect that a man named GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding character, is somehow involved.

Word is brought to Elise that the manager of her property at VILLAPA is desperately ill and must see her at once. Vilak suspects a trick and he insists that he and Nunnally accompany her.

On the road to Villapa they are ambushed by a band of ruffians in the uniforms of soldiers. They tell Vilak that he and his companions are wanted for murder. The charge is obviously a fake. Vilak is convinced their captors are in the pay of Elise's enemies.

Nunnally and Vilak are trussed up and thrown into a damp cell of a room. Elis is guarded outside. The room swarms with termite ants. After several futile attempts to break his thongs and persistent driving off of the ants, Vilak finally lets the ants swarm over him. Presently they have eaten nearly through the thongs. He is free.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER XXIV.

Thrusting off the thongs from his cramped limbs, Vilak scrambled to his feet, quickly untied the cords which held the old man, then, picking up a small stone wine bottle which stood upon a rotting shelf and was the only weapon the room afforded, put a pellet of betel on his tongue and began watching at the window.

He waited until he saw the cooks begin to dish out huge portions of the hot mixture in the pot into the pans of the soldiers who came forward. Only two men were now left in close proximity to the house, the guard at the front door and the guard at the back.

"This is our chance," he whispered to Nunnally. "They're confident, hungry, and off their guard. Don't make a sound."

He crawled to the door, opened it inch by inch, so that it would not creak, then stepped into the shadow of the doorway. The sentry was greedily watching his companions at their meal, his back to the door he was certain needed none of his guarding.

Clapping his hand over the sentinel's mouth to prevent an outcry, Vilak brought the wine bottle down upon his head. The guard, stunned into unconsciousness, started to fall. Vilak caught him and dragged him inside. Quickly he stripped off his prisoner's blue-striped coat, trousers and hat, donned them himself, strapped his pistol around his waist, took his rifle, then bound and gagged him in case he should recover consciousness more quickly than Vilak expected.

Once more he silently opened the door, and with the other's hat pulled far down over his eyes, took his post outside it, prepared to grunt in Portuguese to any of the soldiers who might approach. But they were too occupied with their suppers. He stepped noiselessly inside the room again. "Come on," he whispered to the old man.

Creeping along the edge of the house and then into the tangled vegetation which instantly swallowed them up, he led the way to a clump of trees a hundred feet behind the fire where the troopers' horses were tied. Here another soldier was on guard.

Crawling up behind him, he rendered him unconscious by the same effective method he had used a few moments before, now employing the butt end of his pistol instead of the wine bottle.

He took his new victim's revolver and gave it to the old man. Quickly he unfastened the leashes of the three horses which had brought them from Elise's fazenda and gave these to the old man to hold. Then with a knife which he had found in the soldier's uniform he slashed at the bridles of the others so that a slight pull would sever them instantly. "Wait here," he whispered.

He began crawling through the underbrush toward the fire. The mustached captain had now taken a place beside Elise on the log. Vilak stealthily crept up behind him.

"Don't turn, my capitaz," he said quietly as he pressed the muzzle of his pistol against the other's back. "else I shall be compelled to kill you. Which would be a pity. Stand up and move forward to the fire. If any of your men lift a hand to aid you, that instant you will die."

The officer's body quivered. Vilak could see the muscles of his thick neck swell. But he neither answered nor made any effort to resist, merely rose stonily from the log and began trudging forward. The soldiers looked on in stupefaction. When the officer had reached the fire and Vilak was in a position where could survey the circle of gaping, grotesque faces about him, he ordered the officer to halt.

Carefully he took his pistol from his belt, then looked toward his cousin, who at his unexpected appearance had instantly cast off her air of patient despair and weariness and sprang to her feet to watch intently his every move. "Walk to me, Elise," he said.

She obeyed quickly, her black eyes darting cautiously from side to side.

Still holding his own pistol against the officer's back and shifting his glance constantly from his captive to the rigid soldiers, Vilak with his free hand cut the cords binding Elise's wrists, then gave her the captain's weapon. "Walk slowly over to the horses by those trees to the right," he said to her. "Nanny's waiting there. Both of you mount and wait for me. Call out when you're ready."

He watched her move off to the shadows, heard her low shout, then picked up a blazing ember of the fire and began walking, thrusting the captain constantly before him with his pistol.

He reached the clump of trees. Elise and the old man were in their saddles, Nunnally clutching the bridle of Vilak's restless stallion. Vilak tied the bridle around one arm, then with the captain still in front of him and the horse trailing behind, walked to the mounts of the soldiers tied to the trees.

He raised the flaming ember, he had in his hand and dashed it close to their heads, shouting loudly. The frightened animals whinnied, snorted, and tugged frenziedly at their halters to escape the flaming enemy. The weakened leather snapped, the panic-struck beasts dashed wildly into the forest.

Vilak put his foot into the stirrup of his own steed, whinnying nervously as it witnessed its fellow creatures' terror.

"Adios, amigos," he called cheerily to the captain, and springing into his saddle, raced off toward the road. His two companions followed. They gained the highway. Vilak turned his horse to Villapa. They sped on through the darkness, hearing behind them a few futile shots and volleys of passionate curses as the soldiers searched blindly in the woods for their vanished steeds.

Vilak listened and laughed. Elise gazed at him thoughtfully, then leaned over and kissed him. Their horses did not slacken their headlong pace.

In half an hour they had reached Villapa. Quickly they found Wilson, the superintendent. His face, long and tapering like a carrot, was gaunt, his eyes hollow, after effects apparently of a long attack of fever. Judging, however, by his quick active movements, he was well on the road to convalescence.

His astonishment on seeing them for a few moments was so great that he could only stammer out a few broken sentences; then quickly he told them, as Vilak has suspected, that he had sent no message. Though the river was rising hourly and a bad flood now very likely, if not certain, he said that he felt so much improved that he was perfectly able to cope with any emergency. Unless, of course, the dam broke at Avilos. In which event no one could do anything.

To their dismay, however, when they asked him for guns to take the place of those which had been stolen, he apologetically replied that he could lend them only the two pistols which he had in his own cabin. The Villapa fazenda never had more than a few rifles, he went on; and only the day before an Indian laborer had taken them to the paint shed to oil them and carelessly lighting a cigaret, had set the whole shed on fire.

The flames had consumed everything in it, the workman himself barely escaping with his life. He had discharged the workman, of course, he added, but that didn't bring back the guns.

Now Enjoys a Good Meal

Renzyme has taken care of his digestive troubles.

Like most people who have suffered from indigestion, the writer of the letter quoted below had tried many remedies. Renzyme is so different in effect to any previous treatment used that he is now enthusiastic in its use.

No matter what the cause, or of how long standing, Renzyme is bound to afford relief because it actually supplies the digestive ferments which set up the process of digestion.

Mr. A. R. Robertson, Hamilton, Ont., writes:

"Your statement that the 'RENZYME' is a rejuvenating fluid is correct."

"I have been troubled with indigestion for years and have tried all kinds of remedies but secured no relief until I was persuaded by a friend to try 'RENZYME'. Almost immediately I had relief and now I am a constant user of same. I most whole-heartedly recommend to anyone who is troubled with stomach disorders to try 'RENZYME' because I know that he will find it to be effective."

You can obtain Renzyme from your druggist at $1.50 a bottle or it will be sent to you, postpaid, on receipt of price, if you mention this paper. The Renzyme Laboratories, Toronto, 2, Canada.

GROVE SCHOOL FINISHES YEAR

Many Parents and Friends Attend the Closing Exercises.

PRIZES PRESENTED.

LAKEFIELD, June 22. — The closing exercises at The Grove took place on Friday afternoon, June 17th, with ideal weather conditions, which added not a little to the enjoyment of the occasion. The school looked its best, surrounded, as it is, with beautiful trees, many of which have grown with the school, adding to the beauty of the place and giving it its name, for never was a place more appropriately named. There was an especially large attendance of parents and friends this year, and the early arrivals had the pleasure of seeing boys leading their parents about and visiting favourite haunts connected with happy episodes in their young lives.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie received the guests in their kindly fashion. The chapel service was held at 2.30, with the headmaster, Rev. A. W. Mackenzie, in charge. The building was filled to capacity by the boys and many friends who find inspiration in the simple service and the clear, boyish voices, raised in praise to God.

Rev. Canon C. W. Hedley, of the Church of Transfiguration, Toronto, was the preacher and took his text from the 19th Psalm: "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be always acceptable in thy sight, Oh Lord, my strength and my Redeemer." The speaker referred to the motto of the school "Mens Sana in Corpore Sana" which he considers an excellent one, planned to develop all sides of life. Many old boys of this school ascribe their success in the world to the "old school" and its wonderful influence, and to the boys who are now going out into the world we hope you will not only give credit to the school but that you will play the game of life as the old school expects you to play it.

A healthy body and a healthy mind; the thought promotes the action, the action forms a habit and the habit forms character and there is the man.

A few years ago we heard a good deal of Dr. Coule and his motto: "Day by day in every way, better and better", and there is a great deal in that too. We have now what we call the new psychology which is the new science of the human soul; and we have also the new physiology which teaches us of glands, small but important, which are affected by thoughts of fear or anger and give out a substance which poison the blood. This is very different from the "oil of gladness" which David writes about. David was a splendid scout and would have loved this school, he loved nature and saw God in nature always.

Bishop Taylor-Smith, Chaplain General of the British forces was asked once when cussing the Atlantic on a big liner, "Who is to blame God or man when a man desires to do wrong." The Bishop prayed for a minute silently for inspiration to give the best answer and he replied by asking a return question. How many parts are there in a man.' The reply was grudingly given as three, viz.: body soul and spirit—"and which is most important," asked the Bishop, who proceeded to liken man to a lighted candle with a body of wax and incased in that body a wick which corresponds to the soul and the flame to the spirit. It is only when the candle is held upright that the flame remains bright, held horizontally it splutters and smokes and if inverted the flame goes out, therefore the spirit is the most important for it is lit from above. And, boys, that is where the chapel in the school and the Holy Communion come in as there the spirit is lit from above. We have chapel, study and games and from this combination the boys should be able to play the game and be of service to their fellow men.

Following the Chapel service was the prize giving, held in the school court yard with the boys and their parents and friends gathered in a semi circle about the table which contained the awards of the year's work.

Address of Welcome.

Rev. A. W. Mackenzie gave a short address welcoming old friends and new, and assuring them of the pleasure it gave him to have them present on this happy occasion.

The past year had been a very happy one with no accidents or epidemics and the teams had all given a good account of themselves. The boys did well last summer in the matriculation examinations which is gratifying to both Masters and boys.

We always have a welcome for old boys and when they return bringing their brides with them, they are doubly welcome.

This year we have a new football field and the old one has been leveled and stone steps have been put in from the terrace down to the field. This has been the work of Mr. Wood and three of the larger boys. Mr. Wood is as good outside as inside and instils this all round proficiency into the boys. If there is any credit due to the school it is because of the staff.

The Head Master closed by saying, "Look out and look up and the great religion of the world will come to you unsought."

Tea was served on the lawn and a delightful hour was spent renewing acquaintances and in pleasant social intercourse. Tea was poured by Mrs. Marling and Mrs. Fletcher.

The annual closing marks the end of another school year, another milestone in the life of the school and the boys. It is a happy occasion because it is the beginning of holidays and also it is a delightfully informal reunion but the more serious side is never lost sight of, some of the boys leaving the school and will take their places in the busy world outside and the school will known them in future only as "old boys"; this is the sad side which touches alike Masters and boys. Each year the ranks of "old boys" is increased and the school becomes riches in history and in friends for the vacant places are filled by new boys who in their turn are inspired by the spirit of the "old school on the hill" which is a beacon light to many men in all parts of the world who once knew The Grove as "home."

Chemist Tells How To End Dandruff and Stop Falling Hair

That dandruff is responsible for nearly all the diseases to which the scalp is heir, as well as for baldness and premature gray hair is a well-known fact. We appreciate, therefore, the importance of any agent that will destroy its power. For this reason it is a pleasure to give herewith the prescription which a famous scalp specialist states he has found, after repeated tests, will completely end dandruff in from one to three applications. It will also almost immediately stop falling hair and it has in numerous cases produced a new hair growth after years of partial baldness. The prescription can be made up at home, or any druggist will put it up for you—6 ounces Bay Rum, 2 ounces Lavona de Compose, one-half drachm Menthol Crystals. Mix thoroughly, and after standing an hour it is ready for use. Apply night and morning, rubbing into the scalp with the finger tips. If you wish it perfumed, add 1 drachm of your favorite perfume—you'll be delighted!

Every question asked in the British Parliament is estimated to cost, in printing, research and so on an average of a pound and five shillings to ask and answer.

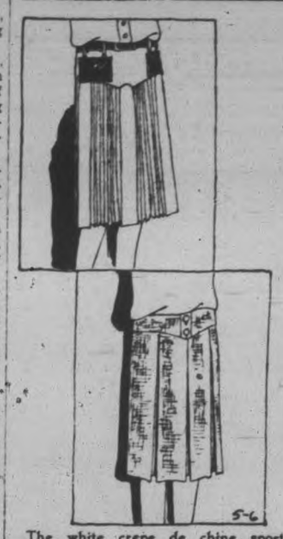
DRESS
By MARY MARSHALL



The white crepe de chine sport skirt above shows box pleats and fine pleats, and is worn with a green leather golf belt finished with pockets for the balls. Below this is a tweed sport skirt with pleats in front and a buttoned belt.

Underskirts and separate dress skirts were two garments that many women, two years or more ago, were convinced they would never wear again. The slip seemed the only rational garment to wear beneath a frock, and the idea of a separate skirt that wasn't part of a jumper frock was looked upon with a sort of contempt. Some women even had jumper frocks that were jumper in effect only. The idea of dividing frocks in the middle—or somewhere near the middle—seemed most inartistic and inconvenient.

The underskirt has been revived—and adopted apparently without a murmur of objection by many of the women who regarded it as fit only to be put in a museum along with other old fashions. And now the separate skirt that is separate in appearance as well as in fact—that is made of an entirely different color and fabric from the blouse—is gaining ground rapidly.

The fact is that the separate skirt is worn at present much more abroad than it is in this country. That gives it a rather European flavor when worn here that makes it lall the more attractive to some women. It is even worn with a tuck-in blouse, and with a separate belt of a conspicuous character.

Apparently the old prejudice against dividing ourselves in the middle is rapidly vanishing. This separate skirt and tuck-in blouse fashion is not a very easy one to follow—especially for the younger women who have never grown accustomed to the arrangement before.

It is interesting to note that though the skirts of many frocks at present are made longer than was usual a year ago, the separate skirt is still quite abbreviated. What fullness it posses is laid in straight pleats. The separate circular skirt has few votes for popularity.

Word comes from Paris that if you want to be in the vanguard of fashion instead of somewhere behind the firing lines you must have your separate skirt made with a fairly high waistline. And this fact ought to be considered good news as anyone who has ever tried the experiment of wearing a tuck-in blouse with a skirt cut with a hip waistline will be able to tell you.

HOROSCOPE
The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

For Friday, June 24, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as an uncertain day in planetary direction, but benefic aspects seem to dominate.

It is well not to risk much in new ventures under this sway which is more favourable to routine business than it is to any sort of speculation.

China is to become eventually a friendly Power and a strong ally of this country, despite present misunderstandings, astrologers prophesy.

There is to-day an auspicious rule for men who wield great financial power and who are leaders in world affairs.

New heroes are to arise in American public life, it is foretold, and women are to defer to them, for there are thwarting planetary influences for feminine ambitions.

It is prognosticated that diplomats and statesmen of this country will encounter startling problems in government before the autumn.

This should be an auspicious day for seeking employment and should bring men into their right environment.

Women are well directed, but the stars appear to forecast for them a period of preparation rather than one of public achievement.

Domestic affairs probably will occupy women's attention and interest even more fully than in recent months, it is forecast.

Reactionary influences are to balance thought and action among the mothers and wives of the land, astrologers predict.

Persons whose birthdate it is should find the coming year most favourable to all their best hopes.

Children born on this day probably will make a success of life. They should be distinguished by tact and skill in using their talents.

HINTS ON ETIQUETTE.

1. Are household linens a necessity for every bride's trousseau? Must she always buy them?
2. Who finances a wedding and when is a church wedding proper?
3. Can a wealthy bridegroom buy the bride's trousseau?

The Answers.

1. Yes. Unless a poor stenographer marries a millionaire when it is proper to wait and let him finance the household linen.
2. The bride's parents or guardian. Whenever desired and when it can be afforded.
3. Never.

SAINT and SINNER
By ANNE AUSTIN

Mrs Lundy was to begin work the next morning. The rest of that day Faith spent largely in the kitchen, fixing the most delectable dinner she was capable of cooking, for she had a curious, jealous desire for Bob to have one perfect dinner of her own creation with which, ever afterwards, to compare his paid servant's.

"If we could get a cook with half your talent she'd be worth double what I'll ever be able to pay her," Bob said, when her irreproachable strawberry shortcake was served.

After dinner, the entire family gravitated, as a matter of course, to the living room. Cherry immediately turned on the radio, tuning in on a hotel orchestra and inviting Bob, with outstretched arms, to dance with her.

"Tired," he refused laconically, with a wistful glance toward his wife.

Jim Lane, who had been hunched over his newspaper under the reading lamp, rose and remarked heavily, apologetically, "Reckon we ain't giving you two young people much time to yourselves, Faith. You come along to my room, Joy, and I'll help you with your arithmetic."

"Don't go, Dad!!" Faith cried hastily. "Really—"

But Jim Lane tramped on out, followed by a sulky, half-tearful Joy.

"Bed at this ridiculous hour!!" Cherry was scornful. "I'm going to make Bob try a new step with me when he's rested up a bit. Come on, old settled married man!!" she whirled upon Bob, dancing lightly toward him. "Don't let Faith turn you into her idea of a model husband without a struggle."

"That's exactly what I want to be—Faith's idea of a model husband," Bob grinned lazily at her, his hand going out to clasp Faith's. "Does that idea include a struggling young architect's ambition to work on library plans at night?" he asked.

"That is the corner-stone upon which my model is built," Faith laughed up at him. "Get your briefcase and come along with me. Now is as good a time as any for dictating the sun parlour to its highest mission of serving a struggling young architect as a very private office. There's a new fashion magazine on the library table, Cherry."

"Is there a department called 'What the prospective mother will wear?'" Cherry asked bitterly.

"Come on, darling!" Bob whispered, his hand holding fast to Faith's.

When they closed the door of the sun parlour upon themselves, Bob took his wife into his arms and kissed her quietly, his face a little stern.

"You're not going back in there and baby Cherry," he told her firmly but gently. "As your husband, I have some rights and I'm going to exercise them. Right now I feel like saying, 'Cherry and the rest of the family be d——d! I want my wife!"

Faith kissed him then, but she knew that her whole heart was not in it. Part of it—and such a big part—was suffering with lonely, baffled, selfish little Cherry.

When Bob drew out Faith's chair for her at the daintily set breakfast table the next morning, he stooped and kissed her warm, creamy-white neck, just below the shining loop of brown hair.

"This is something like!" he exulted. "Now maybe I can finish a sentence to you without having you jump and run to the kitchen for toast or hot water or any other fool thing. And you're going to sit here, do you hear me? Not a single trip to the kitchen for you, young lady!"

"I feel like a lady," Faith smiled at him. "I didn't know I craved luxury until you came along and forced it on me. But we'd better not congratulate ourselves too soon. Her cooking may be terrible."

Jim Lane and Joy came in together, Mr. Lane's hair very wet and slick, his jaw blue-shaven in honour of the servant in the house. Joy's pale little freckled face was shining from soap and water, and she switched her skirts proudly.

"Where's Cherry? Isn't she up yet, Joy?" Faith asked anxiously, one eye on the swinging door through which Mrs. Lundy, crisp in starched gingham and white apron, was pushing her way with laden tray.

"Cherry says she wants her breakfast in bed—every morning," Joy answered in her shrill voice.

Faith glanced at Bob hastily, after she had noted the thunder cloud that had settled on Mrs. Lundy's broad, expressive face. Bob's mouth was grim, the fond happy light gone from his blue eyes.

"Nothing wasn't said about me toting breakfast trays," Mrs. Lundy pronounced darkly as she set the percolator down before Faith with a thump.

"I'll fix a tray for my sister after we've had our breakfast," Faith said hastily.

"No, you won't," Bob said grimly. "Joy, go tell Cherry that if she wants any breakfast she is to come to the table. And remind her that breakfast will be over in fifteen minutes."

"I made an omelette big enough for all of you," Mrs. Lundy announced suddenly. "I didn't have no instructions on how to fix your eggs. And if two pieces of bacon around ain't enough, I can fry some more."

Faith realized that her servant was left-handedly asking for praise on her first meal in her new job. She reached under the table for Bob's hand, pressed it tightly for a moment, and then said, ingratiatingly:

"The breakfast is delicious, Mrs. Lundy. And I never drank better coffee."

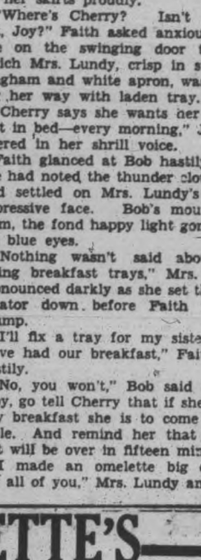
"Yes, the coffee's a prize-winner, Mrs. Lundy," Bob looked up from his paper and flashed the pleased woman a broad, friendly smile. "And I want you to know we're glad to have you. I hope you'll be happy here."

"Thank you, sir," Mrs. Lundy beamed. "And you, ma'am. It's just that I can't stomach the notion of toting breakfast trays to folks lessen they're sick," she added, by way of apology.

"Cherry's going to have a baby and she thinks everybody's got to wait on her," Joy shrilled, unable to bear the idea of being left out of the conversation. "She says she ain't coming to breakfast; she'll do without first."

"Good land! I didn't know that!" Mrs. Lundy wheeled toward the door. "I'll fix her up something right away. Poor little chick. And her so young and all! Tchk-tchk!"

When Mrs. Lundy had disappeared into the kitchen, Faith looked at Bob and broke into a tremulous laugh. "Someone else to spoil Cherry, darling!" he said.



Women's Oldest Problem

in hygiene disappearing —new way discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THE worries and fear of the uncertain hygienic ways of yesterday are rapidly passing. 8 in 10 better-class women employ a new way called Kotex.

✓ Kotex discards like tissue. No laundry, no disposal bother.

Being 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads," it permits lightest gowns and frocks without danger. Dance, motor, go about for hours without a moment's doubt.

Deodorizes, too, thus ending all fear of offense. Doctors urge this way. Many stores have Kotex already wrapped on counters, ready for you to pick up without even asking for it.

Try today and you'll never again risk uncertain old ways. Box contains 12. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

Rochester Wins 4th Game of Leafs Tribe Series

LEAFS SPLIT DOUBLE BILL

First Game Managerless Tribesmen Have Won of Series.

STARS DEFEATED 11-7

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press). — Rochester and Toronto divided a double-header at Rochester yesterday afternoon ,the champions winning the first game by 13 to 7, and the Tribe capturing the second by 4 to 3. It was the first game of the series for the managerless Tribe, Toronto having won the first three games.

Mickey Devine's home run with the bases loaded in the sixth inning supplied the margin which enabled Buffalo to take the third game of the series at Syracuse, 11 to 7. Following Devine's blow, Pitcher Stryker also hit a home run, while Brown and Hurst struck circuit smashes for Syracuse.

After jumping away to a three-run lead, the Bears were the victims of a seven-inning batting rally by the Baltimore Club, and dropped the third game of the series at Newark, 8 to 3.

Virgil Cheeves pitched good ball until the seventh, when he filled the bases on a hit and two passes. He was relieved by Swaney, whom the Orioles pounded for three hits.

Earl Howard was touched for three more hits before he retired the side.

Reading at Jersey City, postponed, rain.

CRICKET NEWS

LONDON, England, June 23 (Canadian Press Cable).—English first class cricket matches which opened yesterday produced some tremendous scoring, no fewer than eight batsmen passing the century marks. The greatest slaughter of the bowling took place in the Surrey-Cambridge University game, where the county batsmen compiled 556 and two hundreds were registered. BELMONT TO PLAY LOCK BOYS

Will Decide Winners of Group 2 in the Softball League.

FAST GAME EXPECTED.

The most important game of the local Softball League will be staged on Friday night at Central Park when the Belmonts meet the Lock Works. The last time these two teams met the Lock Works won out. The Belmonts claim they were lucky to win as Joe Dunkerley walked thirteen men. The Lock Works are going to try and keep up their winning streak, they not having lost a game to date.

This will be a great battle, as a win for the Lock Works puts the Belmonts out of the running for the Taylor Cup and gives them the right to meet the C.G.E. The Belmonts are going to field their strongest team in an attempt to win the game.

Manager Stuart has not decided who he will pitch, but it is likely he will send "Hap" Harrison in to quell the Lock Makers, holding Carruthers and McLean in reserve. Manager Miller may give Jimmy Waddel, his speed ball twirler, a chance to show his wares against the Club, holding Dunkerley and Sturgeon in reserve.

It is the most important fixture of the season and will be a hard, well-fought contest all the way. The teams will get away at 6.15 sharp.

LOSS TO SOFTBALL JOE BATTEN LEAVES

President of Local League Has Accepted Position in Toronto.

Joe Batten, president of the Peterborough Softball League left today for Toronto where he has accepted a situation.

Mr. Batten has done a great deal for sport in general and softball particularly in Peterborough, and his services will be missed. As President of the League he has the record of not missing a game and he has been on the job in other respects at all times. Sporting circles in Peterborough will wish him all success.

He will be succeeded as president of the Softball League by Walter Perks.

HARRY BAKER WINS FEATURE EVENT

Defeats Field of Four at the Blue Bonnets Meet.

MONTREAL, June 23 (Canadian Press).—Harry Baker, the five-year-old racer owned by P. F. Joyce, captured the feature race of the fifth day at Blue Bonnets Summer Meeting yesterday, defeating a field of only four starters. The "Colonel Lindberg Handicap" of $1,500 was substituted for the Connaught Cup yesterday, the trophy race not having filled. Entered with Harry Baker were Roi Des Montagnes, of the Seagram stable which won the Windsor Hotel Cup on Saturday, with $5,000 added; Punjab, which ran a good second to Roi Des Montagnes, and Lactarius, formerly owned by J. K. L. Ross. The distance was a mile and an eighth.

Roi des Montagnes broke away at the start, followed by Harry Baker, Lactarius and Punjab. In this order the quartette raced all down the back stretch, but rounding the turn into the straight Harry Baker moved up to Roi Des Montagnes and Punjab got the better of Lactarius. A gruelling drive up the home stretch saw Harry Baker outlast the Seagram horse and flash past the post half a length in front.

The racing was witnessed by a meagre crowd, the dull, threatening weather keeping away many race followers.

Several hotly contested events were run off with good prices paid on most of them. One of the best races of the day was the seventh in which Great Rock, the favorite, battled it out with Paddy for the whole length of the mile and a furlong and disposed of the R. T. Wilson gelding in the last few strides.

STRENGTHEN HOLD ON SECOND PLACE

Cards Defeat Cubs 11-5 for Clean Sweep of Series.

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press). — The Reds gave Pete Donohue a five-run lead in the first two innings at Pittsburgh yesterday, but Pittsburgh shelled the Cincinnati pitcher out of the box in the second inning under a barrage of four hits to tie the score, and eventually won out by 11 to 9 . Lucas, who relieved Donohue, retired in favour of Mays in the sixth when the Pirates broke through with five more runs.

Kremer was knocked off the slab in the second frame ,and Morrison, Hill, and Aldridge succeeded him. Aldridge replaced Hill in the ninth, and stopped a rally.

The Cardinals strengthened their hold on second place by defeating the Chicago Cubs, 11 to 5, for a clean sweep of the series at St. Louis.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, who volunteered out of turn so as to face the club which sent him down the river to win a pennant and world's championship for the Cardinals last season, held the Cubs to six scattered hits. His team mates pounded three pitchers for sixteen safeties.

Frank Frisch got three hits which boosted his season batting average to .381 and for the first time put him above Rogers Hornsby for whom he was traded.

Hack Wilson, leading National home run slugger, hit for the circuit for the fourteenth time this season. Two men were on bases.

Boston-New York, rain.

Philadelphia-Brooklyn, rain.

C.G.E. DEFEAT SEVEN OAKS

Score Two Runs in the Ninth To Win 9 to 7 Victory.

BARNETT STARS.

Scoring two runs in their half of the ninth the C.G.E. managed to shove over a win on the Seven Oaks. The score was 9-7 and the Electric boys were lucky to win for the Seven Oaks outplayed them in every department. With two down two errors put Jones and Heard on the runways. Then Wilson hit one to left that would have been lucky to be a single. Burnett misjudged it and it rolled into the crowd and the two runs were in.

Jack LeBarr was the Seven Oaks' selection for mound duty. He pitched a nice game and was given fairly good support. Nicholls started for the C.G.E. but was relieved at the seventh by Richmond, who managed to get by the last two frames without any runs being scored on him.

McGraw repeated his performance of Tuesday night and turned in a great game behind the bat. His work could not be improved upon. Mein at third, Board at short, McDonough at second, and Cheu at first all played well, but the real start of the game was Barnett in left field. He made eight beautiful catches without a slip, picking them off at all angles. It was a great fielding performance.

Jones was the Electric boys best bet, making some nice catches. Wilson and Heard also played nice games. Cheu was the heavy hitter of the game.

The C.G.E. are now winners of Group 2 and will meet the winner of Group 1 for the Taylor Cup.

The teams lined up as follows:

Seven Oaks—McGraw, c; Cheu, 1b; Mein, 3b; Board, ss; J. LeBarr, p; McDonough, 2b; Barnett, lf; Dwyer, cf; Corkery, rf.

Umpires—Kay and Jackson.

K. OF C. MEET THE INDUSTRIAL CONTROL TONIGHT.

Tonight the K. of C. meet the Industrial Control at Central Park at 6.15 and it should be a great battle. The Industrial Control, fresh from their close game with Lock Works, which they lost by one run, are confident they will down the K. of C. in tonight's battle. But the K. of C. are also out to win, as they are determined to finish near the top of the League.

Manager Bennet will start Simmons, his speed ball twirler, while Manager Kearns of the K. of C. will likely pin his hopes on Murphy, with Rose in reserve.

The game will get away at 6.15 sharp and should draw a big crowd of fans.

AN ERROR.

In last night's report of the Seven Oaks-4th Battery game it was stated that "Scotty" Monngraw was catching for the Seven Oaks. This should have read "Scotty" McGrath. Monngraw plays right field for the Canoe Company.

STARR STERLING'S PROBLEM

A Serial for Boys - By BERT REED

Where was Sterling? For seven grueling innings the Riverview boys had battled with the Beamville team. At the end of the seventh the score stood three to one in favor of Beamville. Bully Bascombe was jubilant. With Sterling missing he felt sure of victory.

It was the Wednesday half holiday in the town and the long covered stand was filled with people—Zeb Bascombe, Chip Bascombe's father and president of the Silver Ridge League, was pompously strutting around. There was not the slightest doubt in his mind but that Beamville would come out on top.

Down at one end of the enclosure the town band was stationed. The village girls were out in large numbers to encourage the home nine. Motors and buggies were drawn up outside, for the opening of the Silver Ridge League had been well advertised and people from the surrounding country had come in large numbers. There was also a considerable sprinkling of city people from Oakwood House, where a large number of visitors were summering. Old Silas Weatherby, who ran the summer hotel, was sufficiently far sighted to realize the advantage of having a ball team in town. Consequently he had been one of the principal supporters in the project of forming the Silver River League and of having Beamville represented by the best nine that could be secured. It was whispered that his was a semi-professional team for, although neither of the college boys on the team had accepted salaries, both had been offered and given situations in town at salaries far beyong the usual remuneration for such work.

Zeb Bascombe and old Silas Weatherby had been the principals in financing the town team, Bascombe having been influenced by his son who, considering himself a ball player of some considerable ability, had been ambitious to manage the team. Weatherby was actuated purely by business motives.

In spite of an all morning search the boys had failed to find Starr Sterling. Some of the members of the team had been in favor of refusing to go on the field but Gray had won them over.

"We can't quit, fellows," he declared. "There's something funny about this business, but Starr will turn up. In the meantime we've got to go in and win."

Gray, substituting for Sterling, had held the Beamville team down to five hits but, in spite of his good work, they had managed to get three men around. At the end of the end of the seventh inning Gray had given them all that he had and realized that he was weakening.

Beamville went to bat in the opening of the eighth. Craddock, the first man up, cracked out a pretty single which passed Larkspur who was playing short. Cameron followed by dumping a bunt toward third. Frazer, who was covering third, threw wild to Holloway who was at first, and Cameron was safe, Craddock holding second. Hamilton, the third man up, followed Cameron's example and attempted to sacrifice. The bunt rolled slowly into the diamond. Both Larkspur and Gray attempted to handle it. In the confusion Hamilton reached first. The bases were full and none out. Larkspur was more than annoyed at himself. "Of all the prize ossified mummies, I'm the worst—old King Tut is alive and kicking compared with me," he muttered ruefully.

The Beamville crowd was rooting it's head off. "This is more fun than I've had since I saw Ringlings' three-ringed circus," exclaimed a town boy standing on the line; "they are better than prize clowns." It was true that three costly misplays had apparently given the Beamville team the game for no one was out.

Shaking his head, Gray walked slowly back to the mound. The batting list was up again with Stanners leading. "Big Stick Stanners" they had called him at college. It was said that his stick work on the varsity had been the talk of the college league.

The Beamville rooters were still roaring—Beamville had the game on ice. Every man on base would cross the plate. Gray was hesitating. The bleachers were howling.

"Make him play," roared one man. "His wooden arm is cracked", shrieked another. "Send him back to the stable," cried a third. "Give the old pill a ride, Stanners, and empty the sacks", yelled an enthusiast from the crowd.

Gray faced Stanners, his face pale. If Stanners played up to form, in another moment four tallies would be added to the three Beamville had already made. Gray's confidence was gone; he felt helpless. With a hopeless expression on his face he was about to deliver the ball, when from Turner in the left garden came a whoop of joy.

'It's Sterling— Gray— everybody! It's Sterling!"

Gray turned. Running through the gate of the enclosure came Starr flushed and breathless. Straight into the diamond he ran. "How does she stand?" he panted. 'Am I in time?" Looking around he saw the situation in a glance.

"I will substitute for Gray," he said turning to the umpire. "Will you give me two minutes to get into my uniform?" But Bascombe pushed his way through.

"Make them play ball, Mr. Umpire", he snarled.

Suddenly Starr's arm shot out, his finger pointing at Bascombe. "Your trick has failed, Bascombe", he cried. "Now we're going to win. Will you give me two minutes, Mr. Umpire?" he asked again—but the umpire ignored him.

"Play ball!" he called and Gray took the slab again, winding up to pitch.

Sterling hurried from the field to the dressing room. From the diamond he heard a crack and roar. Stanners had connected with the ball. Then suddenly the roar died away, to be followed by a cheer. Feverishly he flung off his clothes and stepped into his uniform.

When he reached the field again the base were still full. nAderson had stepped into Stanner's driver and held it. He hurried toward Gray. "Good work, Gray, I'll take the ball." With an expression of relief Gray handed Sterling the ball and walked back to the bench.

Starr glanced around the diamond then, without any preliminary wind up, sent in a speed inshoot. Crack! The batter had met the ball handsomely. The crowd was on its feet.

The hit and run signal had been given and already Craddock, Cameron and Hamilton were circling the sacks. Then one of thos occasional things in baseball happened. Price, who had been covering second, saw the ball with the speed of a bullet coming directly at him. Without stirring from his tracks, and more from a self-protective instinct rather than from skill, he stuck up his hands. The ball burned its way into his glove and stuck. For a moment he did not realize what had happened. Then a glimpse of Hamilton thundering back upon him brought him to his senses. Quickly he raced the second sack. A double play had retired Beamville. For a moment the Beamville crowd, who had already scented a crushing defeat for Riverview, was stunned. Then a feeble cheer echoed across the diamond.

YANKEES WIN DOUBLE-HEADER

Victory Runs New Yorkers' Consecutive Triumphs to Eight.

TWO HOMERS FOR RUTH

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press) The Yankees cleaned up another double header at Boston yesterday by 7 to 4 and 3 to 2, giving the New Yorkers four triumphs in two days and running their consecutive victories to eight.

Ruth made two home runs in the first game off the left-handed Hal Wiltse, one of them with a mate on base. This brings his season total to 24 and puts him even with his record of 1921. His first circuit wallop was in the fifth and cleared the left centre field fence. In the seventh his second heavy clout with Coombs on landed in the runway between the right field bleached sections, 100 feet beyond the playing field and was one of his longest drives here.

Chicago and St. Louis divided a double-header at Chicago yesterday, the Browns winning the first game 3 to 2 after ten innings, and the White Sox taking the second, 8 to 5.

Connolly's misplay in the second inning on Stewart, when he had a double play in front of him, let Rice score the second for the Browns, to tie Chicago. The winners won out in the tenth on O'Rourke's walk, a single and Sisler's sacrifice fly.

Gaston Hit Hard

In the second game Gaston was hit hard and retired in favor of a pinch hitter, Chester Falk replacing him on the hill in the seventh and being touched for two more runs. Schang and Ward smashed out home runs in the second struggle.

The Athletics divided a double-header with Washington at Philadelphia for the second day in succession. The senators won the first game, 4 to 2, and the Athletics the second, 13 to 7. Horace Lisenbee, the rookie, faced the Mackmen for his first time in the opening game and limited them to six hits. It was his ninth victory of the season. Alvin Crowder was hit hard in the second game and was hardpressed out of the box in the second inning when the Athletics added six runs to the three they tallied in the opening inning. Al Simmons hit two home runs, one in the first inning with two on base, and a double in five times at bat in the second.

SHAKING PALSY

This is a form of paralysis which is not produced by a sudden rupture of a blood vessel. The onset of the trouble is very gradual. The hand begins to shake slightly and at first only intermittently. Most cases develop a certain rigidity of the muscles with a slowness of movement in different parts of the body. The action of all the muscles is very deliberate.

After the trembling has started in the thumb and forefinger it spreads to the whole hand, then to the arms and legs and finally the head begins to shake unsteadily. All cases show a real hardening of the arteries and the circulation of the blood becomes sluggish with the veins showing perceptibly in the hands and legs.

Shaking palsy, or paralysis agitans, as it is called in the medical text books, is produced by a chronic state of auto-intoxication and is especially noticeable if these cases have always been over-stimulated by the use of highly seasoned foods, coffee, tea and alcoholic drinks.

After years of over-stimulation and toxemia, the one who is predisposed to shaking palsy will, at the age of about forty-five years, develop the first symptoms. This disorder is present more with men than women.

The onset of the disease may be more rapid after exposure to bad weather, from worry or from extreme nervous excitement. All forms of shaking palsy, however, start with a fundamental toxemia, which breaks down the nervous system and produces a real degeneration of the nerve cells. Metabolism becomes faulty and the only way that the patient can hope to recover is to thoroughly cleanse the system of all morbid material, and then begin to furnish the body with the proper food out of which new cell structure may be built.

The patient must never over-eat, but should keep his food reduced to the smallest possible amount. Only food of the proper kind and quality should be used.

No stimulants of any kind should be used, except the stimulation which comes from regular physical culture exercises. These exercises should be taken several times daily with the proper periods of rest in between.

All worries of every nature must be removed from the patient and domestic harmony maintained.

Follow these suggestions and a complete cure may be possible.

Lyrics Of Life

SUMMER PLANS.

They're talking over summer plans
At our house now, the way folks do;
And I can plainly see a man's
Is different from a woman's view.
My mother wants some summer clo'es
She'll have to take a trunk, I guess;
Dad doesn't care just where he goes
Just so it's where you don't need dress.

My mother says that she'll be glad
To go where Dad prefers;
And it is just the same with Dad.
His choice is anywhere that's hers.
She says she hopes it will not lack
Some good hotels, and bridge, and fun.
He hopes that they can find a shack
A hundred miles from anyone.

So Mother's calling all her friends,
And Father's talking bass and trout.
I know the way it always ends—
Some place they 'hadn't thought about.
Some evening, after Mother's cried
And Father's ready to agree,
They'll both give in, and both decide
To go some place that's best for me.

CRESCENTS PLAY COGS TO-MORROW

Jack Billingsley, With Two Straight Wins, Faces Former Team Mates.

Followers of the East Peterborough League are looking forward to an interesting battle at Exhibition Park tomorrow evening when Crescents and Cognawagas meet for the first time this season. Unusual interest is attached to the contest because of the fact that Jack Billingsley will pitch for Crescents against his former teammates.

Billingsley has performed in two games, both against Raybestos. In the first, he relieved Armstrong and retired the last batter in the second frame. For the remainder of the game, he held the Rays hitless and runless. Against Raybestos last Friday, he allowed only two hits. Bil-'s control is improving, he having passed only three batsmen in eleven and one-third innings.

REACH AGREEMENT

NEW YORK, June 23 (Canadian Press). — Jack Dempsey, bronzed and hardened by ten weeks of preliminary conditioning in the Ventura Mountains of California, came to New York yesterday, and within two hours had reached a complete agreement with Tex Rickard for his comeback campaign. The former heavyweight champion not only definitely accepted terms for an "elimination" 15-round match with Jack Sharkey, to be fought at the Yankee Stadium on July 21, but removed the only hitch in the negotiations by reaching a compromise understanding on terms for a possible return title fight with Gene Tunney in September.

What the compromise calls for was not revealed, but it is expected that Dempsey, if he wins from Sharkey, will get considerably more than any challenger or ex-champion ever received for a title bout.

FINE PHOTOGRAPHY IN EVERY SCENE OF "JIM THE CONQUEROR"

Specially Prepared Film Used by Cameramen With Highly Beautiful Results

The unsung heroes of the silver sheet, those who assume full responsibility for a production, aside from star and director, are destined to win the admiration of all film fans who see "Jim the Conqueror," Metropolitan's latest screen version of Peter B. Kyne's story, which will be on view at the Regent Theatre today.

George Bertholon, general production executive, Hall Rosson and Dewey Wrigley, cinematographers, all of the Metropolitan producing organization have achieved some of the most magnificent photographic effects yet realized from the screen in this production.

In Arizona, about fifty miles north of Flagstaff, where the company was on location, gigantic buttes and broad expanse of plain were filmed as a background for the action of this story which centers around a memorable conflict between cattlemen and sheepmen. By the use of a specially prepared film, which also required special developing and printing, the scenic grandeur of this country was brought to the screen in a manner that is little short of marvellous.

When the company returned to the studio at Hollywood, William Sistrom, General Manager of Metropolitan Studios, as well as other executives, were loud in their praise of the initiative of Bertholon and the cameramen who worked out the process which was so fruitful.

An Ex-Buck Private Goes Back to France

Dear Mac:

In Montauban today I bought a bouquet of flowers from an old lady, Madame Maria Periatior. She wasn't there in 1916. Nothing was here but rubble and arriving shells. We got through the village just as quickly as we could.

There is a memorial here that is different. It is the original village crucifix, sadly damaged but still recognizable, and eloquent witness to the divilry that went on here eleven years ago. But this crucifix is the only piece of the original Montauban. Around it has arisen the usual new village of bricks, with large barns and a comfortable Mairie.

Many of the villages hereabouts were aided in their early struggles by the generosity of British town and villages. Thus, Montauban owes to our Kentish town of Maidstone its water supply and lighting system, to say nothing of gifts and clothing, seeds, and fruit trees. Away back, at Fricourt, too, the inhabitants have grateful recollections of gifts from Ipswich which, taking the form of harvesting implements, enabled them to win a scanty living from their first struggles with tangled, trench-scarred fields that lay between gaunt and blackened woods.

Of those woods, of Trones, Mametz and Bernafay, I will write later, as also of that place which men called, appropriately, Devil's Wood, in which the South African Brigade won imperishable glory at immense sacrifice.

Meantime, let us pass to Guillemont, once again a thriving village. In vain one seeks, en route, old trenches and "hot corners." The old direction-posts are gone, the old dumps have vanished, "hot corners" are now just prosaic cross-roads, while the sunken road hold no greater terror than a shambling farm waggon which impedes the progress of your car.

At Guillemont, are still to be seen two menacing nine-two shells. But they grace the front garden of a prominent villager, and about them are pretty flower beds and grass verges. The fine, double-fronted house behind them replaces one destroyed by shells such as these.

Those who, during the War, read of the fierce fight for Guillemont station, changing hands many times a day, secured an evil prominence in the communiques, might have imagined it to be some extensive junction of strategic importance. Today it is possible to see it as it was, for, like most places hereabouts, it has been restored on lines no more ambitious than it possessed before the War.

It consists of a cottage with a low platform outside, bordering on a single-line, narrow-guage railway, on which two trains daily run in each direction, between Albert and Peronne, taking two and a half hours to make the single journey of twenty-odd miles. I saw the little train puff its way modestly out of the station, and meander across the Longueval road past Ginchy. When its hissing was no longer to be heard, one imagined one caught again the sound of the pipes that rallied a sorely-tried Irish regiment in this valley, ten years ago, for an assault upon Ginchy.

If you walk from Guillemont towards Wedge Wood and Falfemont Farm, you will encounter a British cemetery which holds a grave of peculair interest. Here is buried the brilliant son of one who was, at the time of this Battle, Prime Minister of Britain. "Equality of sacrifice requires equality of treatment," says the Imperial War Graves Commission, and thus you must seek for this grave as you seek for that of any private soldier. At last you come upon it, one of a long line, and the stone, exactly the same as any other, records that here is buried Lieutenant Raymond Asquith of the Grenadier Guards, who was killed on 15th September, 1916, aged 37. Then follows a remarkable inscription, the one touch of individual choice permitted to the relatives of each fallen man. The inscription reads: "Small time, but in that small time most greatly lived this star of England."

* * *

I heard a girl in Montauban today singing "Hello My Dearie." Do you remember when that used to be popular music. The air evidently caught on with the Frenchies who were then refugees behind the line, and it has been brought up to the new Montauban. It ran something like this:

"Hello my dearie, I'm lonesome for you,
I want you near me, Oh honest I do;
Come over, I'm all alone
That's why I called you by phone;
Loving like this is some people admire,
But cuddles and kisses you can't send by wire;
I have the blues, don't refuse, or you'll lose me.
Oh honey hurry, or I shall worry,
I love you so, goodbye."

Much water has flowed under Hunter street bridge since we sang that!

Nova Scotian Wins Natal Day Foot Race

HALIFAX, N. S., June 23 (Canadian Press). — John C. Miles, Sidney Mines, N.S., won the ten mile race run on the Wanderers track here last night as part of the Natal Day Celebration postponed from Tuesday on account of wet weather. Miles' time was 53.32 2-5. Charles Snell of Toronto led the field for the first fifteen laps, with Miles close at his heels. Then Miles took the lead and ran twenty laps with Snell never more than a yard behind.

After the 36th lap of the quarter-mile track Miles lengthened his stride and opened a gap between him and the Toronto runner which was never filled. Snell seemed unable to quicken his pace and was nearly half a lap behind when Miles finished. Silas McLellan of Noel, Hants County, N.S., was third, several laps behind the winner.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

CENSUS FIGURES OF COUNTY LIVE STOCK

Domestic Animals Are Nine Times That of Human Population.

Peterborough county's live-stock and poultry populationis almost nine times that of its human population. According to the 1921 census, the total number of inhabitants was 43,034. The latest calculation of the numbers of fivestock and domestic fowls place the figures at 379,953.

Of this large total, fowls, as might be expected, account for the greater portion. There are 260,000 domestic fowls in the county, their estimated value being $188,000. Thus the average value works out at a very tiny fraction over 71 cents per bird. Included in the number are 12,772 turkeys, 7,168 geese 5,976 ducks.

Including calves, there are 30,616 animals in the herds on the farms of the county, representing an investment of $1,683,991. The principal subdivisions of the total number are as follows: Bulls for breeding, 1,216; milk cows, 22,220; beef cows, 1,220; milk yearlings, 5,352; beef yearlings, 5,081.

The sheep and lambs of all kinds in the county total 12,990, valued at $124,801. The value of the swine in the county is $282,000. There are 2,401 brood sows among the 19,865 hogs on the farms of the county.

There are 10,440 horses—equal to $1,129,574 in hard cash—60 young stallions, 5,519 mares of two years and over, 4,177 geldings and 684 colts and fillies.

If They Were Divided.

If the wiseacres who propose an equal division of property were to have an immediate innings, each family in the county, assuming the livestock of Peterborough were distributed equally among the inhabitants, would get 45 fowls, two hogs and a share in a third, one sheep and part of a lamb, one horse and part ownership of another.

As a matter of fact, there is a considerable redistribution of the livestock of the county every year; but this is effected needless to say on a hard-headed business basis. Taking 1925 as a typical year we find that 781 horses changed owners and $84 348 changed hands; 14 217 cattle were sold for $458 072; 8 017 sheep for $69 748; 26 607 swine (more than are at present on Peterborough farms) for $506 331; 117 536 fowls for $144 442.

The total value of livestock sold or slaughtered in Peterborough in 1925 was $1 262 941.

DELIVERS LECTURE ON BRITISH EMPIRE

Dominions Are Climbing a Ladder of Evolution Says Noted British Speaker.

CHICAGO June 23. Canadian Press. —Describing the empire as a strange complex, a heterogenous collection of separate entities, which is yet a political unit, Sir Cecil Hurst, legal advisor of the British Foreign Office, began a series of lectures to-day before the Norman Wait Harris Memorial Foundation Institute at the University of Chicago

Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, he said, have been during the past century, "climbing the ladder in evolution from a position of dependence to a position of freedom from control."

"The Dominions of to-day were the Crown Colonies of the past, and the Crown Colonies of to-day will be the Dominions of the days to come. There was nothing stationary about the British Empire.

The Irish Free State had reached Dominionhood by a different route, and Sir Cecil considered that it lay outside the score of his subject

It is a sad and some times blood-stained history of relations between Ireland and Britain prior to the treaty of 1921, and was a page that had been turned, and he was concerned only with the position which Ireland enjoyed at present.

SAFEGUARDING MILK BY PASTEURIZATION

We quite appreciate the fact that while we deliver clean milk, free from barnyard contamination and free from disease producing germs, to the consumer, yet it is quite possible for this milk, by careless handling in the homes, to become so contaminated as to be unfit for infant feeding in from twelve to eighteen hours after it is received. We, therefore, instruct the housewife in the proper precautions to be taken and the extreme importance of keeping the milk in a cool place, preferably a refrigerator where it can be kept at a temperature of 60 degrees.

The weak link in the chain of activities in connection with our milk supply is our inability to secure the co-operation of the railroads in supplying refrigerator cars at all times. Much of the milk is brought into the city by trucks, which of course are always covered. We endeavour so far as possible to have the cans covered with jute or some other material which is kept wet in order to favour the cooling process by the constant evaporation. Unfortunately, Toronto labours under the disadvantage of the long haul, the City drawing its supply from an area extending to 150 miles east, 140 miles west, and 80 miles north.

The daily consumption of milk in Toronto at the present time is 256,000 quarts; the number of farms supplying the City, 2,666. The number of dairy cows averages about 32,000 The approximate value of these dairy cows is $2,879,280.

We are endeavouring all the time to increase the milk consumption of Toronto, recognizing as we do that this constitutes one of the most important factors in the efficient development of our boys and girls.

Respectfully submitted,

"Makes my Washing Whiter"

"ONCE I rubbed and scrubbed my clothes to get them clean.

"But now, like millions of other women, I use a new way that makes my washing snowy white.

"This new way is with Rinso. It's simple and safe.

"Just soaks out the dirt and stains, and leaves me only the rinsing to do.

"Rinso saves me hours of hard work, yet makes my clothes whiter than ever."

UNUSUAL RITES CAUSE TROUBLE

Five Deacons Resign Following Actions of Members at Prayer Meetings.

FOLLOWS REVIVAL.

NEW YORK, June 23 (United Press). — Charges of the performance of unusual rites similar to those associated with the ceremonies of the Pentecostal Church, threatened today to disrupt Dr. John Roach Straton's Calvary Baptist Church.

Five of the fifteen deacons of the church have resigned, a statement made public by the dissenters last night revealed. The statement charged that Dr. Straton, long a colourful figure among the Baptist clergy, sympathized with the section of his congregation alleged to have indulged in the ceremonies. It was learned that the rituals weer started shortly after Uldine Utley, 13-year-old evangelist, and a protege of Dr. Straton, conducted revival services at the church last fall.

The statement did not discuss in detail the ceremonies to which the deacons object, but it was understood that at the midweek prayer meetings, which were said to have lasted far into the night, members of the congregation sang hymns, intoned the Scriptures, and called upon the Holy Spirit to enter their souls, some of them working themselves up to such a heat of fervour that they fell rigid to the floor, lying on their backs and uttering mystical sounds supposed to indicate the descent upon them of the "gift of tongues."

Those who speak with the "gift of tongues" are supposed to have received the "Baptism of the Holy Spirit," according to the beliefs of the Pentecostal Church.

OUR FOREST TREES

JACK PINE

The natural range of this tree extends from Georgian Bay to the northern boundary of the Province. Occasionally it is found further south than this, and when planted will grow successfully anywhere in Ontario.

It has a fairly straight and symmetrical stem and when growing in pure stands, as it frequently does, attains the height of 60 feet, with a diameter of 18 inches. The needles are 1 to 1½ inches long and grow in bundles of two.

The jack pine is a hardy tree and suited to the poorer soils; in fact it frequently is found where other trees fail to get a footing. It will grow on pure sand provided there is some moisture and will withstand considerable drought. It is not shade-enduring and therefore not suited to underplanting or mixed woodlots of a general type.

The wood is weak, brittle, perishable, coarse-grained and not considered a first-quality lumber. It is used for timber, railway ties, tough construction, work, pulp and fuel, and is often sold mixed with red pine.

Jack pine is the least desirable of the pines for planting in Ontario. As it grows rapidly for the first few years on the poorest of soil, it is frequently used to prevent excessive drifting. If the area to be planted will support other species, they should be used in preference to this one.

RED PINE

The red or norway pine grows generally throughout Ontario, as far north as the height of land. It frequently grows in pure stands, and is often found mixed with white pine, where it takes possession of the poorer sites. Most of the pine of this species is in New Ontario; the two remaining and fairly large areas in Old Ontario are in Simcoe and Lambton Counties.

When grown in the open, the tree is short, with branches to the ground. In the forest it grows from 60 to 80 feet, with a diameter of 2 feet. It is distinguished from the other pines by its coarse, scaly, reddish-brown bark and its long coarse needles, 5 to 6 inches long in bundles of two.

Red pine grows best on sandy loam and soil of moderate fertility. It also thrives on pure sand, especially if there is good drainage. It is not shade-enduring and consequently should be grown either pure or with trees of the same or slower rate of growth. It suffers little from insects or disease and is moderately fire-resisting.

The uses are much as those of white pine: in fact, probably most red pine is sold mixed with white pine, as the two grow in the same region and are cut together. When kept separate, red pine is mostly cut into dimension timber, substituting for southern hard pine.

Red pine is one of the best trees for planting in Ontario, and the establishing of plantations of this species is encouraged by the Forestry Branch. It is recommended that it be planted in mixture with other pines, but pure plantations have been successful.

WHITE PINE

This tree is well-known from one end of the Province to the other and from the height of land to the southern boundary. It is usually found in pure stands, and sometimes mixed with other conifers or hardwoods. Most of the virgin stands of this pine in Ontario have been cut; there are, however, considerable quantities of this tree scattered throughout the Province in woodlots and on old pine lands, which go by the name of second-growth pine.

In its virgin state it reaches the height of 150 or more feet and a diameter of 3 to 5 feet. In second-growth stands it grows from 70 to 90 feet with a diameter of 12 to 18 inches in 60 years. The needles are from 3 to 5 inches long, soft, delicate and grow in bundles of 5.

White pine does best on fresh, light, deep and sandy soil, with porous subsoil. It will also adapt itself to poorer sites of dry sand and rocky slopes. In its early years it will stand some shade and consequently may be used in under-planting if the cover is not too dense. It requires plenty of light to reach its best maturity. The bark on young trees is thin and tender and is easily damaged by fire. Trees in young plantations are attacked by the white pine weevil which destroys the leaders, and are subject to the blister rust which girdles the branches.

The wood is characterized by being amongst the lightest and softest of the commercial timbers of this country. It has a fine, straight and even grain. The sapwood is a dull white, the heartwood a pronounced red in very old trees, less so in younger trees. The wood does not split and holds nails well. It is stiff but not strong, though relatively to its weight quite so. The lumber seasons rapidly and easily without warping or twisting and works with ease under the tool. It is comparatively durable and holds its place with little shrinkage or swelling.

White pine is used for almost anything, but especially in building construction and the manufacture of boxes. For general carpentry it is without peer. White pine is used by Ontario industries to an extent not reached by any other wood. Practically all types of wood-using industry in Ontario use white pine more or less.

Owing to the danger of injury by the white pine weevil and the blister rust, this tree should not be planted in pure stands. It may be mixed with the other two native pines or scotch pine, and be planted pure under scattered hardwoods, twenty-five feet in height or more, such as oak and poplar.

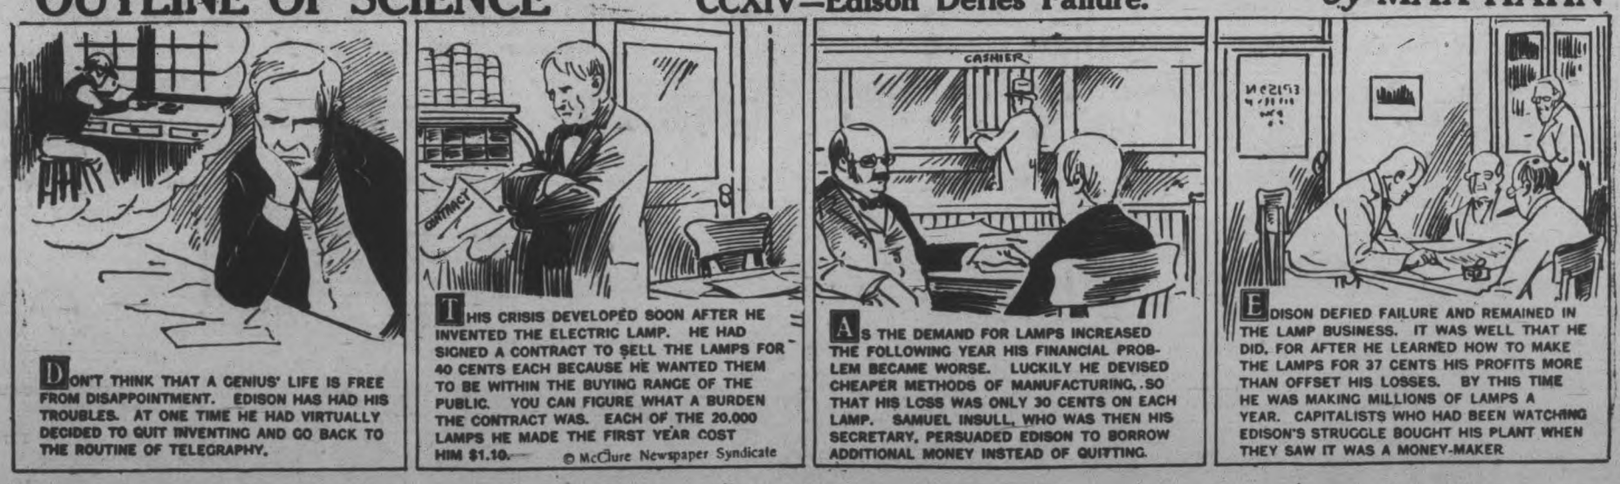
CCXIV—Edison Defies Failure.

by MAX HAHN



DON'T THINK THAT A GENIUS' LIFE IS FREE FROM DISAPPOINTMENT. EDISON HAS HAD HIS TROUBLES. AT ONE TIME HE HAD VIRTUALLY DECIDED TO QUIT INVENTING AND GO BACK TO THE ROUTINE OF TELEGRAPHY.

THIS CRISIS DEVELOPED SOON AFTER HE INVENTED THE ELECTRIC LAMP. HE HAD SIGNED A CONTRACT TO SELL THE LAMPS FOR 40 CENTS EACH BECAUSE HE WANTED THEM TO BE WITHIN THE BUYING RANGE OF THE PUBLIC. YOU CAN FIGURE WHAT A BURDEN THE CONTRACT WAS. EACH OF THE 20,000 LAMPS HE MADE THE FIRST YEAR COST HIM $1.10.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

AS THE DEMAND FOR LAMPS INCREASED THE FOLLOWING YEAR HIS FINANCIAL PROBLEM BECAME WORSE. LUCKILY HE DEVISED CHEAPER METHODS OF MANUFACTURING, SO THAT HIS LOSS WAS ONLY 30 CENTS ON EACH LAMP. SAMUEL INSULL, WHO WAS THEN HIS SECRETARY, PERSUADED EDISON TO BORROW ADDITIONAL MONEY INSTEAD OF QUITTING.

EDISON DEFIED FAILURE AND REMAINED IN THE LAMP BUSINESS. IT WAS WELL THAT HE DID, FOR AFTER HE LEARNED HOW TO MAKE THE LAMPS FOR 37 CENTS HIS PROFITS MORE THAN OFFSET HIS LOSSES. BY THIS TIME HE WAS MAKING MILLIONS OF LAMPS A YEAR. CAPITALISTS WHO HAD BEEN WATCHING EDISON'S STRUGGLE BOUGHT HIS PLANT WHEN THEY SAW IT WAS A MONEY-MAKER

ROBBER SHOOTS TWO POLICEMEN

But Is Also Slain Himself By Fire of Chicago Constables.

MAN UNIDENTIFIED.

CHICAGO, June 23. — (Canadian Press.)—Two policemen were killed early to-day in an exchange of pistol fire with a robber suspect who also was slain. Sergeant Thomas Kehoe, 52, was found dead in the street when police reserves reached the North Rockwell and Argyle inter-section where the shooting took place.

Policeman J. P. Farley died shortly afterward at a hospital. The body of the unidentified man whose shots slew the officers, and who in turn was felled by their fire, was found not far from Kehoe's.

the Opposition parties were unable or unwilling to do so and only then upon the definite understanding that he would be given the support of the House so he could carry out the programme to which he pledged himself during the election campaign.

He was re-elected by 68 votes to 22. The Dail was adjourned until six p.m. when Mr. Cosgrave said he would announce the personnel of his ministry.

De Valera in Wreck.

Early this morning when Mr. De Valera was proceeding to Dublin, his two seater automobile was struck by a trolley car. Mr. De Valera was not hurt, but had to abandon the car, which was badly damaged.

Before the opening of the Dail, President Cosgrave, Governor-General Timothy Healy, Mr. De Valera Government Ministers and Republican Deputies all assembled under one roof at a Roman Catholic service which was presided over by the Archbishop of Dublin.

The immense congregation which crowded the church, was truly a spectacle of the opposing forces in the Irish political war kneeling shoulder to shoulder in prayer.

At the end of the service great crowds cheered the leaders at they emerged. Good feeling prevailed in the city and there were no untoward incidents. Mr. De Valera's supporters arrived in Dublin from all parts of the country in motor cars bearing the inscription, "Abolish the oath."

Constable Evans said he believed that the accused had been seeking work. In view of the circumstances, His Worship exercised clemency, and after giving the accused a word of warning, allowed him to depart in the care of his benefactor.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S. HOLDS JUNE MEETING

Gathering Takes Form of a Patriotic Service.

The June meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. which was of a patriotic nature, was held in the church parlor Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. J. W. Gordon presiding.

After opening devotional exercises, routine business was discussed, and it was decided to hold the next monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. Geo. Evans, Engleburn avenue, the second Tuesday in July.

The responsive Bible reading, which was taken from the seventy-second Psalm, was led by Leslie.

The prayer of national thanksgiving was then offered up by Mrs. Edwards.

Mrs. Doig's fine voice was heard in the beautiful vocal solo, "Land of Hope and Glory." This was greatly appreciated by the ladies. Mrs. Doig was accompanied by Miss Blanchard.

A series of papers were then read by different members dealing with the progress of the Woman's Missionary Society work in the different provinces of Canada. It was found that the first Woman's Missionary Society was organized in the city of Montreal, Que., in 1864. Great progress was shown in each province since that time.

The meeting was brought to a close by the singing of the National Anthem.
